Famous Golf Shots of 1928

Key Shot Of a Record Round

By BASIL G. WYRICK

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Of all the thrilling shots made during Mrs. Melvin Jones' record round of 73 over the No. 1 course at Olympia fields last summer that doughty sportswoman recalls only one.

That was a hazardous spoon shot to the tabled eighth green. Mrs. Jones believes this shot bolstered up her nerve and kept down the score which ran away with medalist honors in the Chicago championship.

To achieve this score of one over men's par on a course where national championships have been held Mrs. Jones performed many miraculous stunts. She holed out from a trap for an eagle, sat long iron shots down alongside the cup and ran down putts of 30 and 40 feet. Even these things fade alongside that spoon shot at the eighth.

This hole is nearly 400 yards long, the green occupying the leveled top of a high ridge running lengthwise of the fairway. The terrain drops alarmingly into a woody tangle on each side, a brook guards the near side, and the far side ends abruptly in a steep bank. Sand traps are plentifully sprinkled about the banks.

Mrs. Jones opened her attack with a longish drive which left her 150 yards from the pin, but slightly to the left, because an enormous tree intervened. This made her approach more difficult. The ball had to be lifted over this tree and caused to duck immediately and hold the narrow green which from this angle was almost crosswise to the player.

The shot was a trifle stiff for an iron, as to achieve the distance the trajectory would be too flat to carry the tree and the steep approach to the green. Mrs. Jones chose a spoon and played a powerful shot, cutting well under the ball and drawing the club head across its surface.

The shot was perfect, the ball rose dizzily, skimmed over the tree, carried past the bank and swerved sharply down to the green. It landed 15 feet past the hole, but so powerful was the backspin imparted that it jerked backwards three feet nearer.

After that shot anything was possible. Mrs. Jones rammed down the treacherous side hill putt for her eagle 3 (woman's par) and went on to the 73, which sets a record for women's tournament play over a championship course. She scored six birdies and four eagles in the round.

ACADEMY DOES BATTLE WITH ROCKVILLE HIGH THIS EVENING

Tonight at the Y gym the Academy will meet Rockville High's formidable quintet. The locals, who have been improved in their last two starts, will again try again to get back on the right track this evening, but in Rockville they are facing a touch customer.

Rockville Wednesday night handed the team of Willimantic a beating and this is only the second scholastic defeat of the season for Windham then Norwich City outfit must be rated as a much stronger foe for the Wildcats at the present time.

The doubleup this evening will be the same makeshift affair that saw action against Chapman Tech Tuesday night. "Fat" Stevens and Dickerman are still on the shelf with the flu and "Red" Fagan is not expected to be available for the team any more this year. This necessitates filling the offensive ends of the team, forwards and center, and Coach Whitney has had quite a task to do this.

Frank Barber will no doubt be moved up fro forward to team with Cote with Chet Berghinzo at center and Captain LaCroix and Swartsburg in the baccourt. Before a home crowd the Wildcats can be expected to fight hard and do a little clawing on their own court.

In the preliminary, starting at 7.45, the C. F. C. meets the fast Stonington Iron Men outfit, which Wednesday beat Socony of New London decisively. The Ironmen are composed for the most part of formed Stonington High school players.

Tested Pumper

Charles B. Garmon, of the Municipal Protection department of the New England insurance exchange, Boston, was in Noank Wednesday morning with orders to Chief Park for a test of the fire engine. The engine was taken down to the town dock, where the test showed the pumper to be in a better condition today than when it was first tested, after purchase. It pumped an average of 326 gallons per minute at 100 pound gauge pressure. With this test Mr. Garmon seemed very much pleased, although he commented as to the amount of hose the company is now carrying. About three years ago Mr. Garmon tested the pumper but conditions being so bad with the pump the test was of no avail. The company got no report. He stated that the engineer, Mr. Foster, who has overhauled the pumper since that test, should be congratulated on the work he had done to have the pumper in such good working condition. Mr. Garmon was also looking over the hydrants on Pearl street which belong to the R. Palmer estate. A number of local people were down to the town dock when the test was made and are very greatly satisfied with the result.

The members of Philathea class of Noank Baptist church entertained Tuesday evening, in honor of their teacher, Dr. E. P. Fitch, whose birthday they observed. Musical selections were given and at the close of the evening refreshments were served. Those present were: Rev. and Mrs. E. F. Welse and daughter, Mrs. Owen W. I. Spicer, Mrs. Clara Eldridge, Mrs. Dorothy Patterson, Mrs. Ric Brown, Miss Lottie Morgan, Miss Irma Doughty, Mrs. Mabel McDonald, Miss Eloise Ross, Mrs. Eunice Carpenter, Miss Pearl Carson, Miss Maud Fitch, Miss Gertrude Brown, Mrs. Irene Geyer, Mrs. Eleanor Davis, Mrs. Helen Brown, Mrs. Bertha Ashcroft, Mrs. Alice Chester.

Burgess Bedtime Story

The Nibblers Have a Shock.

E'en when there seems to be no need,
Watch out, and signs of danger heed. —Nibbler the Mouse.

Nibbler the House Mouse, together with Mrs. Nibbler and several of their children, had moved from Farmer Brown's house out to Farmer Brown's barn early in the winter. There had been a reason. Indeed, there had been several reasons. One of these reasons was Black Pussy the Cat. The other reasons were traps. At first, there had been only one or two traps and it was easy to keep away from them. But more and more traps had been set and every other day one of the children had been caught. So finally the Nibblers moved out to the barn. There there was little to worry about excepting Black Pussy and it wasn't difficult to keep out of her way. To be sure, there was Robber the Rat, who wouldn't hesitate to dine on a family of young mice, if he could find them. But the barn was so big that it was easy to keep out of the way of Robber.

So ever since the early winter the Nibblers had been living very happy and comfortably. They did miss the cake and bread and bits of cheese and other goodies such as they used to find in other Brown's pantry. But, as little Mrs. Nibbler said, "We have plenty of good, plain food, so why should we worry? After all, it is the plain things of life that are the zest. Simple, plain food makes healthy mice."

So, though the children sometimes turned up their noses at clover and grass seed, oats, wheat, corn and meal, there was very little complaining and the Nibbler family was thriving.

So long had it been since there was any serious danger that all of the Nibblers had grown careless. Even Nibbler himself had grown careless. Black Pussy didn't spend much time in the barn, and when she was there it was an easy matter to keep an eye on her. It was only the most careless of mice who ever was surprised and caught by Black Pussy. By this time the Nibblers numbered several families. Mr. and Mrs. Nibbler believe in having plenty of children and having them often. No sooner is one set of children out of the way than another set is born. So Nibbler and Mrs. Nibbler had become great-great-grandparents since they came out to the barn. You see, their children and their children's children had families of their own. Then, just at dusk, a dreadful thing happened. Nibbler had just met his eldest son. The latter was on his way over to the grain bin. Nibbler had just come from there. Nibbler turned and watched his oldest son run out on the barn floor. He had just reached the grain bin when he was seized and carried away. Just who had seized him, Nibbler didn't know. No, sir, Nibbler didn't know.

"It wasn't Black Pussy," explained Nibbler to Mrs. Nibbler, when he got home with the sad news. "No, sir, it wasn't Black Pussy. I couldn't see just who it was. Whoever it was seemed to come from out of the air. I was too surprised and shocked to really use my eyes."

In no time at all the dreadful news went all through the big barn and there was a great squawking as the Nibbler family talked it over. That very same night another mouse was caught. As before, no one seemed to know just how it was done, or who it was that did it. But it was clear that there was an enemy in the barn and all the Nibblers became very much excited and nervous and frightened.

The next day three mice were mysteriously caught. This was getting serious. Nibbler called together all the other grown members of his family and they talked it all over. But as yet no one had discovered the strange enemy. Some thought it might be Shadow the Weasel. Some thought it might be Billy Mink. None guessed who it really was.

PENDLETON HILL

The recent highway survey would cut four or more pine trees which shade the lawns of the Palmer Homestead, remove much of the fine old bank wall and enter the garden by twelve or fifteen feet, in fact would greatly injure the beauty of this colonial home, when a few feet to the west would in the opinion of every one save the property and serve every purpose of a fine road.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO FLU

Coughs from Flu May Weaken Your System and Lead to Serious Trouble

You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion may help you avoid flu, but is not sold as a flu remedy. If you have fever, or think you may have the flu, see your doctor immediately. (adv.)

THE PRACTICAL VALUE OF FARM COOPERATION.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

A good many farmer's boys and girls leave the farms for the cities because they honestly believe there is "no chance" for their ever doing anything really big and worth while on the farms.

A good many grown-up and disillusioned farmers complain that there is "no future" for farming and farmers.

And so the exodus to village and city continues. And so the old farms are abandoned, one by one. And so we are changing from a nation of independent and self-sustaining princes of the soil into one of shop-hands and clerks and traders.

Nevertheless, once in a while there comes to the front the tale of some life and the story of some accomplishment which casts doubt on the popular disrepute of farming. One such has come within my cognizance recently. Listen, please, while I tell you something about C. E. Huff, of Oronoque, Kansas.

Never heard of him, did you? Neither did I till a couple of months ago, when he was elected president of the Farmers' union, a co-operative body of farmers, especially strong in the south and west, where it is operating in 25 states, and with an annual "turnover" of close on to a billion dollars.

Oronoque is a little hamlet of some 75 people; a typical western small town in a typical farming community. C. E. Huff was the village minister, the preacher, the "parson." Whether because the community was too small to support him with a salary, or because he deliberately preferred to follow the example of St. Paul, who earned his own way at his trade of tent-maker, rather than become a burden on the infant church, Mr. Huff served his flock as minister and pastor, but earned his own living as a farmer. Thus, among other things he came to have as intimate an acquaintance with the much talked of "farm problem" as any of his parishioners.

Fourteen years ago a local branch of the Farmers' union was organized in Oronoque. And because of his better education and his proven capacity as a self-supporting farmer, and the universal confidence felt, not only in his integrity but also in his soundness of judgment, Mr. Huff was made secretary and business manager.

He accepted, studied the situation, reconnoitered the possibilities, made his plans, and put his shoulder to the wheel.

Whereupon things began to happen. Not sensationally and dramatically, but in orderly and, seemingly, quite normal sequence. The "business" of the hamlet included a grain elevator, a general store, a creamery, a bank, a lumberyard and a garage. Within a very few years after he assumed the management of the co-operative union it had absorbed every one of these businesses except the lumberyard and the garage. It did, annually, a gross business of almost $750,000, to which total the general store contributed no less than $130,000.

Such an accomplishment, in such a limited field, naturally centered attention on the mild-mannered, gently-speaking, amazingly efficient farmer-parson who had conceived and enacted it. He was made a member of the union's state board, then vice president, then president of that state board, then vice president of the national body, and last, at the union's general congress in Denver, president of the organization.

He is described as a quiet-spoken person, slight in build, 46 years old, born in a Norton county dugout, a lifelong resident of the state, and the father of four children. He has always been a farmer and, until the formation of the local branch of the union, with no outside interest beyond his missionary pastorate. Now he is the head of a union operating in 25 states and doing a gross business of approximately a billion dollars a year.

"No chance for anybody on the farm," say scores and hundreds of farm-bred boys, looking enviously cityward. But Mr. Huff seems to have found one.

"There's no future in farming," say scores of disgruntled older farmers. But Mr. Huff seems to have found not only a hopeful future in it, but a tremendously important present.

Can it be, after all, that the question whether farming shall be a success or a failure depends more on the farmer than on the farm—or the tariff—or the action of congress? Can it be that attainment comes to The Man, rather than to his tools or his environment? Think it over a bit, neighbor, and see where you come out.

Two especially salient features make Mr. Huff's position notable, to me, at least.

The first is that in all he has done and all he is doing, his first thought has been, and is, not for his own enrichment, but for the service of his farm neighbors. His work has been, and is, as nearly unselfish as can be hoped for from our imperfect humanity. In transforming the privately-owned businesses of his small hamlet—all operated for private gain—into co-operating enterprises, he received nothing more than his pro rata share of the savings secured. He did his work not for a hoped-for increase of salary nor for personal profit, but for the welfare of his neighbors and his community.

Is it not possible that such a spirit may exist among other farmers, in other states? I am reminded, in connection with it, of the story of Captain Maxwell, for many years the responsible manager of a big Scottish co-operative having an annual turnover of more than a million pounds sterling. As his years increased upon him and the members of the co-operative came to appreciate the service he had done and was doing for them, they proposed to increase the salary of $1,500 which had hitherto been paid him. Captain Maxwell gratefully but peremptorily declined it. He explained to the committee who came to him to offer the increase that he had adjusted his budget to his income and found it sufficient to supply all his real needs. He had never thought of his position as one of money-making but as one of service-rendering. He didn't want to reduce by even one penny the savings the co-operative made possible to those fellow workingmen who were in greater need than he.

Now, I don't suppose that either Captain Maxwell or Parson Huff will ever put in any claim for the halo of saintship or the laurel of heroism. But there are costly statues in cathedrals and in city squares to so-called saints and heroes less deserving of popular acclaim.

The other thing about Mr. Huff's stand which impresses me is his almost evangelistic belief in the importance of self-help as a remedy for farm troubles. He does not ignore the value of adequate tariff protection and equitably favorable legislation. But he believes firmly that the farmer can do more for himself than any other agency can do for him.

"According to my information," he points out, "there were 22 1-2 billion dollars paid for agricultural products in 1926, of which the farmer actually received 7 1-2 billion.

"That is entirely too big a spread for the farmer to be forced to take. The farmer must control his product until it is more nearly in shape for the consumer to buy. Everyone appreciates that the fundamental practice of modern industry is to control its own market agency. Marketing is equally as essential in agriculture as in any other industry, because distribution has become a part of production.

"Co-operative marketing already is becoming a factor in this situation. It has been estimated that the national turnover of the co-operatives last year was 2 1-2 billion dollars. Yet much of the value of co-operative marketing is not apparent on the surface. Trade practices in every field of agriculture have been improved as the result of the competition of co-operative marketing, although difficult to make concrete. Neither can we measure the effect on the price structure of agricultural prudcts by simply taking the volume of co-operative trading.

"The romance of co-operative marketing has been exploited, but the fundamentals are little understood. Actually, co-operative marketing is as homely as dishwater and as cold and practical as a paving brick."

This particular talkative old Farmer claps his hands over such a confirmation, from such a source, of the preachments he has long been putting out regarding the practical value of farm co-operation.

And also the primary and fundamental truth that betterment of farm conditions depends vastly more upon farmers themselves than upon anybody or anything else.

William Bitgood and Herbert August were in Jewett City a few days ago. His grandfather George Green stayed at Mrs. Bitgood's while they were gone. Lee Remington went home from the mill Tuesday night, did his chores and sat down for his wife to put his supper on the table. While waiting he was taken with a bad headache and had to lie down. It felt better so he got up and was going to eat his supper and it came on worse than ever, so he had to give up and go to bed but it was better in the morning so he went to his work.

Mrs. Alice Reed has been having a bad cold but is some better at this writing. Her mother is very lame.

Song of a Winter Day

A morning clear, with frosty light
From sunbeams late and low;
They shine upon the snow so white,
And shine back from the snow.

Down tusks of ice one drop will go,
Nor fall; at sunny noon
'Twill hang a Diamond—fade, and grow
An opal for the moon.

And when the bright sad sun is low
Behind the mountain-dome,
A twilight wind will come and blow
All round the children's home.

And puff and waft the powdery snow,
As feet unseen did pass.
But waiting in its bed below
Green lies the summer grass.

HORSE MAIL DAYS HAD THEIR TROUBLES, TOO

WINONA, Minn. (AP)—Noah J. Reed, with 25 years of mail carrying in Minnesota behind him, has traced for the Republican Herald the history of the mail routing from "whiffle tree to aileron" and from "hay to gas burners."

Reed said the only resemblance between the mail service of the early 1900's and the present time was the order "get the mail through at all costs."

In variance with forced landings and engine trouble, the veteran carrier listed such troubles as "whiffle trees that broke under the strain of hauling heavy loads through Minnesota mud."

"The air pilot will never get the help we did," said Reed. "Farmers used to repair broken harness for us, lend us horses, or give us an extra meal. Of course, we used to carry their butter and eggs into town and exchange them for groceries.

"Then I bought an old flivver—one of the first few models. The government wouldn't take many chances on it though—said I could use it only when haste was required.

Reed traveled 220,000 miles, a third of it in the winter by sled, over Minnesota roads.

MARKET WAS UNEASY WITH IMPORTANT ISSUES LOSING FROM 2 TO 5 POINTS

NEW YORK, Jan. 24—(AP)—The stock market approached the weekly brokerage loan announcement today with market uneasiness. The majority of important issues lost from 2 to 5 points, although vigorous pools managed to bid up a few specialties.

If had been taken for granted that the loan total would reach a new high record, but revival of the gold movement from England this week tended to overshadow this ominous prospect until today, when takings of the yellow metal in London dwindled to about $1,500,000.

While theory is frequently expressed in high speculative circles that brokerage loans are playing an increasingly important part in present day financing, when corporations are meeting their requirements by selling stock rather than borrowing at the banks, bankers point out that money is abnormally tight and generally see no relief save through reduction of the brokerage loan accounts.

There had been little uneasiness over the rediscount rate, which remained at 5 per cent., as the bank of England announced no change in its rate early in the day, and reported further improvement in its position. The federal reserve bank announced gold imports of about $8,000,000 from Canada, and negligible exports. With today's taking of gold in London, the total amount on the way from England reached $9,000,000.

Call money held at 6 per cent., but the tone was firm. Banks called $15,000,000 in loans and tighter money is expected over the month end. Tension in time money was increased; with the shorter maturities at a flat rate of 7 3-4 per cent., an increase of 1-4.

The day's news included several fairly favorable earnings reports from the railways although rail stocks made no headway. The Southern Pacific and Lehigh Valley showed substantial gains in net operating income in 1928 and the Frisco, while showing a drop in net operating income, had a larger surplus after charges. It was announced that the Van Sweringens were forming a $100,000,000 railway holding company. An unfavorable development was a cut in Mid-Continent Crude Oil prices, which caused considerable selling of oil stocks.

Directors of the Bethlehem Steel company announced after the close of the market resumption of the common dividends on a $4 annual basis. Earnings for the last quarter of 1928 were on the basis of $2.58 a share, against $1.43 in the preceding quarter, and 37 cents in the last quarter of 1927.

The pace of trading slackened somewhat on the declines, total sales approximately only 4,497,000 shares, the smallest business for a full session in over a week. The utilities alone held their ground, according to the Associated Press indices, while industrials sagged more than 2 points.

The metal shares ran into particularly heavy profit-taking. U. S. Steel closed more than 2 points lower. Greene Cananea Copper moved up about 3 points, then fell back about 5, and Kennecott lost more than 4. St. Joseph Lead lost nearly 4 points, and Great Northern Ore about 2. Nash was a strong point of the motors, gaining more than 4 points, while General Motors (old) lost 2.

Canadian Pacific alone was strong in the rails, selling up 6 points to a new high at 254 3-4, but losing most of its gain later. New York Central lost about 3 points. The old Du Pont stock dropped 14 points, while Middle and Steel preferred lost 11. Such issues as General Electric, American Can, Johns Manville, Montgomery Ward, Radio, Union Carbide, and Warner Brothers closed 2 to 4 points lower.

National Cash Register was conspicuous for its strength, shooting up 16 points to a new high at 141 1-2 on feverish buying. Mathieson Alkali jumped 17 points to a new top at 214 and American Water Works, Gillette Safety Razor and International Harvester mounted 4 to 6 points.

Commodities were irregular. Cotton closed slightly lower, while wheat firmed up after absorbing considerable selling caused by an increase in the visible supply. Corn improved, with few offerings. Rubber attracted further speculative buying, which carried it up about 1 cent a pound.

Foreign exchanges were quiet, with sterling barely steady.

DANIELSON

TWO DEATHS OCCUR IN LEFEBRE FAMILY IN 24 HOURS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 24—Within a period of a little more than 24 hours death struck twice at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Lefebre in Wauregan. This morning their son, Henry Paul, two years of age, passed away and followed into internity his brother, Moses, aged four, who died Wednesday morning. The funeral of Moses was originally scheduled for this morning, but was postponed when Henry died, that a double funeral might be held this afternoon. There was a brief service at the Sacred Heart church conducted by Rev. J. H. Quinn prior to interment in the Sacred Heart cemetery. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Small Chimney Fire

At 2:30 this afternoon, a call from Box 15, one of the few of the year to date, the Capt. Putnam Engine company went out to control a chimney fire in the six-family, three-story frame structure at 16 Dyer street. The situation was so quickly controlled that the firemen were back at their quarters by 2:40. The building was not damaged. It is the property of Eugene Malboeuf.

Do Cows Have Flu?

Do cows have the flu? This question was asked this morning of a veterinarian and he laughed a bit about it. He replied that a few cows are having something resembling the flu this winter and added "but we do not call it that," then giving then giving the scientific name for the ailment. The query was made because some owners of cows have told of the animals becoming ill with symptoms resembling those that some human beings have in coming down with current kinds of illness.

Boulais-Barber Case Settled

It develops that a settlement has been reached in the case of Damase Boulais vs. Frank Barber, Mr. Barber paying a small sum of money to Mr. Boulais. The beginning of the litigation, or at least the event responsible for it, was the collapse of temporary bleachers erected in the town hall several years ago on a night when Jack Johnson, former heavyweight champion of the world, was scheduled to box a few rounds as one feature of a card of bouts that Mr. Barber had arranged. More than a score of people were hurt in the most spectacular crash this town ever saw, some of them seriously, and claims for damages piled up against Mr. Barber. The settlement of them is said to have cost him several thousand dollars.

Following this unfortunate happening, Mr. Barber abandoned his arrangements for staging his bouts in the town hall building and arranged with Mr. Boulais, whose men had put up the temporary bleachers, to develop a sports arena for him in the building where Mr. Barber's bowling alleys and pool room were located. This development was carried out at an expense of several thousand dollars. In the years that have elapsed since the crash of the bleachers no adjustment of the claims and counter claims between Messrs Boulais and Barber could be reached. However, a settlement finally has been brought about, and it is understood that Mr. Boulais' attorney has accepted a sum said to be less than $500, for all claims against Mr. Barber for the work done by the contractor in developing the sports arena, over and above any prior payments that may have been made while the work was in progress.

Further advices relative to the circumstances surrounding the death of Miss Clarice E. Woodson at Attleboro yesterday are to the effect that she was ill only a few minutes, death being caused by a pulmonary embolism. Apparently, she was not as strong constitutionally and following a recent illness as was outwardly indicated.

OBITUARY

Charles D. James

Charles D. James, who was 83 years of age last October, and who had been a resident of Danielson and vicinity for more than half a century, died this afternoon at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Caroline Handschumacher, in Boston. The body is to be brought here on Saturday. Ill with pneumonia, Mr. James was taken to Boston on Tuesday of this week. It is understood that his heart weakened and hastened his death.

For a great many years Mr. James' farm place was that area since developed into the Connecticut Mills property where millions of dollars in wages were paid out to hundreds of operatives during the past twenty years. Having sold that farm for development Mr. James purchased another farm on the Green Hollow road just over the southern border of the town of Killingly in Plainfield.

He leaves the following children in addition to his daughter at whose home he died in Boston, Robert, of Oakland, Cal., Everill, who lived on the farm with his father, Mrs. Eulalie Keay, and Miss Harriett James, both of Boston, the latter being night superintendent at the Lying-In hospital in Boston.

Though there is no coasting at the present time in Danielson, and only brief periods when it could be enjoyed to date this winter, the subject is one that continues to hold attention, primarily through efforts to effect some arrangement that will make it possible for youngsters, and their elders, if they wish, to slide in safety. The pros and cons of the subject, particularly the reasons why one or more streets have not been set aside for coasting have been quite thoroughly gone into. Now one hears the suggestion that the voters might call a special town meeting and authorize the selectmen to close one or more streets for parts of afternoons and evenings when there is coasting. It is not that coasting has been forbidden on any of Danielson's streets, but the fear of accidents where coasting is general because of automobile traffic, that brings about the discussion and the seeking of ways and means to please those who like to indulge in an exhilirating winter sport.

Announcement is made of the marriage at St. Alban's rectory by Rev. J. Reese Jones last Saturday of Miss Helen L. Lambert of Danielson and Salodius Hicks, Jr., of Norwich, where the newly wedded couple are to make their home. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. Dwight Lambert of Danielson, the groom a son of Mr. and Mrs. Salodius Hicks of Providence.

A feature of the social life of Killingly high school at the mid-winter season is the Junior prom scheduled to be held at the school gymnasium on Friday evening of this week. The prom is an annual event that brings out a large percentage of the student body.

Miss Saidie A. Fulton, as secretary, has given formal notice to the stockholders, of the Keystone Department Store company that a meeting is to be held during February to take such action as may be necessary to terminate the corporate existence of the company, which conducted a department store here for many years until recently, when the stock was sold to other interests for disposal.

The Inter-Church basketball league teams will start playing their schedule Saturday evening at the Westfield church gymnasium. The first game will be between the Dayville Pioneers and the combined Episcopal-Baptist teams. The Congregationalist Whirlwinds and Methodist All Stars will meet in the second game. Contests will be played under amateur rules.

Unexpectedly, if they wish to cash in on it, Danielson buyers of the first edition of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's "We" have a chance to make some money. Copies of the original issue are now quoted as being worth $30, whereas those who purchased them paid only $2.50. It is understood there are at least five of the first edition copies owned in Danielson and vicinity.

Nathan D. Prince, of Hartford and Danielson, has been re-elected president of the Hartford-Connecticut Trust company, Mr. Prince also is president of the Windham County National bank of Danielson.

John H. Geddes, Waterbury, a passenger who was killed in the wreck of a New Haven two-coach train near Torrington yesterday, was an uncle of State Officer Donald J. Geddes of the Danielson barracks.

Representative William S. Hunter of Goodyear has been named as clerk of the committee on corporations.

Friday afternoon members of the Roundabout club are to meet with Mrs. A. E. Withington of Spring street.

Secretary L. Edwin Hill, Danielson, of the Windham County Y. M. C. A. has announced that there will be four weeks of camping at Camp Woodstock, at Black pond, the coming summer, opening July 5 and closing August 2. There also will be a special camping period from Aug. 9 to 15. The county 4-H clubs will be at the camp June 29 to July 5.

There were representatives of various communities hereabouts in Hartford today to attend the luncheon that women members of the legislature that was arranged under the auspices of the Connecticut League of Women Voters.

Blotters showing the size of the new bills that are to go into circulation in July have been received here. The new paper money will be about two-thirds the size of that in present circulation.

A bill is to be introduced in the legislature providing to increase the salary of Judge W. Fenner Woodward of the town court of Killingly from $1,000 to $1,200. It is understood that the measure will have the unanimous support of the Danielson members of the bar.

More ice harvesting is now going on at small ponds in surrounding territory, this being for the use of individuals cutting it and chiefly for use on dairy farms.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ray have completed their motor tour to California, where they are to remain during the winter season, possibly longer.

During last night Thomas Albert LaFantasie, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Philip LaFantasie, died at their home in the Mashentuck district of the town.

Frank Gagnon of Pomfret was before Judge W. Fenner Woodward in the town court this morning to plead to intoxication and received a sentence of 30 days in jail.

A number of persons from Danielson will go to Moosup Friday evening to attend a meeting of the Quinebaug Circuit league.

Resolved, that woman is of greater value on the farm than man is in the house, will be the subject of a debate for the entertainment of Killingly grange members when they meet on February 4.

Henry C. Sallinger of Lowell is visiting with friends in Danielson for a few days.

SILENT LEGISLATOR IS AN ORATOR BY PROXY

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—Representative O. B. Whitaker has lost his voice following a throat operation, yet he remains a leading parliamentarian in Missouri's legislature.

In stead of addressing the house with his former oratorical gusto, Whitaker now orates by proxy. A clerk reads his remarks after Whitaker has typed them.

PUTNAM

COSMOS' CLUB DOES LARGE AMOUNT OF CHARITY WORK

(Special to the Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 24—The Cosmos club, a charitable organization consisting of professional women of the city, since its organization less than a year ago has distributed to the city's needy families over 700 quarts of milk besides providing the poor with other necessities of life, according to a report of the club activities, presented at the January meeting, held recently at the home of Mrs. Harry Torrey on School street. The Cosmos club members have also elected the following officers to direct affairs of the association during the present year: President, Mrs. Bernice G. Delaney; secretary, Mrs. G. Stanley Shaw; treasurer, Mrs. Eileen F. Charron.

The members of the club have decided to appropriate $75 at the present time to the Putnam chapter of the American Red Cross for their milk fund. The milk will be distributed by the local Red Cross nurse as she sees fit. This the club members feel will insure delivery of the health food to many babies who were overlooked during the past year. The milk fund, it was said, wil be increased from time to time, as funds are accumulated.

The Cosmos club was organized in March, 1928, with a membership of 20, but since then the little band of charitable workers have met with many problems in their works, which would be more easily carried on with a larger membership, and accordingly the executive board has approved of the plan of increasing the roll to thirty members.

The February meeting of the society will be held at the home of Mrs. C. E. Peterson, in Thompson on Tuesday evening Feb. 5. Mrs. Peterson will be assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Waldo E. Crase of Church stret.

Three more cases of influenza are now listed on the books of the city health department, according to a report today. The disease as previously stated, while it has increased in the number of cases is of a mild nature. There are many patients suffering from pneumonia within the city and scores of others who are shut in with colds.

FUNERAL

Alphonse Dupre.

Funeral services were held this morning at St. Mary's church for Alphonse Dupre, who died suddenly this week. A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated at nine o'clock by Rev. W. Arthur Routhier, pastor of St. Anthony's church in Bridgeport, formerly assistant pastor of St. Mary's in this city. Rev. Joseph D. Casey of St. Mary's church was deacon and Rev. J. C. Mathieu, pastor of St. Joseph's church, North Grosvenordale, was sub deacon. In the sanctuary were Rev. Ernest J. Boileau and Rev. Father Lavalle of North Grosvenordale.

Special music for the service was rendered by the choir, assisted at the organ by Miss Rose Metras, church organist.

The mass was attended by the numerous friends and acquaintances of Mr. Dupre, besides his many relatives, who survive him. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

The ten per cent reduction on all fire insurance policies in Putnam which has recently come about is still unexplained, according to leading insurance representatives in this city. The rate reduction is applicable to all policies that expired on and after Jan. 14, and all policies taken out following that date. The insurance reduction rate for many months was the chief subject of the famous debating teams of the common council and the citizens' committee, who were opposed to the steel tank type of water storage construction. There has been no improvement to the water department or system and no new additions to the city fire department for increased protection to eliminate the fire hazard or to warrant a reduction insurance rates, but nevertheless the reduction is now in force and it is said thousands of dollars will be saved by it.

The Columbian Players, of Cargill Council, are now awaiting the curtain raising hour for their fourth annual charity production to be presented in the Bradley theatre Friday evening. Before the players will be a capacity house, since a sellout has been experienced during the past few days.

The players, all local, have completed months of tiring rehearsals and advance information is that those who were fortunate to procure tickets for the pre-lenten event will not be disappointed in their expectations when the Columbian Players present "In the Next Room." Since the dramatic club was organized four years ago, the players have staged two of the best known hits of the season "Broadway Jones" and "So This Is London."

Many Putnam supporters and friends of State Bank Commissioner Lester E. Shippee of Killingly were delighted to learn of his reappointment to the office, which was confirmed yesterday by the senate, of the state legislature. Mr. Shippee it will be remembered, saved the Putnam Savings bank much unnecessary trouble, but a short time ago when by the timely announcement of the solvent condition of the bank, caused the run on the institution to cease, almost within a few hours. Mr. Shippee is well known in Putnam and is a frequent visitor with Putnam friends.

A cold snap which has continued now for the past forty-eight hours was hailed today by ice dealers as a God-send. Prospects of a mid-winter harvest were present today as the mercury remained at a substantial mark below freezing. Snow, which arrived Tuesday evening has been cleared from the ponds and preparations to cut the ice have begun. New machinery has been adopted by one ice concern within the city and will tend to keep several men out of employment, who in past years were needed to gather in the crop.

Putnam's gladiators of the field will gather in Plainfield Saturday to contest for the county honors to be awarded in the Windham County "Y" track meet to be held in the community house in that town. In past years the Putnam athletes have carried off several of the blue ribbon prizes, but lack of material this season has darkened the hopes of the Putnamites. A number of the Putnam high school athletes will be represented among the groups taking part from this city.

Few fire alarms, especially the four stroke kind, have been recorded on the 1929 records of the Putnam fire department this month. The noticeable decrease in the number of chimney fires, reported to the fire department is perhaps due to the advice given now and then by Chief Thurston. "Clean out your chimneys," says the chief, "and you will have no chimney fires." It is apparent that property owners have complied with the requests of the chief, since the four strike alarms have almost disappeared from the records.

WEDDING.

Coffin-Hart.

A very pretty wedding took place Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the chapel of the Pomfret rectory school, the Rev. F. . Bigelow officiating, when Miss Pearl Marietta Hart became the bride of Russell H. Coffin of New York city. The double ring service was used. The bride was attended by Miss Jane Kempton as maid of honor and Miss Ernestine M. Fish as bridesmaid. Joseph Lemoine acted as best man.

The bride wore a gown of flesh color georgette trimmed with pearls and carried a bouquet of orchids and freezia. The maid of honor wore a gown or orchid georgette and carried a bouquet of orchids and carnations. The bridesmaid wore a gown of mauve flat crepe and also carried a bouquet of orchids and carnations. The bride's gifts to her attendants were gold pendants. The groom's gift to the best man was a leather cigarette case.

The bride is a graduate of special courses of a Boston hospital and is well known throughout Putnam and surrounding towns. The groom is the son of the late George H. Coffin of Pawtucket, R. I., and Mrs. Jennie Coffin Kies of Thompson. The groom is employed by the N. Y., N. H. and H. Railroad company as foreman in the engine house in New York city.

After the ceremony the bride and groom accompanied by their attendants motored to Providence where a wedding dinner was served at the Biltmore. Later in the evening the young couple left for a short wedding trip.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Pontiac Auto.

NEW YORK, Jan. 24.—The new Pontiac Big Six, revealed to the public for the first time with the opening of the National Automobile Show here on Jan. 5, measures up in every respect to the advance promise of "practically a brand new car," judging by the attention which it is receiving from the thousands who daily throng the Grand Central Palace.

A bigger car in every dimension—measurably increased in over-all length and with scores of chassis improvements which cause the specification chart to read like that of a six costing many hundreds of dollars more—this newest creation of General Motors appears destined to grace the highways of America in even greater numbers than did any of its three record-breaking predecessors.

The power plant of the new Pontiac Big Six actually exceeds in size that which was used in the Oakland Six when the original Pontiac was introduced three years ago this month. The chassis is larger, stronger and heavier. And the newly-designed Fisher bodies present such smart and distinctive lines that the car gains a pleasing and unmistakable identity all its own. With the greater power of a 200-cubic inch engine, the new car has achieved a degree of speed, acceleration and response previously considered unattainable in the field of low-priced sixes.

Although the first showing of the 1929 Pontiac is taking place here, it is understood from Oakland officials visiting the New York Automobile Show that the new car will be displayed in all sections of the United States just as rapidly as three assembly lines can turn out the new models at the factory in Pontiac, Michigan.

Bread Theater.

Speaking of "new faces on the screen," the current attraction at the Bread theater, "Three Ring Marriage," First National Picture's circus drama, contains more of them than the film industry as a whole has enrolled for years!

Mary Astor and Lloyd Hughes are featured in the picture, which is an adaptation of Dixie Wilson's magazine story, "Help Yourself to Hay." In the supporting cast are Lawford Davidson, Alice White, Yola d'Avril and several other well-known screen players. But the rest of the unusually large cast is made up of "new faces!"

They're new on the screen, but not new to the public, however, for they're circus performers, side show freaks, barkers and roustabouts—nearly a thousand of them! And the "extras" used in the production are also new screen talent, since they are the regular patrons of the Al G. Barnes Circus, and some of them didn't even know they were acting for a motion picture.

The plot of "Three Ring Marriage" is a thrilling intrigue that brings gangsters into action, but it is all unfolded while the principals, cinematically and actually, travel with a regular circus on the road.

Broadway.

A highly entertaining comedy-drama laid in the romantic southland and involving the adventures of a modern rider of the air is "The Little Wildcat," Warner Bros. Vitaphone Talking picture which comes to the Broadway theater for a run of three days.

Audrey Ferris, Doris Dawson, James Murray, George Fawcett, Robert Edeson and Hallam Cooley appear in important roles. Miss Ferris and Miss Dawson are cast as sisters, whose flirtatious inclinations gives rise to many delightful situations. Murray appears as a young flier, who, with ambitions to establish an airport, bumps into the irascible Judge Holt, who is fiercely antagonistic to anything modern. Fawcett is quite as fiery a way guards Audrey and Doris, his granddaughters.

Fawcett's influential opposition to flying causes Murray to launch a plan to steal the old man's support by capturing the hearts of one of his wards. The progress of the scheme introduces much hilarity. Fawcett and Edeson likewise capture a lion's share of comedy honors in their constant haggling over an argument a half century old. Cooley's performance is also excellent as a somewhat phlegmatic Romeo forever at the beck and call of the two Juliets.

"The Little Wildcat" sparkles with humor of the most spontaneous character. While its cast is particularly well chosen and talented credit is also due to Ray Enright, the director, and E. T. Lowe, Jr., who wrote the scenario, basing it on an original story by Gene Wright.

Plaut-Cadden's Sale Today.

What promises to be the greatest volume furnishing merchandising event in the history of local mercantile business is revealed in this paper this morning in the extraordinary Drastic Reductions New Merchandising Policy Sale announcement by the Plaut-Cadden Co.

No announcement ever made by any local store is of such great significance to everyone with a home as is this one. It is significant not only because of the drastic price reductions effective on the entire stock of furniture, home furnishings, musical merchandise and jewelry but because the conclusion of this event signalizes the inauguration of a new merchandising policy by The Plaut-Cadden Co. which will mean much to the people of eastern Connecticut.

If there ever was an opportune time to buy home needs of any kind this sale provides it. The benefits to be derived from it are so numerous and the opportunities for unprecedented savings so exceptional that a new record in values will be made which is unlikely to be duplicated again.

Palace Theater.

Once more the Palace theater "clicked" with a ministry fine bill of real entertaining vaudeville.

The current show is headed by two distinct headliners. First, "Suite Sixteen," a risque bedroom farce with a setting of music and dance. Gordon and Healy head the cast and the Flash Sisters add their share of talent.

The second headliner is Miller Sisters, Revue, a pot-pourri of Youth, Pep and Syncopation all exactly with capital letters.

Kennedy and Tracy are at the Palace to prove that two beautiful girls can also hold down the concert spot on a vaudeville bill. They are billed as "Two Queens of Harmony" and they know their stuff.

Couch and Moore have the second spot on the bill and hold their own with songs and stories of the right kind. A. Ba Kou opens the show with his novelty juggling act.

The feature picture is "The Sideshow," a drama of the big-tops with Marie Prevost and Ralph Graves in the cast.

You will enjoy every second of Columbia's "The Sideshow," which is being shown at the Palace theater. It is a clean, wholesome story of the trials, triumphs and loves of the people who entertain in the small tent adjoining the big show.

Marie Prevost heads the cast with Ralph Graves playing opposite. He is cast as a barkboy and makes an excellent job of it. Little Billy, of musical comedy fame, has the role of a dwarf who is a mental giant. He is secretly in love with the belle but realizes that he can never hope to win her because of his physical limitations. Alan Roscoe has the colorful and picturesque delineation of a Chinese magician. Star Harmon is seen as the boss canvasman.

On Sunday there will be a one day double feature bill and starting Monday for three days the Palace will feature (for next week only), Thirty local girls in the "Norwich Follies," and other acts of vaudeville.

Across State Toll of Trunk Lines

solve the auto property assessment problem are reflected in a bill offered in the house today by Representative Gilbert, of Danbury, which would be said, "insure the collection of auto taxes and prevent the loss of much money to various communities."

This bill, the precursor of several which are to be submitted as varying solutions of the problem, would make mandatory the auto owners' obtaining from the tax collector of his municipality a permit to apply for registration of the vehicle, every year. This plan would go into effect in 1930.

The present motor vehicle law provides that the motor vehicle commissioner send to the tax collector a list of registrants to be used for personal property tax assessments. But collectors have said this provision and compliance with it, have not prevented the loss to their municipalities of the money to be derived from this source of income. Mr. Gilbert's bill repeals this provision, offering his permit system as a substitute.

The measure is described as providing a means for the tax collector to obtain his own list of auto owners on which to base motor vehicle assessments. The measure also provides that the fees collected be turned into the treasuries of the municipalities in which the permits are obtained. The tax colector not on salary would retain 25 cents for each permit he issues. The fees are based on the capacities of motor vehicles. A motorcycle permit would cost $2.50. Autos would be charged for at rates begining at $5 for 2,000 pounds and ranging to $11,25 for 4,000 pounds, and 25 cents addition for every 500 pounds above 4,500.

Another bill expected in the house next week is said to make provisions that the motor vehicle commissioner collect all auto taxes at the time, each year, he issues registration, and remit the collections to the municipalities in which the registrants reside.

The idea carried in this expected bill was brought to the motor vehicle commissioner at the end of last month by a committee of tax collectors, headed by Harold G. Hall, of Meriden. Mr. Stoeckel said he would support the plan of his department's collecting the taxes, but only if the revenue could be used to improve dirt roads.

Two years ago tax collectors, supported by Tax Commissioner Blodgett unsuccessfully petitioned the general assembly to have the motor vehicle department collect the auto taxes, contending a plan would insure 100 per cent collection.

Hall's committee said that in one year only 217,048 auto owners of 227,628 subject to personal taxation were actually assessed, resulting in a loss of $105,880.

G. Leroy Kemp, of Darien, was elected clerk of the federal relations committee.

The assembly adjourned to Tuesday morning.

PONTIAC BIG SIX

Introducing Big Car Standards of Luxury, Style and Performance at $745

TODAY a new type of low cost motoring luxury is available. It embraces big car style. It provides big car riding comfort. It embodies big car quality in unseen parts. It includes big car performance even to the point of developing big car power and traveling at big car speed. It is offered by a brand new automobile—the New Pontiac Big Six.

Frankly, the New Pontiac Big Six was designed to appeal to a certain group. True, every motor car owner in America will find in it many things to admire. Two-car families will find it an ideal second car. But the group for which it is primarily intended is made up of people who are beginning to move up in the world. Many of them will soon make the first important step up in the quality of their cars. All are progressive. The New Pontiac Big Six was designed for them.

It comes to them entirely new in appearance. Stunning new bodies by Fisher contribute to the big car beauty and big car style presented by the car as a whole.

Progressive people are seeking greater luxury. The Pontiac Big Six offers them the luxury, the deep, richly upholstered cushions and the charming appointments for which bodies by Fisher are famous the world over. It provides the smooth-riding qualities of a car 167 inches in overall length, with accurately balanced rotating mechanical parts and such advance comfort features as adjustable drivers' seats.

It is a six, but more than just a six. It is a six with the added power of a larger L-head engine and the added smoothness imparted by a dynamically balanced, counter-weighted crankshaft and the famous Harmonic Balancer. It is a six with the added efficiency and silence achieved by means of the G-M-R cylinder head. It is a six with the added cold-weather advantages provided by the cross-flow radiator, thermostatically controlled.

From fan to rear axle, its "line of drive" is in accurate dynamic balance. Its new brakes are of the internal four-wheel type which neither mud nor rain nor ice can prevent from operating efficiently.

As for its performance, you can drive it at express train speed. You can watch it accelerate alongside the finest cars on the road. You can test its power under any conditions, confident of its ability to pull through. Meanwhile it continues to provide that unmatched dependability for which every Pontiac has been famed.

Only a few highlights in its construction have been mentioned. Just enough to prove that the Pontiac Big Six is entirely new and capable of meeting progressive Americans' demand. But the amazing thing about it is that it gives so much big car luxury, style and performance at prices which come within practically everyone's reach!

Prices, $745 and up; f. o. b. factory, plus delivery charges. Bumpers and rear fender guards regular equipment at slight extra cost. Check Oakland-Pontiac delivered prices—they include lowest handling charges. General Motors Time Payment Plan available at minimum rate.

SUGGEST N. E. TOURIST MOTOR VEHICLE MARKER

At a conference on traffic uniformity to be held in Boston today (Friday) a New England tourist motor vehicle marker issued for the convenience of visiting motorists, which would be effective in all of the six states, will be one of the suggestions offered by representatives of this state. The marker, under the proposed plan, would be uniform in all states and some means to simplify recognition by enforcement officials in connection therewith might be adopted. While it might be issued by any of the states, the fees collected if any would be divided among all of the New England states.

This suggestion comes from Motor Vehicle Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel and Highway Commissioner John A. MacDonald, who will officially represent this state. The meeting, called under the auspices of the New England council, will include representatives of motor vehicle and highway departments of the New England states and various automobile clubs in the section.

THE LANDON GENALOGY GIFT TO OTIS LIBRARY

A gift book at the Otis library will prove of interest to many in Norwich for the reason that it is the work of a former resident of Treadway avenue, the late James O. Landon. The book came this week to the librarian, Mrs. Irving L. Hamilton, and is the Landon Genealogy, a volume of 401 pages.

The Landon family moved from Norwich to South Hero, Vt., where Mr. Landon died July 7, 1897. He had completed the family history in March and was looking forward to its appearance in print, but that happiness and satisfaction was denied him.

Following his death, his daughters carried out his purpose, so that the book, printed in New York, is issued under the names of Kate Huntington Landon and Lucy Hinckley Landon Wood. It was sent to Otis library with a letter explaining the circumstances under which it was put into binding, written by Mr. Landon's daughter, Miss Kate Landon.

George Beach, son of Mr and Mrs. George Watson Beach of Savbrook, married in Paris, France, early this month Miss Julia Chanler, daughter of Robert Winthrop Chanler, of New York. Mr. Beach has been winning fame as a pianist and composer abroad, where he has lived since 1911.

SEN. BINGHAM INJECTS NEW ISSUE INTO CRUISER BILL

The Senator Revived the Questions of Advisability of Building Some of the Ships in Government Navy Yards—The Proposal is Expected to Lead to Considerable Debate—President Coolidge is Insistent That the Clause Requiring a Start on the Program Within Two Years Be Eliminated From the Bill.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25—(AP)—A divided controversy in the senate over striking from the pending cruiser construction bill of a clause to require a start on the program within two years was indicated today when it became known that President Coolidge still is insistent upon its elimination.

It became known late today that the president holds to the opinion that the time clause should be eliminated because of budget considerations and not because he objects to immediate building of the cruisers. He believes it impossible for budget experts to see in advance what the condition of the treasury will be in any given year.

Further it was ascertained that Mr. Coolidge sees little practicable good in the amendment of Senator Borah, of Idaho, accepted to the bill yesterday, proposing an international conference for the codification of maritime law. Theoretically, the president thinks the proposal splendid and has given the subject considerable thought, conferring with the state department upon it. Practically, however, he believes the plan not feasible and doubts the probability of obtaining ratification by the senate of any treaties resulting from such a conference.

President's views on the time clause were learned down by the house a year ago in its consideration of the naval bill and the clause requiring that the cruisers and airplane carrier be started before July 1, 1931, was removed.

Chairman Hale of the senate naval committee, in charge of the cruiser bill, gave notice in the senate today that he would fight the Coolidge proposal to the end.

However, Senator Borah, of Idaho, rallied the opponents of the legislation behind him in his speech yesterday in which he announced he would not fight the bill if the time clause were eliminated.

With the senate in recess today, on account of the death of Oscar W. Underwood, former senator from Alabama, conferences were in order and it appeared the dispute over the bill apparently centered on the time clause. Opinions were expressed in some quarters that if the time provision were eliminated, leaving to the discretion of the president the time for building the ships, opposition to the measure would collapse.

Senator Hale and other supporters of the measure, however, are insistent upon the retention of the time provision, declaring its repeal would leave the authorization one for "paper" ships rather than steel.

In this connection it is known that Mr. Coolidge would have no objection to spending of a considerable amount on cruisers at once if funds were plentiful.

If the time clause is eliminated, senate leaders believe the opposition to the cruiser bill will vanish and that a vote on passage will be reached, probably early next week. There were no predictions tonight, however, on the outcome of the time provision contest, both sides expressing confidence.

Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut, injected a new issue into the controversy today when he revived the question of advisability of building some of the ships in the government navy yards. He proposed an amendment to the house provision which requires construction of eight of the cruisers in government yards, instead of leave instead the selection of contractors to the discretion of the secretary of the navy.

In a statement explaining his amendment, Senator Bingham declared it would provide that the ships "shall be built in navy yards whenever such building will not involve an appreciable increase in their cost."

"This has been our recent practice," he said, "and has worked to the benefit of the taxpayer and the private builder. It has kept the private contractor from charging exorbitant amounts and has at the same time given the navy yards enough to keep them busy.

"The language which it is proposed to strike out would require the building of the eight cruisers in government yards without regard to their higher cost or to the needs of facilities of the navy yards."

This proposal is expected to lead to considerable debate and because of it there were some misgivings tonight that the final vote on the bill was as near as had been expected.

SLAYER OF STELLA POMIKALA SENTENCED TO DEATH

SALEM, Mass., Jan. 25 (AP)—George H. Taylor, convicted slayer of Stella Pomikala, of Salisbury beach on June 1, 1927, today was sentenced to death in the electric chair by Judge Joseph Quinn in the superior court here. The date of execution was set for the week of March 3.

Taylor was convicted of murder in the first degree on October 21, 1927, and since then the case has been before the supreme court twice on appeals. The appeals were denied on both occasions.

The condemned man received his sentence without a show of emotion, maintaining the calm that characterized his attitude throughout the case. The petition of his counsel, however, was permitted to read a prepared statement, in this he reiterated his innocence.

"I am entirely innocent. I did not murder Stella Pomikala," he said.

He criticized the testimony of two witnesses which he said varied in the witness stand from all the previous courts. These witnesses were Sidney Smith, former chief of police of Salisbury and Arthur Williams, Salisbury photographer, to whom Miss Pomikala was engaged. He particularly attacked the character of the former police chief and said that it was unfortunate that he must be convicted partly on Smith's testimony. When he had finished he raised a bible which he had carried into the courtroom and said, solemnly: "Amen."

MAN AND HIS DAUGHTER KILLED AT GRADE CROSSING

NORTH HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 25—(AP)—A man and his daughter were killed at the Sackett Point road crossing of the New Haven railroad, here tonight, when their car ran into the locomotive of the last morning northbound New York-Boston express and was sideswiped by a south-bound Hartford train.

The dead are: Edward Bennett, 39, and Ellen Bennett, 17, both of whom lived near the crossing on Sackett Point road, this place.

It was believed that, since Bennett, who was driving, could have seen the approach of both trains, which arrived at the road simultaneously, his windshield was covered by sleet falling at the time.

The justice, expressing the hope that matters might be adjusted "without pursuing this litigation," said he believed the loyalty of the members to their organization ultimately would bring about a reconciliation.

FATROLMAN RESCUED MAN FROM DROWNING

SOUTHINGTON, Conn., Jan. 25—(AP) — At the risk of his own life, Patrolman G. O. Dexter rescued John Fallon, 32, of New York, from drowning this afternoon after Fallon, walking on the ice over Stow's pond at Plantsville, broke through and fell in, about 100 feet from shore.

Neighbors, hearing Fallon's cries called the fire and police departments. Patrolman Dexter, responding, brought a ladder. He placed this in the water through the hole made by Fallon's fall and climbed down. As he was bringing the man up, the ice broke further, causing the ladder to slide down. The policeman clung to Fallon, however, and brought him safely to the surface, where firemen pulled him and Fallon out.

The New Yorker had been in the water nearly an hour. He was taken to Meriden hospital, where he is reported in serious condition. The policeman, examined by Dr. William T. Nagel, of this place, was found to have suffered no ill effects. Fallon came here several days ago to visit friends.

FORMER KAISER SPEAKS ON EVE OF 70TH BIRTHDAY

DOORN, Holland, Jan. 25—(AP)—On the eve of his 70th birthday, former Emperor Wilhelm II, speaking through a friend and co-worker, Baron Ulrich Von Sell, gave the chief of the Berlin bureau of the Associated Press, who visited Doorn, the following interview.

While presenting the interview through a spokesman, the former emperor himself dictated a foreword which he signed. In placing this foreword in the hands of the correspondent, Baron Von Sell described it thus:

"Foreword of his majesty, the kaiser and king, for an interview to be published January 26, 1929, which I have given the chief representative of the Berlin bureau of the Associated Press with the approval of his majesty."

The text of this foreword follows:

"To promote the welfare of the German people and to preserve the peace in the world—this has ever been the supreme law governing my actions. In the firm faith in good, the all just, I therefore hope to live to see the day that shall free us Germans from the burden of the false accusation of having unleashed the greatest of all wars.

LARGE PURCHASES OF ARMS IN EUROPE BY BOLIVIA

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25— (AP) — Large purchases of arms reported being made in Europe by Bolivia aroused the anxiety here today of the state department and of Latin-American diplomats who feared that the differences between Bolivia and Paraguay over their recent frontier clashes might flare up again.

Word from the Chilean government that it had prohibited about a month ago the passage through its territory of arms said to have been en route to Bolivia and the recent Argentine action in seizing similar shipments destined for the La Paz government served to reassure the state department that a situation threatening the tranquility of South America would not be likely to be created again.

The reports which reached Washington were that an order amounting to several million dollars had been placed by the Bolivian government with a large British munitions firm and that this order had been sublet in part to the continental subsidiaries of the British concern. The first shipments were reported already en route to Bolivia.

No arms have been shipped to Bolivia from the United States, it was said at the state department.

OTHER CHARGES AGAINST R. A. WOOD AND CECIL HOLT

DETROIT, Jan. 25—(AP)—Ralph A. Wood and Cecil Holt, accusers of the former's wife, Grace M. Wood, as the instigator of a plot against his life, today found themselves accused as two of the five men who last December 17 held up and robbed the Sturgis, Mich., National bank of cash and securities totalling $75,000.

Arrested early this morning, Wood in his home in Wyandotte, a suburb and Holt in the county jail, where he had taken refuge after an alleged attempt was made upon his life, they were taken to Centerville, seat of St. Joseph county, in which Sturgis is situated, and arraigned. They were held by Justice Charles L. Haner under $50,000 bail, which neither was able to furnish immediately. Examination was set for Feb. 5.

The warrants against Wood and Holt were sworn out after James W. Parrish, manager of a five and ten cent store in Sturgis, and Miss Helen Craine, bookkeeper of the bank, had identified them in an impromptu "show up" in a downtown hotel here.

STABBING OUTCOME OF A CARD PARTY IN NEW BRITAIN

NEW BRITAIN, Jan. 25—(AP)—What started as a friendly card party during which wine was served in V. Toscano's cobbling shop at 31 Lee street, ended last night at midnight when one of the men present seized a cobbler's knife and slashed another thrice across the face. As a result, Steve Santacroce, 34, of 158 Beaver street, was bound over to superior court, under $1,000 bonds in police court today, the charge being assault with a deadly and dangerous weapon. His victim, Pasquale Domarona, 47, of 337 Allen street, was in court, his face being swathed in bandages. When arrested, Santacroce said he thought Domarona intended to attack him and he wielded the knife in self-defense. After the assault Domarona seized a chair and chased Santacroce down the street.

Death of Former Sen. Oscar W. Underwood

Death Was Due to Cerebral Hemorrhage Suffered Early in December—Noted Leadership.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25—(AP)—Former U. S. Senator Oscar W. Underwood, of Alabama, died at his home at Woodlawn, his country place near by Virginia, where he retired at the end of a public career which had seen his name repeatedly brought forward for the presidential nomination of the democratic party.

Announcement of his death was followed by the adjournment of the senate out of respect to his memory, and expressions of regret over his death flowed from congress and government officials throughout the day.

Mr. Underwood died as a result of a cerebral hemorrhage suffered early in December. Two weeks later, he had a stroke of paralysis from which he rallied for a time, giving rise to a belief that he might recover. Several days ago, however, his condition became worse and he lapsed into unconsciousness.

His death removed a man who left an indelible impression of an individual with unusual qualities of statesmanship and marked capacity as a leader. His passing recalled that he was the first of the young democrats to challenge the leadership of William J. Bryan.

In still later years, he threw down the gauntlet to the K. K. K., which he fought with all his might, even during the 1924 pre-convention campaign when he was seeking the presidential nomination of his party.

Mr. Underwood did not offer for re-election in 1926. His place in the senate was taken by Hugo L. Black, and the senator decided to make his home at Woodlawn, which he had recently purchased. He renewed his attacks on the klan at intervals, but never was noticeably active in public life after leaving congress.

Senator Underwood entered the house in 1884, and assumed leadership of the democrats there in 1911. Twenty years later, he moved over to the senate, and there, too, he attained leadership.

Mr. Underwood would have been 67 years old in May.

HOOVER TO RETURN FROM FISHING TRIP TOMORROW

KEY LARGO, Fla., Jan. 25—(AP)—President-elect Hoover had another day of deep sea fishing somewhere south of here today but no word has come ashore as to what luck he has had since he "lost" himself off the Florida coast yesterday.

Present expectations are that he will fish all day tomorrow and return to Belle Isle in Biscayne bay during the forenoon Sunday, landing his "catch," from the yacht Amlie upon arrival at the J. C. Penney estate, his vacation home in Florida.

Secret service men still are being kept at a distance and even they had no information about the next president except that he was somewhere off the coast, either fishing in the remote keys to the south or on the edge of the Gulf stream, the two favorite grounds for anglers.

Upon his return to shore, the president-elect will learn that Alfred E. Smith, his opponent in the presidential race, is expected to visit Miami early next week, making his headquarters at a hotel at Coral Gables, a few miles south of the city.

Since the next chief executive intends to remain almost in seclusion at Number 8 Belle Isle, it is not likely that there will be the occasion for any public meeting between the two men.

HOME LAGS FAR BEHIND PROGRESS IN OTHER FIELDS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25—(AP)—The home is pictured as lagging far behind the progress in every other field of American life in a report of a preliminary survey recently conducted by the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. John D. Sherman, former president of the organization, who directed the survey, said in a statement today that towns with populations as high as 25,000 had been found without public water or sewage systems; that nearly one-fifth of the city homes were without kitchen sinks; that nearly one-third were without bathtubs and that furnace heat was "conspicuous by its absence in states where the climate would seem to make it imperative."

Actress Alma Rubens Cut Doctor's Face

Then Leaped From Car in Which She Was Being Taken to a Private Sanitarium.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Jan. 25—(AP)—Police stated here today that a doctor who refused to give his name, reported that Alma Rubens, film actress, leaped from his car while he was taking her to a private sanitarium for treatment for a nervous ailment.

The doctor, the police said, was slashed twice with a paper knife by the actress. After she leaped from his automobile, the doctor told the police, Miss Rubens was lost in a crowd.

Later police received a call to a corner nearby the place where Miss Rubens left the physician's car and were told by by-standers that a private ambulance had taken the motion picture actress away.

Detective Capt. Bert Wallace, in charge of the Hollywood station, ordered a complete investigation to seek out the location of the "private sanitarium" to which the actress was taken, and to discover further facts concerning the reported attack upon the doctor. The physician refused to reveal his identity to police and refused medical treatment for the cuts that he said the actress inflicted. The wounds were described as not serious.

NEW INVESTIGATION OF M'PHERSON KIDNAPING

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Jan. 25—(AP)—With the aid of a district attorney's files and a grand jury's manuscripts, a state legislative committee laid plans today for a new investigation of the Aimee Semple McPherson kidnaping case.

More than two years removed from the time it first fell into the hands of a grand jury, the case, as it appears before a special session of the committee tomorrow, threatened to engulf not only the evangelist this time, but also a superior court judge.

Paralleling the committee's announcement that upon the outcome of its examination may rest the disposition of possible impeachment proceedings against Judge Carlos S. Hardy, the district attorney's office said today that tomorrow's session also will determine whether or not it may undertake a new investigation of the case.

The True Purpose of a Budget

Every year you spend a large proportion of the money you get. So much for clothing. So much for shoes. So much for things to eat—for house furnishings, books and what not.

Here is the way to get the most for your money.

Keep a budget. Decide what you can afford to spend for each item, and hold yourself within this amount.

Then—to get the most for your money read advertisements carefully. The advertisements you read tell you what is newest and best. They give you the latest ideas and improvements. They help you to get more from each dollar you have apportioned in your budget—and so live better and dress better with the same income. Only by careful reading of advertising can you hope to accomplish this result.

Read advertising regularly. It points the way to better living.

A WIDE AREA WAS COVERED BY SNOW AND WIND STORM

Snow Fell From the Rocky Mountains to the Atlantic Coast—22 Persons Traveling in Autos and Motor Buses Were Marooned For 36 Hours in the Red Desert by a Terrific Blizzard—Thermometer Registered 32 Degrees Below Zero at Miles City, Col.—Liner Homeric Was Delayed Two Days Making New York By Terrific Storms.

CHICAGO, Jan. 25—(AP)—Winter was monarch of the country today from the Rocky mountains to the Atlantic seaboard.

His domain was swept by swirling snow storms, gnawing gales, sleet and rain as sub-zero temperatures settled over a large part of the territory with the usual supplement of accidents, injuries and deaths.

The Mississippi river and tributaries rose toward the flood stage with the continued precipitation and warnings were sent out to inhabitants of the lowlands, although it was hoped a severe freeze would prevent further rise.

A passenger airplane was forced down in the drifting snow between Salt Lake City and Elko, Nevada, and six airplanes were sent out under the leadership of Lieutenant Russell Maughan, dawn to dusk flier, in search. It was feared the passengers would not be able to survive many hours in the frigid weather if they were any distance from habitation.

A rural mail carrier, his horse and wagon were swept by high winds from the highway near Morris, Illinois, and at Gary, Ind., another was killed when his truck was hit by a train, while out in Utah an engine and two cars of an Oregon Short Line passenger train were buried under a 15 foot snow slide. No one was injured on the train.

A treacherous sheet of ice covered the midwest states in the wake of a precipitous drop of the mercury from non-freezing to a probable low of five degrees below zero. Chicago had two deaths. A man was found frozen in an alley snow bank and a woman died of injuries received in a fall on the icy pavement. A passenger in a stalled motor bus on a snow banked highway near Evanston, Wyo., was reported to have died of cold.

Some of the Rocky mountain sections reported the coldest weather of the winter, one of the coldest spots being the San Luis valley of Colorado which expected the thermometer to register 30 degrees below zero. Miles City, Mont., last night recorded 32 below.

General relief was predicted for tomorrow in most of the Great lakes region.

AUTOS AND BUSES MAROONED IN RED DESERT BY SNOW

KANSAS CITY, Jan. 25—(AP)—Winter's icy grip on the Rocky Mountain region and the southwest relaxed slightly tonight but as the mercury began a slow ascent from the lowest depths of the year unsettled weather brought forecasts of more snow for sections already heavily blanketed.

The storm had blocked many highways, trains were running late due to snow and intense cold, and several reports were received of the narrow escapes of motorists caught in mountain blizzards.

The cold wave generally was moderating east and west of the continental divide but in Montana and Wyoming sub-zero temperatures still prevailed. In Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and west Texas slightly warmer weather was promised but frost was expected to extend to the Gulf in east Texas tonight.

Marooned for 36 hours in a terrific blizzard that swept the Red desert, 22 persons traveling in passenger cars and motor buses were rescued and brought to Rock Springs, Wyo., some of them suffering intensely from exposure and hunger.

Cowboys found the cars stalled in the snow and with great difficulty hauled the stranded travelers in sleighs to the railroad station at Table Rock, from which they were taken to Rock Springs.

The temperature on the desert was 30 degrees below zero. Three women, two of them expectant mothers, and two children were among those rescued.

Highways were blocked in the vicinity of Salt Lake City and Bingham, a nearby mining town, was isolated. Seven inches of snow fell at Boise, Ida., in 24 hours.

LINER HOMERIC DELAYED TWO DAYS BY STORM

NEW YORK, Jan. 25—(AP)—The Homeric arrived today, two days late because of rough weather, having among its passengers two financial experts, one of them predicting an economic struggle greater than the world has ever seen and the other telling of better economic conditions in one country than have ever been experienced before.

FARM GROUPS TO SEEK HIGHER PROTECTION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25—(AP)—President-elect Hoover's campaign promise to aid agriculture through the tariff apparently has given impetus to an organized effort on the part of farm groups to seek higher protection on nearly every commodity in this section of the tariff act.

The parade of witnesses before the house ways and means committee yesterday in the interest of higher duties was continued today and their requests covered a wide variety of agricultural products, fruits, fish and grains. So many witnesses were on hand that the committee was forced into a night session.

J. W. Shorthill, of Omaha, Neb., secretary of the National Grain Dealers' association, urged the raising of the present rate of 15 cents a bushel on corn to 30 cents a bushel. He contended it cost the American farmer 34 cents a bushel to move his corn to competing territory as against 15 cents for Argentine corn so the differential of the duty was completely wiped out.

DEDHAM, Mass., Jan. 25—(AP)—Mrs. Clarence R. Edwards, wife of Major General Edwards, World war commander of the 26th division, died at "Dunroving," the Edwards home, here tonight. She had been ill of pneumonia since last Monday.

Mrs. Edwards' condition had been regarded as satisfactory by attending physicians until Wednesday, when the disease developed to serious proportions. Her temperature rose to 103 and two nurses were assigned to constant attendance.

The disease progressed still further today and intense anxiety was expressed at the Edwards' home. Tonight oxygen was administered but the condition of the patient was such that she could not survive. General Edwards was at his wife's bedside when death came.

Ford, previously had opened and managed the Ford theatre in Washington where Wilkes Booth shot Lincoln. The Ford theatre in this city also was founded by the elder Ford.

FAVORS CHAPERONE FOR PHILADELPHIA NIGHT LIFE

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25—(AP)—Mayor Harry A. McKey believes that Philadelphia's night life should be chaperoned.

The mayor today approved the establishment of a policewoman's bureau in this city, as proposed in a petition by the republican women of Pennsylvania, declaring that women employed in that capacity might serve the city in the role of civic supervisors in night clubs, cabarets, cafes and dance halls.

"The presence of women supervisors in such places might make them take on a refinement they wouldn't otherwise assume," Mayor McKey said, "the presence of women, although they cannot use strong arm methods, would do much to elevate the general tone of such places throughout the city. I feel that such a bureau would be a real aid, not only in the public dance halls, but in the night club life of the city as well."

ITALY TO LAUNCH NAVAL BUILDING PROGRAM IN JUNE

ROME, Jan. 25—(AP)—Decision today by the Italian cabinet, in which Premier Mussolini holds seven of the thirteen positions, to launch a naval building program next June, met only acclaim in governmental and newspaper circles. It was hailed as a measure necessary for security of the nation and no word was breathed concerning the expense of the undertaking.

The program calls for the laying down of two battle cruisers of 10,000 tons each, two scout cruisers of half that size, four destroyers and five submarines. Besides having the support of Premier Mussolini, this program was backed by the presence at the cabinet meeting of Grand Admiral Marquis Thaon di Revel, Admiral Acton, president of the committee of admirals, and Admiral Burzagli, chief of the general staff of the navy.

Habibullah had sent an advance guard to meet Thalalabad tribes. They fought a pitched battle near the summit of Khakijevar and the king's forces fled precipitately toward Kabul. The main Jalalabad force has reached Jegdalik, 30 miles from Kabul on one of the main routes.

The name of the leader of the forces is given as "Allahmethan," who is presumed to be Ali Ahmed Khan, former governor of Kabul who was last reported at Jalalabad.

LEGION ASKS FOR USE OF MONTGOMERY FIRE HOUSE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 25—A request for the use of the former Montgomery fire house building on Jackson street as the future home of James J. Shea Post, No. 13, American Legion will be made of the mayor and common council, according to a vote taken at the first meeting of the reorganized post Thursday night. During the meeting Lieutenant James J. Lee reported that his committee had secured the consent of the heads of the G. A. R. and Spanish-American war organizations for use of the G. A. R. rooms in the town building. This was followed by a suggestion and resolution to petition for the use of the fire house which is not in use at the present and would make ideal quarters for the post. The original housing committee, consisting of James J. Lee, Dr. Charles A. Jenkins and William F. Owens was increased to include James B. Fullerton and Vice Commander Lester H. Elish. District Deputy Commander E. A. Zimmerman of Storrs, commander of the fourth district of the state department urged the legionnaires to "get hot" and make their post a live organization. There is at present a paid up membership of 61 and the quota has been set for 140 to be established by May 1, in connection with the national membership race. The fourth district, of which the local post is a unit, is at present in first place in the state contest. In the event that the membership drive here is successful District Commander Zimmerman has promised to bring one of the best degree teams in the state here to carry out the initiation work. He also guaranteed the presence of State Commander Paige Seaton and other state officials.

The meeting adopted, with slight changes a constitution and by laws based on those of Earl W. Green post, No. 32, of Coventry and Mansfield. The proposed constitution was presented by Major Joseph R. Morrison as chairman of the committee. Chairman T. Frank Cunningham of the membership committee gave a report of progress, and presented plans for a membership campaign. Minutes of the organization meeting were read by Adjutant Albert J. Piche. It was voted that Finance Officer Edmund J. Peckham be properly bonded. The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the chamber of commerce for the use of the rooms.

The following letter has been sent to J. A. Droege, general manager of the New Haven road by E. J. Arnold, secretary of the chamber of commerce: "I was very much surprised to read in the Norwich Bulletin of this morning a statement on building activity in Connecticut for 1927 and 1928 as recorded in the monthly survey of the committee on industrial survey of the New Haven railroad. For, 1927 your committee reported no building permits for Willimantic and only the sum of $250 in 1928.

The facts are that the total permits including new buildings and alterations for the year July 1927 to July 1928 included seventy-three permits with a total valuation of $298,500.

I think it is very unfair for your industrial department to pass out figures unless they know somewhat of their accuracy. It would have been a very easy matter for your committee to have checked up the Willimantic figures and not placed us in such an unfavorable light."

The route is covered twice daily, making a mileage of about 50 miles per day.

Mrs. Johnson is a prominent church worker in the community.

About 300 persons attended a delightful whist, luncheon and dancing party given in the Al-Pierre Taharin this evening under the auspices of the Rosary Velvet company fire brigade and athletic association. The affair was public. Cards were played until 10 o'clock when a luncheon was served and dancing became the order of the evening until midnight. The arrangements committee consisted of Albert Diot, Harold Hawes and Eugene Jolie. The athletic association, which was recently organized cooperated with the fire brigade in staging the affair and is now planning the organization of a baseball club for the next season.

A beautiful Telechron electrically operated wall clock has been presented to St. Joseph's hospital by Dr. Louis L. Mason and has been installed in the operating room where it will prove of great value to the surgeons of the institution. Another recent gift to the hospital is one of $25 by Mrs. H. C. Lathrop of Windham Center to the baby ward. These gifts are greatly appreciated by the hospital authorities.

Traveling conditions again became precarious today as the result of a snowfall of a few inches followed by a drizzling rain. The new "kink" of setting lighted candles against the inside of the windshield to keep the outside rain and snow mixture from freezing, was considerably in evidence today. Street Superintendent Edwin O. Sumner had all of the men of his department out this forenoon clearing cross-walks and gutters.

A delivery truck owned by Samuel Cooper, grain dealer and driven by an employe, Arthur Provost, collided with a touring car owned by Myron Childs, a salesman, near the garage of Harold I. Phillips on Ash street late this forenoon. The damage was slight and the drivers agreed to settle.

At a bridge party given by Mrs. Arthur C. Everest Thursday afternoon the guests included Mrs. L. J. Moffitt, Mrs. Thomas C. Phelps and Mrs. Edward L. Dennis of Scotland and Mrs. Horace J. Fenton of Spring Hill. Mrs. Moffit held highest score.

Rev. Harold H. Critchlow, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church for the past two years has received a unanimous invitation to return to the local pastorage for the ensuing year.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Knight are on their way by motor to Florida to remain there until spring.

Clement Hurteau of the Hurteau-Bosse Corp., has returned from a furniture exposition in New York city.

George H. Arnold, mail carrier on rural free delivery route No. 1, counted 16 robins in the Babcock Hill section of Coventry Thursday. The birds were in the vicinity of the property of the Babcock Hill Farm association and the land of Gustave O. Cartier.

JEWETT CITY

FIREMEN'S ANNUAL BALL DUPLICATES PAST SUCCESSES

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 25—The 31st annual concert and ball of the A. A. Young, Jr., H. and L. Co., No. 1 of Jewett City was held this evening at Plainfield Community house. Tonight was the second year that the fine Plainfield accommodations had been available for the firemen's ball, which after thirty-one years, with many marked successes, rates now as it did in the beginning, the ranking entertainment among the borough's social functions. Weather conditions proved unfavorable, yet the number in attendance was appreciably larger than in many preceding years.

The grand march of close to 100 couples moved at a few minutes after nine, with Chief Walter A. Field and Miss Rose Crumb, daughter of Postmaster and Mrs. William T. Crumb, in the lead. Miss Crumb wore a handsome gown of beaded orchid georgette over flesh tint of the same material. Her corsage bouquet was of Briarcliff roses and sweet peas. All along the line the smart frocks won excited murmurs of admiration. The music was surely of the Class A order, being furnished by Harry E. Felton's orchestra of Worcester, Mass., the following concert program winning hearty applause from the large assemblage:

Russian Fantasy, Lange
including:
"Song of the Volga Boatmen" and Tchaikowsky's "Fourth Symphony"
Selection—Victor Herbert's Favorites, Victor Herbert
Fantasie Orientale Lange
Marimba solo "Fashionette," Selected William Lynch
Selection—Queen High, Gensler
American Folk Songs, Stephen Foster Symphonic Arrangement

The committees who received so many compliments for the perfection of all details for the ball included: Master of ceremonies, Chief Walter A. Field; committee of arrangements, Lionel E. Boucher, chairman, Francis H. Driscoll, Mose Loranger, Walter A. Field, James H. Morey; floor director, Mose Loranger.

Visitors were present from Norwich, New London, Willimantic, Wauregan, Moosup, Danielson, Baltic, Taftville, Providence and Bridgeport.

A SHRIKE REPORTED—SEEN BY MRS. ROUSSEAU

Recent advices to local bird recorders from the ornithological division of the Massachusetts department of agriculture, give notice that an unusual number of northern shrikes are in this section of New England. A sample of the interest shown by local bird lovers in the visitations of the out-of-the-ordinary birds, was manifested last winter. About this date, all through this locality someone was meeting with Mr. Great Snowy Owl, or members of his accompanying family from the frozen north.

Mrs. Edward Rousseau is the first to report the shrike. She saw one in her yard this week and he is sure worth seeing, and as he is apt to move with a storm, the gentlemen may be looked for today. The advices say that the bird may be known by his colors—gray, black and white—by the consternation his appearance causes among the sparrows, and by his peculiar flight, which is steady and straightforward, with much flapping, and close to the ground until he nears his intended perch, which is reached at the last moment by a sudden upward turn. He is but little larger than a robin. Local boys used to call him butcherbird, which is a name he well might answer to. Once on a hunting trip in the Branch woods in Lisbon, two Jewett City hunters came upon a stunted thorn bush near a long disused bar-way. Impaled upon its sharp thorns were two sparrows, a mouse and a small lizard which were intended for a future banquet for Mr. Shrike.

The strange visitor is from the Hudsonian zone, and his visits in these latitudes may be often or far between. Until Mrs. Rousseau spied the one earlier in the week, none have been reported for years.

Mrs. Abraham Zegeer and Mrs. L. G. Buckingham conducted a food sale for the benefit of the Congregational Ladies' society in Zegeer's store Friday afternoon.

There are one hundred and eighty children absent from Riverside grammar school on account of illness.

The primary teachers of the public school attended a lecture given in Norwich Thursday under the auspices of the state board of education.

Mrs. Clinton Coles has returned after several weeks' stay in Hartford hospital. Mr. Coles has been called to Point Breeze, N. J., by the death of his only sister, the funeral taking place Wednesday.

Indications are that the coming firemen's ball is going to be a sure winner this year. It ranks among the leading social events of this vicinity and never fails to please.

COLCHESTER

FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH ANNUAL MEETING

At the annual meeting of the First Congregational church Thursday evening in the chapel there was a good attendance and the clerk of the church, J. Newton Dauphine, reported considerable progress. The membership report showed twelve new members taken into fellowship, eight on confession of faith. During the year there was but one death and one dismissal by letter, leaving a net gain of ten, or a total of 120 members as against 110 last year. Reports from the treasurer of belevolences, E. T. Bunyan; the treasurer of the ladies' Benevolent society, Mrs. C. M. Gillette and the treasurer of the Sunday school, William Adams, all showed a prosperous year, with all obligations fully met and balances on hand. The various officers of the church and church school were re-elected.

In his report, the pastor, Rev. H. Herbert Tompkins emphasized the need of developing a community program along lines already begun. He pointed out that while the church membership was only 120, yet through its various religious organizations the church administered to the needs of over 320 adults and young people, while other social agencies in charge of leaders whose life centered around the church served more than 65 boys and girls. Among the new developments in the religious life of the church this year are the Junior Christian Endeavor, Junior Church and a new division of the older Christian Endeavor groups into a Young People's society and an adult Christian Endeavor society. The Junior C. E. was inaugurated last July by the pastor and later placed under the supervision of Mrs. Tompkins, who has added to its membership, which now totals nineteen. The Junior church was created to care for a group of children who regularly attende the morning service of church worship. The children have attended the opening period of devotion in the church and then adjourn to their own rooms for a service of worship adapted to their own needs. The Young People's division of the Christian Endeavor has taken a remarkable interest in the outlook for an active year under a program especially designed to meet their problems and needs. This group will meet regularly at the chapel Sunday evenings, while the adult Christian Endeavor will carry on a cottage meeting program, holding services at the homes throughout the community.

MRS. J. J. HOADLEY IS 91—HER HUSBAND IS 95

Mrs. Jesse J. Hoadley of Westchester Center will observe her 91st birthday today (Saturday). She has received a large number of cards and visits from friends. Her husband, who is 95, is one of the oldest Civil war veterans in Connecticut. Both are recovering from severe attacks of grip.

William J. McDonald, professor at Williston Academy, East Hampton, Mass., is at his home on School street for over Sunday.

The snow which began to fall in this section about 7 a. m. Friday reached a depth of about three inches. About noon-time a fine sleet and rain storm struck this vicinity continuing throughout the afternoon. Supt. L. R. Chapman and men were busy all day removing the snow from the Hartford-New London and Norwich turnpikes. Travel by motor vehicle proved difficult throughout the afternoon, as the rain and sleet froze on windshields. Several minor accidents were reported about the village. Two cars came together at the junction of the Amston and Hartford roads about 1 p. m., but only slight damage was done.

The 23 births in the town of Colchester were: Walter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Zwyowicz, born Feb. 3; Irene Kosovitch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Kosovitch, March 3; Phyllis Webster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold R. DOUBLE FUNERAL HELD FOR THOMAS AND CLARICE WOODSON

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 26—The uncertainties and tragedies of life were brought home to relatives, friends and acquaintances of Thomas Woodson and his sister, Miss Clarice E. Woodson, this afternoon when funeral services were held for both at the A. F. Wood funeral home on Mechanic street. Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Danielson Baptist church was the officiating clergyman. The brother and sister died only a day apart during the present week, he in Brooklyn, she in Attleboro, Mass. Burial was in graves side by side in the South cemetery at Brooklyn, the commital service conducted by Rev. Mr. Armstrong. The bearers were Russell O'Neill, Eugene Williams, Robert Wilkins, Andrew Taylor, Floyd Scott and Julius Tattoon. There were numbers of floral pieces.

Funeral of James O'Neil.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock at the A. F. Wood funeral home a funeral service for James O'Neill, who died in Plainfield this week, was conducted by Rev. J. Rees Jones, rector of St. Alban's church. The bearers were Earle F. Winslow, Clarence Cooley, David Broks, George W. Kent, T. Keegan, and Michael McGormack. Burial was in Westfield cemetery.

It was being recalled today by older residents of Danielson that Charles D. James, who died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Caroline Handschumacher in Boston yesterday afternoon, was one of the old line prohibitionists of this section of eastern Connecticut. He became interested in prohibition when the prospect of enacting any legislation approximating the eighteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States appeared little more than forlorn hope. Yet his interest in the prohibition movement never failed. He had been, in years long gone past, a candidate for office on the state ticket, a fact significant of his place and prominence in the early struggles for prohibition in Connecticut and in the nation as a whole.

Within a period of about 48 hours from the time that this was being written this afternoon four little boys have died within a few miles of Danielson, and in at least some of the cases death was caused by a more severe form of influenza than that up to this time attacked any of the hundreds of adults who have been more or less seriously ill within the past six or seven weeks. The ages of the boys who have passed on range from 2 to 5 years. Brooklyn, Killingly and Plainfield figure in these losses. A rather startling feature of these cases is that the duration of illness ranged from 24 to 48 hours.

A death this afternoon at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam was that of Frederick Andrew Tawyer, age three years, a twin son of Mrs. Augustus Tawyer of Brooklyn. The child was ill only a short while before its death. The body was taken in charge by Undertaker Martin T. Bates and returned to Brooklyn.

This morning at the assembly period at the high school A. H. Messenger of Springfield addressed the students relative to forming a school band. Mr. Messenger has had particularly good success in forming bands and orchestras, and some of the school bands he has formed and directed now play very capably. His proposal to form at band at Killingly High school, the membership to include both boys and girls, was received with interest and, it is understood, will be given careful consideration. Last evening Mr. Messenger addressed the members of the Danielson Rotary club.

This morning the funeral of Thomas A. Lafantasie, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Philip Lafantastie of the Moosup district, was held from the home with a service conducted by Rev. Joseph Bergin, M. S., at St. James' church at 11 o'clock. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery. The bearers were Joseph Chamberlain, Frank Bernier, Leon Levesque and Arthur Blackmore. Louis E. Kennedy had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Jennie S. Newberry, Norwich, came here last evening and impressively installed the members of Mary A. Livermore tent, Daughters Union Veterans of the Civil war. She had the assistance at the installation ceremonies of Miss Gladys B. Newberry, department guide; Mrs. Anna E. Turner, department chief of staff, as chaplain, and Lillian Newberry as first color bearer. All of this visiting group are from Norwich. PUTNAM

RATS AND MATCHES GIVEN AS CAUSE OF FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 25—Rats and matches have been adjudged the cause of a $2,500 fire which originated in the back room of the United Cigar store on Front street shortly before midnight Friday. Following the fire, Chief Ralph E. Thurston made an investigation. On his entrance into the storeroom of the cigar store, the fire chief discovered a crate of matches which had been opened by hungry rats. Chief Thurston said today that the careless manner in which the matches were left made a simple task for the rats.

The storeroom of the cigar store is not visible from the street, due to a huge mirror in the rear part of the store, and the flames gained considerable headway before they found their way into the salesroom and were discovered.

The Bradley theatre which adjoins the cigar store was completely filled with smoke, but with the aid of ventilating fans in the roof, the atmosphere within the theatre was cleared sufficiently enough to allow the annual presentation of the Columbian Players of the Cargill council, K. of C., to be staged there tonight.

Friday's fire was the first this year and was most efficiently handled by the three fire companies. Chief Thurston and Deputy Chiefs Dumas and Cloutier directed the maneuvers of the firemen in conquering the flames.

A poor report card from school and two father-and-son conferences were today termed as indirect reasons for Victor Pinnon, of Geneva street, and Edward Pearson, of Lovely street, Worcester, leaving their homes and running away, according to Sergt. George Liard of the Putnam police, who took the youngsters into custody Thursday evening. Sergeant Liard said this morning that the boys left their homes in Worcester after their dads had chastized them for their poor marks in school. They left Worcester early in the morning and with the aid of automobile "lifts" reached Putnam early in the evening. The youngsters, tired and weary, but not daunted because darkness had overtaken them, applied at the home of Mrs. William R. Barber on School street and asked permission to sleep overnight in the barn. Mrs. Barber reported the presence of the boys to the police and soon Sergeant Liard had them in his custody.

Sergeant Liard notified the parents of the Pinnon boy, who came to the police station to claim his son and return him to his home. Mr. Pinnon also took the Pearson youngster into his custody and returned to Worcester last night. The youths were both 14 years of age.

The board of assessors has prepared the 1928 grand list for the town of Putnam and has completed the work of affixing valuations to properties within the town limits. According to the newly compiled list, many of the heavy taxpayers in the city have had their lists reduced considerably, while only a few concerns have received higher valuations. The grand list is now prepared for the organization meeting of the board of relief of the town, which will take place on Feb. 1.

There is considerable interest in Putnam in the bill for a toll or trunk highway which is now before the house of representatives in the legislature. According to the present plan a privately controlled highway, if the bill is passed, will be constructed across the state of Connecticut, from a point in Fairfield county to a point in Windham county, where the Connecticut state line intersects with the Massachusetts state boundary. The new road, if the bill goes through, will be of utmost interest to people of this community, since it is apparent the highway will find its way presumably through the Woodstocks. Putnam will not be considered, since plans are to avoid all cities, where possible. There seems to be the greatest amount of interest in the new highway plan among the farmers in the Woodstocks, who possess lands which perhaps would be needed for the coming toll road.

Antonio Goulet, of Killingly avenue, is now engaged in constructing a rink on Killingly avenue, which will, when flooded, be used for skating in the winter time and bathing in the summer season. The work is going forward at a rapid rate and it is expected that the rink may be completed before spring.

The Israel Putnam lodge of Odd Fellows for the first time this year came out on the long end of the ticket in their card tournament with the Kaceys, last evening, when they defeated the knights by a margin of one point, the evening's score being 3 to 2. The win by the Odd Fellows means nothing to them since the Kaceys have such a substantial lead that it will take many victories of this nature to overcome their overwhelming lead. The summary of the games played last evening is as follows. The names of the Odd Fellows are given first: Bridge whist—Campbell and Tourtelotte defeated L. Giraca and Welsh; Bid whist—F. and J. Strombella defeated Irving and Rice; Gifford and Ferns won from Keane and Hannifan; K. Andrews and Arnold lost to P. Giraca and Bourgeois; Shaw and Shippee lost to McGarry and Bisonnette. Next week's round will be played at the Odd Fellows' club on Pomfret street.

Rosario Benoit, 17, of Hartford, formerly of this city, is now under observation at the headquarters of the Massachusetts department of mental diseases in Worcester. Benoit was arrested a few weeks ago on a charge of theft of money from a woman with whom he was living. He attempted to escape the police and succeeded in reaching Hartford before he was taken into custody. In police court in Worcester he was found guilty, but sentence was deferred, since it was alleged by his counsel that he was suffering from a criminal mental affliction.

Several giant trees of unusual beauty, located in Pomfret, have been purchased by Mrs. T. Maurice Murray, of Abington, and are now being removed to positions on her estate in Abington. The work of removing the trees to their new homes is being carried out by a group of landscape experts of Rye, New York. The feat of uprooting the trees without killing the life-bearing suckling roots is accomplished by the use of scientific instruments especially constructed for the task. The trees are transported upon large tractors and other equipment.

CONNECTICUT AGRICULTURE.

What must be regarded as a valuable contribution to agricultural activities in Connecticut is the plan to continue the union meeting of agricultural organizations at Hartford. Connecticut agriculture is by no means overdeveloped. It has plenty of opportunities for expansion and there is a direct advantage in having those interested in the tilling of the soil hear and participate in the discussions concerning their common problems.

Commissioner Buckingham of the agricultural department of this state stresses the point that the gathering this year is to be more in the nature of a conference for planning a future agricultural programme for Connecticut and the agricultural situation as it concerns the state as a whole will be considered.

Connecticut has much to learn in agriculture. It has much to learn from what other states or the country in general has done. It has much to learn from what has been done within its own borders. It should welcome whatever help it may obtain through studying the experience of others to increase production, eliminate waste and make two blades of grass grow where one grew before.

There are conferences in other industries with good results. They are for the purpose of meeting certain problems or bettering conditions. There is equally good reason why the same should work out well with the various branches of agriculture.

Naturally the appeal is to those who are directly concerned in the business of farming, dairying, fruit culture, growing trees and sheep raising. If present methods are antiquated it is well to know how the electric light can replace the lantern, how cooperation can work to advantage and what remedies have been adopted elsewhere that might be equally well applied here.

Arranged for the benefit of the agriculturists of the state, or those developing an interest in that direction, the union meeting next week should get the attention of as many as can find the time to give to it during a season that is normally quiet. Connecticut agriculture stands in need of plenty of stimulation.

CONSIDER THESE ALSO

What happened to the Florida is not known. When it was left it was not believed that it could have stayed afloat during the night, but the difficulty that was experienced in locating the disabled ship and the fact that it is probably now at the bottom, shows what might have happened to the members of its crew had the America been no more successful in tracing its calls than were the two vessels which tried to locate it and couldn't.

Furthermore we get a picture of the plight of the helpless crew had that ship not be equipped with wireless.

When the Vestris was lost there was a lengthy investigation with the result that recommendations were made for the purpose of enacting better protective measures in the future. Conditions were brought to light which ought not to prevail under similar conditions again, but the ships which now travel without wireless and those which have wireless but cannot trace a call for help should be included in the deliberations when it comes to surrounding shipping with greater protection.

The situation aboard the Florida was desperate. The men will not care to go through such an experience again but they must be duly grateful for the determination with which Captain Fried sought their ship, and the bravery displayed in saving them.

The idea of giving public recognition to the captain and valiant crew on arrival in New York is a capital one. There is no possibility of too much recognition being given to such heroic service, even though it may be only what the captain of one ship is to expect from another.

SELLING THE SHIPS.

Getting the government out of the shipping business is a slow and expensive job. It has been underway for years but if we judge by the number of vessels the government still owns, though they may be idle in many instances, it is going to take a long time to complete the change.

Recently bids were asked for some of the best merchant ships that the government owns. Vessels of the United States lines and the American Merchant line were put up in the hope that a sufficiently high price would be received to warrant their sale. Along with it the purchaser would be obligated to maintain the service in which the vessels were engaged and to increase it, while the ships must of course continue to fly the American flag.

Other attempts have been made to reduce the amount of shipping business in which the government is engaged. Some have been successful, others have not. Eight bidders are willing to take over the ships offered if they can be obtained at their figures. Such of the figures as have been disclosed indicate that the government is not going to get rich off of the sale of these ships, and that seems apparent whether the sale is made now or at some future date. But it is not for the purpose of making a profit on them but of getting them into hands which will develop the merchant marine without competition from the government that the government is acting through the shipping board.

It seems ridiculous to think that less than what it cost to remodel the Leviathan is all that could be obtained for such a ship, and yet it has been repeatedly demonstrated that it is far better to get shipping into private hands than to try to maintain it as a government activity.

The government has been facing a losing proposition ever since it went into the shipping business. The administration desires it to end as quickly as it can be wisely done. The statement from the shipping board that it is possible the objects of the government can be accomplished through the offers that have been received may mean the taking of a big loss but in the end being much better off, both from a financial and a shipping standpoint.

MORE NEEDLESS DEATHS.

It was inevitable that the crushing of a bus at Bellevue, O., by an electric train would be followed by an investigation. Had there been no deaths this formality would have been carried out, but with the death list at 19 there was presented a situation which called for a most thorough inquiry. It was one of the most appalling crossing accidents that has occurred in a long time, and the worst feature of the affair is that those in charge of the respective vehicles claims to have tried to avoid the very thing that happened.

When the driver of the bus stopped his machine, got out, went to the track and decided that there was no train in sight he was observing the rules. His vision was restricted because it was snowing heavily. He returned to his car and started across only to be plowed into by the electric, the motorman of which claims that he saw the stopped bus and, because it was stopped, concluded that he was being waited for by the bus. When he learned to the contrary the blowing of the whistle and the application of the brakes were too late to prevent the collision.

Here is a situation which ought not to have existed. It seems decidedly strange if such observations were made and efforts to prevent what happened had actually been carried out that the crash ever occurred. Possibly the speed of the train and the handicap of the snow may explain the seeming inconsistencies but such points should be determined by those who are seeking the facts.

In the state of Ohio it is the practice to erect white crosses in the highway at points near where fatalities occur. This is done in the belief that it will cause many to heed the danger places which might not otherwise be the case. It will mean that there will be an unusually large group of these solemn warnings at Bellevue where the 19 bus passengers were killed. They should attract attention to the danger prevailing at that crossing in an unmistakable manner even though it doesn't appear that such crosses elsewhere were sufficiently influential to prevent that wholesale killing at Bellevue.

OSCAR W. UNDERWOOD.

In the death of Oscar W. Underwood there has been removed one of the great democratic leaders. His name was long before the country because of the part which he played both in the house and senate at Washington. He was a conspicuous figure in congressional circles, a man who was not given to spectacular efforts but firm in his convictions and a fighter in whatever cause be enlisted.

It was he who inaugurated the present type of party leadership in the house and it was he who always could be relied upon to uphold the democratic policy in regard to the tariff. It was under his leadership that much important legislation was enacted and he was always an influential member of congress. He was a fair fighter and won the highest respect from his opponents. He was quick to be selected by republicans when a choice from the democratic ranks was required.

It was his recognized ability and the belief that he possessed the qualifications for the presidency that won for him so much support when he was a candidate for that nomination in the democratic convention in 1924. His retirement from congress was sincerely regretted because it was recognized that it would mean the loss of a valuable legislator and his death means a distinct loss to the country and Alabama in particular.

Political history will not overlook the career of Oscar W. Underwood and his manner and methods cannot fail to have left a valuable and lasting impression in the halls of congress.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: You cannot expect to have slush and posh in July.

There seems to be plenty of prohibition strength in the senate when it wants to exert itself.

Certain navigators proved they didn't know where the rocks were by piling their ships up on them.

The groundhog may be no guide, but there are plenty who are willing to think he is till he is proved otherwise.

Instead of a battle of ballots it's going to be a prominade of the proxies when the Standard Oil of Indiana meets.

Captain George Fried will be known as the rescuing captain. He not only knows how to save shipwrecked crews but he refuses to give up until he gets them.

Now that it is admitted that Lincoln never wrote some of the letters attributed to him, why wasn't it found out before so much false publicity was given out about it?

THE MAN WHO TALKS

The other day two men were conversing on the street when one of them was overheard to say: "Well, for some reason or other he slipped up on it." Exactly what it was that this person "slipped up" on was not made known. It might have been some important business deal, or something of less importance like a marriage proposition, or a fine outlook for entering the political field. Whatever it was there is no doubt that it was of a slippery nature, for otherwise he would not have slipped up on it. Reference might have been made to some persons for they are more slippery than even propositions. It would have been quite within the bounds of reason if reference had been made to some fat man or aged woman whose shin bone had been suddenly introduced to the sidewalk. If so nobody would have suspected that rum did it. Even those whose heads are up in the air stuffed with theology need not be ashamed if they like Satan had taken a fall.

Now this "slipping up" (or more correctly down) business is by no means confined to gymnastic tricks on the glare ice. Not a single day passes that some boy or girl, some man or woman, old or young does not slip up in some of their undertakings. It may not be quite so spectacular as turning a somersault on the ice or in the snow, but it makes about as deep a dint in one's sensitive personality. It outrages the feelings to just about the same degree of intensity. Now when a person—especially a young lady—sprawls down on the ice, there is a brief moment of insensibility then the feelings return with a rush; they accentuate the portion hit the hardest. Then the mind acts, the young miss stamps her dainty foot, shakes her fist at the place of disaster; her beautiful face turns red, her ruby lips move, and then she says something not taken from the Book of Common Prayer.

It is quite possible that we may apply this "slipping up" business to another radically unlike form of activity, or rather non-activity, and that is to the teaching of the importance of prohibition in our public schools. There is a law, so the writer has been informed, in our Connecticut statutes, stating that this subject shall be taught in our public schools, but there are not any very definite statements as to how or when it shall be taught. It would seem that this matter is left to the discretion of the various school boards; hence there can be as many interpretations of the subject as there are school boards. Now if this matter is to materialize, it would seem that some responsible body, possibly the state board of education should prepare a text book so that prohibition might become a regular and dignified part of the curriculum just as much as any other study. It is to be hoped that this will be done.

Today human society has a great diversity of divisions. We are tabulated as rich and poor, high and low, good and bad, learned and ignorant, strong and weak, and thus on almost to infinity. To this illustrious category one is justified in adding the boosters and the wreckers. These latter ones are perhaps better known as defamers or crepe-hangers. Now the word "booster" applies to that sort of person whom we all respect although we sometimes laugh at him. He is the good-natured enthusiast who has faith in his home town, and isn't ashamed to speak well of it. He may use extravagant terms because he is an enthusiast. He believes heart and soul in his home town and loves to praise it. Such a man is popular because he is honest, lovable and is inclined to look on the bright side of things. We may not always follow him but we cannot help admiring his spirit.

It would do the growlers good to come into contact with such a splendid bit of optimism as one finds in the splendid address as they recently given by Walter S. Gifford before the conference of major industries in New York. Mr. Gifford—as you know—is the president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. Among other cheerful things Mr. Gifford says: 'Not so long ago men cried their wares in the streets reaching customers half a block away. Now men cry their wares over the radio, reaching customers across the continent. Millions of people in their homes listen to the news, to good music, to the speeches of political leaders and incidentally, are reminded of products of national production. In a very short time this combination has become an essential part of the social and commercial part of the nation." Now this is the speech of a man big enough to see that it is necessary to have a big faith if big things are to to be attempted.

Sometimes when we listen, "there comes from the tombs a doleful sound" about the pitiable state of our churches, but when I read the reports that are given by the churches at their annual meetings, at once my tears are dried and my sobs subside because the situation is not quite so doleful as the calamity howlers would have me believe. I have as yet failed to detect any sign of boasting in these reports. There has been no occasion for it because the facts and figures given speak for themselves. I have really some solid ground for believing that funeral services over our consumptive churches can with good reason be suspended for at least twelve months to come, during which the crepe-hangers can spend a month at some rest cure, and gain strength for the autumnal campaign this year.

There is one matter relative to the churches that ought to be emphasized, and that is, for the people generally and the young people particularly to take a greater interest in the matter of church membership. Why should it be necessary for the pastor of any church or any of the church officers to plead with both young and old to unite with the church? You don't have to plead with people with tears in your eyes to identify themselves with either of the two great political parties. You don't have to plead with men to join this, that, or the other fraternal organization. If one believes in a political party he is only too glad to be a part of that organization, the same is true of the different orders, but when it comes to the church it is like pulling teeth to get people to consent to membership even when they earnestly believe in the institution. It may be that this urging is the result of the former idea of the awfulness of joining the church. It ought to be as natural as belonging to a family.

While dealing with this important matter of church membership, there is another phase of the subject that needs attention. Why is it that when members of a church move away from the parish, sometimes outside the limits of the state, they are so negligent about the matter of transferring their membership? Of course this is not expected to be done immediately, at least until they have decided where their future church attendance is going to be. But as a matter of fact some people never tend to the matter of the removal of their letters, and their names are not stricken from the rolls until it is incidentally learned that they are dead and in some cases have been dead for years. People would hardly be so negligent about money matters. A little more thoughtfulness would save the church clerks much trouble.

What the Legislature Is Considering - -

New Congressional District, Birth Control and Race Track Measures, Educational Plan Expense, a New Crime, Committee Hearings.

(Special to The Bulletin)

HARTFORD, Jan. 25—Proposed legislation will pour into the Connecticut general assembly at the rate of nearly 300 bills per day during the coming week of new business. Although new business has been in order on all three of the session days this week and during the one session day of the previous week, comparatively few bills have been introduced and more than 80 per cent of the total number of bills will come flooding in during the coming week to deluge both houses in a mass of legislation.

It is estimated that close to 1,200 new measures will be submitted to the assembly during the next four session days. Up to the present time only 237 bills are in the hands of the clerks and this despite the efforts of the house and senate leaders to hasten the work of new business. House Leader Johnson even went to the extent of calling a recess in Thursday's session in order to allow time for the preparation and introduction of bills before the house adjourned for the week.

When the house adjourned Thursday, it was just 60 bills ahead of its total of the similar date two years ago. The senate was 21 bills behind its figure of 1927. A large bulk of the house bills, however, were of a relatively unimportant nature and by far the greater part of the major house bills have yet to arrive on the clerk's desk.

Of the 237 bills introduced during the week, the largest number went to the committee on the judiciary. The committees on finance and incorporations also received many bills. There were an unusually large number of measures to provide for changes in the charters of the various towns and cities, and these, if they continue in the same relative proportion next week will keep the committee on cities and boroughs busy for some time to come.

Among the measures presented during the week were some of the stock bills which appear, disappear and reappear in every session of the general assembly. The women's jury service bill, a perennial bone of contention, came into the senate and found a more friendly feeling than in former years. This feeling, however, is not sufficiently general to guarantee the passage of the bill, and a large amount of it is likely to disappear before the proponents make their final stand.

Another familiar legislative subject which came to life again during the week was the birth control bill. This measure this year, however, is greatly different from the birth control bills of the past. It provides merely for the repeal of a certain section of the existing statute covering the subject. Two years ago, when the birth control measure came up for committee hearing there was no opposition voiced to its passage, but the committee deemed it advisable to continue its policy of reporting it unfavorably. There is likely to be well organized opposition at the hearing this year, however, for the proponents of the bill made such an impression in 1927 that the opponents have arrived at the conclusion that they will have to take action this year.

Still a third measure, not as old as the other two for it is making only its second appearance, is the so-called race track bill. This measure arrived this week, but it, too, was in changed form. In the 1927 assembly, most of the advocates of legitimatized racing and pari-mutuel betting came from New London county. Although no opposition was voiced at the hearing, the bill was nevertheless rejected. It is understood that this year the proponents have limited their bill and have proposed the establishment of racing in New London county only. The details of the proposition are not yet available, for the bill was submitted only in skeleton form, bearing the title and the statement that the measure in its entirety would be submitted to the assembly later.

Educational Program.

There has been considerable talk among the senators and representatives concerning the proposed legislative program of the state board of education by which among other things the educational grants of money to towns would be increased and qualifications for various educational positions particularly for instructing positions in trade schools, would be raised. It is estimated that if the entire program were to be sanctioned by the assembly, it would add approximately $2,500,000 to the state's per annum expenses.

In the present budget compiled by the board of finance and control, the allotment to education for all purposes for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1930, is $3,354,000. For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1931, the educational budget is increased to $3,364,000, making a total estimate expense of $6,718,000 for the biennial period of the present administration.

Add to this large total the figure of $2,500,000 each year and the result is a very drastic increase in the educational budget. Any large increase in state expense of this sort is very likely to be viewed from every angle and carefully weighed before any action is taken. The educational appropriation bill is therefore more than likely to be one of the most widely discussed subjects before the 1929 legislature.

A New Crime.

For many years past, it has been criminal in this state and in practically all others to remove, deface or otherwise alter the manufacturer's serial number on any motor vehicle. There was a bill introduced into the legislature last week which provides that it shall be considered ordinary theft when a person defaces the serial number not only of a motor vehicle, but also of a radio, piano, musical instrument, washing machine, or any other type of manufactured article. The measure further provides that it shall be a felony punishable by state's prison sentence for any person twice convicted of defacing a serial number.

The introduction of the bill would make it seem apparent that most of the people in Connecticut and the rest of the country for that matter are doing a large portion of their purchasing of such articles on the installment plan. Motor vehicles have been sold on that plan for many years and retailers of other articles involving fairly high prices have been rapidly adopting similar systems. Cases of removal or disappearance of the articles shortly after the down payment is made is not uncommon and it is to prevent or at least to alleviate this situation that the bill was introduced.

Congressional Districts.

For the first time in many years, it appeared when the 1929 assembly opened that the committee on congressional and senatorial districts would have some work to do. There has not been a bill referred to it in many a session, but this year one bill in the form of unfinished business from the 1927 legislature was handed to it. It was later discovered, however, that the committee will have no more work before it than past years, and that the only action it can take is to pass the bill along to its successors in the 1931 assembly.

The measure would allow for the establishment of a new congressional district in Connecticut. The congressional reapportionment bill sponsored by Representative E. Hart Fenn of Connecticut in the national congress now looms likely to receive complete sanction and under it Connecticut would have one more representative in congress. Connecticut must act upon the matter itself, but it will have to wait until after the 1930 census is taken, so the bill referred to must again be passed along as unfinished business.

Committee Hearings

During the week, the committee on appropriations began its biennial task of conducting hearings on institutional and departmental deficiencies. It was the only committee to see action during the week. Deficiency hearings will be continued throughout the coming week while the other committees are forced to wait until the introduction of new business is completed before going to work. The appropriations group is likewise aided this session by the preparation of the budget by the board of finance and control which will eliminate a large part of the work it had to do formerly. Appropriations committee chairmen in both houses believe that this new feature of handling the budget will enable them to gain much time in the submission of the final appropriations bill. In past legislatures, it was near the end of the session before the committee could complete its hearings and assemble all of its favorable recommendations into one bill. It is believed that the appropriations measure this year will be completed by the middle of the session or at least sooner than it has ever been finished before.

The committee on the judiciary announced that it would begin hearings on Tuesday, February 5, by disposing of a large group of uncontested judgeship resolutions. The committee on military affairs selected the same date to begin activities and it has listed four bills for hearings. Other committees are expected to list the first of their bills for hearings during the coming week.

Sunday Morning Talk

NEED OF A REVIVAL

Wilt Thou not revive us again, that Thy people may rejoice in Thee? Psalm 85: 6.

Why do we all feel that the church needs a revival? Why are we not satisfied with the existing state of things in our congregations and throughout our church? Because the more we look into the whole question of the church's life, the motives that sway her, and the spirit that animates her, the more carefully we compare her just as she is with the Christian character as drawn by Christ and His apostles, and the Christian spirit as it breathes in the early church, the more we are forced to conclude that she is not in possession of the full measure of the life that Christ intended her to have. She does not register the intentions of her creator. The Christian consciousness refuses to admit that it was to create such a church that the purposes of God were formed from the beginning of the world; or that the Incarnation, the life, the agony and suffering of the Son of God have their full legitimate fruit in the Christianity that we see around us. In the life we are living we do not fill up the measure of God's gracious intentions. It is for us to ask if we can do anything to bring about a genuine revival. If all true reviving is from the Lord, are we, therefore, reduced to utter impotence, are we obliged to sit down and wait for the moving of the waters or the rushing mighty wind? No one who knows anything of the genius of Christianity, or the history of the church, believes this. We can do something, and we must do what we can. God will test our sincerity in this matter. It is the coming of the Lord in power that we need, and there is such a thing as preparing "the way of the Lord."

The first thing is repentance for our sins and hardness of heart. The next thing is prayer. If we would make it possible for God to bless us, and revive His work in the midst of the years, we must give ourselves to prayer.

Oh, the prayerlessness of many of the people of the Lord!

Has the Kingdom of Heaven suffered violence at our hands? Do we know anything of soul agony not for our own souls only but for the souls of others? It is thus, faith pleading the promises, that the obstructions in the way of God's working are removed, and channels along which the blessing comes are opened, and the life of the spirit flows down to us in rich abundance.

One of the Master's faithful workmen has said: "I have found no exception to the rule that the revival comes to a neighborhood or a church through the prayer meeting—mostly the young people's prayer meeting—held night after night without a break. It may be for several weeks. God grant us such prayerfulness and such blessed fruits from it! Let us cast ourselves down before Him, and in our weakness let us grasp His power.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

High Street.

Mr. Editor: Speaking of streets, I went over that trail the other day that was formerly known as High street. It is not called that now, not by those who are unfortunate enough to have business over there. I have a pretty rugged car, fully equipped with a sock absorbers, bumpers, chains, jacks and a first aid equipment, but when I knew I had to go through that imitation of a cart track, I reinforced my car with extra braces, both fore and aft, I also took along a bottle of liniment and a crutch. I approached that thoroughfare with fear and trembling and I trembled and shook all the way through. One side of the car would be down exploring the bowels of the earth and sojourning with the isometric canal, while the other side would be soaring aloft to some unknown region, and then, visa and worser. In two places I had to shift cargo over on one side or I would have turned turtle. I coasted down the east end of that lane as gracefully as a duck climbing over pumpkins. The rocky road to Dublin was a pool table beside it. Say! I had just a lovely time, but I got through without any serious injury to myself, but the car—I called it that before I started—had four wheels badly sprung and the rest were so out of line that they didn't function just right, but outside of that and a few other things, such as a broken head light, twisted fenders, top bent over to one side, and a lost tail light, the car is all right. That boulevard should have a sign, in fact two signs, one reading—"Pass through at your own risk," and the other, "All who enter here leave hope behind."

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25—(AP)—Return of Herbert Hoover to the radio broadcast world for the Cascade tunnel dedication ceremonies impressed the Bystander with a notion that Mr. Hoover has materially improved his radio personality, so to speak, since he last was "on the air."

His voice seemed deeper and more resonant, his delivery more calm and unhurried, his enunciation clearer. Brief as his remarks were, they seemed to have more personality "pull" to them than his radio campaign addresses.

Which is quite gratifying inasmuch as Mr. Hoover certainly will be heard over the air more frequently than any predecessor at the white house. As a matter of fact, he has only one radio predecessor in the presidency, Calvin Coolidge. That's how young radio broadcasting actually is.

Harding by Telephone

President Harding was heard simultaneously by great gatherings in Washington, New York and San Francisco at the time of the funeral of the Unknown Soldier in 1921. That was not a radio broadcast matter, however—merely telephone transmission and amplification. The first formal presidential broadcast seems to have been the delivery by President Coolidge of his maiden message to congress in December, 1923.

One thing that contributed to Hoover's improved radio personality was the fact that he talked from his home here. He feels that he can do much better that way than when delivering an address to an audience in a vast and noisy hall. He has time to think of the radio aspects of public speaking when at his desk with just a telephone instrument before him.

And the radio aspects of oratory—or of just plain everyday speech-making—are quite dissimilar from those of talking face to face with an audience. Radio talking is a one-dimension art. It lacks the benefit of gesture or glance to point a moral or adorn a tale.

Radio Like Print

Recently, the Bystander has been reading much of Lincoln's life. All biographers speak of his wit and humor. Yet rarely do they quote examples. They explain that more often than not, the humor of Lincoln lost too much in cold print.

The same is true of radio to some extent. Radio personality is a new art, then, one for which the rules are in the making.

YOUR HEALTH

Eye Examination Discloses Blood and Kidney Changes

By Michael Goldenburg, M. D. Chicago

If the eye is the window of the soul, one may add that it is likewise the window to the physical state of the body. To appreciate the former platitude one must be a romancer; to appreciate the latter one must be a physician, trained in the study of diseases of the eye in their relation to disease of the body. By far the greater number of people who consult an occulist do so because their vision is somewhat disturbed or they are suffering from headaches, for which they desire glasses. During the course of examination for this purpose, all the minute parts of the eye should be thoroughly inspected for abnormalities or evidence of disease. This is best accomplished if the pupils are widely dilated by some form of belladonna.

A layman looking at an eye is attracted by its color, brilliancy, and expression, which varies in health, disease and mood of the being. The color is contributed by the mosaic-like distribution of the various hued pigments of the iris; its brilliancy by the luster of the anterior transparent part of the eye (cornea) and the mood by a combination of these two factors plus the reaction (contraction and dilation) of the black pupil to the stimulus. Deviations from the normal express themselves in a characteristic manner, which to the trained physician frequently indicate early signs of disturbances at times in remote parts of the body, such as disease of the brain and spinal cord; disease of the blood and various local and systemic infections.

Our ability to examine in detail the sensitive parts of the interior of the eye is one of the great assets to modern medicine. In no other parts of the body is such direct observation possible of small blood vessels, nerve tissues and body fluids. In these refined delicate tissues are expressed changes that could not be detected in larger and less delicate structural parts. Thus are we enabled actually to see the first changes in small blood vessels that later may denote high blood pressure; diseases of the blood, kidneys and diabetes; disease of the brain, and sometimes even a brain tumor formation. These changes may be present long before the patient is in any way aware of their existence. The value of such early information is self-evident.

To recognize these early signs one must be trained to do so, and suggestions made accordingly. The fitting of glasses in itself is a comparatively simple matter, but to forego the advantages possible of such an examination by a physician, would seem unwise in this day of preventive medicine.

Mothers! Avoid Too Much Dosing For Influenza

It May Upset Digestion And Thus Still Further Lower The Body-Resistance.

According to health authorities, a peculiarity of influenza is that its toxins upset the digestive system, especially in the case of children. Too much "dosing" still further disturbs the digestion, and should be avoided except on advice of a physician.

Vicks VapoRub is especially valuable because it is applied externally and so can be used freely with no risk of upsetting the digestion, nor can it interfere with any other treatment your doctor may prescribe.

Physicians advise that the chief danger in this epidemic is after influenza. Then, more than ever, colds attacking the weakened system, may lead to bronchitis, sinus trouble, or pneumonia. Heed even the slightest cold as a danger-signal and treat it promptly—without "dosing." Just rub Vicks on throat and chest at bedtime.

POETRY

Unlikely

If every one did always right,
How different life would be!
This earth might be a paradise,
Perhaps, for you and me.
But others might be very much
Inclined to moans and sobs,
For there would be a lot of folks
Dead sure to lose their jobs.

What would become of the police,
So big, and brave, and strong,
If every one did always right,
And nobody did wrong?
The stalwart "guardians of the peace"
Would not have much to do,
If everybody all the time
Were good, like me and you.

And then the judges in the courts
And all their satellites,
Where would they get the food they need
To match their appetites?
And all the ministers, you know,
Would have much less to teach,
Since sin is now the text of half
The sermons that they preach.

But nobody need worry much,
And nobody need fret,
The likelihood of such a change
Is very small as yet.
For very, very few of us
Do always as we should,
And there is very little chance
That we shall all be good.

—Somerville Journal.

Comrades

You need not say one word to me, as we
the hill we go,
(Night-time, white-time, all in the whispering snow);
You need not say one word to me, although the whispering trees
Seem strange and sad, as pagan priests in swaying mysteries,

You need not think one thought of me, as up the hill we go,
(Hill-trail, still-trail, all in the hiding snow);
You need not think one thought of me, although a hare runs by,
And off behind the tumbled cairn we hear a red fox cry.

Oh, good and rare it is to feel, as through the night we go,
(Wild-wise, child-wise, all in the secret snow),
That we are free of heart and foot as hare and fox are free,
And yet that I am glad of you, and you are glad of me!

OBITUARY

Mrs. Frank H. Merrill

Norwich friends were saddened Friday to learn of the death Thursday night in St. Luke's hospital, New York city, of Lena Andrews Merrill, wife of Frank H. Merrill, former general secretary of the Norwich Y. M. C. A. Mrs. Merrill had been seriously ill for the last five months but the end came suddenly and unexpectedly.

Mrs. Merrill was born in Wilmington, N. C., Feb. 8, 1877, but her home for a number of years was in Waterbury. Mr. and Mrs. Merrill resided in this city from October, 1901, to November, 1909, while Mr. Merrill was connected with the Y. M. C. A., first as physical director for two years and then as general secretary. Mrs. Merrill also was active in the women's auxiliary, serving efficiently as its president, and was prominent in musical circles here and in New London, singing in the choir of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church and in the choir at the Second Congregational church in New London.

When Mr. Merrill accepted a position in church work in New York city they removed there in the fall of 1909 and their residence of late has been at 161 West 103rd street. Besides her husband, Mrs. Merrill is survivde by a daughter, Catherine. Possessed of rare personal charm and sweetness of disposition, Mrs. Merrill is held in affectionate remembrance by many local friends to whom her passing away will bring a deep sense of loss.

After services Saturday in New York at St. Michael's church and in Waterbury Sunday interment is to be in Pine Grove cemetery, Waterbury.

Theodore H. Philipp.

Funeral services were held Friday from funeral parlors in Providence for Theodore H. Philipp, formerly of Norwich, who died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Max Schulze, 39½ Redwing street, Providence. Interment was at the North End cemetery at Providence. The bearers were Walter Schulze, Henry Schulze, Harold J. McMahon and Andrew Marks.

Mr. Philipp had been ailing for some time, but his death was the result of a shock he suffered two weeks ago. He was born in Germany 84 years ago. Besides his wife, Clara A. Philipp, he is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Martha Schulze and Mrs. Annie E. McMahon of Providence, and one son, Alfred O. Philipp of Chicago, as well as ten grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Philipp celebrated their golden wedding anniversary three years ago, having been married in Germany in 1876. They came to this country 40 years ago and settled in Norwich 30 years ago. He was at that time engaged in the textile industry. Although he left Norwich 15 years ago to take up his residence with his daughter in Providence he still has many friends here, many of whom were in attendance at his funeral. True to the German tradition he was a great lover of the higher musical classics, among his favorites being the opera "Martha." He was also deeply interested in political reform. As a young man in Germany he saw active service in the German-Prussian war. His stories concerning this and other highlights were always interesting and much sought after.

His youngest daughter, Anne E. McMahon is the wife of James L. McMahon who is also well known in Norwich having been born and brought up in Greeneville. In his younger days he was known around Norwich as an amateur baseball player.

His son, Alfred O. Philipp, who is interested in the theatrical profession, playing the western vaudeville circuits, is also a Norwich boy. He appeared in Norwich three years ago and was tendered a reception by his friends as well as those of his father.

After the Norwich meeting he is to attend a meeting in New Haven at 6 o'clock Sunday evening.

Past District Commander Peck, of Lyme, presided at the district meeting in the absence of the district commander who was sick, and there was an attendance of about 60 representing most of the 12 American Legion posts in the county.

The district meeting for the Women's auxiliary of the legion was held at the same time at the armory with the district president, Mrs. Ruth Sears, of Taftville, presiding. The roll call by the secretary, Mrs. May Frohmader, showed an attendance of 40 from the auxiliaries in New London, Baltic, Lyme, Jewett City, Taftville and this city. Baltic won the traveling gavel for having an attendance of 12. Mrs. Ruth Dorsey, of New London, spoke of the trophies and awards for membership and each unit reported its activities since Thanksgiving. A district uniform was adopted consisting of blue cape, blue national cap, and white dress.

After the business meetings of the two organizations, refreshments were served and they later joined for a social programme in the drill shed with dancing, for which the music was by Ted Moore's orchestra.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY HAVE OFFICERS INSTALLED

Norwich Grange, No. 172, met in Steiner hall Wednesday evening. Preceding the meeting Division E served an installation supper at 6.30 p. m., Mrs. Jennie Davis, chairman. The tables were very pretty with candles and flowers. The officers' table was decorated with a special cake made by Mrs. Davis and inscribed with "Officers of 1929" in the frosting. The menu was meat pie, mashed potato, mashed turnip, pickles, rolls, apple pie, cheese and coffee.

The principal business of the meeting was the installation of the officers for this year of 1929, Charles M. Adams, assistant steward of the state grange being the installing officer, with Mrs. Adams as marshal, and Mrs. Taylor and Mrs. Metcalf as assistants. The following were installed:

Worthy master, Albert W. Lillibridge; overseer, Leonard W. Staubley; lecturer, Elizabeth W. Murray; steward, Albert E. Birdsey; assistant steward, Thurston Lillibridge; chaplain, Charles Ellis; treasurer, Edward Cook; secretary, Ida E. Richardson; gate keeper, Adel Spaulding; Ceres, Ora Spencer; Pomona, Susie Lillibridge; Flora, Eliza Walker; lady assistant, June Woods.

After the officers were duly installed the master gave an interesting talk and presented his installing officer and assistants with gifts in appreciation of their very efficient work. Norwich grange was much honored at the state grange held at Bridgeport this month as one of its members received a prize from the Home Economics division. Mrs. Thomas Beetham received a chest for the best made house dress. This sum she graciously turned over to the building fund. The l

SHARKEY BEATS CHRISTNER TO DECISION IN SLUGGING BATTLE

By Edward J. Neil
Associated Press Sports Writer

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, Jan. 25—(AP)—That fistic accident from Akron, courageous K. O. Christner, all but happened to Jack Sharkey the garrulous gob from Boston tonight in a wild, free-swinging ten round melee that turned the spacious garden into a madhouse with close to 20,000 roaring inmates.

The sailor man from New England, with his $100,000 engagement against Young Stribling in Miami Beach hanging in the balance, managed to win the decision and save the night for Madison Square garden, but not until all his supporters and the promoters of the battle of the southland had suffered the gravest fears for the worst.

Christner, woefully green but courageous as a sea captain hearing distress calls in a storm, came out of the midwest with a load of punching dynamite that was a constant threat every minute of the ten rounds. He won but three of them, in the consensus of newspapermen at the ringside, but only Sharkey's splendid condition and dogged grit kept him from the canvas in several rounds.

The Boston battler, fighting his last engagement before tackling Stribling in the first of the major heavyweight elimination contest outboxed the bull-chested rubber worker, and mixing a strange brand of caution with savagery, slugged his way out of several difficulties. He made Christner, 34 years old but a professional boxer for only the past year, seem childlike in efforts to land at times while Jack never had difficulty booming left and right hand shots in Kayo's totally unprotected body.

But in every round, often when the going was toughest for the rubber worker, Christner let fly with those right hand shots to the chin that stowed away Knute Hansen, the doleful Dane, in Cleveland recently. And when they landed Sharkey stiffened, held desperately, and had trouble aplenty sweeping the cobwebs from his brain.

Although neither took the count in the battle, and the only outward sign of the heavy hitting at the close was Christner's bleeding nose, both wavered round after round. After taking a severe trouncing in the second, fifth, seventh and ninth rounds, Christner let fly with his awesome right just before the bell in each session and sent Sharkey back to his corner to rest with bells tingling in his ears.

For the first half of the encagement, Christner, clumsy and almost totally devoid of boxing ability, forced the fighting and more than held his own. He rushed the Boston tar around the ring, pummeled him about the head and body, and won the first, third and fifth sessions. Sharkey, far off form in his timing, wild with both hands due to his long layoff, was content to let the Akron mauler set the pace.

Opening up in the sixth round however, Sharkey took the offensive and forced Christner to lead and leave openings that brought both Jack's hands booming to the body. In every round thereafter Sharkey measured his tiring foe with vicious clouts to that iron mid-section and smeared Christner's face with every wallop in the fight encyclopedia.

Christner slowed up under the pummeling but never stopped trying. He took everything Sharkey had and when openings came, let drive with the right hand that shook Jack from stem to stern. He was outclassed toward the close for his lack of polish and boxing ability never gave him the chance he needed to end the battle with two of those vicious clouts in succession.

Although newspapermen at the ringside were almost unanimously in record with the decision, the crowd booed the verdict, crowded about the ring, and patted Christner on the back as he left the arena. The officials likewise differed in their decisions. Referee Jack Demming and Judge George Kelly voting for Sharkey while Judge Tom Shortell called the fray a draw. Sharkey, who enlarged his sprained his right thumb early in the bout, was roundly booed as he trotted to his dressing room.

There was little difference in the weights, Sharkey scaled 193. Christner 193 1-2.

The Preliminaries.

Billy Murphy, Lowell, Mass., welterweight, edged out a close decision over Canada Lee, New York Negro, in a ten round bout. Murphy scaled 146 1-2 pounds, Lee 146.

The battle steadily picked up speed after a slow start and ended in a free-punching brawl. Murphy gained victory by his boxing skill in the first five rounds Lee staggered him several times in the last two sessions.

Joe Barlow of Boston, battered out a decision over Amadeo Grillo, Italian light heavyweight, in a slow six round preliminary. Barlow weighed 172 1-2 pounds, Grillo 173.

Two clumsy heavyweights, the left handed Jack Gross, of Philadelphia and Emmett Rocco, of Elwood, Ohio, struggled through ten drab rounds in the semi-final to a constant chorus of boos and jeers. It was a maximum of cumbersome effort with a minimum of results. Gross was awarded the decision. He weighed 206 pounds, Rocco 182.

CUNNINGHAM FAILS TO APPEAR FOR QUESTIONING

BOSTON, Jan. 25.—(AP)—Attorney-General Joseph E. Warner, who is investigating a fund of $80,000 raised by the Outdoor Recreation league to support the referendum to legalize Sunday sports, waited in vain today for Edmund Cunningham, secretary of the Braves, who, Warner said, he expected at his office for an interview.

Earlier in the day, the attorney-general conferred with Charles H. Innes, republican political leader, who was named in a list of contributors as having given $750 to the fund. It was his second interview with Innes.

The attorney-general's investigation was begun as a result of charges that the list of contributors to the fund, which was filed with the secretary of state, was falsified to cover contributions made by Emil Fuchs, president of the Braves. The charges were made during a hearing before the Boston finance commission on accusations made by Fuchs against members of the Boston city council, who, he said, sought bribes in return for favorable action on the Sunday sports measure.

Warner said today that he talked with Cunningham on the telephone yesterday and asked him to call at his office. He said that Cunningham requested the privilege of having his counsel present at the interview and the attorney-general agreed. Warner said that he then set today as the date for the interview.

Warner said that he called Cunningham's office on the telephone again today and left word that he would like to see Cunningham tomorrow.

MELLO OUTPOINTS DUNDEE IN NON-TITLE BOUT

BOSTON, Jan. 25—(AP)—Al Mello, Lowell welterweight, outpunched Joe Dundee, world's welterweight champion, here tonight in a furious non-title ten round battle.

Mello led in five rounds, Dundee four and the other was even. The Lowell boy, however, had two knockdowns to his credit, one in the first and the other in the eighth. Dundee came in inside the welterweight limit but Mello was overweight.

The well earned victory was Mello's second at the expense of the Dundee family for it was but a few weeks ago that the champion's brother Vince received a bad beating from the Lowell boy.

The bout drew a crowd of 18,000 and the gate receipts exceeded $34,000.

Eddie Curley, Boston featherweight, barely edged out his arch enemy Jake Zeramby, of Lynn, in a fast eight-round semi-final. Both boys were even until the final round, when Curley made an impressive flash.

Ernie Martin of Boston, gained an unanimous decision over Dominick Petrone of New York in another eight rounder which was slow and tame. Jack Brady of Syracuse gave Jack Kane of Boston a bad beating in another eight round battle.

Freddie Lendstrom of Sweden knocked out Mickey McClernon of New London in the second of what was to have been a six round bout and Billie Cleary, Boston, outpointed Tommy Harper of Medford in the opener.

STRIELING WINS FROM SMITH ON TECHNICAL K. O.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 25—(AP)—W. L. (Young) Stribling won his fight here tonight with Ralph Smith of California on a technical knockout in the third round when the referee stopped the bout. Stribling weighed 184; Smith 222.

The fight was such a debacle for the big western giant who towered a head above the flashy Georgia contender for the heavyweight crown vacated by Gene Tunney that the referee interfered to award the technical decision to Stribling.

Smith was knocked down three times in the first round, once in the second and twice in the third before the fight was stopped.

BARBUTI AND WIDE PERFORM AT MASONIC MEET

NEW YORK, Jan. 25—(AP)—Ray Barbuti, Olympic hero, and Edvin Wide, Sweden's foot-racing schoolmaster, both will make their first appearance of the indoor season at the annual track and field games of the Second Masonic district of Manhattan at the 102nd Engineers' armory tomorrow night.

Definite sanction for Wide to run in a special 1,500-meter event was received today from the president of the A. A. U. in Chicago, while Barbuti is to stride the 400-meter distance at which he won the championship at Amsterdam last summer.

As Barbuti has been doing little training his bit will be a solo run with no opponent except the watch. The best field to be assembled in the Metropolitan district will be sent against Wide.

In addition to these two famous international competitors, the Masonic meet will present Phil Edwards, like them an Olympic athlete, who will start in the 800-meter event against such stars as Pinkie Sorer, Harold Cutbill, the Flying Parson; Fred Veit, a New York university teammate, and George Offenhouser, of Penn State.

Edwards, who ran for Canada at Amsterdam, will be whisked by taxi to Brooklyn where he will compete in a 600-yard special event in the Norwegian Turn society games. The graceful Negro's first appearance last week was not crowned with success and he hopes to wipe it out with a sensational double victory.

Willie Goodwin, New York A. C. runner who formerly held the national two-mile championship, will launch a comeback in the 3,000-meter race for the Hugh H. Hirshon trophy with Bob Dalrymple, of the Boston A. A., and Frank Titterton, Millrose A. A., among his rivals. Bill Cox, of Penn State, is in the Collect hospital with quinsy and will not be able to start, the games committee was informed.

Bob McAllister and Frank Hussey are among the entrants for the sprints.

SMITH AND DUDLEY GET 69S IN FIRST ROUND

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Jan. 25—(AP)—Horton Smith, of Joplin, Mo., and Ed Dudley, of Los Angeles, playing in the same threesome, burned up a wintry course here today for a pair of 69s to lead the field in the first round of the Texas open golf tournament.

Frank Walsh, of Appleton, Wis., who played with them, caught the infection and turned in a 70 to tie for third place with Danny Williams, of Shackawaxen, N. J.

Tommy Armour, Washington, D. C., Leonard Schmaltz, Lima, Ohio, Henry Ciuci, Bridgeport, Conn., and Willie Maguire, of Houston, were a stroke behind with 71s.

Bobby Cruickshank, Purchase, N. Y., 72; George Aulbach, Boston, 72; Anthony Manero, New York, 73; Al Watrous, Detroit, 74; Jim Martucci, Orange, N. J., 74; Joe Kirkwood, Albany, Ga., 74; Bill Mehlhorn, Fennimore, N. Y., 75; Al Espinosa, Chicago, 75; Craig Wood, Bloomfield, N. J., 76; Bob Stupple, Chicago, 77; Al Ciuci, New York, 77; Harry Cooper, Buffalo, N. Y., 78; John Golden, Paterson, N. J., 79; Paul H. Anderson, Bethel, Conn., 80; Cyril Walker, Paramus, N. DRIVER OF MACHINE NO. 13 KILLED IN AUTO RACE

BUENOS AIRES, Jan. 25—(AP)—Four of the thirty-four automobiles which started from here at 6 a. m. today in the Argentine grand prix endurance race had been forced out tonight. Paris Giannini, driver of Number 13, and his mechanic Dino Papini were killed 80 miles from the start when their automobile skidded and turned over three times.

The Italian entry driven by Alfaro Meos caught fire soon after the start of the race and was abandoned, as was another Italian entry later. The driver and mechanic of a fourth entry were thrown from their seats by the jolt when their car struck a rut.

The grand-prix is run over three stages totalling about 1,000 miles, all over dirt roads presenting most difficult conditions. The run today ended at Rosario. Tomorrow's goal is Cordova and on Sunday the races head back for this city.

A prize of about $4,000 awaits the winter with awards of $3,500 and $1,800 for the next two places. Most of the automobiles are of American makes. The team of Bucci and Gaudino, former winners, is the favorite.

Three American cars were the leaders at Rosario today. Gaudino, driving one of them, was first in 3 hours, 24 minutes and 12 seconds.

BOSTON WOMEN TO PLAY FOR SQUASH TITLE

BOSTON, Jan. 25—(AP)—An all-Boston final for the first women's national squash racquets championship was assured today, when Mrs. William F. Howe, Jr., and Mrs. George W. Wightman, were victorious in their semi-finals matches. Mrs. Howe disposed of Miss Louise Waterman of Boston, in straight games while Mrs. Wightman eliminated Miss Ruth Hall, of Philadelphia, 15-9, 15-9, 15-16.

Mrs. Howe and Mrs. Wightman were slated to play the final round for the national title tomorrow on the Harvard club courts.

Mrs. Howe is one of the pioneer squash players of this section. She took up the game five years ago and her strokes appeared to be the best among the 64 women who started in the tournament last Monday.

Mrs. Wightman is a comparatively new-comer to the game but her wealth of tennis experience has stood her in good stead, having an excellent influence on her squash court strategy and stroke production.

NOVOTNY AND ARMSTRONG TO MEET IN BILOXI FINALS

BILOXI, Miss., Jan. 25—(AP)—Gus Novotny of La Grange, Ill., and Don Armstrong, of Aurora, Ill., won their semi-final rounds today in the annual Pan-American amateur championship golf tournament at Edgewater park to become the finalists tomorrow over a 36 hole route.

ACADEMY FALTERS IN LAST HALF TO LOSE TO ROCKVILLE QUINTET

Another two-point N. F. A. game was decided Friday night at the Y gym. This time the Academy lost, 15 to 13 to Rockville high. It was their third straight defeat and their fourth in six starts, also the first on their home floor. Previously, the Wildcats had shaded Pratt high of Essex and Bryant-Stratton Business college of Providence by two points at the local floor.

The Red and White led at the conclusion of the half last night, 7 to 3, mainly through a spurt in the closing moments. However, Rockville, sprinted in the third quarter and although the Academy tried hard in the final moments of the game they couldn't close the gap.

The game ended just after Cote, N. F. A. forward, had sunk a forward, leaving but a field goal of difference. A small crowd saw the contest.

The locals presented practically full strength and they made a good showing for the most part.

C. F. C. Win Close One

The C. F. C. vanquished the strong Stonington Iron Men, 24 to 22, in the other game. This was the local's fourth straight victory. They are undefeated. Brown led the scorers.

MALONEY WILL MEET CON O'KELLEY AT BOSTON

BOSTON, Jan. 25—(AP)—Jim Maloney, of Boston, today agreed to continue his fistic feud with Con O'Kelly, the Irish heavyweight, at the Boston garden on February 11. This pair met in New York several weeks ago, the result being a draw.

According to Eddie Mack, the garden's boxing promoter, the winner of this battle will fight either Max Schmelling, the German heavy, on February 15 or Jack Sharkey, provided the latter is successful in his Miami Beach engagement with Young Stribling on February 27. Mack claims he has Sharkey's promise to appear in the Boston Garden ring immediately after his Florida bout.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 25—(AP)—Irwin Wener, owner of the Philadelphia Arrows in the Canadian-American ice hockey league, today confirmed reports that he had made an offer for the Ottawa club in the National league.

Wener talked with the owners of the Ottawa franchise over long distance telephone, made an offer to buy the club and is awaiting their reply.

With two hockey teams in Philadelphia, games will be played twice a week, the Arrows continuing their Wednesday night games and the new club playing Saturday nights.

All Stars Lose to Rangers

Friday evening, another roller hockey game was witnessed at the Olympic Roller rink between the All Stars and the Rangers.

The Rangers scored many goals in the first half of the game, winning 8 to 5. There was much better team work and livelier playing in last night's game than in any game played in the past.

The All Stars have been challenged for a game Monday evening by the Unlucky Five

Lineup:

A. Stars		Rangers
Harry Cooke	1r	P. Yerts
John Savage	2r	C. Wilson

Shotten Wins Shoot

PINEHURST, N. C., Jan. 25—(AP)—B. E. Shotton, of Lakewood, Ohio, business manager of the Philadelphia National league baseball club, today won the feature shoot of the mid-winter target tournament here with a score of 96 out of a possible 100.

Four of the entrants tied for second place with 93 each and had to shoot again to decide places. The final result was: W. E. Beegs, New Britain, Conn., second; Frank Davis, Greenwood, Ohio, third; T. G. Cathan, Chagrin Falls, Ohio, fourth, and Karl Lamprecht, Carlington, Ohio, fifth.

Miller to Coach Backfield

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 25—(AP)—Don Miller, "Horseman of Notre Dame," notified Ohio State university officials today that he would accept the offer of backfield assistant to Head Coach Sam Willaman. His acceptance came shortly after word was received from Georgia Tech that Miller had been released from any "obligations of contract" at the southern school where he had served as backfield coach.

Windham vs. Manchester

This evening at the Willimantic armory Windham high clashes with the South Manchester high team. This game should prove interesting as both teams are playing good basketball this season.

BASKETBALL BRIEFS

The Y Seniors had better cart in a lot of lucky charms for their opener next week in the state Y championships. Not that the New London Whalers are any great team to be awed at but the Demarest men are in the throes of a four-game losing streak and drastic steps will be taken to break it. Coming as it does on the trail of a six-game winning spree, this sudden reversal of form is quite puzzling. It started with the "double-header" New Year's against the All-Hellers and All-Manchester fives. Since then the Yers bowed to the Sub Base, a team which they had no trouble at all with early in the campaign. There's something weird about this losing business, probably just a state of mind and the local mentor is doing everything to shake it out of his boys before the title games commence.

Naturally Chapman Tech has more followers this winter for its basketball team than it has had in sports for some time. Athletic teams at Tech have undergone such disastrous seasons lately that it is doubly pleasing to have a good team once in a whole.

Incidentally, much of the fuss being made over the Tech team is undeserved. Chapman has hardly beaten a good team this year, even with her record of eleven or twelve victories. Teams like Pratt, Deep River, Madison, etc., don't add anything to a record. Surely the victory over the Academy the other night was nothing to get excited about. When Chapman beats teams like Torrington, Warren Harding, Weaver, New Haven Commercial, Crosby, Central of Bridgeport and possibly Naugatuck, then we'll think they are great.

That the New London City league isn't a very fast organization was known for some time by Norwich fans. When their Y Seniors beat two teams from that loop very handily before they hit a slump Rose City followers were quite surprised but soon recovered. Norwich, in the C. F. C. and Y Seniors has just as good teams as any in the New London loop.

Meehan Signs Contract

NEW YORK, Jan. 25—(AP)—John F. (Chick) Meehan will be head football coach at New York university for at least three more years. Meehan has signed to continue in his present capacity through the season of 1931, it was announced tonight.

Meehan came to New York university in the fall of 1925 and that year the Violets lost only two games; one in 1926; one in 1927, and two in 1928.

Burgess Bedtime Story

The Terrible Shadow

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Pity those who dwell in fear;
Where danger always hovers near.
—Nibbler the Mouse.

These were dark days, as well as dark nights, in Farmer Brown's big barn. At least that is the way Nibbler the House Mouse and Mrs. Nibbler and all the other Nibblers felt about it. That is the way the Rat family felt about it. You see, there had been many mysterious disappearances. Not a day went by that one or more members of the Nibbler family and the family of Robber the Rat did not disappear. Once they had disappeared, they never came back. At first, Black Pussy had been blamed. But it was noticed that these disappearances kept right on when Black Pussy seldom came to the barn.

Then there began to be a story go around all through the barn. It was whispered in every Nibbler home. It was talked about in every Rat home. There wasn't a Rat or a Mouse who had not heard of the terrible shadow in the barn. A number of frightened Mice had seen it. It made no sound. It seemed to just float. But down from it would reach great claws and seize an unlucky Mouse or young Rat. It became spoken of as the terrible shadow with claws. Every day there were fewer Mice and fewer Rats and every day there was greater Fear in Farmer Brown's barn.

"The worst of it is, my dear, there is nowhere else to go," said Nibbler to Mrs. Nibbler, in that squeaky little voice of his. "If it were summertime,

"The worst of it is, my dear, there is nowhere else to go," said Nibbler to Mrs. Nibbler.

we might go somewhere else. It is of no use to go back to the house, for conditions are just as bad over there. So I don't see but that we must stay right here, in spite of that terrible shadow with claws. All we can do is to train the children to watch out for it. Oh dear, oh dear, I wish I knew just what it is!"

It was in the early evening of that very day that Nibbler the House Mouse started to cross from one side of the barn to the other on a big beam which made up part of the haymow. He was half way across when he peeped over the edge to look down. Just as he did so, that terrible shadow seemed to float right beneath him. Without a sound, it floated down down, and then suddenly dropped quickly. A minute later it had started up again. Up, up it came, while Nibbler remained motionless from sheer fright. Up, up it came, and stopped on a rafter just across from Nibbler. For the first time he had a good look at it. It was a Bird. It was Spooky the Screech Owl. Nibbler didn't recognize him, because you CUT HERE F egu know Nibbler had lived all his life either in Farmer Brown's house or Farmer Brown's barn, and so never had seen an Owl. But he knew he was a Bird, for he had wings and feathers. Somehow, it was a relief to find that it wasn't just a shadow.

Nibbler stared across at Spooky and all at once he became aware that Spooky's round, fierce eyes were fixed on him. Then Nibbler saw that in the claws of one foot Spooky was holding a half-grown Mouse. Poor Nibbler! He was too frightened to move. Probably that is what saved his life. Had he started to run, Spooky would have been over there in an instant. But because he remained motionless, Spooky didn't recognize him as a Mouse. And, being occupied with the one he had caught, he paid no further attention to poor Nibbler. After what seemed a very, very long time to Nibbler, there was a faint squeak under the hay in a corner of the barn. Instantly, Spooky turned his head that way. This was Nibbler's chance. He ran swiftly back the way he had come and darted down under the hay. By the time Spooky turned his head back, Nibbler was safely out of sight. Then how he did hurry home to tell the news! Before the night was over, everybody in the big barn knew that the terrible shadow was not a shadow at all but a member of the Owl family.

PHILA. GIANTS RALLY IN LAST HALF TO BEAT DANIELSON TOWNERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 25—Rallying in the second half the Philadelphia Colored Giants launched an attack that carried them to a 41 to 31 victory over the Danielson Town team here tonight before the largest crowd of the season.

Although beaten by one of the best teams in the east the Towners displayed a brand of basketball that marks them as one of the top-notch clubs of New England.

Opening the game with a rush the Danielson team drew first blood on Gaines's field goal and held their slim advantage until nearly the end of the first half when the visitors swung into the lead. The half came to a close with the Giants holding a four-point advantage, 16 to 11, over the home team. Coming back refreshed after the intermission the Danielson boys started a furious attack that brought them nearly to even terms with the Giants. Sensing that Danielson was getting dangerous the Giants got right down to serious business and that seemed the end of what had been a close basketball game. The attack of the visitors in the closing minutes of play was a brilliant exhibition of basketball that has seldom been seen on the local court.

The Danielson team, man for man, played exceptionally brilliant basketball, with Gallup, former Worcester Tech star, outstripping his teammates in scoring. Williams by holding the gigantic Cooper to 5 points while scoring four himself demonstrated that he is quite some basketballer. Poirier also played well. The summary:

Several officers of the grand encampment and the grand lodge of Connecticut were present when Palmyra encampment, No. 3, I. O. O. F., entertained Orient encampment, No. 4, I. O. O. F., New London and Mystic encampment, No. 17, I. O. O. F., Mystic, at a district meeting Thursday evening at Odd Fellows' hall, Main street. This is one of a series of meetings being held between the three encampments and is proving to be very popular among the members, as was evidenced by the attendance of more than 100.

The distinguished guests present included: Officers of the grand encampment of Connecticut, I. O. O. F.—Grand Patriarch Edward A. Birdsey of Meriden, Grand Outside Sentinel Burtis H. Dunbar of New London, District Deputy Grand Patriarch Edward F. Walsh of New London and Past Grand Representative Stephen J. Austin of Mystic and District Deputy Grand Master Jesse B. Stinson of the grand lodge of Connecticut of Mystic.

The business session was called to order at 8:30 o'clock by Chief Patriarch William Hopkins of the local encampment and business of a routine nature was quickly dispensed with, after which the Golden Rule degree was conferred upon a class of candidates. The degree work was in charge of Grand Outside Sentinel Burtis H. Dunbar and his staff of Orient encampment of New London and was performed in a very efficient manner.

Announcement was made at the meeting that the local encampment will work the Royal Purple degree in Mystic on Feb. 8, with Degree Master Leslie Fowler and staff in charge. It was also announced that Midian encampment of Hartford would go to the Whaling City on Feb. 19 to confer the Golden Rule degree upon a class of candidates of New London encampment. These meetings are to be preceded by suppers and all patriarchs are expected to be present.

Preceding the meeting a delicious supper was served at 7:30 o'clock by members of Rebekah lodge, No. 21, I. O. O. F., the menu being as follows: Roast pork, mashed potatoes, mashed turnips, cranberry sauce, dressing, rolls, coffee, pie and cigars. IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

An interesting record of heavy storms in Connecticut was published in the files of The Norwich Morning Bulletin of fifty years ago. The worst storm occurred in February, 1717, when the snow fell to a depth of ten feet on the level. During the week the death of a prominent Norwich man, Judge Alfred Coit, occurred following a short illness.

Other articles of interest taken from the files of that week in 1879 are in part as follows:

Monday, Jan. 20, 1879—Judge Alfred Coit died on Friday night between 10 and 11 o'clock. His illness was short but severe and although hopes were entertained of his recovery on Friday, he sank rapidly in the evening and passed away quietly at the time named. Judge Coit was a son of the late Robert Coit and had long occupied a prominent position in the community. He was born in this city 43 years ago, was graduated from Yale in the class of 1856 and had been actively engaged in the practice of his profession until he was stricken with the illness, which proved fatal.

Rev. R. P. Stanton of the Greeneville Congregational church, yesterday, surprised his congregation by resigning his pastorate of 23 years continuance, to take effect April 1. Mr. Stanton has preached in the 23 years more than 2,200 sermons, officiated at 371 funerals and joined 203 couples in marriage.

The Rev. L. W. Bacon will be installed pastor of the Park church Wednesday evening of this week, if the council, which meets at 11 a. m., so advises. The council will be composed of representatives from the Broadway, Second, Greeneville, Taftville and Norwich Town Congregational churches, and the First and Second of New London, the First church of New Haven and the church in Colchester.

Tuesday, Jan. 21, 1879—The Rev. Henry B. Jefferson, late a Presbyterian minister of Darien, Conn., and ordained by Bishop Williams in December, last, has acepted an invitation frocm Grace church, Yantic, and enters upon his clerical duties immediately.

The following record of heavy storms in Connecticut is of interest. On Dec. 26, 1873, the snow fell 22 inches deep on the level; also Jan. 9, 1857, 24 inches deep. Jan. 15, 16 and 17, 1816, a terrible storm occurred, the snow falling four feet deep on the level. In Feb. 1717, occurred the greatest snow storm ever known, the snow falling ten feet deep on the level.

The carnival of sleigh riding continued on upper Broadway and Washington street, yesterday afternoon.

The remains of Capt. Caleb B. Champlin of Montville, who died on Jan. 17, were buried from his late residence at 12:30 yesterday afternoon. The burial services were by the Oxoboxo lodge of Masons. Burial was in Yantic cemetery and the street procession was increased by a delegation of Somerset lodge of Norwich.

Wednesday, Jan. 22, 1879—Mr. C. M. Dyer, brother of Charles E. Dyer of this city, whose fast horse "Copake" has been showing some remarkably good time on the trotting thoroughfares of Worcester lately, is still in the lead.

The dedication of the Brewsters Neck chapel takes place at 1 o'clock today. The Rev. John Davies preaches the sermon. Rev. Charles Cutting will preach at the evening service at 6:30.

C. M. H. Curley, a well known and popular employe of the New London Northern railroad, is to be married to a young lady of Worcester, this evening.

Arrangements are nearly complete for the grand ball of Palmyra Encampment which is to be Thursday evening, the 30th inst.

Thursday, Jan. 23, 1879—The several societies connected with St. Mary's parish gave their grand annual concert and ball at Breed hall last evening, which was one of the most successful ever given by these societies.

The full orchestra of the Philharmonic society will furnish the music for the concert to be given by Powers Jubilee Singers, for the benefit of the Provident association, at Breed hall, Monday evening, Jan. 27.

Clarence C. Frost begins a series of gospel meetings at the Central Baptist church tonight.

The Rev. R. H. Maine of North Stonington will close his four years' pastorate over the Baptist church at Robertsville, April 1.

Friday, Jan. 24, 1879—"Len" Leach, the engineer of the locomotive "New London," who was injured the other day by the escaping steam, after the boiler had been perforated by the broken connecting rod, was very comfortable yesterday and will soon be able to get out again.

Officer John Sullivan of this city went to New London yesterday and, was made best man at the wedding of Mr. T. T. Sugrue and Miss Katie Cody at St. Mary's church.

"Eggs is eggs," according to reports of marketmen and are very scarce at 35 cents per dozen.

Clarence Frost began his labors with the Central Baptist church last evening and was greeted by a good audience.

Saturday, Jan. 25, 1879—The Worcester Gazette contains a half column of names of persons who have been fined for not clearing the snow from their sidewalks.

On Monday Hon. John T. Wait introduced in the house a bill authorizing the Windham National bank to change its location from Windham Center to the village of Willimantic, in the same town.

The Greeneville Reform club gave an entertainment in their hall on Monday evening, consisting of a play entitled, "Rachel's Vow" and the farce, "Turn Him Out." Both were well rendered.

At a meeting of the Greeneville Congregational church held on Thursday evening a vote was passed requesting the pastor, the Rev. R. P. Stanton, to withdraw his resignation.

GOOD AND QUICKLY SELDOM MEET.

ENJOYS EVELYN BURR'S LETTERS

Dear Corner Friends: Our meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was very pleasantly and ably conducted by Mme Marie, Lou Bell, Nighthawk, Oswah, A. M., Old Gold and Fairview. A very appetizing dinner was served consisting of cold meats, salad, beans, relishes, a variety of pies and cake, with fruit. The entertainment of the afternoon was the exchange of gifts, drawn by number, from a well filled box, which we children of an older growth seemed to enjoy. We had as guests from Club 5 May State and Windham Bell.

Sorry the injury to Marigold by her fall resulted in a stay in the hospital for a few weeks.

Recently was so glad to see a letter from Miranda, who has been in the hospital for many, many weeks. She is a marvelous example of sweet patience and cheerfulness and we rejoice with her that the time is approaching when she can go home to her family.

I do so enjoy your letters, Evelyn Burr, they are so fresh from the literary researches you make, and had I easy access of the library, would be guided by your interesting criticism of the volumes you have perused.

Hope the sick and discouraged will be sustained by an unfaltering hope and trust for better things.

Alfora is our next hostess and she always outdoes herself for a good dinner. It is also donation day—the day we bring something to add to the comfort and larder of the welfare bureau and Salvation Army.

PET HOBBY IS SCRIBBLING

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: Someone has asked the members to write about their "pet hobby." As for myself, I always loved to be scribbling, and I hardly think there is a person living that has done any more of it than I have. I thought I wouldn't write a letter for the Corner this time, but as a subject is called for I can only say that reading and writing and cutting up papers and keeping clippings is one of my chief delights. I love to send something in my letters to my friends, something that I think they would enjoy. I made 12 scrap books one winter and could make as many more if I had the patience to do it. Hence my "pet hobby" is scribbling. I love to receive leetters and love to answer them; it is real company for me; especially when I am away from my house by the side of the road.

Let us begin now before we have traveled far on the journey of the years and learn a lesson from the postage stamp. It is a little thing. Its virtue is not in its size, but in its ability to stick to one thing until it gets there.

ANN TENNA.

CARING FOR CIVIL WAR VET

Dear Editor and all of the Friends: Some New Year we started in with. Hope it will soon be better. I did not write for I am caring for a dear old soldier boy of '61. He is far into his '80's, but he is not very well. It seems so hard for them. Once they were such strong, big, broad-shouldered young men. Now they are old, broken-down men. It was something just awful to go to the front to be a target for the rebels to fire at, but God spared some to come home, some with one leg or arm gone, maimed for life. They have fought two battles, one in war and then the battle of life after they came home. It must have been awful to stand before the cannon's mouth and see a ball coming toward them. They did not know who would be left, and yet there are so few that realize what they had to endure down there, and they don't have enough patience and sympathy for the dear old soldier boys because they are old and nervous. Well, I guess we would be if we went through what they did —hungry, tired, marching through mud and clay and mire. I pray God take care of them all and when the battle of life is over they will camp in God's big camping ground of heaven. May God bless them all and watch over them while life lasts for them. There are so few left to tell us of the hard days of the south.

Many thanks for the pretty calendar. It is so nice.

L. T. H.: Hope you are fine and I hope Violet is much better.

Rural Aunty: I suppose you are at the rug and patchwork this cold winter.

Agile: Hope you are well.

Pippins: Hope hubby is much better.

Providence Rose and Icavilla: Lands sake! Where are you? I hope Mr. Rose hasn't put you both on a cake of ice.

Aries: Will write you soon. Hope your arm is better.

Wishing all friends good luck.

PREVENTED FROM WRITING

Dear Social Corner Friends: After a long silence I will now send a few lines to the page. Had not lost interest in the Corner, but have been ill; am feeling much better now, and hope soon to get out of doors each day.

Many thanks to Social Corner Member for my pretty calendar. I do appreciate the kindness and thought which prompts the sending of these little calendars each year, and should be disappointed if I didn't receive one; at the same time know I do not deserve one, for I can't write often to the dear old Social Corner page.

I can't explain my feeling of sadness when I read of the passing of our Kitty Lou. Had not known she was ill, so it was a shock and surprise to me. So many of the writers have mentioned in their letters how much they enjoyed her letters and wished they had told her so when they had the chance. Now, dear sisters and brothers, let it be a lesson to us; "If we appreciate what someone is doing, not to delay but to tell that person how much we enjoy his or her efforts. I do not think we, any of us, express our appreciation half enough at any time. Now I have often wondered if Kitty Lou used more than one name in the Social Corner. I would dearly like to know the other names she used (if any). I had thought that Kitty Lou and Ethelyn were "one and the same," but have learned my mistake now. Calla Lily is another one of our faithful, hard-working sisters, and so long as she is with us the Social Corner will not fail. I do wish the sister who wrote about having a photo of Kitty Lou would tell all of us where and how we could get one. I would like very much to have one (if they are not too expensive). I have one of the little dolls made of felt which Kitty Lou sent to me some months ago. I value it so much; shall always keep it. Am so thankful now that I wrote to her and thanked her at the time.

Lady Slipper: Saw your mention of me in your letter some weeks ago. Have you made any tatting yet? I am making some for a "hankie" which I received Christmas, but it's so long since I made any, my rings do not look very nice. Then the thread seems to break easily. Guess it's "shopworn."

L. T. H.: Did you ever hear from B. P. or B. P. (in Mass.)? Have often wondered if your letter reached them.

For a long time I have been looking forward to the meeting in Moosup of Club No. 4 and had decided that I would go when the time came, but here I am, shut up in the house, only a few miles away. Ah well, our life is full of such disappointments, and all we can do is "grin and bear it," and hope for better luck next time.

My heartfelt sympathy to all in trouble and bereavement and to the ill and shut-ins, and best wishes to all.

AUNT SUSIE.

ANSWERS AND INQUIRIES

LEE: Your name has been added to the Social Corner list.

SIS HOPKINS: Many thanks.

CHICKENS: Your name has been added to the Social Corner list.

MODERN DRESS AND SMOKING

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: Many thanks for a dainty and pretty little calendar which I have received and much appreciate.

Am glad to see more letters on the Corner page the last two weeks. I have heard some of our sisters say they do not write as they have no subject or any ideas to contribute. At our social gatherings there seems always plenty of topics for conversation, probably due to suggestions, one from the other. If that works well, why not try it with the pen? At any rate, I would like to raise a question that should appeal to every woman regardless of age, married or single. At the present time there are many comments in general, concerning feminine attire. We will admit short skirts are an improvement for neatness, more sanitary and less dangerous against accidents, than the former long skirts that nearly touched the ground. The majority of young women favor extremely short lengths which appear as unreasonable and mean a lack of modesty to many others. However, as time brings its many changes in style of dress, fashions and customs, which is perfectly all right to a certain limit, yet why should refinement and self-respect be disregarded? It has become quite popular, most especially among young women, to smoke cigarettes at their various places of amusements and in their homes. Probably in due time it will be as common on the streets to see girls and some women, with cigars and pipes projecting from the mouth, in equal numbers with boys and men. I would like the opinion of some of our sister writers as to whether they think it is no different for women to smoke than for men. If this attitude is upheld, then where do we find refinement, culture, modesty, self-esteem and personal respect? Or have these words and definitions been erased from our common dictionary? What are the requirements of a woman that is called "a real lady"? Would the cigarette smoking improve her character or would she simply be unpopular?

I have in mind a young married woman who is the mother of three little girls and an infant son. It is her frequent habit to smoke the cigarette, while her husband puffs the pipe, in the presence of their children, which is a part of influence and example in this particular home life. Everybody to their notion (as the old lady said when she kissed the cow) but to my notion I believe girls and women of any age had better stop or not begin, to be out of place. Equal rights, concerning business affairs, and at the ballot box and some other things, are justified, but feminine smoking appeals to me beyond the limit.

I will venture to ask Eveline Burr, Aries, Ann Tenna, Cretia, Red Rose, Primrose, Aunty No. 1, Conawah, Olga, Crimson Rambler, Theoda and Wiltewyck if they will please express an opinion on this subject. Also be glad to hear from any or all others.

Best wishes for the good of the Corner. JENNIE (Club No. 1).

CLUB No. 6 HAS MEETING.

Dear Editor and Sisters: Again the ground is bare, for which I am thankful. It doesn't look so good for the icemen though, but I was reading in the Post that it was a week later than this last year when we had several days of very cold weather. I will be very glad when it is all over and the ground settled.

I want to thank a Social Corner member for my calendar. It is very pretty and I am very grateful for it.

Club No. 6 met in Mechanics hall with Tish as hostess. Because of the bad storm not so many came but we had a very nice time nevertheless. The sun came out and it was not so bad when we went home. Some who were to take part in the program were unable to be there but perhaps they will do their stunt some other time. We are very glad to know that Connie has sworn off smoking but it does seem hard when there are so many things to tempt one from keeping a resolution. Here's hoping the temptation of elevators don't get the best of Tish.

Brown Eyes: Never mind, it won't be long now before spring is here and you can get out again. I have one youngster in bed with a grippe cold and am hoping and "spraying" the rest don't get it. I don't expect any such good luck though.

Ravena: I was out, too, helping the twins slide down hill. I didn't slide though, just pushed them to get them started. They were out today (Saturday) and one had the other down in the softest mud in the whole yard. You can imagine the result.

Lady Di and Idaleane: I hope you didn't have long to wait. Come again and remember eight o'clock, whether or no.

Beers: I meant to have talked with you, but you know how it is. I'm such a busy woman. Shook hands with Mr. Beers any way.

Winter Robin: The only thing the matter with the shepherd dog is, you don't feed him enough. If you could only get some meat on him.

Necia: You have my sympathy.

Green Hill: Why make the grippe a family affair? Hope you are all on the mend by this time.

I believe this is my response to the roll call so—Happy New Year, everyone.

SUMAC.

CHICKENS JOINS CORNER.

Dear Editor and Social Cornerites: Would like to join your corner very much. Have friends in club No. 6 and have been asked by them to join. They tell me they have wonderful times. I enjoy the Corner every week and will try and send in something helpful later. As chickens are my main care I'll take "Chickens" for my pen name, that is if you let me be one of your big circle.

CHICKENS.

WINTER PLEASURES OF LONG AGO

Mr. Editor and Social Corner Readers: As I sat looking from my windows during the snow storms of last week, watching the fast falling flakes of fine snow, with the wind in the right direction, and the temperature to a degree that ordinarily meant a heavy fall, I wondered if we were to have a real old-fashioned snow storm that meant the turning out of the neighborhood with shovels, oxen and sleds, to break paths where the drifts were on the level with walls and fences.

In fact, I almost wished we might, so that the young people of today might realize the pleasures and enjoyment of what we young old fellows experienced in winters long passed but not forgotten, and have the old sleighs of various type and character again brought from the hay loft, or from some out of the way corner where they had been stored as souvenirs of the past, to be brushed and cleaned from dust and cobwebs, the accumulation of many years, and brought into use for the balance of the winter.

Then they could listen to the cheerful and pleasing sound of those bells of the graduated type, both in tone and size, as large as a big Baldwin apple down to that of a large marble.

Such bells were fastened to a strap and buckled round old dobbin's neck or underneath the belly, reaching from thill to thill. Then we had the long string of smaller bells, going completely around the horse; also the open mouthed bells like a small tea bell, attached to the thills, but those that were most pleasing and tuneful were those of graded size and sound. O, but how they would enthuse you as you heard them on a sleighing party of a dozen or more sleighs, with as many couples of jolly young people, on their way to some ball, kitchen dance, or for a supper at, perhaps, Hampton hill, or Ed Jenks' hotel at Canterbury Green, Billings' hotel at Scotland, Bennett's Baltic house at Baltic. Often did the Windham hotel at the center receive the merry party.

Even Edgar A. Poe went into ecstasy as he wrote that most rythmical poem "The Bells." His first thought was of the sleigh and the bells. He says:

"Hear the sledges with the bells—
Silver bells,
What a world of merriment their melody foretells;
How they tinkle, tinkle, tinkle
In the icy air of night
While the stars that oversprinkle
All the heavens, seem to twinkle
With crystalline delight."

With the music of the bells, what could be more delightful than to be in a H. M. T. (hug me tight) sleigh, snuggled up beside one of your best girls, made warm and comfortable with blanket and buffalo robe? Sometimes a tip-over was the result of driving with one hand, leaving the horse to tread as best he knew the straight and narrow path, mid drifts, and paths poorly made.

On one occasion my best girl experienced her first tip-over. She had just remarked: "Isn't it strange, that with all my sleigh rides, I never yet got tipped out?"

We hadn't gone but a few rods when the horse veered from the footpath, and ever we went. We soon had the sleigh on an even keel, the snow brushed and shaken from our clothing, the blanket and robe properly placed; then again on the way.

Passing along on a gentle jog but a few rods when the H. M. T. sleigh went over again. Getting all things righted, we made another start, but before going half a mile the sleigh was again on its "beam end," and we were floundering in the soft deep snow. While I was righting the sleigh, she was brushing the snow from her stockings (not of the gauzy silk variety) and from her skirts, not of the greatly abbreviated style of today, but long, comfortable and warm, that made a woman look womanly. In those days they were not bidding for cot in the hospital, or the attendance of a physician for weeks and months. As we were well seated and robes adjusted, she made this unkind suggestion: "Isn't this tip-over business getting rather monotonous?" (Some people are fussy!). I agreed with her and soon we were driving up in front of Billings' hotel at Scotland, where we tripped the light fantastic toe to the music and prompting of "All ready, Mr. Cady," accompanied by Herbert, Leander and Answorth. As the antique horologe in the office told the hour of midnight the horse and sleigh were at the door and we were soon on our way, with no more immersions in the snow, to the home of my companion. Bidding her a happy good night; only this—let me think—was there nothing more? In a short time I was home and soon in the land of dreams.

Those were happy days, and though more than 60 years have passed, they linger in pleasant memory. I think "Dad" Shaw can testify to those days of pleasure and could give The Bulletin readers reminiscences of those good old days.

QUID NUNC.

BEST WISHES FOR CORNERITES.

Dear Social Cornerites: Greetings to you all for a healthy, happy and prosperous year to come. Health being the most important of the three is given first place, for if one had good health, happiness and prosperity are more easily acquired.

The Corner page has been very interesting lately and I have been pleased to see some pen names of the older members. I used to enjoy Potlatch's letters but haven't seen any from her lately. In one of letters several years ago she mentioned windmills and I was tempted to write and ask her about their use for power. I have enjoyed Quid Nunc's letters too.

Winter Robin's letter about pet hobbies reminded me of a friend who made a collection of ribbons, and she certainly had some of the most beautiful patterns in silk and satin ribbons that I ever saw.

Golden Glow. Why don't you send in a few lines to the Corner? You haven't guessed who I am but when I tell you that you and I have a date to make a visit up in Lisbon you will know. I am going to get a driver's license this spring and after our spring rush is over I am coming out after you some day and we will try that new road.

My sympathy to all who are in sorrow. These partings are very hard even though we know our loved ones have entered a happier life beyond.

McDUFF.

GREETINGS FROM COMMUTER.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Each week I look eagerly forward to the coming of The Bulletin that I may read all the good letters from the Corner members for although I have moved so far away I cannot attend your meetings, still I count myself a member of Club No. 6. I cannot tell you all that it cost me to leave my church and all its activities, the W. C. T. U., the grange and so many other things I was interested in, also the Social Corner, where I always felt at home and met so many fine women. But life is full of disappointments and we must do what we feel is for the best and trust that everything will turn out right in the end.

First I want to thank Idaleane, E. L. M., Dew Drop, Amaryllis and others for the lovely Christmas cards they sent me, also L. C. though I do not know your pen name. It just warmed my heart to know you had not forgotten me.

We have had a lovely fall and winter so far here in New York state; no snow to speak of, not even a white Christmas.

The last day of December we had a lovely ride, 60 miles back over the Cherry Valley turnpike to visit a brother. It was a very mild, lovely day and it seemed good to be headed back toward home if only for a day. Last summer we had some nice rides. One day we went through the Indian reservation near Syracuse. As it was Sunday afternoon we had a chance to see many of the inhabitants.

E. L. M.: How I would love to see your new home. I know you must enjoy it. If nothing prevents, we hope to say "hello" to you next summer.

Milky Way and Sumac: Am always interested in your letters.

Connie: We didn't get to see each other, did we? But I think of you just the same.

May Bug: I find I do know your name after all. Thanks so much for the card. When you write your sister please send my love.

With best wishes to all the Corner friends for a happy prosperous year and good health which is best of all.

COMMUTER.

A STITCH IN TIME.

Dear Social Corner Sisters: No doubt you have all heard the old adage, a stitch in time saves nine. Now my latest idea saves thousands of nines. When you discover a run in your stocking, just thread your machine with thread (not silk), the same shade as the stocking, and be sure to insert the needle where the run begins so as to catch the little loop. Now stitch up and down until space is closed. You will find it difficult to find the defect at all. They will last a long time, save patience and will be easy on the purse.

I wish to thank the mysterious sender for the dainty little calendar. They must have have had an insight that I was fond of pink roses climbing over the door. We certainly had a fine time at our last meeting. Each club was represented except Club 3. Ale had an abundance of food and such delicious cakes as were brought by Sisters Anastasia, Hoot Owl, Maple Leaf and Shornie. Thanks to all who helped me.

Joan: We all missed you. Try and come next time.

Vira: I have an idea you were at your daughter's.

As we are all trying to do our bit let us begin now, before we have traveled far on the journey of the year to cultivate stick-to-it-iveness. Learn a lesson from the postage stamp. It is a little thing. It's virtue is not in its size, but in its ability to stick to one thing until it gets there. So Sisters, let's try it out and make a success of the Social Corner for 1929.

TRUE BLUE.

GROUNDHOG OUT ALL WINTER.

Dear Social Corner Members and Editor: Just to say am not in slackers' row, will try and answer roll call.

Only think, week from Saturday is groundhog day and we will see if it's early or late spring. But to speak in fact he has been out all winter so far as there not been snow enough to keep him in. So how about it in that case?

I had it all planned to take in Club No. 4's meeting in Moosup but it was so bad when I was due to leave I gave it up. I had a very nice time at Club 2 at the Buckingham.

Caro: I agree with you about cats. I have two of the most knowing I ever saw and mind when you speak to them same as a dog. You let a stranger come to my door and the old cat will jump and try to bite them when I am alone.

Red Robin: I surely did have a good time at your meeting. Will try to come again, being near now.

Buffalo: Where are you, why so still? Have not forgotten you.

Best wishes to all.

MORE EPITAPHS

Dear Social Corner: I am interested with the other sisters to keep up an interest in the Corner. I laid my pen aside for a time to make room for others with more talent. Now for some reason there seems to be a call for more frequent letters. Although we have had below zero weather and snow, I have tulips and self-sown seed coming up on the south side of the house and a vase of forsythia on my dining room table. I picked the branches some weeks ago, put them in water, where they have bloomed out, and are still very fresh looking.

In the Union cemetery in the town of North Stonington the following epitaph may be seen:

Pause, stranger, pause as you pass by,
As you are now, so once was I:
As I am now, you soon will be,
Prepare in death to follow me.

And still another:
He is not a fool, but wise,
He is not dead, but sleepeth.

I know we all made good resolves at the beginning of the New Year. Hope we may be able to carry them out.

ORIOLE (Club No. 6).

GOOD TIME DESPITE WEATHER.

Dead Editor and Social Corner Sisters: First I want to thank all those who helped with the dinner or in any other way at the meeting of Club No. 6 on Jan. 15th. It certainly was a bad day but a few brave spirits came out and we had a good day inside even if the snow did fall outside. Some of those on the program couldn't come so some others filled in, and ending up with the Virginia reel we had to be satisfied. I, too, received one of the little calendars and want to thank whoever it is who sends them. Mine is a little cat and looks just as though he is laughing. It is a very cute picture.

I was sorry to have such a bad day on Tuesday but the weather man does just what he likes, so I couldn't order anything different.

Also sorry not to see E. L. M., Skipper and some of those over that way.

TISH.

LOOKING AHEAD

Dear Sisters of the Social Corner: We are told in the good book that weeping may endure for a night but joy cometh in the morning. We are now in the morning of the new year. Let us look forward with hope and a smiling countenance to what it may bring us. A few proverbs for our consideration may not come amiss.

Smiles lighten the pathway of life.
Order is heaven's first law.
Constant complaints never get pity.
In the time of mirth take heed.
All doors open to courtesy.
Let bygones be bygones.

Consideration is half conversion.
One on God's side is a majority.
Rashness and haste make all things insecure.
Not failure but low aim is crime.
Every maybe hath a maybe not.
Remember, your failures are your stepping stones to success.

SMILING MARY.

PRETTY WORK WITH NEEDLE AND THREAD

Dear Editor and Corner Sisters: Will answer roll call for 1929, if I am not too late.

Attended the meeting of Club No. 6 on Tuesday, Jan. 15. It was such a bad day we only had 35 present. Tish and her helpers gave us a splendid dinner.

After dinner we were given a nice entertainment. Several who were to have taken part were kept at home by the storm, which made our program shorter than usual. So we had a Virginia reel, which I, for one, thoroughly enjoyed.

Laurette: Thanks. Certainly shall, in future. Like to be able to lay dignity aside with anyone I know well.

Ravena: Hope you can steer better than I when you slide down hill. I always fall off before I reached the bottom.

Mary M.: Polish up your "specs" and look real hard. Maybe you can see my name this time.

E. L. M.: What happened to you and the beans? We looked for you on the next bus.

Just a hint or two: When making pancakes, add a tablespoon of melted shortening to your batter the last thing before frying. No greasing of pan is necessary, which makes less spattering and smoke. I use about a tablespoon of shortening to a pint of flour.

I cut off the tops of combinations, sew together flap at bottom, make a run in top into which I run a narrow elastic, and have a perfectly good pair of step-ins.

Having on hand a quantity of colored felt and several balls of sanskil I used them to make needle cases for Christmas presents. The cases are cut to resemble dolls. They look like little maids in full skirts and poke bonnets. I cut two of each color and the skirt part, slightly smaller, and pinked on the loder edge, in white felt, for inner part, to hold needles. Take a piece of lace about six inches long, gather and draw up into a circle. Fasten on doll, about where arms are supposed to be. Fill in center with French knots of different colors. This resembles an old-fashioned nosegay. Work a row of French knots around the front of bonnet. Tack a long, narrow strip of the felt to the back of the bonnet for strings. Fasten the pieces of white to inner side of doll. Then add other half, by catching to front, at front, back and top of head. Run several needles through the inner piece. I made about two dozen of these, of different colors, and they looked so pretty and dainty. I made little rhymes to go with them, a different rhyme for each color. Will be glad to give pattern and rhymes to anyone who wishes them.

I also had several balls of No. 50 and 60 crochet thread on hand. From this I made several gifts of lace. I chose a pretty design that made up quickly. Some I made for pillow slips, sending two strips of 45 inches each. To others I sent four strips of 18 inches. I covered cardboard in red tissue paper and wound the lace over this.

Best wishes to all for a happy and prosperous New Year is the wish of AMERICAN GIRL (Club No. 6).

SENDS USEFUL HINTS

Dear Social Corner Editor and S. C. Sisters: With the ground all covered with snow we realize winter is here. And I feel sure that there will be less sickness everywhere, let us hope so, anyway.

Here are a few Home Hints:

Brooms and all sweeping brushes should be hung up when not in use; if left standing on their bristles, they get bent, and will not do their work properly.

Starched linen should be soaked in cold water so that the old starch is softened and removed in washing more easily.

If a mustard poultice or plaster is mixed with vinegar instead of water all risk of a chill is avoided. If mixed with the white of an egg it will not blister the tenderest skin.

A drop or two of paraffin added to boot polish will help to shine boots or shoes that have been soaked on a wet day.

A fireproof cement to close cracks in furnaces is made of 75 parts of wet clay, 3 parts black oxide of manganese, 3 parts white sand and one part powdered asbestos.

A little cream of tartar or vinegar improves boiled frosting. It will be more creamy and will not grain or harden.

Hair combs should be cleaned by pushing a piece of stiff paper or cardboard between each tooth, then scrubbed with a nail brush in soapy water and a little ammonia and rinsed in hot, and then cold water.

The bristles of hair brushes that have become soft through repeated washing may be stiffened again by dipping them in a strong solution of alum and then drying them quickly.

To prevent cake from becoming stale put a thick slice of bread in the tin and renew every third day.

Vaseline or olive oil rubbed into patent leather shoes, when not in use, prevents cracking.

To wash all kinds of window drapes put them to soak in plain cold water over night if possible then make up a hot suds of Lux and after a slight rubbing they will be ready for rinsing in plain hot water, then bluing water.

When a splinter has been driven into the hand it can be extracted by steam by the following process: Fill a wide-mouthed bottle nearly full of hot water, place the injured part over the mouth of bottle and press slightly. That will draw the flesh down and in a short while the steam will extract the splinter, also relieve the inflamation.

To banish mice, put camphor into the places they frequent. Holes should be stopped with putty in which mustard and red pepper has been mixed.

Hope that all those in trouble and all the sick are more comfortable. My family has just recovered from an attack of this winter's bad colds and hope to keep from them for the rest of the season. Will close with best wishes to all.

ECLIPSE

GREETINGS FROM E. L. M.

Dear Social Corner Members: I want to thank the one who again sent me a calendar to take the place of the potted plant calendar they sent last year. Someone is very thoughtful.

Winter Robin: I was glad to read about your dogs. I have two and they have wonderful times together. One is four and a half and the other one year old. I can't say as you do that I'm never lonesome, and the strange part of it is that it's on nice pleasant days I am but never on dark or stormy days.

Joan: Was glad to see a letter from you the other week, also one from Golden Glow.

Friendly Voice: You write such nice letters, why don't you write more often?

O'ra: Well, I did not get to the meeting Tuesday. It is the first one I have missed since our club started. Mr. E. L. M. was sick during the night and in the morning went down to the doctor's, but I talked with Y. Y. and we were to meet at the 1 o'clock bus. I had my dishes packed and beans ready to take out of oven and then it seemed best that I stay home, so I didn't know what to do about the beans, don't feel when I am to furnish a main dish I must get it there. As a last resort I called up Tish and told her if I did not get there to buy canned beans enough to make up, so that settled that. Then tried to call up I. Y. and the telephone was out of order. She went to the bus and as the bus was ahead of time she thought I had missed it. She tells me they had a splendid time and lovely dinner.

Tish: Will see you soon and pay my bill. Wish I could have heard your part on the program. Heard you were fine.

Connie: I did so want to see you perform.

Hope the weatherman gives us good weather for our meeting next month, as that is to be at Stonington.

Crimson Rambler: I make lard as you do. We had a pig butchered last week that weighed over 400 pounds, so have been busy. The poem about the old sampler was good. I am having one framed that my mother made when a little girl.

Bricktop: I was glad to read about the Red Apple building, as I had never heard of it.

A card from B Natural tells me she is having a wonderful time in Florida. After a delightful trip down.

Maze: Welcome to the Corner. Now you are a Corner member you won't feel so much out in the wilderness.

In this day and age it seems good to find someone who appreciates having something given them that is not new. Once was a time many a pretty dress and undies for children were made-overs, but that is like the song "and that was long, long ago." Nowadays many feel insulted if they are given anything to make over, even though it be better material than they could afford to buy. Here is a hint I hope will help someone: I had some pillow slips to embroider. The ends were stamped to hemstitch. I did not care to have it done, so I experimented in trying to remove the stamping. I could not boil them, as I did not want to remove the design. I dampened it, then rubbed on bars soap and after a few minutes rubbed hard between the hands and soon had it all out. Some places had to be done over more than once. It might not take out all kinds, as there are different things used for stamping, but that is once it worked.

Rebecca: Wish you had been down the other day to have dinner with us. We had pig's liver and it didn't have to be ground. Ha! ha! Have you had any more?

Milky Ways: Tell G— first thing he knows he'll get an eyefull.

E. L. M.

HOW I SELECTED MY NAME

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: This is the first time I have written since joining the Corner.

I have been a long time getting courage enough, but I certainly enjoy reading the sisters' letters; they are so interesting.

I took my pen name from one of my cats.

I want to write you their history. I received two cats when they were youngsters.

We decided to name them Buddy and Buster. They are about five years old now. Buster still lives at home, but Buddy when half grown grew tired of home life and set out to seek his fortune. He made a success when he came to a dump, as my boy says.

Sometimes when he is near and you set some milk out on the piazza and call him, he comes, but you must go away before he drinks. I wish I could tame him again, but I know it is useless.

Canterbury Bell: We missed you at the last meeting. Someone said you were sick. Hope you are better by now.

Maze: If I had a car I surely would come out in the wilderness to see you. I just love the country.

Old Glory: Where are you? We miss you. Come to our next meeting. I wish to thank all sisters for the lovely cards sent me.

Wish the editor and members a very pleasant and successful new year.

Sympathy to all the sick ones.

BUDDY (Club No. 2).

LEE JOINS THE CORNER

Social Corner Editor: Would like to become a member of the Corner. Have attended several meetings in a number of towns and enjoyed each one very much. Every one is so jolly and sociable. I met old friends that I hadn't seen in a dozen years, and it was a pleasure to talk with them of old times.

Columbia: Many thanks for the card sent at Christmas. Am expecting to be in Moosup Wednesday and am wondering if you will be there.

Harry E.: Haven't seen your name signed to a letter lately.

Nellie Gray: Am going to walk over some day and hear about that Boston trip. Trixie and I had a long walk today. Visited Belle H. Can you guess?

Dece: Wonder if I have remembered your name?

Butterfly: Sorry you couldn't be with us last Friday night. Hope your eye is better.

Will sign off, as this letter is becoming too lengthy for a starter.

Would like to be known as LEE.

STARTING THE NEW YEAR

Dear Social Corner Sisters: A late wish for a happy and prosperous new year and that this year will bring heart's desire, good luck, health and peace to all. My New Year's, as well as my husband's, was spent in bed. The "grippe" didn't overlook us this year, and I must say neither did Santa Claus. My husband joins me in thanking the sisters for so many Christmas cards. They were very cheering indeed, and many thanks for that dear little yearly calendar. I wish the sender would sign their name, so I could thank them personally.

Well, my letter must necessarily be short this time and I must thank Lavender for her photograph, which gave me so much pleasure at Christmas time. I do believe time is receding instead of going forward with her. She seems to be growing younger every year.

Will close with best wishes to all the Corner sisters, sympathy to all in poor health or trouble, and strength to those who have lost dear ones.

SIS HOPKINS.

MITCHIE'S POTATO SALAD

Dear Social Corner Members: It is quite some time since I have written to the Corner, so will pen a few lines to keep on the membership list. I certainly do enjoy reading the Social Corner page and greatly appreciate the editor's kindness in giving us the space. There are so many helpful ideas. I do enjoy the recipes so much, also the directions for making rugs.

Mrs. Farmer: Where are you? We never hear from you any more. I did enjoy your rhubarb recipes.

I will send you my way of making

Potato Salad: Take cold potatoes cut in small pieces, chop two onions and three hard boiled eggs (cut them in pieces or chop), fry out fat pork cut in very small pieces, three tablespoons of vinegar, a little salt and pepper; pour the fat over potatoes. Beets are good mixed in.

Helpatica: Was very glad to get your letter. Much surprised to learn you did not go south. You should not let such good opportunities pass you by.

Now I guess this is long enough for once, so all good wishes from

MITCHIE

IN A POORLY LIGHTED KITCHEN.

Dear Editor and Friends: First I wish to thank a member for a pretty calendar. Then I want to talk to you Cornerites who have a dark kitchen or a poorly lighted one. I mean by that one on the north side of the house. I have one and I intend to have a window put in on the east so that will make a pleasant morning room, then do a good bit of brightening up with a paint brush. First get all your brushes, brooms, dusters, floor mops (dry and wet ones) together and paint the handles a soft creme yellow or a bright pink (mine are yellow). Then assemble all your utensils you use around the stove like kettles, pots, spoons, forks, cake turner, potato masher, bottle brush, chimney swab, in fact everything having a wooden handle, salt box and knife and fork box and paint all the same color. Unless you have tried it you can't imagine how much more cheerful your old black range will look with a bright handled dinner pot, tea kettle and coffee pot on it. Have your kitchen curtains of the same color in checked gingham, canary and white or pink and white. If you like them the length of the window, white ones with a wide border of gingham. If sash curtains, use all gingham, it makes a lot of difference with your light. White is best inside the cabinet or cupboard as it will be lighter but the outside may be yellow, or pink or white. Inside the cabinet don't overlook your screw top spice jars or canister sets. They all need a new dress of pink or yellow. I have seen the canister sets in blue or jade green but they are more cheerful if they match the other articles you have rolled up. The breakfast table and chairs can also be trimmed with the same color. I prefer a good coat of paint and enamel to lacquer. It will wear better and is cleanable.

Wishing you much success.

ROSE GERANIUM.

MODERN DRESS.

Dear Corner Sisters: Exclusive of hosiery and cute little booties, the modern girl's dress consists of two garments. One is a pink silk nightie-and-all that she steps into, and the other is a slimpsy frock that she pulls on over her head. A girl can dress completely in less time than it takes a man to arrange his necktie. Modern dress is exactly the proper arrangement for the summer girl. But if she resides in a locality where the north winds blow, where pavements are covered with snow and where the air is nippy, she must keep herself warmly and comfortably clothed. No girl looks pretty if she does not look comfortable. The average winter girl is merely the summer girl with a coat on. She wears chiffon stockings so thin that she might as well be bare-legged. Her shoes are flimsy little sandals that are no protection against cold pavements but she wouldn't wear heavier ones even if she were to understand that the rosy-red nose is the result of cold feet.

Her dress hem doesn't begin to extend to her kneecap; the hem of her coat is even higher. She wears fur about her neck because it is fashionable. If the heap-big fashion rules told her to take it off, she'd do it in a minute. She scurries along in the cold weather, trying to crawl up into her collar, thereby contracting her lungs and throwing her shoulders forward. If she were warmly clad she would walk along erectly, drinking in the cool, refreshing air, which is revitalizing and health-giving. The girl who combines a reducing diet with the practice of wearing clothing that is not sufficiently warm is inviting the presence of the tuberculosis germ.

Yours for the Corner, CLIP.

GREETINGS AND HELPS

Dear Corner Sisters: I must try and send in a letter once in a while to help keep up our page.

E. L. M.: Maybe I am not stepping on the gas these days. I shall tell the world, yes!

A loaf of layer cake will keep fresh much longer if the cut surfaces are not exposed to the air. If you cut what you want of a cake in the center of the loaf, rather than from the ends, you can then push the two end portions together and thus keep the cut portions from drying up so fast.

White spots caused by allowing water to stand on a varnished or painted surface can often be removed by sponging carefully with a cloth dampened in wood alcohol.

Scratched surfaces can sometimes be improved by rubbing with camphorated oil or raw linseed oil.

To remove dents in furniture, place a wet blotting paper over the dent, apply a hot iron to the spot long enough to allow the heat to penetrate the blotting paper and steam the wood. This causes it to swell and return to place.

Ink stains can frequently be removed by using soap suds. It is very likely to injure the finish so sponge immediately with weak vinegar water and rinse with clear water.

Sarilla's Daughter: Your very nice letter received. Will try and reply soon as at the present my time is greatly taken up. Thanks for kind messages it contained.

Yours for the good of the Corner,

CRIMSON RAMBLER

ALWAYS A CORNER WORKER.

Dear Social Corner Friends: First I want to thank a Social Corner member for the pretty little calendar. It is so nice to be remembered each year although I do not feel I deserve it this year as I certainly am in the slacker class.

Last June, Neighbor and I called on Kitty Lou. She talked about the Social Corner and how she wrote so often so as to keep the page full. I came away from her home resolved to do my bit and not leave it to a few but did not live up to the resolution. When I read all the good letters about Kitty Lou I think how glad I am that some of the sisters sent letters of appreciation while she was living, as we are so apt to wait until too late, before we show our love and appreciation.

How fast the winter is going and what a change in the seasons from what they were 30 years ago! What beautiful weather we had for Christmas. The son came for us the day before Christmas and took us to his home in New Britain where on Christmas day a family party of 10 enjoyed the day together. After dinner we went to Walnut park to see the beautiful monument erected to the boys who lost their lives in the World war. Wednesday evening son and grandson brought us home, and what a perfect moon. I said all it lacked was snow and a good horse and sleigh, although that would not have taken us the 50 mile trip in such comfort as the closed auto.

Quid Nunc: I always read your letters to my husband and we both enjoy them so much and hope you will write often.

Neibhgor Eveready: I miss your letters and wonder what has become of you.

Kensey: Never received that letter you sent. Was so sorry as I wanted to hear about your Christmas. Please write again.

I only attended one Social Corner gathering last year. That was at Aunty No. 1's, but hope to attend more this year.

My sympathy to all the sick and sorrowing ones and will close with this verse:

We cannot change yesterday, that is clear.
Nor begin on tomorrow until it is here;
So all that remains for you and for me
Is to make today as sweet as can be
By doing the duty that's nearest to us,
With never a bit of fretting or fuss.

Wishing you all a happy and prosperous New Year.

DORINDA

SHAKE OFF THE BLUES.

Dear Social Corner Friends: I thought I would write a few lines as I saw the page was not very full. Hope to see more letters this week. Let us try to keep it as full as we can and not have to think we did not do our part in keeping it up.

We are all very thankful the ice has gone which made it very dangerous traveling, but we can't find much fault with the winter so far and it won't seem very long before we will hear the birds singing once more. I think it about the most pleasant time of year in the spring when everything seems to rejoice and take on new life. So let us cheer up and if we begin to feel blue just think how much better off we are than a good many others. Count your blessings and the first thing you know you will be humming some tune perhaps that you used to as long ago as when we were school children. As we look back to those school days and think of the good times we used to have, carefree and all, it seems almost like a dream but that is the way of the world. Generations come and go and it will be so as long as the world stands. Will send in a good recipe for Corn Bread.

Corn Bread: 2-4 cup corn meal, 1 1-4 cup of flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon of salt, 3 tablespoons of sugar, 2 tablespoons of melted butter, 1

NEARLY 30 ISSUES ROSE TO NEW HIGH LEVELS IN STOCK MARKET YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 26—(AP)—A riotous bull celebration on the stock market greeted the week's federal reserve reports today. Nearly 30 issues rose to new high levels on gains running to a maximum of nearly 15 points.

Trading was carried on a tremendous pace during the early hours of the session, stock changing hands in blocks of 5,000 to 30,000 shares, but slowed up considerably during the afternoon as profit-taking came into the market in heavy volume. Total sales aggregating 5,806,800 shares, approximated the 1929 record to date established on Jan. 4.

The Associated Press price indices for industrials and utilities rose 5 and nearly 4 points, respectively, to records heights. Metals, motors, utilities and industrial specialties led the upturn. Despite the tremendous dealings, the buying was of a rather selective character, oils and rails were somewhat heavy, and there was a fairly wide sprinkling of net losses of 1 to 3 points at the close.

That the federal reserve brokerage total would record a new high had been taken for granted, but the increase of $45,000,000 was much smaller than had been expected. The statement of the New York Federal Reserve bank, showing that its reserve ratio had risen nearly to that of a year ago, was an important factor in the bullish enthusiasm.

Call money held at 6 per cent all day, but the tone was firm. Reports that the new $100,000,000 petroleum investment trust will put much of its funds into the call money market for a time, and unconfirmed rumors that New York banks are planning to buy $6,000,000 of Transvaal Gold to be offered in London Monday, were regarded as brightening the call money outlook.

Despite the improvement in the position of the New York banks, traders were not inclined to use call money too freely, after the repeated warnings from the federal reserve officials, it was pointed out that the sort of selective buying that has gone on in recent sessions does not use up credit as rapidly as the general upturns experienced last year.

The day's news included recommendation of the governors of the stock exchange to increase the membership by 25 per cent, proposal of a 2-for-1 stock split by Stewart Warner, favorable railway earnings statements for December and fairly general price reductions in Mid-Continent Crude Oil.

U. S. Steel again was brought forward as a market leader, mounting 9 pots to a new record price at 192 3-4. When it began to slip on profit-taking, bulls turned to General Motors, pushing the old stock up about 10 points. Steel shares were generally strong, reflecting the excellent last-quarter earnings report of Bethlehem. Coppers were bid up smartly, but ran into heavy realizing. American Smelting touched a new peak at 111 1-2, up about 7 points.

Nash Motors was bought in tremendous volume, moving up 9 points to a record price at 118 7-8, on rumors of a merger with Packard and a 10 per cent stock dividend. It fell back somewhat on official denial of the merger report, but rallied and closed near the top.

Underwood Elliot Fisher was bid up nearly 18 points, but lost about a third of its gain. U. S. Industrial Alcohol and Johns Manville jumped 16 points then slipped back about 4 points each. General Electric was pushed up nearly 17 points, on rumors of a 1 1-2 for split up. Radio made an extreme gain of 10 points, but lost more than half of it.

Consolidated Gas and People's Gas led the utilities with gains of about 6 and 10 points.

Columbia Graphophone, Gillette Safety Razor, Filenes, Safeway Stores and Wesson Oil were among the soft spots, all losing about 3 points. Montgomery Ward was heavy closing fractionally lower.

The commodity markets were irregular. Wheat sold up on further anxiety over lack of adequate snow covering in the winter wheat area, and corn and oats improved. Cotton lost from 70 cents to nearly $1 a bale in quiet trading.

Foreign exchanges were dull, with sterling cables slightly easier at $4.84 29-32.

IN MEMORIAM

Just one year ago today
Our loved one passed away.
He leaves a vacant chair and empty place,
Since we last looked on his dear face.
Many a heartache and silent tear
We've shed, through the long and lonely year.
May we place our faith in God on high,
And pray there, He'll guide us bye and bye.
MRS. MATHIAS PARADIS AND CHILDREN.
Taftville, Conn.

IN MEMORIAM

Mrs. Ella Tucker
Willimantic, Conn., Jan. 27, 1928

Through all pains at times she'd smile,
A smile of heavenly birth;
And when the angels called her home,
She smiled farewell to earth.
Heaven returneth now our treasure,
Earth the lonely casket keeps;
And the sunbeams love to linger
Where our mother sleeps.
HER CHILDREN.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre.

"Prep and Pep," which opens tomorrow at the Breed theatre for a three days' run, is said to be one of the best comedy-dramas on a boy's life on the campus ever filmed.

This Fox Films production directed by David Butler and featuring David Rollins and Nancy Drexel, was filmed on the grounds of Culver Military Academy in Indiana.

"Prep and Pep" is the story of Cyril Reade, a boy who comes to the academy where his father was known as its most famous athlete. Cyril is expected to match his father's reputation, but he proves a failure and the laughing stock of the school. Just when he is ready to call it quits he is inspired to fight by Dorothy, the commandant's daughter, who has more than a friendly interest in Cyril.

By hard training Cyril wins honor for himself and school. The film ends when Cyril rescues Dorothy from a prairie fire.

Picture at Y. M. C. A. Sunday.

At 3.30 o'clock on the coming Sunday afternoon in the large gymnasium of the local Young Men's Christian association, the beautiful and impressive story, The Harvester, by Gene Stratton Porter will be shown in seven reels.

This is another story by the popular artist, screened among the beauties of the limberlost. The magic beauty of the Indian woods that inspired the mighty story forms the setting for the film.

Deep among the glens of the limberlost lived a girl to whom life had given little, and even that little was slipping away. Then through the sacrifice of a friend she learned that love can bring back life and a desire to live—that love can tear apart the darkest misery and make life beautiful.

Such stories by such an artist put on the screen has a strong grip on the heart, and tends to make those who see it determine to make the best of life.

Men and women are especially invited to this service, and boys and girls fourteen and up may attend. There will be a free will offering taken.

Broadway Theatre.

Anticipating the tremendous interest which is focused upon polar exploration flights, Warner Bros. have produced a lavish talking picture special with the aerial conquest of the Antarctic as its central theme.

"Conquest" is the title of the production with Monte Blue in the starring role; H. B. Warner featured Lois Wilson in the leading feminine part and Edmund Breese and Tully Marshall prominently cast. Roy Del Ruth directed the 100 percent Vitaphone special in which dialogue, natural sounds and symphonic accompaniment are incorporated throughout.

Two flights similar to that delineated in "Conquest" are at present under way, one under Commander Byrd and a second under the command of Captain Wilkins.

"Conquest" actually details two attempts to master the baffling Antarctic, its plot exposing the perils of the sub-zero zone, and its effect upon the mental fibre of the daring adventurers who seek to conquer it. Blue has a heroic role as the pilot of the ill-fated attempts and Warner acts as his navigator.

The giant tri-motored Albatross which attracted international attention on two occasions by its attempts to set sustained flight records was used in filming flying scenes in "Conquest." The ship is the largest in America. To insure accuracy in all technical details Warner Bros. engaged Lieut. James E. Dyer, U. S. N., as supervisor. The navy flier last year won the national trophy for total number of hours in the air, his total for the year being 1,251 hours.

"Conquest" is based on "Candle in the Wind," the popular novel by Mary Imlay Taylor. Eve Unsell adapted it and the scenario is by Graham Baker.

"Conquest" comes to the Broadway theatre for four days starting tomorrow (Sunday) evening. In addition to the outstanding motion picture epic three splendid Vitaphone subjects are presented.

Palace Theatre.

Showing for the last times today and tonight with a continuous performance from 2 to 11 p. m. the Palace theatre winds up its present vaudeville and picture bill. The show won instant favor with Norwich theatre goers ever since it started Thursday afternoon and was deserving of the great support it has received for the engagement. Five stellar acts of big time vaudeville goes to make up the stage show while the silver screen shows Marie Prevost with Ralph Graves in The Sideshow.

For Sunday night only the Palace will show a double feature program of two selected pictures. Jacqueline Logan and a fine cast in Nothing to Wear, and Noah Berry in The Passion Song makes up this fine show.

On Monday the Palace will present for the first time on any local stage a group of 30 local girls in the Norwich Follies and here is the show all Norwich and surrounding towns have been waiting to witness. It will demonstrate whether there is enough talent in local circles to lend itself for a pretentious production. The Norwich Follies is a wonderful music and song revue produced by a master producer of Broadway stage hits. Tom Linton knows how to put on an elaborate production and he also knows how to coach local girls in stagecraft and dancing.

In addition to the Follies there will be other star acts of vaudeville. The feature picture will be Virginia Valli and Ian Keith in The Street of Illusion, a corking story with a plot that will keep you in suspense for the entire time the picture is on the screen. A news and comedy will complete the show.

The plot revolves around a man who found the world cold, heartless and unappreciative. He becomes a monster, more animal than human and then awakens to the truth that life is what we make it.

Virginia Valli, as the leading lady in a Broadway success gives a charming performance. Her interest in the monster, her efforts to make the man realize his mistakes and break down the repulsive wall of egotism he has built around himself are full of human appeal. Her love scenes with Kenneth Thompson are intense, fervent and intriguing. Thomson is a typical Broadway star and ideal lover. He finds his way into the hearts of his fair audiences.

NEW SCHOOL FINANCE PLAN WOULD INCREASE STATE AID TO 18 TOWNS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 26—Eighteen towns in New London county would receive substantial increases in state aid funds for schools under the new plan for financing education soon to be considered by the general assembly, State Education Commissioner Albert B. Meredith said last evening in discussing the proposal at a meeting in the Y. W. C. A. under the auspices of the League of Women Voters.

After referring to the fact that the proportion of state participation in public education costs had steadily decreased, Dr. Meredith said that the time had come for Connecticut to enter a fourth stage as regards maintenance of public schools. The first stage he mentioned as that beginning with the law of 1639 requiring grammar schools in the colony. Then came the 1650 code which stipulated that every parent should provide instruction in reading and writing for a child. In 1872 the state required by law that each child should spend at least three months a year in school. And now, said the commissioner, the time has come for the state to guarantee a minimum of educational opportunity throughout Connecticut.

The state, in 1928, said Dr. Meredith, bore only 6 1-10 per cent. of the cost of public school education, as compared with 17 per cent. in 1907 and 25 per cent in 1854 and this steady decrease has come at a time when educational costs are burdensome on many towns. Many Connecticut towns cannot levy further taxes upon real estate, their only source of income, without creating a situation that approaches confiscation. The state, on the other hand, can tax any source of wealth. The speaker referred to the fact that in 1926 Connecticut paid a total federal income tax of $29,396,944 an amount exceeding the entire cost of public school education in the state for 1928 and this sum came largely from sources untouched by town taxation.

The wide variation of educational opportunity was discussed by Dr. Meredith in connection with his statement that the ability of a town to pay educational costs cannot be measured by its grand list. One town in the state has $80,000 of grand list for each pupil. Fifteen miles away is a town with only $1,400 for each pupil. A child moving from one town to the other, in this case, would be penalized educationally, and studies of 100 towns show that 15 per cent. of the pupils do move during a school year. Such a situation, manifestly, makes education the concern of all the people of the state.

The plan which the legislature will soon consider, would restore the 1907 ratio of 17 per cent. participation by the state. At present, the state is paying $1,500,000 for town school aid each year. A town, under the new plan, in order to qualify for a maximum of state aid, would be obliged to devote 34 per cent. of its tax income for schools and provide a school system in which the minimum cost would be $70 per pupil per year. The state would then make up the difference between the local tax income per pupil and the $70 minimum. The additional cost of this plan to the state would be $1,936,000 per year if every town met the requirements. Of the present state grant, 53 per cent. is paid out on enumeration to all towns and this would be continued.

The following table shows proposed and present state aid payments to New London county towns for schools:

	Proposed under $70 minimum plan	Present grant

On her plea of guilty of a charge of violation of the liquor laws, Mrs. Alice Lewniewski, 33, of No. 4 Rose street, was fined $200 and costs in the city court Friday morning. Because of her poor physical condition a 30 day jail sentence was suspended. She was arrested Thursday by state and local police who found a still and liquor in her house.

RESERVES DECISION IN AUTO COLLISION SUIT

Judge Charles B. Waller reserved decision in the $750 damage suit brought by Charles W. Frink, milk dealer, against James Shelley, Sr., and James Shelley, Jr., all of this city, following a trial in the court of common pleas here Friday afternoon.

Frink claimed that his truck was damaged on Armistice day, 1927, when it figured in a collision with an automobile owned by James Shelley, Jr., and driven by his father. The Frink machine was driven by Max Feinberg, the accident happening on Broadway near the corner of Elmwood avenue.

SALEM SUIT WITHDRAWN IN SUPERIOR COURT

The $4,000 breach of contract action brought by Vincenzo Rinaldo of Manayunk, Pa., against Wladystau and Marrianna Ploszaj of Salem was withdrawn Friday from the docket of the superior court without costs, according to appers filed with Clerk John H. Walker.

Rinaldo claimed that the defendants failed to carry out an agreement made on June 8, 1928, in which they were to sell to the plaintiff the property in Salem known as the Tibbitts' farm for $10,500.

For each big man at the top there are a million little ones at the bottom.

SEEK JAS. D. LONG FOR AVIATION HONORS

An appeal has been broadcast all over the United States to locate James D. Long upon whom the United States army is desirous of conferring aviation honors.

On the possibility that Long may be in this section, Corporal Fiveash of the army recruiting offices at the post office, New London, has appealed to the public to help locate the missing flyer.

As a sergeant in the Army Air Service, Long made a pioneer flight from Mitchel field, Long Island to Nome, Alaska, and return in 1920 and has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross. He was the assistant chief mechanic, mechanic and observer of the pilot he accompanied.

Army records show that Long served throughout the World war, enlisting August 17, 1917. At that time his mother Mrs. Mattie D. Long, lived at Denton, Maryland. When he was discharged as a sergeant in 1922 he gave his future address as Billings, Montana. Since the Flying Cross was awarded him on August 18, 1929, efforts to communicate with him have been unavailing.

DISAPPROVES CITY'S NAME ON POST OFFICE BUILDING

The United States postoffice department is opposed to having the name "Norwich" appear on the local postoffice building, according to a letter received by Postmaster Casper K. Bailey, from E. M. Neward, executive officer of the department. Sometime ago Mayor Lee Roy Robbins took the matter up, by letter, with Postmaster Bailey, requesting that "Norwich" appear on the postoffice building. The postmaster forwarded the mayor's letter to Washington. Mr. Neward, in replying to the postmaster's communication, states that the office is opposed to the name of the city and state appearing on federal buildings, as it is thought to be unnecessary.

Among those present were the Misses Leona Brunell, Clair Duff, Molly Colombe, Anna Lafleur, Blanche and Melda Charon, Blanche, Cecilia and Agnes Fournier, Lea LeBel, Marie Heibel, Florence Firth, Nellie Wilcox, Helda Rondeau, Phyllis and Jane Keogh and Henry Froemel, Wilfred Houghton, George and Buster Rondeau, Roland Maurice, Henry Blanchette, Carl Ellison, Arthur Heap, George Orme.

The following are cases assigned for trial in the common pleas court:

At Norwich, Monday, Feb. 4. Jack Goldberg vs. Betty Kaplinsky; The Texas Company vs. The Shetucket Coal & Lumber Co.

At Norwich, Saturday, Feb. 9. Wasel Ewanchyspyn, et ux vs. James C. Adams.

At Norwich, Monday, Feb. 11. William Lychack vs. Sofat Konowalczeck.

WHITE LEGHORNS HOLD LEAD FOR THE WEEK

Production seems to continue about the same although there was a slight decrease of a little less than two per cent last week in the egg laying contest at Storrs. The hens in the contest came through with a lay of 4,114 eggs, which is 32 eggs less than last week's production. The total to date is 46,439 eggs or an average of a little better than 46 eggs per bird.

The leading pen for the week is a pen of White Leghorns owned by George Lowry of West Willington. This pen had a perfect score of ten eggs four times during the week, and also had two nines and an eight, thus making a total of 66 eggs. Since the contest started 12 weeks ago, these birds have averaged to lay 92.4 per cent. Right on their heels is another pen of the same breed owned by Granite Springs Farm, Granite Springs, N. Y., and there is only 47 eggs difference. It is quite apparent that the second best pen in the contest is going to give the leading pen a run for its money before the struggle is over.

The second best pen for the week is a pen of Rhode Island Reds owned by Charlescote Farm of Sherborn, Mass. These birds laid 64 eggs. Third honors were captured by Granite Springs' Leghorns of Granite Springs, N. Y., with a lay of 63 eggs. Fourth place was grabbed off by White Leghorns entered by St. John's Poultry Farm, Oronogo, Mo., with a yield of 62 eggs.

All the leading pens seem to be holding their own except in the Wyandotte and Red classes. For the first time since the contest started last November the pen of White Wyandottes from Canada appears among the leaders and has tied for second place in the breed with the Locusts from West Cornwall.

In the Red division, Charlescote's pen from Sherborn, Mass., which made its first appearance in the winning column on the seventh week, and since that time has won either first or second place each week, appeared among the leaders in its class last week. It has now jumped into third place, and from the rate it is going is apparently on the way to first place.

The leading pens in each of the principal varieties:

Barred Rocks—R. C. Cobb, Pickard Farm, Littleton, Mass., 655; R. Walter Bishop, Guilford, Conn., 609; Hawes Bros., Union, Me., 555.

White Rocks—E. A. Hirt, South Weymouth, Mass., 537; Granite Springs Farm, Granite Springs, N. Y., 396.

White Wyandottes — Ebenwood Farm, West Bridgewater, Mass., 652; The Locusts, West Cornwall, Conn., 567; Fisher Poultry Farm, Ayton, Ont., 567.

Rhode Island Red—John Z. LaBelle, Ballouville, Conn., 624; Homer R. Rowell, Groveland, Mass., 607; Charlescote Farm, Sherborn, Mass., 605; F. S. Chapin, Longmeadow, Mass., 584.

ADDITIONS TO ALASKAN COLLECTION AT MUSEUM

Slater Memorial Museum has lately received a valuable addition to its Alaskan collection. This consists of two articles; one is a very curious piece of fishing tackle, a huge fish hook, used by the Alaskan Indians for catching halibut. It is carefully though crudely carved, and was evidently a totem, for in one position it represents a human form, while in another it resembles an alligator. The other article is a totem, also bearing a totem decoration. Both are old pieces, and are interesting in their construction as well as from the marks of long use. They were given the museum by Mrs. Elie Nadelman, the wife of the sculptor, who has herself a most interesting museum at Riverdale, New York.

Mrs. H. Sebilleau of Jewett City is a niece of Almon R. Trider, one of the best known sporting men in the maritime provinces, whose death occurred recently at his home in Halifax, N. S. Death was caused by pneumonia. Mr. Trider who was 35 years of age was one of the best known sporting men not only in Halifax but throughout the Maritime Provinces, says a Halifax paper. He was particularly fond of harness-racing, as well as other sports, and his presence will be greatly missed at those events, where he was always a central figure. In recent years he promoted prominent boxing bouts, and at the last Nova Scotia exhibition he was associated with Geo. J. Foley in the successful catering, and they have also conducted the cafe at the Forum.

Mr. Trider was not only known to sport followers, but prominent people throughout the province. He was a real raccoonteur, as brilliant in his way as many who have become famed by their prominence or writings. He had a genial personality, he was good-hearted and generous, always more than ready to repay any little aid given him in anything with which he was concerned.

Mr. Trider was unmarried and is survived by four brothers and one sister, Miss Georgina Trider of Halifax, N. S. The brothers are John, formerly foreman at the Halifax Herald and Mail; Albert, William and Howard, all of Halifax.

Doctors Warn against undereating

Too little fat in the body makes us a prey to disease

EMINENT medical authorities are amazed and alarmed that so many girls and adults of both sexes are dieting themselves to a dangerous loss of weight.

A famous doctor says: "The most delicate parts of the body are always the ones to suffer first. A woman who is naturally sweet-tempered, good-natured, competent . . . becomes petulant, unreasonable, hard to get along with. A man who is thus starving himself becomes irritable and inefficient in the office and grouchy at home. . . . He begins to fall off in judgment and mental ability." This doctor goes on to show that nature stores up fat in the body as a reserve and that it is dangerous to destroy this reserve by dieting. Such an individual, he says, "becomes an easy prey for all manner of chronic ailments—kidney and liver diseases, and degeneration of the brain, spinal cord and nerves . . . typhoid fever, pneumonia, influenza and colds."

How much more intelligent it is to eat varied, nourishing foods, rather than eliminating the one ingredient that adds flavor and enjoyment to all other foods. Sweetness is the ideal flavor. What is so tasteful and refreshing as a salad of fresh grapefruit—sweetened with powdered sugar—and lettuce? Eat enough fruits and cereals. The best cooks are generous with sugar. HOOVER FAVORS CRUISER TIME LIMITATION CLAUSE

Chairman Britten of House Naval Committee Represents President-Elect as Favorable to Clause in Bill Requiring Start on New Cruisers Within Two Years—Supporters of Naval Bill Claim Votes Enough to Defeat President Coolidge's Request For Elimination of the Time Limit—Debate to be Resumed in Senate Today.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27— (AP) — Herbert Hoover was represented today by Chairman Britten of the house naval committee as favorable to retention of the time limitation clause in the naval construction program which President Coolidge is insisting that the senate eliminate.

On the eve of a vote in the senate on the battle between the president and naval bill proponents over elimination of this provision requiring a start on the 15 cruisers within two years, Representative Britten in a statement today declared:

"I am sure the time limit will be pleasing to President-elect Hoover.

"When I talked with Mr. Hoover the other day, he certainly gave me the impression of desiring a navy second to none in power and efficiency; a navy commensurate with our world commercial and political position."

President Coolidge has revived in the senate the fight which he lost last year in the house to have the proposed naval construction progrem left to his discretion by the elimination of the time clause.

The house voted to put the construction program into effect before 1931 and Chairman Hale of the senate naval committee, in charge of the bill in the senate, is demanding retention of this time limitation.

Senate leaders have been studying the situation over the week-end and the naval bill friends asserted tonight they had the votes to defeat Mr. Coolidge's request for the clause's elimination.

Debate will be resumed tomorrow in the senate on the bill and a vote before the end of the week is the goal of the leaders.

"The house," said Mr. Britten, "is overwhelmingly in favor of building real steel ships quickly and the three-year time limit will do it.

"The time limit now in the cruiser bill is the most important section of the bill. It is the one real assurance for 15 steel ships under construction in 1931 when the Washington conference again meets. To eliminate it would substitute paper cruisers in the interim while England, Japan, France and Italy are proceeding with their carefully considered steel ships programs.

"Elimination of the time clause would give life and stimulus to Frederick J. Libby and his now small corps of hungry professional pacifists who prey upon the easily beguiled for cash subscriptions to prevent war. It would give him an annual opportunity to collect funds and at the same time to annoy those interested in promoting adequate national defense."

EXTENSIVE SEARCH FOR MISSING NEWSPAPERMAN

LAREDO, Texas, Jan. 27—(AP)—The nation's Mexican border patrol and immigration officers, joining the local constabulary in an extensive search for Harry Williams, "missing" 24-year-old Laredo newspaperman, today mulled over two related and somewhat sinister clues as to his disappearance.

More than 350 officers, with long knowledge of the border from Arizona to Brownsville, Texas, held two theories. One, that Williams had been mistaken for the son of A. L. Kitselman, Indiana millionaire, kidnaped by bandits seeking ransom, later beaten and released after discovery that he was not related to Mr. Kitselman. The other concerned the possibility that he had been "doped" and attacked for some purpose and subsequently thrown from an automobile to find his way out of the surrounding lonely, semi-wild country.

American immigration and border authorities joined the hunt yesterday on the order of Robert Carl White, first assistant to the secretary of labor at Washington.

The 24-year-old reporter disappeared unaccountably from this border town across the Rio Grande from Mexico more than a week ago. Official aid was not asked until friends had exhausted every resource in a private search for him.

Belief that he may have been the victim of thugs who thought him kin to the wealthy Indiana man was backed by the fact that Williams formerly lived in Muncie, Ind., and often had been seen about with Kitselman.

On the other hand, the second theory gained some plausibility upon the report of a Laredo merchant that he had tried unsuccessfully to "pick up" a youth about Williams' age on a highway 20 miles north of here last Sunday night. This man, the merchant said, apparently had been dulled with narcotics and thrown from a motor car.

BODIES OF 14 VICTIMS REMOVED FROM MINE

KINGSTON, W. Va., Jan. 27—(AP)—The removal of 14 burned and mutilated bodies from the Kingston-Pocahontas No. 5 mine where an explosion occurred Saturday, today had accounted for all miners in the workings when the blast spread destruction through the underground workshop. Fifty-five workers escaped.

The last of the bodies were brought to the surface nearly 24 hours after the explosion by rescue squads who had toiled since the detonation rocked the district.

Several fires kindled by the explosion handicapped rescue efforts for several hours until extinguished. Surface buildings, including that housing the ventilating system, were put out of commission and this also hindered the safety crews until repairs could be made.

The No. 5 mine extends two miles through a mountain, with entries on each side. The miners who escaped emerged through the Coal river entrance, on the other side of the mountain from here. They waded through water to their knees to reach the open air and then walked over the mountain to Kingston in water-soaked clothing.

Investigations into the cause of the explosion were under way today by state, county and company representatives. A coroner's jury viewed the bodies today and set next Friday for a preliminary inquest.

The raid was conducted by six officers under Detective Sergt. George Ellinger.

HURRICANE CAUSES SERIOUS DAMAGE AT PUNTARENAS

SAN SALVADOR Jan. 27.—(AP)—A hurricane is reported to have done serious damage at Puntarenas, Costa Rica. Puntarenas has been the chief port of Costa Rica since the railway to Port Limon was destroyed by floods a few months ago.

CELEBRATION OF FORMER KAISER'S 70TH BIRTHDAY

DOORN, Holland, Jan. 27—(AP)—The round of celebrations in honor of former Emperor Wilhelm's 70th birthday which has been going on for the past week was climaxed today in an official ceremony of congratulation followed by divine services and a birthday meal.

Memories of glorious bygone days were once again conjured up for the aged and dethroned ruler when all the male participants, garbed in gala uniforms of their military rank with spiked helmets, decorations and high boots, saluted the head of the Hohenzollern family who was resplendent in a field marshal's uniform of the First Royal guards and wearing upon his breast the highest decorations within the gift of the German and many other nations. The women, while wearing modern dresses, nevertheless gave a flavor of the old court days by having gowns with trains and executing low court curtsies.

It was a bleak, cold and snowy day on the whole, but the weather man also seemed moved to give the former kaiser a taste of traditional "Hohenzollern weather." About noon bright sunshine made its appearance for an hour and likewise the black and white checkered Hohenzollern flag on the palace and entrance building and the gold and black banner of the kaiserin's family on the orangerie, both of which had hung limp all day, began to flutter in the breeze.

SLAIN WOMAN IDENTIFIED AS MRS. CORA CULLEN

HINGHAM, Mass., Jan. 27—(AP)—The body of a woman found shot to death in a field on the Brewer estate here yesterday was identified today, police said, as that of Mrs. Cora Cullen, formerly Miss Cora Jacques, of Lowell.

State police tonight were searching for her husband, Christopher Cullen, of East Weymouth, chauffeur for the Metropolitan District commission at Nantasket.

The couple were married a week ago tonight at St. Rita's church, Lowell, and went to Weymouth to spend a few days with Cullen's family.

They left the Cullen home Thursday evening, supposedly to visit Mrs. Cullen's parents in Lowell. When they did not return the Cullens believed that they had been delayed by the storm.

For some time the body of Mrs. Cullen remained at a local undertaker's unidentified and today identification was made by Arthur Jacques, a brother of Mrs. Cullen.

Cullen has at times been subject to fits of insanity and was sent to the Medfield State hospital for observation some time ago.

Mrs. Cullen lived formerly with her sisters, Mrs. Bertha Murphy and Mrs. John La Roxque, at Lowell.

LINER LAPLAND DELAYED DAY BY ROUGH SEAS

NEW YORK, Jan. 27—(AP)—Delayed by storms at sea, the Red Star liner Lapland arrived today from Europe a day late.

Captain Harvey, master of the ship, said that late Wednesday and early Thursday the vessel ran through a heavy snowstorm and the decks were covered with a foot of snow. He said that rough seas, however, washed over the deck and cleared the snow away.

The captain said that during the voyage there was a continuous heavy swell which he believed was caused by volcanic eruptions on the ocean's floor. He said there was a low barometer and not sufficient wind to account for such a disturbance.

Death Of Father Of Empress Of Japan

Prince Kuni Succumbed to Intestinal Ulcer and Hemorrhages.

TOKYO, Jan. 27—(AP)—Prince Kuni, father of Empress Nagako, died today at 12:30. The empress was at the bedside when her father succumbed to intestinal ulcer and hemorrhages, having reached Atami, where the family home is located, an hour previous.

After the close of these hostilities he studied military affairs in Germany for three years.

PROHIBITION MAY OBSTRUCT WORK IN CONGRESS THIS WEEK

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27—(AP)—Another debate on prohibition and the conclusion of the discussion of the naval construction bill was in store for congress this week with leaders hopeful that neither would be so extended as to disturb the program of work that remains for the urrent session to dispose of before the March 4 adjournment.

The house will take up the senate amendment to the deficiency appropriation bill to increase the prohibition enforcement fund by $24,000,000 while the senate will go forward to a final vote on the 16-warship bill, the controversial sections of which promise to be smoothed over without extended argument.

The opponents of the naval bill have not given up their fight altogether but sentiment has so shaped itself in the senate that those in charge of the measure expect to complete its consideration before the end of the week.

With insufficient support from administration senators, it appeared probable that the senate will stand by the decision of the house in requiring that the cruisers be laid down before July 1, 1931. Once this section of the bill has been decided, leaders look for the senate to move swiftly toward a final vote.

KING GEORGE CONTINUES TO REGAIN STRENGTH

LONDON, Jan. 27—(AP)—The progress of King George was maintained today. Lord Dawson of Penn visited him during the morning and evening but no medical bulletin was issued. During the morning visit of the physician to Buckingham Palace he had an unusually long consultation with Lord Stamfordham, which is believed to have been in reference to arrangements for the removal of the king to the seashore.

No date has been fixed for this journey to Bognor. It is understood that the physicians are hoping that within a few days the patient may be allowed to sit up in bed. The weather remained exceedingly cold and it is not unlikely that it may be considered advisable to wait for milder conditions before risking the journey.

Even the so-called Sunny Riviera has been disturbed by the elements. The seaport of Marsailles is practically inacessible. Its ice flows resemble the straights of Belle Isle in winter.

RACING TO ASSISTANCE OF DISABLED STEAMER

BOSTON, Jan. 27—(AP)—The two coast guard cutters Mojave and Tampa, were battling heavy seas off the North Atlantic tonight as they raced to the assistance of the disabled British steamer Silver Maple.

No word has been received from the vessel since she broadcast an SOS call yesterday, reporting that her steering gear was crippled. She was then 780 miles east of Boston. With fierce winds sweeping the ocean, it was believed that the Silver Maple was at the mercy of exceptionally rough seas.

Radio reports from the Mojave to coast guard headquarters here indicated that she would not reach the position given by the Silver Maple until about 1 a. m., Tuesday. The Tampa was about four hours behind the Mojave but in constant radio communication with her sister ship.

Both coast guard vessels were trying tonight to communicate with the Silver Maple. The latter vessel was reported to have a radio set with 150 mile sending radius.

The Mojave was on patrol between Massachusetts and Nova Scotia when ordered to the assistance of the Silver Maple yesterday. The Tampa left the Boston navy yard last night.

Silence shrouded the fate of the Italian freighter Capa Vado, reported last to be in distress 150 miles off Bermuda. Navy and coast guard officials reported tonight that no word of the freighter has been received since she sent out an SOS call 48 hours previous. The steam tawler Seiner, a week overdue at Groton, Conn., had not been heard from today. Her continued silence gave credence to the belief that she met disaster. She was last reported in the region of Georges Banks on January 13.

NEW YORK HONORS CAPTAIN AND CREW OF AMERICA

Mayor Walker to Present Medals and Scrolls to Men Who Took Crew Off the Foundering Florida—Ceremonies Include Parade For Captain Fried, His Officers and Men and the Rescued Crew—Second Time Heroic Captain Has Received the City's Acclaim—Arrangements Have Been Made to Broadcast Reception and Luncheon Ceremonies.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27—(AP)—Capt. George Fried and his heroic crew of the United States liner America rested today after the city's first wave of welcome and acclaim for their rescue of the crew of the Italian freighter Florida.

Their scheduled appearance before the microphone tonight to broadcast their story of the rescue was the only public function on the program of the day. The men who were to tell the story to radio listeners included Captain Fried, the crew of the lifeboat who took the Italians off the foundering Florida, and Nelson M. Smith, chief radio operator of the America.

Tomorrow, however, the city has planned for them another of those welcomes she reserves only for the recognition of heroic deeds. It will mark the second time the honor has been conferred upon Captain Fried and to him will go the distinction of having been the second man twice to have received the city's acclaim.

The first greeting the city gave to the unassuming seaman was in recognition of his heroic rescue of the crew of British freighter Antinoe when he was in command of the liner President Roosevelt three years ago. The other man who twice has received the city's acclaim was Comdr. Richard E. Byrd, first for his North Polar flight and the second time for his trans-Atlantic flight.

The ceremonies tomorrow provide for a parade for Captain Fried, his officers and men and the rescued crew from Battery park up through the canyons of lower Broadway to the City hall, where they are to arrive about 12:30 p. m. There Mayor Walker will receive them in the aldermanic chamber of the historic building and medals and scrolls will be bestowed.

After the City Hall ceremonies, Captain Fried and Chief Officer Harry Manning, the man who commanded the lifeboat in which the rescue was accomplished by the America, will be guests at a luncheon of the New York Advertising club.

Arrangements have been made to broadcast the reception and luncheon ceremonies. The municipal station, WNYC, and a chain of National Broadcasting Co. stations headed by WEAF, New York, will carry the exercises.

HEROES OF "AMERICA" BROADCAST EXPERIENCE

NEW YORK, Jan. 27—(AP)—The Leroes of the America tonight told a nation-wide radio audience in a matter of fact way of their thrilling experiences in rescuing the crew of the disabled Italian freighter Florida off the Virginia capes last Wednesday night.

Capt. George Fried, Chief Officer Harry Manning, Chief Radio Operator Nelson H. Smith, and Salvatore Bracco, bow oarsman of the America lifeboat crew, spoke from the studio of WABC here over the Columbia Broadcasting Co.'s chain. Brig. Gen. A. C. Dalton, general manager of the Merchant Fleet Corp., introduced the men in an address lauding their courage.

Captain Fried traced the progress of the rescue attempts along the same lines as he did in his dispatch to the Associated Press the day after the rescue, elaborating, however, on the actual rescue and his own feelings as the little lifeboat battled to bring the crew of the Florida safely back to the America. The 15 minutes after they sighted the returning lifeboat until it gained the shelter of the ships side he said "seemed like 15 hours."

"They are not looking for any rewards," he said in speaking of his men who risked their lives on the errand of mercy, "but if any recognition is given to the men of the America it should go to the lifeboat crew in charge of one of the most gallant young officers I have ever met—Capt. Harry Manning."

FOUR FAMILIES FORCED TO FLEE FROM FLAMES

NEW BRITAIN, Jan. 27—(AP)—Because a small boy who this morning discovered a slight blaze did not report his news quickly enough to the fire department, a fire in a tenement house in Franklin street, in a congested section of the city, attained serious proportions before apparatus arrived to combat it. Four families, including 12 children, were forced to take flight in their night clothes, a store was demolished and smoke, water and flames did $3,200 worth of damage to the property.

The boy was being sought by police and fire officials tonight both for praise and for censure—and for questioning.

It is said that after he saw the small blaze he overlooked six fireboxes and 100 telephones along the route as he ran to the fire house. The trip took him a half hour and by the time firemen arrived at the tenement house, the blaze had developed into a good sized fire and four families were already out in the bitter cold.

As the cause or the origin of the fire has not been determined, it is believed the boy may be able to help police in their investigation.

BODY OF FORMER SEN. UNDERWOOD AT BIRMINGHAM

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 27.—(AP)—The body of former United States Senator Oscar W. Underwood reached home today to rest among friends whom he served for 32 years as a member of congress.

In the private car bearing the body of the Alabama statesman were members of his family and close friends who boarded the train last night at Alexandria, Va., near Woodlawn, the Virginian estate where Senator Underwood died Friday.

From the station the body was carried to an undertaking establishment and members of the family went immediately to the old home of Senator Underwood. Later the casket was removed to the home where it will remain tonight. Tomorrow it will be taken to the Independent Presbyterian church to lie in state for two hours before funeral services at 11 o'clock.

Despite overhanging skies and an all-day drizzle, the station grounds were thronged with friends bowed in silent respect to the late leader. Among the number were officials of state and the city and persons from every walk of life.

PERRY, Kas., Jan. 27.—(AP)— The life of little Margaret Brown still hung in the balance tonight, as oxygen administrations and a blood transfusion from the veins of her father continued to withhold the hand of death, nine days and nights after physicians had despaired of her recovery from a lung infection following pneumonia.

ARCTIC BLAST AND SNOW IN WEST

DENVER, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Woven into the commonplace weather reports from the snow-harried Rocky Mountain region where blizzards have been cavoting for days, came tales of heroic rescues and struggles today. There was the usual plight, too, of winter-bounded animals and live stock, cut off from food by the heavy snowfall and unsheltered from the icy winds, but the milk of human kindness flowed freely where suffering fellows needed succor.

A thrilling and dramatic story of their hectic experiences while marooned in the Ruby Mountain wilds of Nevada, was recounted at Salt Lake by two passengers of the ill-fated Boeing Air Transport plane which was forced down in a blinding wind and snow storm 45 miles east of Elko, Nev., Thursday.

Frank Barber, of Oakland, Cal., the pilot was taken to St. Mark's hospital in a semi-conscious condition when he arrived here this morning by train from Elko. He suffered concussion of the brain and sat for 24 hours in the fuselage of the plane. His companions, who also were injured were too weak to aid him.

There also came the story of heroic sacrifice and suffering by Salmon river cowboys and stockmen who pushed through snowdrifts ten feet deep to take an eleven-year-old girl to a surgeon.

Another Arctic blast from the north chilled Montana last night, enveloping most of that state in blizzardlike weather and hulling the mercury to sub-zero levels. At Lewiston, Mont., the mercury dropped to 18 below zero last night.

Washington reported a heavy snowstorm moving southward today with no end to the cold wave in sight.

California reported sold regions' rains, with heavy snowfall in the Sierras. Although the temperatures were moderating in Oregon, rain, hail and snow swept into that state from the north today.

Springlike weather prevailed in most of Colorado. And in Oklahoma and Texas.

In Missouri and Kansas the weather was gradually becoming milder after the recent heavy snowstorm.

MURDERED WOMAN WAS MARRIED ONLY WEEK

LOWELL, Mass., Jan. 27.—(AP)—Mrs. Christopher Cullen, whose bullet-ridden body, found Saturday in a Hingham field, was identified today by relatives, was 35 years old and had lived in Lowell for sometime. Her maiden name was Cora Jacques. She had been employed at various times by the Lawrence Manufacturing company, later as a box maker and more recently as a waitress, having worked in a roadhouse near Manchester, N. H. Relatives here say she had known her husband for six months and that they were married here on last Sunday.

The last word which they received from her was a letter, apparently written on Thursday and received here Friday, which said that Mrs. Cullen and her husband would visit Lowell over the week end, planning to arrive here Friday night.

Mrs. Cullen leaves two sisters, Mrs. Bertha Murphy and Mrs. John La Rock and one brother, Arthur Jacques in this city.

FEATURES OF THE NEW FORD

SERVICE

"IT HAS always been our belief that a sale does not complete the transaction between us and the buyer, but establishes a new obligation on us to see that his car gives him service. We are as much interested in his economical operation of the car as he is in our economical manufacture of it.

"For that reason we have installed a system of controlled service to take care of all Ford car needs in an economical and improved manner. We wish all users of Ford cars to know what they are entitled to in this respect, so that they may readily avail themselves of this service."

Henry Ford

Safety

ONE of the outstanding features of the new Ford is its mechanical, internal-expanding six-brake system.

This is unusually reliable and effective in action because the braking surfaces of all six brakes are fully enclosed. There is no possibility of mud, water, sand, road dirt or grease entering the brake mechanism or getting between the bands and drum and impairing brake performance.

The use of steel forgings wherever there is a possibility of wear in the chassis of the car, the sturdy steel body construction, balance, ease of operation and control and a Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield are other important safety features.

Comfort

You have a feeling of mental comfort in driving the new Ford because you are sure of its mechanical reliability. No matter how long the trip or rough or devious the roadway, you know it will bring you safely, quickly to the journey's end.

Physically, too, you will feel fresh and relaxed in the new Ford because it is such a roomy, comfortable car. Seats are wide and deeply cushioned, with backs designed to conform to the curves of the body.

Even on comparatively rough stretches, there are no hard bumps or jolts, nor exaggerated bouncing up and down. The four Houdaille hydraulic shock absorbers and transverse springs take up or absorb the force of every unevenness in the road before it reaches the body, frame and chassis of the car.

Reliability

The new Ford is reliable in performance because of its carefully planned simplicity of design and the enduring quality that has been built into every part.

Throughout, it has been made to give you many thousands of miles of pleasant, enjoyable motoring at a minimum of trouble and expense. From every part of the world come letters from Ford owners commenting on this reliability, and giving specific data on unusual performance.

Thousands of the new Fords have been driven more than 50,000 miles in the past year. Some, used night and day, have passed the 100,000-mile mark. There is no telling how far they will go. The average life of the Model T was seven years. We believe this new car will do better than that.

Economy

The new Ford is an economical car to own and drive because of the low cost of operation and up-keep. It averages more than 20 miles per gallon of gasoline and the cost of tires and oil is also low.

Low first cost, the security of a fair trade-in value, the availability of Ford dealers, and close supervision of service are additional reasons for the economy of the new Ford.

The cost of new parts is also low because of the established Ford policy of doing business at a small margin of profit.

Beauty

The new Ford is distinguished by its quiet simplicity of line and air of sturdy strength. Without being extreme, it has struck a new note in motor car designing. A particularly pleasing feature is a choice of beautiful colors in all body types without additional cost.

The upholstery is of woolen material, rich and luxurious, yet long-wearing. Fenders are heavy and gracefully contoured. Instrument panel—door handles—window lifts—interior trimming and finish—all reveal a quality of material and a careful workmanship unusual in a low-price car.

Ease of Control

Another outstanding feature of the new Ford is its ease of operation and control.

The steering wheel answers to the touch of a finger. Gears shift silently, smoothly. Brakes take hold quickly, firmly even on rain-swept pavements. Quick acceleration and alert speed are especially appreciated in traffic and emergencies. A space little longer than the car itself is all you need for parking.

All of these things simplify the mechanics of motoring and add a great deal to the joy and comfort of motoring. Particularly to a woman, they mean driving without strain or fatigue.

Smooth Speed

Everywhere you go, you note the alert, capable performance of the new Ford. You can judge its acceleration by the way it gets away in traffic. A smooth stretch on the open road gives a revealing measure of its speed. The way it climbs the hills in high is an indication of its abundant power.

The new Ford will do 55 to 65 miles an hour, which is probably faster than you will ever need to go. Far more important is the way it rolls along at 35 and 40 and 45. This is your average driving speed and you can maintain it smoothly, easily, comfortably for hours in the new Ford.

NO DANGER OF OUTBREAK OF HYDROPHOBIA IN WINDHAM

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 27—A definite statement was made over the week end that, provided due care is exercised, there is no dangr of an outbreak of hydrophobia in the town of Windham. Many have been concerned over the presence of a case of rabies at South Windham the early part of January when Dr. Nathan Spector, physician, and Dr. B. K. Dow, veterinarian, both of this city, were bitten by a pet dog owned by a South Windham family. The six members of the household, although not bitten by the dog, were given the Pasteur treatment by Town Health Officer Dr. Frederick E. Wilcox and the anti-rabic treatment was also given to the two doctors. The treatment was successful in all cases. Dr. Dow's report on the case shows that while the dog in question showed a positive case of rabies from which it died after being under observation for 36 hours, the animal had not bitten anyone or any animal before the time it bit Dr. Spector and Dr. Dow. A warning has been issued by the commissioner of domestic animals, however, that there are reasons to expect sporadic outbreaks of rabies in this section of the state occasionally during the next six or eight months or possibly longer. The warning asks persons to avoid petting strange dogs. A stray dog that appears in a local city, acting queerly and snapping or biting whatever comes in its way, should be reported at once to the dog warden. If the opportunity is offered the animal should be shot through the body preserving the head intact for the laboratory diagnosis to prove the existence of rabies. Likewise a pet dog which develops unusual or strange actions and bites without reason should be regarded with suspicion. The advise on this point is to put the dog into secure confinement and under observation but not to kill the animal, especially if it has bitten anyone, as this action would completely do away with every particle of evidence necessary to determine whether the bitten person needs treatment or not.

The organization of the Willimantic Rod and Gun club with the primary object of promoting fish and game life and the distribution of fish and game birds in this section, has been completed, Clifford E. Williams has been elected president; Raymond A. Parker, treasurer and G. Donald Bartlett, secretary. The social activities of the club will feature skeet and trap-shooting. Arrangements are now being made to secure a suitable location for the installation of a skeet lay-out.

Thisd city has apparently escape the influenza, epidemic and although many cases of colds and grippe are reported the situation is not regarded as serious. The percentage of illness in the city from these maladies is gauged quite accurately by taking the employment lists of factories and the school enrollments as a barometer. In both instances it is shown that absence through current illness is above average during the past two weeks. The teachers have felt the epidemic of colds and grippe but the majority of those stricken are now back to duty and sessions at the various schools have not been interrupted. At the Model school nine of the teachers were out from two to five days but their places were filled by the training teachers of the Willimantic State Normal school and Principal Frederick R. Noble stated Saturday that the situation was now beyond quickly correcting itself. Some eight per cent of the pupils and several of the teachers at the Natchaug grammar school were absent last week but the latter part of the week all of the teachers had resumed their duties and the attendance of pupils was again normal. At Windham high school Principal Egbert A. Case reported that about ten per cent of the students had been absent due to colds during the week but the majority of these were expected to return to their studies this coming week. Other schools reported similar averages of absentees during the past week.

A series of four chimnay fires which broke out over the week end will lead to another appeal by fire officials for property owners to have chimneys cleaned and tenants to use care in forcing fire drafts, these being mainly responsible for fires of this nature. The first call was at 8:10 o'clock Saturday night in a residence on Walnut street owned by F. L. Ford. At 11:55 o'clock this forenoon the Engine company No. 1 chemical truck in charge of Acting Lieutenant William Smith responded to a call for a chimney blaze at 131 Chapman street in a residence owned by Mrs. Clara Peck. This fire proved a stubborn one and required the use of 44 gallons of chemical. The second call was at 12.25 o'clock in the house at 6 Maple avenue occupied by Mrs. Laurence Haggerty and the third was at the home of Albert Harris, 120 Chestnut street, at 1:55 o'clock. Chemicals were used in fighting all blazes.

Mrs. Walter E. Thompson, 54, is a patient in St. Joseph's hospital suffering from a shock sustained while she was walking on Jackson street near the corner of Union street about 10 o'clock this morning. David Winslow Lovett, the pastor, read a paper on The Junior Department of the Church Sunday School. A supper was served in charge of Mrs. George H. Whitford and Miss Mabel Bentley.

Today's mild weather failed to materially improve street traffic conditions although the highways were reported in good condition. The well-packed surface of ice and snow failed to give way to the onslaught of a warm sun and mild temperature. Much of the snow on Main street had been removed late Friday night, however, by motor snow ploughs of the street department. The snow was carted away in trucks Saturday morning.

GOSHEN

LOCAL CHURCH NEARS ITS 200TH ANNIVERSARY

Goshen church passes the 200 year milestone this year. It was in 1799 that the church was organized and the first church building was erected on Goshen hill. After many years the building was torn down, a new site was purchased and a larger and better church was built; this building was destroyed by fire that caught from a defective flue in 1898. The present church building was erected 29 years ago. In the good old days around 1860 Goshen church had a double choir, with two choristers Griswold E. Morgan and Edward Standish. The history of the activities of 200 years of the church could fill a good sized volume.

It is said that some of the old time ballders will be heard again at an early date. The place will be Grange hall. Admission free.

SOUTH WILLINGTON

MONSON JUDGE HOLDS LOCAL DRIVER GUILTY

(Special to The Bulletin)

SOUTH WILLINGTON, Jan. 27—Miss Frances Tesar of South Willington who struck and fatally injured Earl Raymond Pratt, in Monson, November 28, was found guilty of manslaughter, at an inquest held in the district court of East Hampden, at Palmer, by Medical Examiner Jacob P. Schnieder and Harold J. Burdick, junior asoelate justice of the court.

Following is the report given by them: The body of Earl Raymond Pratt, a resident of Monson, aged six years and two months, was found in Monson about 6:30 p. m. Wednesday, Nov. 28, lying on the extreme westerly side of Main street, near the residence of his parents, between Harrison avenue and Fountaine streets. His body was found partly on the macadam and partly on the dirt side of the road. He was immediately taken to the office of Associate Medical Examiner Dr. Charles E. Jackson of Monsonk. He was found to be unconscious and bleeding from wounds about the head, and he died at the office at 7 p. m. The body was viewed at Dr. Jackson's office by Medical Examiner Dr. Jacob P. Schnieder who found a fracture of the right femur at middle third, abrasions of left knee and right elbow, laceration of scalp over left parietal bone and concussion of right side of forehead. He pronounced the cause of death a fracture of the skull with associated internal injuries and shock.

The evidence showed that the boy was returning from the A. P. store with his cart containing groceries and provisions, and that he was struck on Main street, on the westerly side at a point about 2-3 across the street when he was hit by a Buick automobile owned and driven by Miss Frances Tesar, who was proceeding southerly on her right hand side of the street to her home at South Willington. The remains of the cart, were strewn along the highway for a distance of from 40 to 50 feet. Testimony disclosed no witness to the accident except Miss Tessar whose testimony was that as she approached the intersection of Main and Harrison avenue her speed was 20 to 25 miles per hour, that she was looking ahead, looking more on her right side of the road so that she would not strike anyone on that side if they were walking, that her headlights had been fixed that morning were lighted and were in perfect condition, as were also the brakes; that it was dark at this spot, but that she could see that there were no vehicles parked on either side of the road; that she saw nothing in front of her left headlight; that she did not know where the boy came from, it appearing to her as though he had dropped from the sky in front of her left headlight; that her headlight showed up the entire right side of the cart the cart being headed in a northwesterly direction in a diagonal line across the road and its position between the center of her radiator and her left front wheel.

Miss Tessar further testified that she turned to avoid striking the child but was unable to do so and struck him with her left headlight; that she did not stop immediately for fear of stopping on the boy's body, but continued on the westerly side of the road about 40-50 feet distance from the point the deceased was struck. Miss Tessar picked the child up, holding him in her arms, immediately after the accident and she carried him to Dr. Jackson's office. There was evidence that the left headlight of Miss Tessar's car was broken, that the bark on the tree beside the road was scraped and there was a large dent on her right fender.

It is very important that the child was struck when two-thirds of the distance across the street, with no other traffic on the road Therefore, if Miss Tesar had been looking ahead and operating her car in a lawful and proper manner this unfortunate accident would not have happened and therefore, Judge Harold J. Burdick found death due to negligence and unlawful acts of Miss Tesar.

MAKING SUBS SAFER

When the S-4 was sent to the bottom it started an insistent demand for greater safety for those trapped in a sunken submarine. It brought forth scores of suggestions, quantities of free advice and a number of ideas out of which it is hoped that something will be developed in time.

When the S-4 went down the aim was to get such assistance to the officers and men aboard that they might be kept alive until the sub could be raised. It was a hopeless task from the start because of the conditions. It was not successful but later the underwater boat was raised. Since then efforts have been directed not only to perfect aids in the raising of sunken subs but of effecting the escape of those trapped.

One of the ideas advanced for doing away with the long and extra hazardous work of getting chains under a sunken sub was to have rings attached to the sides of the submarine to which chains could be hooked and fastened to pontoons. A test of this device made at Block Island recently proved that the raising of a sub is facilitated by such padeyes, though giving no definite assurance that it could be accomplished before death would claim those aboard. More recently laboratory tests have demonstrated that such padeyes would stand a lifting strain of 553,000 pounds, which tends to give more assurance that they would not be torn out by the strain placed upon them.

Further tests will probably be made to support those already made, but in addition other tests are soon to be made which should demonstrate the efficacy of a so-called lung by which it is expected trapped members of the crew would be able to leave the vessel and come to the surface.

Hope runs high that these devices will prove all that is expected of them, though they should not stand in the way of testing and securing any other devices which will add to the safety of those who go into submarines. Hope likewise runs strong that this type of warship can be eliminated, but that is by no means assured and until it is efforts must be made to surround them with as great a degree of protection as possible. There ought to be no question about minimizing the peace time hazards.

ALL HEROES

When Captain Fried of the America reached New York and pointed out Chief Officer Manning as the real hero in connection with the rescue of the officers and crew from the Florida he was determined that the risk which was faced and successfully met by his chief officer and those who went with him under his guidance should not go unnoticed. He was unwilling that his services should be allowed to overshadow the part of the subordinate.

There is no question but what there is honor enough for all who participated in that work of life saving. There is not a case of that kind which ought to escape due recognition. Those who have traveled the sea in storms know what was faced and what was required in the way of courage and seamanship to face it.

Captain Fried knew that lives were at stake. He was determined that they should have the aid of his ship if that was possible. Through his persistent search they were finally located and then came the real fight, that which was made in a small boat in mid-Atlantic during tricky weather. Captain Fried was the responsible and guiding head in that rescue trip. The 32 from the Florida might be in a watery grave today but for his efforts. But as the captain said Chief Officer Manning's act stands out as a brilliant and daring accomplishment. He and those who went with him cannot be relegated to the rear of the picture and there is happily no disposition to dim the part of the real participants. From the captain to the newest seaman in the lifeboat there was rendered service of the highest type. They maintained gloriously the tradition of the sea and whatever may be done in their behalf will be no more than deserved. They were all heroes.

TROLLEY FARES

It has frequently been observed that the price of many commodities may be greatly increased, admissions considerably advanced and other charges really boosted, but let there be no small an increase as a cent in the fare on a trolley car and there is sure to be a red hot remonstrance. Those who have been accustomed to electric service, will pay willingly several times a car fare for slightly better service, but even the smallest increase possible in a trolley fare is cause for a protest.

This has worked out in the case of the Holyoke trolley line. When a fare increase became necessary some time ago the rate was fixed at four for 30 cents, or an average of seven and a half cents for each ride. It didn't make it possible for the company to make money. It was therefore decided to change the rate to three rides for 25 cents. This meant an increase of five sixths of a cent fo reach ride and it immediately brought forth a protest to the public utilities commission.

Every protest isn't regarded favorably by the utilities commission of our neighboring state just because it is a protest. Careful inquiry into the fact disclosed that the company was experiencing a decrease in patronage. This was particularly true during the past year and with less passengers there was less revenue, with the result that it was impossible for the company to pay over 2 per cent in dividends. That doesn't represent a proper return on the investment and the commission found that the company was entirely justified in asking the increased fare.

Trolley patronage has suffered in Holyoke the same as it has in other cities because of the automobile. There are still many people who require the services of the trolleys. Unless they were to be replaced by some other form of public transportation it would be a calamity to have them go. As a rule they represent good transportation at a fair rate, but there is no reason to expect that they are going to try to render service at a losing fare. They are entitled to an adequate return and in the Holyoke case the commissioners maintain that they have adopted only a reasonable method of getting it.

BETTERING THE CANAL

When the purchase of Cape Cod canal was being advocated it was pointed out that that was a preliminary step to providing the needed facilities for coastwise shipping. It was recognized that the canal was not all it should be, that it had its limitations and that all vessels could not use it. It was necessary, however, to get possession of it before there could be any efforts put forward for its betterment. Continued under the guidance of the owners meant going from bad to worse. Government control was better but an outright purchase was the needed action in order to assure that degree of safety which shipping was entitled to and to reduce the mileage for those vessels touching ports north of the cape.

What has been accomplished by the acquisition of the canal is interestingly disclosed by the increased use that is made of the waterway. This means that it is an economic benefit to shipping and it also means that the dangers of the shoals around the cape have been eliminated from the routes of many vessels.

Thus when the congressional delegation from Massachusetts presses upon congress the necessity of making provision for the improvements needed in the canal, its deepening and its widening, it is bound to be recognized as a step that should logically follow the purchase. It is time that the canal was made fit for use by the government vessels as well as shipping. Some can use it now but others cannot because it is too narrow and too shallow. Other vessels are denied its use for the same reason and yet if it is desirable to prevent others from threading the narrow and crooked channels around the cape it is equally timely that this advantage should be extended to the others.

It cannot be expected that this work will cause the shunting of everything else to one side. It must of necessity take its course and its chances. Nevertheless the merits of such work should be and are being kept to the front for in the completion of the coastal waterway system it is to be realized that the Cape Cod canal is an important factor. Even though gradually accomplished, it ought not to be neglected.

CRUISER LEGISLATION

Upon the matter of the cruisers it doesn't appear that the attitude of President Coolidge has changed. He has urged upon congress the necessity of providing an addition to the number of cruisers and doing so at this session of congress but he takes the position that there ought not to be a rush to construct them in order to keep within the budget and prevent a deficit.

There isn't anything inconsistent about that. He has plainly told the necessity for more cruisers but he doesn't consider the demand so urgent that we ought to plunge into a big deficit to get them post haste.

With a building programme carried out gradually this would be avoided, or it would be justified if the treasury could by some method provide the necessary funds. The idea of building many of them at once is opposed because of the expense involved.

There are those who think the authorization of the cruisers is enough without starting the construction now. They take the view that another effort ought to be made to see what can be done in the way of bringing about a better understanding among the four power nations concerning the further limitation of armament, maintaining that if that develops and cruisers are cut down or limited as to number and size we ought not to be engaged in a construction programme which might necessitate the scrapping of ships, old, new or in process.

Waiting for the other nations to come to an agreement has met with discouragements and there seems to be no chance that even with the bought cruisers that we would be up to the strength to which we are entitled.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Just to make it unpleasant some are reminding us that winter may linger in the lap of spring.

The receptions he got on his vacation trip shows Mr. Hoover still has a strong grip on the south.

The man on the corner says: Shovel, slip and slide, but January cannot bother you much more.

Every day brings us that much nearer to that part of the year which is always remembered for the blizzards.

Every little intimation of winter indicates that Labrador is probably experiencing a touch of cold weather.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Use greased muffin tins for baking apples, stuffed tomatoes and peppers.

Radiators may be lacquered in colors which harmonize with the room.

Open sandwiches for the holidays may be made of rounds of graham bread spread with cream cheese and pimento strips.

For a crisp pie crust add a quarter teaspoonful each of vinegar and olive oil to the ice water you mix the pastry with.

Galvanized iron pails or other utensils of the same material never should be used for preserving, cooking, or otherwise preparing food.

Add a little sliced green pepper to creamed celery.

Eggs covered with boiled water and allowed to stand five minutes are more easily digested than when boiled.

Hot cheese sauce is nice on rice croquettes.

Tin cans, jars and other containers may be coated with lacquer of uniform color for use as pantry containers.

Make gelatine in which fruit is to be used extra stiff.

A thick slice of veal cutlet baked in milk is fine.

Water pipes will not freeze if old newspapers are wound and tied around them.

If milk is warmed before being added to eggs when making custards they will be firm when baked.

When making mayonnaise dressing have the bowl and ingredients cold and add oil only a few drops at a time.

Preserves of all kinds, more especially if they are in glass bottles, should be stored in a dark place. They quickly deteriorate in flavor if kept in a light place.

If you wish a pot roast for a small family, purchase a two-pound piece of beef for stew and cook it as for pot roast.

When cooking, if an onion is cut and only half used, cover the other half with paraffin and it will keep fresh for some time.

PICTURES MUST BE PLACED WITH CARE

Smal lpictures should be hung close to furniture, or grouped so as to form a unit on the wall.

A great mistake is to hang pictures too high, or to hang them by themselves, in a large wall space, so that they seem lost in the wilderness. One of these particular water colors was nicely set off by a low bowl of jonquils just beneath it; another seemed a part of a group of two tall slender brass candlesticks with blue wax candles in them.

Golden color, as you find it in brass, you know, is a shade that harmonizes well with almost any color scheme.

CELERY

The leaves of celery are valuable for soup flavoring. Any leftover celery leaves can be dried out in a warm oven. Put into a glass jar and keep for seasoning soups and sauces.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Medicine bottles should be kept in one place and put back in that place after they are used. Stoppers if lost should be replaced so that medicine may not lose strength by evaporation.

The most familiar dry shampoo is made of equal parts of powdered orris root and cornmeal. Another recipe calls for two parts powdered orris root mixed with one part powdered camphor. Bran may also be used for dry-cleansing the hair.

A soda bath, consisting of a teaspoonful of bi-carbonate of soda, dissolved in a basinful of water, will be most effective in neutralizing body odors. You note I have given you the proportions for a sponge bath. Consistent quantities might be used for a tub bath.

Nuts can replace butter. Cocoanut butter is more digestible than dairy butter owing to its freedom from acid. Nuts can also replace meat. They contain more proteid or flesh-forming properties than meat, fish or cheese. Their richness in fat makes them somewhat difficult of digestion and thorough mastication is necessary.

WHEN YOU TURN OMELETTES

It is an accomplished cook, says London Chronicle, that can turn omelettes without breaking them. If you cannot—and why be ashamed to confess it?—a new double omelette pan is the very thing to help you out of the difficulty. It is a small edition of the now familiar two-section frying pan, and it is hinged in the center. The egg mixture is poured into the one half and when ready for turning the second half is buttered, the pan folded over and the omelette is automatically turned and finished in the second half of the pan. This is also useful as an ordinary frying pan for cooking two dishes at once, though be it whispered that a good cook would be horrified at using an omelette pan for any other purpose.

HOW TO KEEP COFFEE FRESH.

Once the coffee can has been opened, don't let all that pent-up goodness dissipate itself into the oxygen in your kitchen. Put the part you don't use into Mason jars and screw the covers of them down tight on the rubber rings. In that way you'll keep up the good work of preserving the taste and aroma which was started by the vacuum packing immediately after the roasting, and you'll continue to have good coffee until the can is all used up.

TO SHARPEN SCISSORS.

Have your scissors become dull? Here is an easy way to sharpen them without cost. Use them to cut a piece of sandpaper into small pieces. When you finish your scissors will be nicely sharpened.

PARSLEY.

Parsley keeps its bright green dried very slowly, making an ideal color and caracteristic flavor when seasoning for white, brown or egg sauce. It can be used in many ways and will keep for a long time if properly dried.

DICTATES OF FASHION.

Very fine ribbed velveteen comes in the most delightful colors, for a southern wear, in coats, wraps, etc.

A new note in collars is one that stands away from the face, either in fur or fabric.

Silk and wool velour, broadcloth, wool crepes and English tweeds are the leading fabrics in solid color or in almost indistinguishable patterns. There is a pronounced use of wool crepes of a heavier texture.

Wool materials rather lean toward the fine smooth surfaces than rough mixtures. Fine basket weaves and diagonals will be smart. Checks in fine wool suitings will be represented too.

The evening mode is a slender, graceful one, interest centering on the back of the gown. Skirts still are irregular as to line, bodices tending toward the severe.

The deep V and U decolletages are varied with new ideas in diagonal lines, off-center cuts and other irregularities.

The youthful straight line predominates in the majority of coats destined for the spring, although fullness exists in clever insertions.

Afternoon coats of softer and richer fabrics are inclined to circular cuts and godets with the fullness concentrated toward the hemline.

After a long, long relegation to the dim dark of stodgy kitchen dresses, gingham and calico have arrived bearing a new label of smartness for spring.

Overblouses and tuck-ins, tailored and fussy ones in the restrained modern manner, these sleeveless types are not only a convenience in the wardrobe but are feminely attractive.

Variations of the pleat have returned to fashion's favor. Often two, three or more widths diversify the fulness in one costume. With the straight line frock enjoying renewed interest, pleats are an excellent means of introducing fulness.

Moire, as a fabric for costuming an entire bridal party, is quite a new thought. Dresses for bride, maid of honor, and bridesmaids have been shown all in the same styles except that the bride's gown had long sleeves and was of off-white lace trimmed and worn with a long veil.

TULLE MAY BE USED

Keep your eye on tulle for spring. It promises to make a powerful appeal to the very young and those who follow their lead. A crisp black frock at Lelong's is made with three bias tulle flounces, the top one reaching to an almost normal waistline. This particular model has the fulness of the flounces beginning higher up on the hips than most. The usual new Lelong model has hips firm from 12 to 18 inches below the waistline and sometimes further down than that in back.

LONGER LINES WIN FAVOR

The choice of models from the Worth mid-season collection, first shown early in November by private clients and the smartest of the New York shops, presages the new line and silhouette for spring and summer. For that reason it is interesting that evening gowns shown by fashionables of Paris are those which have a longer skirt—longer in front as well as in the back or on the sides—and that ensembles featuring short jackets also have proved a success.

LAUNDRY HINTS.

When laundering curtains of voile, scrim or any material which has to be ironed, if they are folded so the selvage ends are together before being ironed they will hang perfectly even and straight.

To wash your chamois skins that you use for the furniture, silver or other household things, use warm soapy water in which a pinch of soda has been added. Rinse in water in which a little glycerin has been added.

Sleeve boards are a joy when laundering baby's dainty little dresses and rompers. The tiny garments can be got at so much more easily on this small board.

Woolen garments should be dried in a moderate temperature to avoid freezing, which will shrink them.

CLEANSING LEATHER

The furniture will probably require a good cleaning after the long vacation season. You can freshen the leather furniture and prevent its cracking by using a solution of vinegar and linseed oil. Into a bottle put one cup of vinegar and two ounfuls boiled linseed oil. Cork well and shake until it becomes creamy. Apply it sparingly and rub it into the leather with a soft cloth, then polish with another soft cloth.

Grease stains can be removed with benzine or pure turpentine. Never use gasoline on leather, as this will crack it.

If mildew has gathered, rub the leather with pure vaseline until it is quite absorbed, then polish carefully with the chamois.

WOODEN SHELL EDGING

One of the newest shelf trimmings is a wooden edging, carved in several attractive patterns, some of which are almost lacelike in effect. This is to be painted in keeping with your kitchen color scheme. The difference in cost between this wooden trim and oilcloth or chintz edgings is, of course, atoned for by the fact that it wears almost indefinitely.

TEMPERATURE OF FAT

The temperature of the fat should remain the same when cooking doughnuts, just an even boil. If the fat is too hot the doughnuts will brown before they are really cooked. If too cold, the doughnuts are likely to absorb some of the fat and be soggy.

SENSIBLE CLEANING

With the splendid mops on the market she is a foolish woman who scrubs her front-porch floor on her hands and knees during the winter weather. One can get just the same result without the sacrifice of chapped hands and cold throughout the body.

MAKES THEM SHINE

A tiny feather pulled back and forth between the prongs of the diamond ring and under the stone will clean the ring nicely.

CONCERNING WOMEN

In Russia marriage does not change nationality. This is true also in Argentine, Chile, Colombia, Panama, Paraguay and Uruguay.

There are 13 widows of soldiers of the War of 1812 still on the pension roll at $50 a month each.

Despite the fact she has but one hand, Miss Mary Ranney, student in a business college at Cedar Rapids, Ia., can typewrite at the rate of 40 words a minute.

Women take the initiative in matters of tribal government as well as in courtship among the Auaregs, a strange group of people of Northern Africa.

Women in Belgium vote at the polls, but only for the election of communal councilors.

An evening school is operated in Moscow, Russia, to train working women for the army.

Several prominent banks in Peking and Shanghai, China, are now efficiently managed by women.

FRENCH DRESSING

Add a tablespoonful of relish or chili sauce to your French dressing and serve over hearts of lettuce. It results in a delightfully pleasing light salad.

PREPARING APPLES

When preparing apples for cooking, cut them in halves, then quarters and they may be quickly peeled and cored with less waste than if pared while the apples are whole.

RECIPES.

Braised Breast of Veal: Bone the veal, spread it thickly with forcemeat, roll up, then tie in shape. Braise on a bed of onions, carrot, turnip, a bunch of herbs, and two or three slices of becon. Dish onto a hot dish and garnish with rolls of bacon and cut lemon. Thicken the gravy and pass separately. Use the bones for stock.

Substitute for Preserves: Stir one cup of white sugar with one tablespoon of butter and one cup of molasses and put into a saucepan. Let come to a boil, then put in four eggs and stir constantly until the mixture becomes a jellylike consistency. Serve cold and it will prove to be an excellent substitute for preserves, which children like as well as grown folks.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Blessed Secret

Mr. Editor: Here is something I would like to pass along:

"It is a blessed secret, this of living by the day. Anyone can carry his burdens, however heavy, until nightfall. Anyone can do his work, however heavy, for a day. Anyone can live sweetly, patiently, lovingly and purely until the sun goes down. And this is all that life really means to us: just one little day! Do today's duties, fight today's temptations, and do not weaken and distract yourself by looking forward to things you cannot see, and could not understand if you saw them! God save us nights to shut down the curtain of darkness on our little days. We cannot see beyond. Short horizons make life easier, and give us one of the blessed secrets of brave, true, holy living."—New York Tribune.

I would like to say how good the Lord is, for I am proving Him myself by different experiences, to hide the future from us, and will do as the Bible says He wants us to do by letting Him, whatever comes, whether sickness or sorrow, trials or temptations, I am proving Him. When we need Him the most, He is right there with the goods to help us. I for one am glad we have such a living, loving God.

YOUR HEALTH

DO I CAUSE MY CHILD TO BE NERVOUS?

By Lawson G. Lowrey, M. D., New York City

From early infancy some children are "nervous." They are fussy, irritable babies; delicate, sensitive, easily upset children; they become easily flustered, excitable adults. Such children demand the utmost in placidity and patience from their parents.

Most "nervous" children are, however, the product of the management given them. Their parents act in some or all of the ways listed above. Nervous parents expect, and so cause, nervous children. They constantly remind the child of this. In their own nerevousness they set an example, and it is usually imitated. They communicate their worries to the child, who increases them many fold. They cannot permit the child to lead a life of his own, and either push him to the extreme limit, or do all the thinking for him.

Cultivate calmness. Do not fuss at the child. Give him peace; an opportunity to do things and learn for himself. Use your common sense; recall your own childhood; be patient and kind. Settle your worries in some other way than by passing them on to the child. Know your child; his interests and capacities; his weaknesses and strong points. Above all, be yourself as calm and peaceful as you can. If you have any of the habits or attitudes listed above, change them.

Do I cause my child to be nervous? By being nervous myself? Telling him about it so I may have his sympathy? Constantly reminding him how nervous he is? Telling other people in his presence how nervous and queer and odd he is? Worrying over his health and habits? Worrying him with my worries over him? Coddling him physically and mentally? Denying him independence of thought and action? Expecting too much from him and driving him all the time?

If you think your child is nervous, first be sure of yourself.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 — More trouble seems to be brewing around that perpetual storm center of controversy, Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, the first woman assistant attorney general of the United States.

Not that she seems to mind trouble. In fact, she thrives on it, by all appearances. And her experiences during the campaign no doubt served further to toughen her controversial fibers for the battle that seems impending.

What is indicated is an early report by a congressional investigating committee on the fact that the department of justice, through Mrs. Willebrandt, had a secret service "dick" committed to the federal penitentiary in Atlanta nicely camouflaged as a convicted lawbreaker, but in reality to do a little under-covering detecting inside the prison.

That is not at all an unusual practice on the part of the government or of state or other governments. It is one of the accepted ways of following up a case. Accomplices have been run to earth, stolen booty recovered, jailbreak plots frustrated, by this means.

This Case Differs

In this case, however, the pseudo convict entered the penitentiary without the knowledge of Warden John W. Snook that he was other than he seemed. Also, Snook and the department of justice have been at loggerheads. Exactly what that trouble was has not yet appeared. Accounts differ.

Anyhow, gossip has it that the congressional committee plans to assail Mrs. Willebrandt for putting a disguised sleuth on the trail of Snook. That is held not to be quite according to Hoyle by the committeemen, it is asserted.

Snook was called on the carpet in Washington a while back, but the purpose of his summons as then stated at the justice department to the press was to warn him sharply against being too free about divulging private and family information in relation to his involuntary guests at Atlanta. If that was all, obviously there was no reason visible for sending an under-cover secret service agent into the penitentiary without Snook's knowledge.

From Sargent?

It also has been reported that the idea for that assignment sprang direct from John Garibaldi Sargent himself. What operated to the undoing of the under-cover man was the fact that his own one time secret service colleague, Gaston B. Means, is doing time at Atlanta under sentence. Gaston promptly recognized his former brother in sleuthery, and so reported to Snook. And that put the fat in fire.

Burgess Bedtime Story

Spooky's Surprise

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

The wisest sometimes make mistakes:
The shrewdest are deceived by fakes.
—Spooky the Screech Owl.

Spooky the Screech Owl had been having a very good living in Farmer Brown's barn. Mice and Rats had been very plentiful there and Spooky had grown fat on them. He could always go outside when he felt like it, and he did go outside for a change once in a while. He went out by the way he had come in—through one of the little doorways that had been made for pigeons when Farmer Brown's Boy had kept them in the barn. But if it had been fine for Spooky, it had been a terrible time for Nibbler the Mouse and his relatives, and for the young Rats.

Spooky, like his big cousin, Hooty the Great Horned Owl, depends on his ears and his eyes. He can hear the faintest of sounds. With those big eyes of his he can see the smallest of movements. So when he hears a faint squeak, or the rustle of leaves or grasses, he instantly looks in that direction and the instant he sees the least movement of anything over there he is ready to swoop. He does not always wait to see just what it is. He has learned that it is sometimes wisest to strike first and look afterward, especially when trying to catch mice.

For several days the hunting in Farmer Brown's barn had not been so good. Spooky had been outside hunting for two or three nights. On this particular night he had been out all night. In fact, he returned to the barn just at daylight. Having been out all night, he was sleepy, and by the time Farmer Brown's Boy came out to do his morning chores Spooky was fast asleep on one of the rafters high up in the roof.

Spooky slept until the middle of the afternoon. When he awakened it was almost dark there inside the barn. The light was dim, just the kind of light that all members of the Owl family love to hunt in. They can see perfectly, while the ones whom they are hunting cannot see them so well. Spooky opened his eyes, shook out his feathers, stretched a bit and then leaned over and looked down. All was still in the barn. Neither Farmer Brown nor Farmer Brown's Boy was there. It was just the time for venturesome young Rats or Mice to be abroad. Almost at once he caught sight of something moving at a corner of the grain bin. He could just make out something small and black moving just at the corner of that grain bin.

Spooky never wastes time. What could be moving down there but a Mouse or a young Rat? It must be one or the other. So down Spooky went. You know, he flies without noise. He comes down as silently as a shadow. That is just the way he went down then. His eyes were fixed on that little black spot that every now and then moved. Just as soon as he was near enough he pounced.

Having been out all night, he was sleepy

Things happened right then and there. Two people were very, very much surprised. It is a question which was the most surprised. You see, the thing that Spooky had pounced on was the end of Black Pussy's tail. If he could have looked around the corner of that grain bin he wouldn't have made any such mistake. Black Pussy was crouching behind the end of that bin, watching for a Mouse. The end of her tail stuck out beyond the corner of the bin, and it was the twitching of the end of this tail that had caught Spooky's attention.

Now, when Spooky struck, one of his sharp little claws pricked that tail. It brought a yowl of both pain and fright from Black Pussy as she whirled to see what it all meant. That yowl frightened Spooky almost as much as he had frightened Black Pussy. He didn't stop to say "excuse me." He just sailed right on up into the shadowy top of the barn, leaving Black Pussy a sorely puzzled Cat. She hadn't even caught a glimpse of him, and she didn't know what had happened to the end of her tail.

The next story: "Spooky Becomes a Prisoner."

Riddles of Childhood

Richard was known only as "a terrible child, enough to disrupt any school." When one teacher could not live through another day with Richard, a supervisor was notified with a request for an immediate disposition of such an uncontrollable child. Naturally the supervisor wondered why Richard's attention was so scattered and why a child who, at times, seemed charming and pleasant should at a moment's notice become an unendurable annoyance. The supervisor arranged for Richard to be under observation at an institution, but the results of this observation amounted chiefly to the verification of the complaints which the teachers had made. Finally Richard was taken to the mental hygiene clinic. Here, after carefully going over Richard's history, he received a thorough examination. The doctor was convinced that Richard had had sleeping sickness, a disease which frequently causes a complete personality change in children and makes a long process of relearning necessary.

Hospitals where this retraining is undertaken are rare, but at last one was found in a distant city by the clinic social worker, where Richard could be taken for this needed treatment.

Richard then was not a little "fiend incarnate," seeking maliciously what he might take, whom he might annoy by scratching, pinching or beating, or what he might escape in school, but a sick boy in need of specialized care and treatment over a long period of time. This was arranged for by the mental hygiene clinic.

This story shows some of the specialized types of service rendered by the New Haven branch of the Connecticut Society for Mental Hygiene.

Edward Moore Admits Fabrication

The Bulletin is in receipt of a communication bearing the signature of Edward Moore of Franklin street in which he admits authorship of an article appearing in The Bulletin Saturday on the meeting of the Lodestone club with Mrs. Charles E. Hall of 12 Grove place and Mrs. Johnson, hostesses. His communication admits that the article about the club was a complete fabrication, that there is no such club, there was no presentation of a gift to Mrs. Hale and Moore's discreditable part was merely as a caller at the Hall home on a matter of business.

Moore concludes his contradiction by saying: "I assumed the responsibility of writing the article falsely without permission of the persons concerned."

CHIEF STANTON SHOWS OPPOSITION TO LARGER MAIN IN SHETUCKET STREET

Since T. Alfred Fleming of New York, supervisor of the conservation department of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, spoke here last Thursday before the public meeting held by the Lions club, he has written the following letter to Chief Howard L. Stanton of the fire department, who is now on leave of absence:

Jan. 25, 1929.

Mr. Howard L. Stanton, Chief,
Fire Department, Norwich, Conn.
Dear Mr. Stanton:

I just want to assure you of my great satisfaction in having the pleasure of being with you again in Norwich and of enjoying the meeting which we had at the chamber of commerce and Lions club. You have contributed to your city a marvelous record and one of which you may be justly proud. When you retire from the active service, it will be to keep in mind the memory of accomplishments all along the line.

I have conveyed your good wishes as requested to the different offices located here and all were particularly appreciative of your kindly thought.

Wishing you the very best for the future, I beg to remain,

Sincerely your,
T. ALFRED FLEMING,
Supervisor, Conservation Dept.

In commenting Sunday upon some of the things Mr. Fleming spoke of, Chief Stanton said:

Mr. Fleming is a personal friend of mine as you will note by the letter received Saturday morning. I feel that Mr. Fleming should have been told of some of the good things connected with the water service and the fire departments by those who had the matter in charge. He stated he had been shown Shetucket street with its 6 inch main.

He should also have had his attention called to the fact that the large hydrant at the Ten Cent store on the Shetucket street side is connected up to the large main on Main street. Also that the large hydrant on the hotel corner 100 feet from the one just mentioned is from a large main. Again in front of the hotel is a fire cistern of 8,000 gallons capacity, another on Franklin square of like capacity connected up with gates from the mains.

When Shetucket street was rebuilt a few years ago it would have been the time to have enlarged the main but it was not deemed wise as the new 12 inch main from Water street had just been laid to the hospital and the old 6 inch removed. It is not to be disputed that a new hydrant on the Water street side of the Majestic building would be a good thing and could be put in at little expense compared with digging up Shetucket street. When a fire is of such magnitude that it requires more water than is available from the small hydrants in Shetucket street and the large ones already mentioned together with the cisterns it is time to put the four pumpers at the river and let them draft water.

We have four motor pumpers, two of 750 gallon capacity per minute and two of 600 gallons per minute. We can also pull in the Yantic pumper and the Taftville pumper, to say nothing of Jewett City, Baltic, Willimantic, Danielson, Westerly and New London pumpers that can be called in if needed as we have been to all of the above cities and towns to render assistance. All of the above pumpers can be docked and draft from the river as heretofore many, many times. We have had many large fires in the business section of Norwich and the making of many more but somehow they have been handled in some manner.

If Mr. Fleming had been told that we had upwards of 30 miles of 4 inch and 6 inch mains with no chance of taking water from other sources it would have been better. I am not in favor of inviting some one in to the city every little while to tell us things we already know and are trying to correct unless we attempt to inform them how we get around the defects. Mr. Fleming has spoken in Norwich before and is a high class man and so considered by the national board or they would not have him holding his present position. A man to understand the workings and equipment of both the water and fire departments would learn but a little of their workings in three months. How can you expect a man to grasp all of the conditions which exist in Norwich in two hours and those conditions shown by some person not at all familiar with the conditions as they exist.

Mr. Fleming alluded to the type of buildings in the business district. It is true some are upwards of seventy-five to one hundred years old. Some of them to my certain knowledge passed through good fires before we had any water system. You will say, "How did you put the fires out?" We went to the river or used the cisterns with old fashioned engines. Mr. Fleming was not told that we had many sprinklered risks throughout the business district. Neither was his attention called to the many high class buildings all having been built inside of 25 or 30 years. The Shannon building, the Thayer block, Disco building, Norwich Savings Society, Dime bank, Chelsea bank, Thames bank and many other good things happened in Old Norwich. I do not know whether Mr. Fleming's attention was called to three new schools we have built in the past few years all as near fire proof as it is possible to make them. In his talk on hazards in schools he was absolutely right, but are we not trying to correct all these things when we build new school buildings? We are just as apt to have fires in Norwich as in other cities but if constant attention to the hazards that exist continue in the future as well as in the past and I know they will be I do not see why Old Norwich will not continue to have small losses and show its interest in fire prevention and safety to life as it has in the past.

As to insurance and its cost, Norwich is in Class B, in so far as dwellings are concerned. Mercantile buildings are rated according to their hazards by the Dean system already in effect throughout New England.

Theaters and picture houses are largely under the jurisdiction of the state police department although if we see anything wrong we do not hesitate to have things corrected. The fire department does not have time to megaphone from the house tops what it is constantly doing to try and prevent fires, but the record stands.

When the water is turned into the mains from the new Deep River reservoir we should have at least 25 pounds additional pressure on the hills of the city, and if all the small mains leading to the hill sections are changed we will have an abundance of water for our pumps in case of fire in the hill sections. Many things of more consequence than the much talked of 6 inch main in Shetucket street could have been called to Mr. Fleming's attention, all of which have been recommended in the annual fire reports covering 27 years with slight attention paid to the same.

I have been associated with and interested in all the activities of the National Board of Fire Underwriters and the National Fire Protection association together with other engineering societies for upwards of 20 years and have served on many important committees with their engineers and know that Norwich has had the benefit of such association.

When asked to comment on the two platoon system which was mentioned in Mr. Flemming's talk, Chief Stanton said that it was "merely a matter of finance and man power." He said that he was not opposed to the two platoon system if the city could see its way clear to appropriate the extra money that would be needed to put the system into effect as extra men would have to be hired.

Asked if it would be possible to put the two platoon system into effect with the present number of men without having extra men, Mr. Stanton said it would not, in his opinion. He said that at present there are 28 men in the department and seven companies. The under writers require at least five men to a company and if the present personnel was cut into two shifts there would not be enough men to meet the requirements. He suggested that if the city was going to make a two platoon system out of the department, it would be just as well to make it a three platoon system, the same as the police department, thereby eliminating the expense of keeping up sleeping quarters for the men.

ADDRESSED MASS MEETING ON WORLD FRIENDSHIP

An interesting address on "World Friendship" was delivered by Mrs. Jeanette W. Emrich of New York city, chairman of the World Friendship League Among Children, at a union service Sunday evening at the United Congregational church, under the auspices of the W. C. T. U. The service, which was preceded by a splendid organ recital by Prof. Lawrence Erb, organist at the church, was attended by several hundred persons including representatives from several churches in the city and vicinity.

The organ numbers played by Dr. Erb with precision and feeling included the following: Allegro Moderato, Mendelssohn, First Sonata; Adagio, Mendelssohn; Vision, Rheinberger; postlude, Festival March in A. Erb. The special vocal selections rendered by a double quartette comprised of the choirs of the United Congregational and Central Baptist churches under the direction of Dr. Erb were given in fine voice and were "The Sun Shall Be No More, (Woodward,) and "The Lord Is My Light."

Following prayer by Rev. David A. Pitt, pastor of Central Baptist church, the speaker of the evening, Mrs. Emrich, was introduced by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, who presided at the meeting. In part the speaker said:

First of all we have got to look at this world as a new world I was brought up on war stories. I was taught by my father that the greatest battle was the battle of Gettysburg and the greatest nation was Scotland. If only there had been some other way to settle the question in the Civil war. Well, there was no other way 50 years ago. Fifteen years ago there was one. Today you and I are living in a different world. Several years ago it took a person 24 days to make the distance between Damascus and Bagdad and today it can be covered in 15 hours.

If anyone had told us 20 years ago that that would be possible we would have called him a dreamer. We have ceased to be astonished at the way we are eliminating distance. You and I do not know what astonishing things will happen to us tomorrow. Our problems today are not geographical. We have come so near together that we know what other countries are thinking, doing, etc.

In the last message of the president he asked the senate to ratify the Kellogg peace pact. He urged the passing of the increased navy bill. He asked that the building of 15 new cruisers and one aircraft be considered, the cost of which would be in the neighborhood of $274,000,000. Many foreign observers see an inconsistency in that. We are talking peace and urging the signing of the peace pact, but we talk about building new cruisers. Twenty years ago the other nations would not have noticed these things. Twenty years ago those who interpreted our nation to the other nations were the representatives that were sent out from your churches. Are we the ones who are not interpreting ourselves to other nations?

The youth of Bagdad and that quarter of the world never dreamed of a larger education 15 years ago. Now they attend college over there and come to this country. There are now 15,000 students from the four corners of the earth in our universities. There is no clearer eye or quicker mind than in our universities. They are watching these things. There are as many students in our universities as the combined missionaries from our boards that are sent out. Those inside our borders studying us they are the ones who are going out today to interprete us and our Christian programme to the rest of the world. These changes we must keep in mind in the programme of peace which faces us.

The signing of the Paris peace pact means that we have taken the first step on the road to peace. We might say that the backbone of war has been broken, but the patient still lives. After the signing of the Kellogg peace pact people thought that war is over, and that you and I can go serenely on our way. I think that one of the gravest dangers lies in that way of thinking. That is the second step towards world friendship.

The third step is a programme of education for international friendship and good will. Three years ago we started a programme of peace education for children. We said Japan believes the United States unfriendly to them. You and I in some way must rise up and show them that we are friendly to them. How are we to show them?

We started our first friendship project by sending 13,000 doll messengers of friendship to Japan. There was a great deal of criticism from people about this. Japan has lifted these dolls to a high plane of dignity and they are on exhibition in promine buildings. For our second friendship project we sent 31,000 friendship school bags to the school children in Mexico. Our next friendship message will go to the Philippines.

In conclusion Mrs. Emrich said that you and I have talked Jesus Christ down through the years. We have not lived Jesus Christ. We have talked about it. It is futile to talk about world peace unless you and I are ready to do today, to do and live Jesus Christ. The program is a large one. I like to think that there is a place for you and I. It is a great question. It is so simple that our children can take part in it.

Announcement was made by Rev. Mr. Abbott that two prizes are to be awarded by the Woman's Crusade to the winners of essays on Mrs. Emrich's talk. The essays are to be composed by the children in the seventh and eighth grades and must be handed in by the early part of February. Rev. Joseph Cooper offered the closing prayer.

$50,000 FIRE DAMAGE AT SUMMER COLONY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 27—The dancing pavilion and several cottages which comprised the summer colony at Spring Lake, R. I., about 14 miles north of Putnam, was destroyed tonight by a fire that swept through the colony. The fire broke out in a boathouse and with favorable winds spread rapidly throughout the entire group of summer homes. The flames mounted high and illuminated the country-side for miles around. The timely arrival of fire apparatus from the nearby villages of Harrisville and Pascoag, R. I., saved a large tract of valuable pine acreage from complete destruction. Holes were cut through the ice and several streams of water were turned on the fire but it was impossible to save the dwellings. The fire, one of the worst in the history of the town of Pascoag, was nearly under control at a late hour tonight. The loss is estimated at $50,000.

SMALL FIRE IN HIGH STREET HOUSE

An inch and a half line of hose was laid by Squad A and about six gallons of chemical were used when the fire department responded to an oral call Saturday night at 9.45 for a fire at 12 High street, a 2½ story brick building owned by the Samuel Bell estate and occuped by Mrs Minnie Bell and others. An accumulation of papers around the heater had been ignited by ashes and the flames spread to the ceiling. Clark Fraser had noticed the smoke from the basement and was on his way to notify Engine 6, when the alarm was received.

Acting Chief Taft, Deputy Chief Brennan, Engines 5 and 6 and Squad A responded to the call. While on the way to the fire, the car of Deputy Brennan skidded while going past the elevator building on West Main street and struck a hot water boiler that was used as a sidewalk advertising sign by a plumber. The rear bumper on the deputy chief's car was bent.

SNOW STOMS SWEEPING OVER NORTHERN ENGLAND

NEWCASTLE-UPON-TYNE North Umberland, England, Jan. 27.—(AP)—Snowstorms tonight were sweeping across the countryside which the Prince of Wales proposes to visit tomorrow to investigate the hunger-stricken mining districts. The roads were turned into slime and slush by the storm, accentuating the desolation of drab districts where slag heaps hem in the long dreary rows of miners' cottages.

The prince, who will spend three days on his tour, declines to make known any plans in order to prevent any concealment of the real conditions. He intends to visit homes of miners to see for himself the hardships they are called upon to endure and to determine how the fund raised in London may be best employed for the alleviation of the distress.

KILLED HIS WIFE WITH ROLLING PIN

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 27.—(AP)—A message from the police at New Rochelle, N. Y., saying a Philadelphia man had confessed to the military authorities at Fort Slocum that he had slain his wife, led to the discovery today of the body of Mrs. Leonard Eddy, 23, who had been clubbed to death with a rolling pin.

The body, with the head badly crushed, was found by detectives in a bed in the young woman's apartment here. Nearby was a rolling pin, covered with blood.

Advices from the New Rochelle police said that Eddy, who is 29, had attempted to enlist in the army at Fort Slocum. He appeared nervous and questioning by the military authorities was said to have led to the confession that he had killed his wife after a quarrel Saturday night.

DEMPSEY STARTS TO DO ROAD WORK IN ANTICIPATION OF FUTURE BOUTS

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 27—(AP)—Jack Dempsey tonight had an anticipatory gleam in his eye as he considered his formal embarkation tomorrow upon the road work which heretofore has in each case meant for him an engagement in the ring with some more or less worthy opponents.

With the road work ahead of him Dempsey will mix business with pleasure, and intermittently doff the white collar and neat clothing of the promoter for the rough but serviceable apparel that he affects during his training work.

The question of Dempsey's return to the ring is believed to be resting with his opinion of the way which his body accepts the training, and not with the result of the Sharkey-Stribling fight here February 27.

Dempsey has not entertained doubts as to his ability with either Stribling or Sharkey, it is understood here, and when both of them chalked up victories Friday night, Dempsey laid his plans for the road work.

He took a short tryout this morning along the beach, the first since his appointment as promoter of the Madison Square Garden corporation's latic venture here.

Business thrust itself upon him today, despite his desire to get away from it on Sundays.

Stribling and his airplane entered the scene again when the promoter was advised that Stribling intends to fly here from New Orleans this week. Accordingly Dempsey dispatched what has almost become a form letter to the Georgia fighter, instructing him not to attempt further flying until after the fight here.

With that angle of the business out of the way, Dempsey was in a position to listen to reports as to special trains from William F. Carey, vice president of the Garden corporation. Carey has been advised by rail officials that special trains to the fight have already been scheduled from New York, Chicago, Detroit, Atlanta, Macon and New Orleans, and that a boat and train combination has been reserved by Cuban fight fans from Havana.

Sharkey's trainer will arrive here next Tuesday, according to a telegram received today from the Boston sailor, and will complete training arrangements for Jack's later appearance.

Carey last night set at rest, locally at least, the impression that the Sharkey-Stribling fight may develop into a fiasco such as was recorded for the proposed Tunney-Stribling affair here three years ago.

In a signed statement, Carey declared that no one holds any interest in the February 27 fight except the Garden corporation, Jack Dempsey, and the local American Legion post, which is standing as sponsor for the fight in accordance with Florida state law.

After his statement last night he asserted his belief that the Garden corporation is capable of handling the fight, whether or not any more tickets are sold.

AMERICAN CARS WIN THREE PLACES IN RACE

ACADEMY LOSES CLOSE GAME TO ESSEX HIGH

(Special to The Bulletin)

ESSEX, Jan. 27—Norwich Free Academy lost a basketball game to Pratt High here last night, 23 to 20, thereby evening up for the defeat the local boys suffered in the Rose City early in the season. It was a nip and tuck game. The Wildcats improved considerably during the second half but couldn't quite close the gap.

Inability to convert fouls hurt the Academy's chances for victory considerably. Wind, local left forward and captain, led the scorers while Chet Berghinzo and Pat Stevens did good work for the visitors. Norwich lost Stevens on personal fouls.

This was the fifth defeat in seven games for the Red and White, also their fourth straight.

MASSIE B. MILLER, LOCAL GOLF PRO, RETURNS FROM SOUTH

Massie B. Miller, professional at the Norwich Golf club, returned to Norwich Saturday after several months' stay in Miami, Fla., where he competed in a number of the winter tournaments. Massie played a brilliant game during his stay in the south and his playing attracted considerable attention of sport writers from the metropolitan papers who were in the south covering the tournaments.

While at Miami he competed in the Miami open tournament, finishing in a tie for fifth place beating out Johnny Farrell, national open champion, by one stroke. In the Miami Beach open he finished eleventh being up among the leaders until the last eighteen holes when wind and rain mussed up what was otherwise a brilliant card. In exhibition matches in and about Miami Miller proved a sensation, playing with and against such stars as Sarazen, Farrell, Eddie Williams and Jim Brophy. Massie returns to Norwich to open a golf school which he will conduct until the opening of the outdoor season early in April.

CAREY LEADS COLLEGE SHARPSHOOTERS BY 2 POINTS

NEW YORK, Jan. 27—(AP)—Paul Carey's deadly eye from the foul line has established the Princeton sophomore flash in the lead among individual scorers in the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball league.

Eight field goals and 17 fouls, registered in four games, have given Carey 33 points, two more than Penn's ace, Joey Schaaf, has rolled up in three games. Schaaf, however, leads the field goals with 13.

Lou Nassau, of Yale, is third with 30 points collected in five games. Ernie Dikovics and Mike Miles, both of Princeton, follow Nassau with 27 and 26 points respectively. Miles and his Tiger running mate, Ed Wittmer, lead in personal fouls with an even dozen apiece.

THREAD CITY ELKS GET AWAY TO GOOD START IN INTER-CITY LEAGUE

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 27—The Thread City Elks took seven out of the eleven points in the first of a series of round-robin Elks contests staged at the home here this afternoon against the New London lodge, No. 360. Final score of total points in pocket billiards, bowling and cards, which was 7 to 4, gives the local lodge a fine start in the contest to be staged during the present winter season, between New London, Norwich and Willimantic. The big sensation of the contest proved to be in the bowling in which both teams of five men and one substitute for New London smashed the alley record with Willimantic taking four points.

When the anchor men entered in the first and second strings, the pinfalls were close. Campbell, starting in the first had the lead over Dubeau. Dubeau, however, got off to an auspicious picking up four spares and a strike in the first five boxes, giving Willimantic the opening string. In the second Willimantic was behind with the anchor man playing hard up to the eighth box. Dubeau needed three strikes to win and he got them, making one of the few times that triple strikes have been made here.

STRIBLING IS BUBBLING OVER WITH CONFIDENCE

MACON, Ga., Jan. 27—(AP)—Young Stribling, fresh from his 114th knockout victory, came home today for a brief period of adulation from the home folks who saw him develop from a gawky boy into a polished fighter before he settles down for training for his greatest fight.

Stribling, bubbling over with confidence after his knockout of Ralph Smith at New Orleans Friday night, found pictures of him in fighting pose in every store window and a glad hand on every side, but the gala decorations and hurrahs for the "next champion" were reserved for tomorrow night when the city officially will pay him homage.

Stribling said today he was in excellent condition and ready to settle down to serious training for the Sharkey battle on Feb. 27. Stribling and his entourage will leave here Tuesday for Miami Beach.

Gordon Wins Title

MANILA, P. I., Jan. 27—(AP)—Billy Gordon, of Portland, Ore., won the featherweight championship of the Orient here last night when he knocked out "Rough" Dumaguilas in the fourth round of a 12-round match.

LES CANADIANS AT PLAINFIELD WED.

Manager Salisbury of the Plainfield Pros has cancelled the game with the Meriden Endees slated for Wednesday night at Plainfield until a future date to take advantage of Les Canadians of Toronto, champions of the district around Toronto. They are touring New England and walking roughshod over all opposition, defeating the Plymouth Legionnaires at Plymouth, 43 to 23, against Kiley, Crottey, Morley, Waters and Herget, which means Les Canadians must be good. Les Canadians have such stars as Hartman, Conroy, forwards, Morenz, center, Smith and Moorin, guards. Eddie Conroy at forward is one of the best in the game today and has scored 49 points in the last three games. Morenz, at center stands 6 feet three inches, is rugged and plays a great game. Morin and Smith at guards will give any set of forwards plenty of trouble for any one night. With Hartman at the other forward position a team is rounded out that will be absolutely one of the best that has stepped onto the Plainfield court this season, and there has been some good ones.

A new referee has been engaged, Dave Harper, well known professional referee of Brooklyn and New York, who is now located in Hartford, having been transferred by the company by which he is employed. Harper has been a professional referee for the past 16 years, having handled a large number of the games for the champion Celtics, Visitation club of Brooklyn, Long Island Pros, New Haven Atlas and many other clubs. Harper was recommended to Salisbury by Nat Holman, Johnny Beckman, Lopchik, all former members of the Celtics, and others.

INDIANS HOLD HOCKEY LEAD BY SINGLE POINT

BOSTON, Jan. 27—(AP)—The Springfield Indians were able to shake off the Providence Reds during the week and today they stood at the top of the Canadian-American Hockey league. Their hold on that position, however, was insecure, as they had but a point lead over Providence.

Boston was in third place, a point behind the Reds, and the Philadelphia Arrows were fourth, a game behind. The same margin separated the Arrows from the New Haven Eagles, who ended another week in fifth place.

The Canadian-American race, which has been hectic since the start of the season, became tighter than ever during the past week for but six points separates the league leaders from the team in fifth place.

The league standing, including games of Jan. 26, follows:

	G	W.	L	T	Pts
Springfield	23	9	6	8	26
Providence	21	11	7	3	25
Boston	21	9	6	6	24
Philadelphia	23	9	10	4	22
New Haven	24	7	11	6	20
Newark	22	6	11	5	17

SCHMELING-RISKO BOUT RING HEADLINE THIS WEEK

NEW YORK, Jan. 27—(AP)— Heavyweights again hold the spotlight on the metropolitan districts' boxing calendar this week.

Max Schmeling, likely-looking German prospect, tangles with the Cleveland rubber man, Johnny Risko, in a 10-round fracas in Madison Square Garden on Friday night. If they put up half as exciting a battle as did Jack Sharkey and K. O. Christner last week, the customers will go home well pleased.

Although in this country only a short time, Schmeling already has established himself as a possible contender for the heavyweight title. He has yet to meet a first-class heavyweight but his work against such battlers as Joe Monte, Joe Sekyra and Pietro Corri has stamped him as one of the best prospects any foreign country has sent to the United States in some time. He stopped Monte in eight rounds; knocked out Corri in one and trounced Sekyra in ten.

But the question as to whether he is ready to meet a fighter of Risko's calibre will have to wait for answer until Friday night. Risko, ever since a gruelling battle with George Godfrey, giant Negro, has shown signs of slipping. He was beaten by Jimmy Maloney last November and Ernie Schaaf in December in his last two starts.

In the semi-final, Otto Von Porat, heavy punching Norwegian now making his home in Chicago, battles Jack Gagnon, of Boston. Three other bouts between heavyweights complete the Garden card.

NURMI AND WIDE PROVE TOO FAST FOR AMERICANS

NEW YORK, Jan. 27—(AP)—Paavo Nurmi and Edvin Wide, it appears, are going to be just a trifle more than any American runner can handle this indoor track season. There was rather more than a suspicion that that would be the case before either Finn or Swede began to run.

Wide started his American invasion at the Masonic games here last night by distancing a mediocre field in a special 1,500-meter run. Although running on an unbanked track and against opposition that could not extend him, Wide turned in exceptionally fast time for the distance—4:08 1-5. Joe Hickey, of New York university, finished second, some 75 yards behind the Swedish schoolmaster.

Meanwhile Nurmi, with one race already under his belt, ran away from a field of nine at the Prout Memorial games in Boston, taking a special two-mile invitation run in nine minutes, 12 seconds. This was much slower than his own world's record for the distance. He beat his nearest rival and compatriot, Ove Anderson, by three-quarters of a lap. Gus Moore, Negro star of the Brooklyn Harriers, who gave Nurmi something of a test in his first race, was third, more than a lap behind the leader.

Leo Lermond, who had been counted upon to give both Nurmi and Wide a test at the longer distances, blossomed out as a miler at the Prout games. He beat Jimmy Reid, of Harvard, by ten yards in the K. of C. invitation mile but his time, four minutes, 25 2-5 seconds, was slow compared with the world's indoor record of 4:12 held jointly by Nurmi and Jule Ray.

It remained for Phil Edwards, New York university Negro middle distance flash, to provide the chief track sensation of the week-end. Edwards won the special 800-meter run in the Masonic games in Manhattan, grabbed a taxicab and an hour or so later captured the 600-yard special for the Olaf Hertzwig trophy at the Norwegian Turn society's meet in Brooklyn.

Two major meets are on the eastern program this week, the St. Joseph's Catholic club games in Newark on Thursday and the Boston A. A. games at Boston on Saturday.

ACADEMY PLAYS TWO GAMES THIS WEEK

This is examination week at the Academy but towards the latter part of the week the Wildcat basketball team finds time to engage two more opponents. Both games this week are at home, with Deep River Friday and Gilbert high of Winsted Saturday.

The locals, who have lost their last four games and have dropped five in seven contests, intend to change the situation somewhat after they get the mid-years off their chests. It was just about a year ago this time that the team showed a sudden change for the better after a disastrous first half to the season.

Deep River has a fairly strong team with Walter Linder, star baseball hurler, one of the leading lights. Gilbert has one of its best teams in years, having Beaten Wilby and other teams of that caliber.

IRATE HOCKEY FANS MUST NOT HURL POP BOTTLES

BOSTON, Jan. 27— (AP) —Angry hockey fans who dispute the referee's decisions by hurling missiles onto the ice from the balconies at the Boston Garden, will be arrested for disorderly conduct, Sheldon H. Fairbanks, general manager of the sport resort, announced today.

The drastic action, he said, resulted from the complaints of persons who had been struck by the missiles. Fairbanks consulted with police officials and officers stationed at the Garden were ordered to arrest and prosecute the hurlers.

During last Tuesday's Boston Bruins-Les Canadiens game, officials of the local hockey club warned the spectators that the balconies would be screened if the missile-throwing was not stopped.

PLAINFIELD CLASHES WITH STONINGTON THIS EVENING

Smarting under the defeat that they received at the hands of Stonington last Tuesday evening, Plainfield will endeavor this evening to bring home the bacon. Friday evening at Woodstock Plainfield just barely edged out a 12-11 victory.

The girls will also play this evening. The girls were badly beaten at Stonington and will try to even matters.

The starting lineup for Plainfield will be, Lang and Polywascik forwards, Burby center, Leech and Captain Bakanowsky at guards.

The game will be played at the Plainfield Community house, and will start at 8 sharp. Dissinger will officiate.

HARTFORD, Jan. 27—(AP)—At the New England skating championships held here today, Alfred Basiliere, of Springfield, with 140 points, won the men's title. Miss Helen Cosker, who was champion last year, easily defended her title by taking first place in each of the women's events.

APPROVES MERGER OF NEW YORK CENTRAL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27—(AP)—The action of the interstate commerce commission yesterday in approving the merger of the New York Central system with two of its principal subsidiaries has very little association with the general railroad consolidation problem.

While the proposed fusion is entered under the sections of the federal law providing for general railroad consolidation, the New York Central's merger is regarded by most observers in the railroad field as a move in a program much older than the modern conception of the probable eventual inclusion of the 260-odd class one railroads in 18 or 20 giant merged systems.

The modern great railroad was created over the last century by a process of purchase of small lives, of construction by separate corporations, and of borrowing by mortgages which identified the exact stretches of line used as security.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

Today is the day or in other words this day will inaugurate the first performance of the "Norwich Follies" at the Palace theatre when 30 local girls make their debut in a pretentious musical production showing local theatregoers that they possess plenty of ability and talent and only require the right kind of a producer to bring it out. And Tom Linton is the man who has succeeded in doing just that. The local show runs about 40 minutes and every second is chock-full of real entertainment and enjoyment for every one in the audience. In addition to the Follies there will be other acts of vaudeville including Mazon & Co., in a novelty variety offering, and it's a peach of an act too. Another good act is Raymond and Gibbs in a hokum comedy act that will keep you holding your sides from start to finish.

Skeptics looked wise and smiled when it was first suggested that local girls be recruited to take part in a local revue. But these skeptics have the surprise of their life coming to them when they see the "Norwich Follies." There will be a dozen changes of costumes and scenery and the girls have all entered into the spirit of the occasion with marvelous pep and enthusiasm. It will be a gala week for the daughters of Norwich.

In addition to the big Follies the other acts will help to make it a great show.

Columbia's "The Street of Illusion," which is the production at the Palace theatre is a colorful drama of life and sorrow along Broadway. It reveals a play within a play and presents the sunshine and shadows in the lives of the players.

The production has been made on an elaborate scale under the mastery direction of Erle C. Kenton, who has a long string of outstanding successes to his credit. It may safely be said that "The Street of Illusion," is Kenton's masterpiece. He has given to the stage an atmosphere that is real. Every character is drawn from life. The production shows existing conditions and extracts the drama from daily occurrences.

Breed Theatre

Rah! Rah! Rah! Zip. Boom! Bah!

David Rollins, one of Fox Films featured players, has gone collegiate in "Prep and Pep," now at the Breed theatre.

The picture has done more than restore the good will of the public toward college pictures of any kind. It shows the college hero who, for all his shortcomings, is a clean living youngster ready to fight for what is right. A little misunderstanding in the story is responsible for the boy losing heart in himself and he heads for the gutter.

However, with the aid of a sweet young thing of seventeen, he extricates himself from his predicament which furnishes the theme for this entertaining picture, adroitly directed by David Butler.

Breed Theatre

South pole exploration has intrigued the imagination of humanity for generations and the universal interest in the intrepid Commander Byrd and his men, in their air flight to those vast silences no doubt gave Warner Bros. the idea of creating this all-talking epic of polar exploration, "Conquest," which opened last night at the Broadway theatre.

It is well known that Monte Blue, who stars as the pilot of an airship bound to the south pole, is an ardent amateur flyer. His piloting of the huge plane is proof that his part is not all playacting. H. B. Warner is cast as the navigator. The two set out, leaving behind them the girl whom they both love, and to whom Overton is bethrothed.

During the hazardous flight, the jealousy of the navigator overcomes his lifelong friendship for the pilot, and he inwardly plans to do away with him. When the plane is wrecked he leaves the injured pilot, makes his way back to civilization, tells the girl that Overton is dead, and finally marries her.

It is months before Overton, half crazed from the sufferings he has gone through, returns.

Monte Blue is magnificent as the pilot, who, while not making the masterful conquest he seeks—is victorious over evil powers within himself. H. B. Warner's tragic portrayal of a man torn by conflicting passions and finally taking the one means of escape, is deeply moving. Lois Wilson is charming as the third of the eternal triangle.

The making of "Conquest" was a heroic task, heroically carried out by producers, actors and directors. At the Broadway theatre now.

MELHORN BREAKS TWO RECORDS IN WINNING TEXAS OPEN GOLF TITLE

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Jan. 27—(AP)—Wild Bill Mehlhorn, who won the Texas open golf title last year clipped nine strokes from par on two rounds of the Brackenridge course here today for a total of 277, to retain his crown. His score was the lowest ever recorded in the event and his first round this morning, a 66, lowered the course record one stroke.

Mehlhorn, who started in the tournament with a 75 improved steadily and withered all opposition with subpar scores on his last three rounds. Saturday he shot a 69, two strokes under par and on his final round today he made a 67.

Other brilliant golfers shot consistently well but had no opportunity to lead the Fennimore, N. Y., pro. Horton Smith of Joplin, Mo., turned in two 70's today for a 281 and second place. Willard Hutchison, Pasadena, was a stroke behind him for third money and Frank Walsh of Appleton, Wis., was fourth with 284.

Danny Williams of Shackamaxon, N. J., was fifth. Joe Kirkwood of Albany, Ga., and Al Watrous, of Detroit tied for sixth.

Mehlhorn collected $1,500, the capital prize and $25 for the low round today. Smith won $800, Hutchison $500, Walsh $400 and Williams $300. Kirkwood and Watrous split $350.

The remaining money went to the next 23 pros, a 298 being the highest score that got in the money.

Two amateurs placed well up in the tournament, John Dawson of Chicago tying for tenth and Lewis Levinson of San Antonio taking 16th.

Mehlhorn's gallery was treated to a whole aviary of birdies. He started on the second hole of the day with a two, added another on next hole, lost a stroke at the seventh but regained it at the ninth to turn two under. Coming back he birdied the fourteenth, fifteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth. On his afternoon round he bagged five birdies on the first nine, slipping a stroke over par on one hole, but had trouble at two holes on the way back, going over par on each of them. He got only two holes on the way back, going over par on each of them. He got only one birdie to cancel this loss.

His card for the day:

Par—
435 444 435 344 544 443—71
Morning round—
424 444 534 344 533 532—66
Afternoon round—
453 424 344 634 353—67

Mehlhorn was not the only player who shot in the sixties today. Al Espinosa of Chicago turned in two 68's, Willard Hutchison a 67, Harry Copner, of Buffalo, and Billy Burke, of Port Chester, N. Y., 68's and Al Watrous a 69.

Hutchison had a chance to beat Mehlhorn as the two were tied for low at the end of the morning rounds, but the Pasadena pro was unable to pull another 67 out of his clubs.

CHURCH LEAGUE OPENS AT Y TONIGHT

The Northern New London County Church league, sponsored by the local Y. M. C. A., will open its season tonight at the Y gym with three fast games scheduled. At 7.30 the Goal club clashes with the Brothers of Joseph quintet, at 8.20 the Baltic Methodist and C. F. C. teams get together and at 9.10 the Phi Delta Nu team meets the Gamma club

All teams have been practicing hard in preparation for the opening games. Each is desirous of getting away on the right foot and plenty of fur should fly in this evening's engagements.

The Goal club has kept its lineup quite secret, although it is known they have Chubby Gibbs, who was All-Intermediate guard last year. The Brothers of Joseph team, winners of the league pennant in 1928, have some strong talent and they will be in the running all the way. Jerry Goldfadden, one of the Y's all-around athletes a few years back, Dave Blinderman, who has seen service with several local basketball teams, George Goldstein, who has been on the squad of the Y Seniors this year, Leo Vollowitz and Ralph Nadelman, Zeller, Coit and Sakowitz.

The second game will find equally strong teams in the Baltic and C. F. C. outfits. Baltic is looked upon to be a real contender in this church league race. They have several well-known players, including members of both the Baltic Bentams and Baltic Independents. Probably the best known is Red Ellison, who, when at Windham, was chosen Tri-State forward. Swanson, Wilcox and Ridgeway are products of the Baltic Bantams, James Andrews is with the Independents. They have quite a few reserves, some of whom are Benker, Mack, Higginbottom, Orme, Chase, H. Conklin, Austin and Andrews. The C. F. C. will have a hard job to find players to take the place of Brown, Pingree, Lambert and Ludlow, as they, by a special ruling are not allowed to play in the league.

However, they still have Zeke Jeffingwell, Artie Armstrong, McNeil and several others.

The third game of the evening, between the Phi Delta Nu of the United Congregational church, and the Gamma club should finish an evening of action. The former team is represented by Mossessian, former Y player, Richard Holden, who has seen service with fast teams in the western part of the state. The rest of the team is composed of younger players, among whom are Cruickshank and Fox, academy football players, who are attempting the more moderate game of basketball after a season on the gridiron. Wetherbee, Tubbs, Dzombs, C. Holden and Hayden. The Gammas are expected to have their last year's five intact. Economous, the Emps mainstay, will attempt to lead his team to the league championship. Ted Vulgrics, who also plays with the Emps, T. Stavroe, N. and C. Angeles and W. Stavroe round out the team.

Fire At Lewis Homestead

Horace G. Lewis of the Boom Bridge section of North Stonington, when a visitor with Westerly friends Saturday night related that he and his son Harry had arrived home the past week end to detect the odor of smoke, which they had noticed early in the morning. Ripping away woodwork around a chimney they found a tongue of flame leaping into a blaze. With the aid of the hired man and pail pump the flame was put out as the woodwork was ripped out with an axe. A new chimney will be built to prevent any further trouble from that source at the Lewis homestead, a part of which was standing as early as 1765.

Three Cars In Accident

An accident involving three automobile occurred shortly before 6 o'clock Saturday afternoon on West Broad street in front of the Elm Tree inn. No one was injured but several hundred dollars in damage to machines resulted. William S. Maggs, Jr. of Lower Pawcatuck, driving his Chrysler sedan up West Broad street, was approaching a new Chevrolet "6" of George O. Murphy, driven by Wilfred Blackburn and which was followed by the Dodge touring car operated by Angelo Tasca, who was reported to have put on his brakes too quickly. The result was that the Dodge turned around twice on the slippery road surface and hit the Chevrolet, damaging the top and sides, also hit the Chrysler, the new auto suffering the most damage and the touring car the least. Taska was accompanied by Mrs. Angelina Tasca of Pawcatuck. Blackburn by his wife and child and in the Chrysler besides the driver were Morgan Stewart and LeRoy, all of Pawcatuck. Patrolman C. Wilson Brown investigated the accident and an agreement on payment of damages was entered into by the operators of the automobiles.

Summoned As Witness

Patrolmen Adin R. Sheldon and C. Wilson Brown of Pawcatuck are under summons to appear as witnesses before Judge William A. Wilcox in a session of Stonington town court this (Monday) morning in the liquor actions, in three counts, actual sale, keeping for sale, and reputation, brought by State Policeman Bernard J. Kennerson of Groton barracks against Joseph Grispino, alias Che Che, of 75 Liberty street, Pawcatuck. The defendant has retained Attorney A. T. L. Ledwidge to represent him, while the state will be represented by Prosecutor George R. McKenna, of Pawcatuck. The arrest resulted from a raid conducted the first of the past week by troopers from Groton barracks.

PAWCATUCK FIRE STATION INSPECTED BY PUBLIC

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 27—Open house was held by Pawcatuck Fire department Saturday afternoon and evening and Sunday afternoon, that the public might inspect the newly completed fire station on Liberty street. Saturday was featured at 3 p. m., by the presentation of an American flag by Hancock Woman's Relief corps, No. 20, Department of Connecticut. In the absence of Patriotic Instructor Sarah Vredenburg who was ill, the presentation was made by Mrs. Murray. The gift was received by Fire Chief Francis J. McMahon, in behalf of the department. While the Star Spangled Banner was played on the new department piano, the flag was hoisted to the top of the staff on the front of the new building. The tables in the engineers' and zoning board rooms at [illegible] floor of the new building held large baskets of flowers, gifts of friends of the department. During the two days of open house there was a continuous stream of visitors to admire the up-to-date building and equipment.

The cost of erection of the fire station exceeded $65,000 and the addition of motorized fire-fighting equipment was made at a cost of $32,600. This equipment consists of the latest Ahrens-Fox pumper, also an Ahrens-Fox combination ladder truck and pumper. In addition to the two new pieces of apparatus the old White hose wagon has been repainted and reconditioned and will be housed with the rest of the equipment. The new pumper is of the 750-gallon type, and was purchased for $12,500. The new combination ladder truck and pumper cost the district $10,100. A fire net, the only one in the community, is among the modern articles of equipment purchased with this truck.

The new building, two stories high, of simple design, is 66 feet long and 51 feet wide, and the trimmings are of Westerly granite. The remainder of the exterior is of rough texture red brick.

The company stationed in the new building will no longer be known as the P. S. Barber Hose company, which organized at a meeting of Pawcatuck citizens in 1887.

For the convenience of the 50 members of the new Pawcatuck Fire company, a large card room is on the first floor in addition to the apparatus room. Also a coat room, fire police office and ample room for the storage of an aerial ladder if one should be purchased by the district when the need is realized. On the second floor in addition to an assembly hall there is a billiard room, engineers' office, zoning commissioner's office, company property room and lavatories.

Alexander G. Thompson returned to New York Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Walsh, of Elm Tree Inn, Pawcatuck, left Westerly the past week-end for Boston and will go by rail to Vancouver, British Columbia, whence they will sail on a Canadian-Australasian Royal Mail Line steamship for Sydney, Australia.

New Haven Fire Chief's Lesson

Chief J. F. Murray of New Haven, a graduate of the Boston fire school, instructed about 50 members on the active list of the B. F. Hoxie Engine Co., and the Mystic Hook & Ladder Co. the other night in their first lesson which was on the proper knots to tie in ropes used by firemen for various purposes. This course is being given through the efforts of Chief Engineer Mabett and the foreman of each company, who presented the facts of the value of such a course of training to the executive committee, that it agreed to pay all expenses if the men would show an interest by attending the classes faithfully. Judging by the interest each one showed the course will be very popular. The next session will be held in the rooms of the B. F. Hoxie's Thursday night.

AMERICAN TEL. AND TEL. SOARS 13 POINTS TO NEW HIGH MARK

NEW YORK, Jan. 27—Quick-turn traders yesterday followed their usual Saturday custom of taking profits so as to be relatively free of stocks over Sunday. There was sufficient selling of the character to keep the list irregular. Certain groups and a handful of individual issues distinguished themselves by bounding ahead, but with the Street still nervous over the credit outlook, there was a tendency to cut down debit balances for the week end.

Individual honors went to American Telephone and Telegraph, which soared 13 points and closed right at its new top mark of 220. A move of this nature in a stock of the investment type such as A. T. & T. found Wall street a bit unprepared with an explanation. Numerous houses were quick to take credit for having recommended the issue to their customers, and they could show their letters and flashes of weeks back to substantiate their statements, but the tenor of most such recommendations was to hold Tel. & Tel. as an investment. There were few who picked it for a quick turn, yet it had an upturn yesterday that brought visions of former days in Radio and Montgomery Ward. The Street now hears rumors of new rights, which reports, however, could not be confirmed.

Aided by this 13 point jump, the only sensational gain of the short session, the public utility section of the list closed considerably higher on the average, and the composite average of 100 representative issues, as compiled by the Herald Tribune, gained 0.48 point for the day.

DANIELSON

P. AND A. CO. BUYS CONN. MILLS PLANT AND PROPERTY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 27.—Powdrell and Alexander, already operating five mills in the town of Killingly, have purchased the plant of the Connecticut Mills, Inc., idle the past year. Industrially, this particular transaction gives Danielson and all of the town of Killingly a prosperity thrill that few New England communities can hope for this year or in the immediate future. Something of the detail of what Powdrell and Alexander are going to do with the fine manufacturing establishment must await future announcements. No one connected with the concern, the largest operating in this town, would admit they knew anything about the arrangements today, but it may be set down on reliable information that Powdrell and Alexander will start in the immediate future to make the idle mill ready for occupancy and activity at the earliest possible moment. The forecast is that from 300 to 400 people will be employed there as soon as the plant can be re-equipped, and that it is hoped to have the machinery humming sometime in late May or June.

From time to time during 1928—many times, in fact—there have been rumors that Powdrell and Alexander had purchased the local plant of the Connecticut Mills company. All were unfounded up to the present time. Now the sale is an accomplished fact. It is understood that the negotiations were conducted through Judge Sabin B. Russell, local legal representative of Powdrell and Alexander.

There is no information, and likely will be none, as to the price at which the valuable mill property changed hands.

The transfer of property includes not only the fine, modern mill, but also the railroad siding and stockhouse, where millions of dollars of tire fabrics have been loaded for shipment within the last fifteen years, and all the holdings of the Connecticut mills west of the tracks of the N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R. Co., tracks. This tract west of the railroad and reaching north to where the Quinebaug river glides under an overhead bridge supporting railroad tracks contains many acres. Powdrell and Alexander also acquire through the purchase The Gables, a stone building of many apartments on Morin avenue, and also a portion of The Cloister, another pretentious structure for families, conceived and built during the hey-day of the Connecticut Mills company's amazing prosperity, now so unfortunately vanished, insofar as comparison is concerned with what the big corporation was doing a decade ago.

Nothing has happened in Danielson, industrially, in several years, that is so important to its future business welfare as the transfer of the Connecticut Mills property to Powdrell and Alexander. It is what in the vernacular of the times one might call a "big shot", considering all the idle cotton manufacturing plants in New England, many of them in much more important centers of textile work than Danielson or the town of Killingly as a whole.

Much of the machinery in the plant that Powdrell and Alexander has taken over from the Connecticut company has long since been removed. Much of it is now in operation at the new plant of the Connecticut Mills at Albany-Decatur, Ala. Only about 40 looms remain at the plant, these being looms used in the manufacture of tire duck, and not at all suitable for the manufacture of curtain materials, in which Powdrell and Alexander specializes. There are also some twisters remaining in the plant, and some machinery in the storehouse.

The purchase of the mill by Powdrell and Alexander forecasts practically complete re-equipment. That is going to take time.

Meanwhile there may be some announcements of very general interest to the people who live and earn their living in the town of Killingly. It so happens that President Powdrell of the purchasers of the Connecticut Mills is at present in the West Indies and cannot be reached for a statement. Treasurer William H. Brown of the concern could not be reached in Boston over the week end, but is to be here Tuesday and may, if he elects, shed additional light on the special and urgent reasons why his concern has bought still another mill in this town.

It will be recalled that Powdrell and Alexander first came into this town, less than ten years ago, and as a very small concern, through the efforts and backing of the Danielson Development association. This association was made up of business men who pledged certain sums to get the embryo concern to come here and give a bit of additional urge to local manufacturing activities. Powdrell and Alexander had an idea relative of manufacturing and selling curtain materials, and it went over big with the local investors. They have had no occasion to be sorry for the money they put in to get the concern going. There are those who criticize the fact that one concern happens to own at the present time all of the town's textile manufacturing plants, fearful that if anything should happen to go wrong with this great company, that it might cripple Killingly industrially, but that is not a universal viewpoint. There are others to be found who were rejoicing today over the fact that Powdrell and Alexander have taken over a great mill that has been idle for a whole year and has paid nothing in wages to operatives. It would be only guessing to set down here anything that Powdrell and Alexander may have in mind, as to the use of their newly acquired plant, but there are intimations that it is going to mean a great deal to Danielson and other parts of the town of Killingly within the next five years, and that must be sufficient for the time being.

Meanwhile, the Connecticut Mills is not completely sold out, as to realty holdings, in Danielson. Treasurer Victor Anderson of the company said at the week end that the corporation he represents still holds at Connecticut village several houses and numbers of house lots. While these holdings represent, on original investment, many thousands of dollars, they are more or less trivial in comparison to the manufacturing plant that has been sold to Powdrell and Alexander and to the many homes that were offered to anyone who might wish to buy last winter, and which offering was not overlooked by those who had never-failing confidence in the territory about the mills feeling that it would not be long before manufacturing activities would be resumed there again. These futurists now seem to be in a fair way to reap the rewards of that confidence.

FUNERAL

Charles D. James

This afternoon at the A. F. Wood funeral home on Mechanic street funeral services for Charles D. James, who died in Boston the past week, were conducted by Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Danielson Baptist church. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. The bearers were Raymond A. Allen, Paul Roper, George Wilson and Henry A. Myers.

OBITUARY

George LaForest

A death at the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam during Friday night was that of George LaForest, 27, of Danielson. Mr. LaForest, who had been employed by the Max Gordon and Son corporation here, went to the hospital for a surgical operation. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander LaForest and was born in East Providence. His father is dead. Mr. LaForest, whose body was brought here from Putnam in charge of Undertaker L. E. Kennedy, leaves his wife and an infant, and the following brothers, all residents here: William, Alexander, Eugene, Joseph and Hector, and his mother, Mrs. Henry Trahan.

Installs Officers

Mrs. Eva Adams of Willimantic came here at the week end and installed the newly elected officers of Orient Temple of Pythian Sisters. The new officers are: Most exalted chief, Mrs. Adam Thornly, of Dayville; past chief, Mrs. Katherine Pluze; excellent senior, Mrs. Edith Eldridge; excellent junior, Mrs. Stella Young; guard, Mrs. Lillian Ethridge; protector, Mrs. Eva Burton; manager, Mrs. Florence Bernard; minister of finance, Mrs. Myrtice Humes; minister of records and correspondence, Mrs. Olive Preston. The Pythian Sisters are to have a social on Jan. 31, when visitors are expected from various places in eastern Connecticut.

State motor vehicle department motor truck crews worked today, sanding grades and hills made dangerous by the thin covering of snow and sleet that came during Friday. It was a dangerous operation handling a car anywhere in this territory over the week end, and no one but nature could be charged with the responsibility.

A number of Danielson men fished through the ice at Black pond in Woodstock today, the last Sunday for fishing this winter, as the ice-fishing season closes with the current month.

Basketball fans got a kick and a thrill out of watching the Philadelphia Colored Giants play the Danielson Town team in the town hall Friday evening. The place was packed, but if the Giants ever condescend to play a return engagement here, it would be a grand idea to play the game on a baseball field, even in winter. The Giants are one great basketball team. Too fast for a small-time circuit, but marvelous entertainers for the followers of the game.

There is no great improvement in the health condition of the people of Danielson. The majority of them are out and walking around, defiant of the flu and trying winter conditions, but too many of them are at home and ill, a very considerable number under the care of physicians.

The personal taxpayers continue to adjust their accounts with the collector, but the forecast is clear that there must be another period of bringing numbers of them into court to get a settlement, and the cost is going to be plenty in these instances.

It just does beat the Dutch that not a soul, to date, has broadcast any claim to having seen a woodchuck running around ahead of time. This thought is inspired that next Saturday is Groundhog day, the day on which the little animals, according to whether it is clear or cloudy, are supposed to forecast the end or the continuance of winter.

The week end hereabouts appeared to be loaded with discretion. No arrests were made by either state or local police, there were no accidents and not much of anything doing—except that the holders of A. T. and T. stock made some money through a market advance Saturday and were rejoicing today.

The numbers of people, who in the late winter and spring of last year, purchased homes at Connecticut Mills village from the Connecticut Mills company were very complacent today over their good judgment. The majority of them are in a position to sell for a profit if they so desire, but it was not much in evidence today that they care anything about selling.

NOANK

VICTORY FOR WHIRLWINDS ELEVENTH FOR SEASON

The Whirlwinds basketball team added another victory to its credit when the members defeated the fast Norwich Y Emps, 28 to 15. The game was played at the Noank Town hall before a large crowd of spectators. The game was fast from the start. Noank piled up 14 points, while all the Emps could gather was 2 points. The Whirlwinds slowed down in the second half but out-scored the Emps 14-13. This was the Whirlwinds' 11th victory in 13 games. Lineup for the Whirlwinds: Rf, Robertson; lf, Chesbro; c, Bracci; rg, Marks; lg, Buddington; Sweet and Butson, substitutes. Bracci was high scorer for Noank with 10 points. For the Y Emps, Murphy held the honors, with 5 points. The officials were: Referee, Fitzpatrick; scorer, H. Robertson, and timer, E. Ellis.

Gorden Clarke is confined at his home, ill with grip.

Miss Josephine Fulton has returned to her home in Waterbury, after spending a few weeks at the home of her sister, Mrs. Emelio Falconi.

Edward Rollins is ill at his home on Prospect Hill.

Edmund Ellis, Bernard Carson, Amos Banks and Lou Burchard, who have been employed by the Providence Wrecking Co., taking up the rails of the C. & S. Traction Co., have completed their duties.

The picture, Lest We Forget, given at the Baptist church Thursday evening, was well attended and greatly enjoyed. Mrs. Elizabeth Hobart sang a solo and Mr. Pardee, of New Haven, gave an interesting talk on the Evil of Alcohol.

Miss Mabel Ellis, of Pearl street, entertained a few friends from Mystic Thursday evening. After an enjoyable evening was spent, refreshments were served. Those present were Miss Margaret Walsh, Miss Mildred Ferguson, Miss Roberta Williams, Miss Evelyn Ferguson and Miss Viola Ellis.

HAMPTON

Miss Edith May Pearl has completed the training course at the New Haven hospital and is at her home here for a time.

Asa Burdick and Byron Colvin appraised the property of the late Lyman Baker Jan. 26. Dwight Phillips has been appointed executor.

Miss Marion Mills, county 4-H club leader, met the program committee and the club leader at the home of Carl Jewett, Thursday evening, for the purpose of making out the program for the Clubsumoo club for the coming year.

Little River Grange held installation ceremonies Friday evening. Mr. Adams of Groton was the installing officer. A supper was served.

The January meeting of the Home and School club will be omitted this month.

PUTNAM

COLUMBIAN PLAYERS PRESENT PLAY TO LARGE AUDIENCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 27—The Columbian players gave their third annual presentation, "In the Next Room," Friday evening at the Bradley theatre to a capacity house. The play was jammed with mystery from the curtain raising, until the Villain had explained how death had come to two of its leading characters, who had tampered with a cabinet, "in the next room."

The roles were taken by local artists all of whom displayed unusual talent, in their first attempt at a mystery number. Michael L. White, starred for the third time in his characterization of an English butler, who as usual was fully unaware of the surroundings in which he featured. Miss Sybil Gilman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Gilman of Gilman street, was excellent as Lorna Webster, the ward of Philip Vantine, who in reality was Dr. L. Hector Lucier, a victim of the mysterious happenings in the next room. Joseph Bove, who made his debut in the first hit of the Columbian players, "Broadway Jones," interpreted the role of a vivacious newspaper reporter as James Godfrey, with a nose for news and an eye for the heroine's affections.

John M. Hogan, whose ambitions for the stage commenced as a youth in Putnam high school, assumed the role of a sleek villain and baffled his audience until the final act when he turned out to be the "crook." Mr. Hogan was first represented as an aristocratic Frenchman, who possessed a meager knowledge of the English language. He later revealed that he was Colonel Piggott, the great French sleuth, in America upon a secret mission. With this Hogan fascinated his onlookers, only to have them turn against him when James Godfrey (Joseph Bove) exposed him as being a notorious French criminal, whose wits had completely baffled the greatest detectives in Europe. James J. (Jimmy) Williamson, a newcomer to the group has carved his name upon the tablets of Putnam's show history, for his role of Inspector Grady, who investigated the murders committed in the next room.

Rogers, (F. Gordon Caffery) and Julia (Miss Edmaer Guy,) both servants, in the employ of different masters, were man and wife, and had been estranged for five years, but because of their mysterious reunion in the Vantine home, were suspected of committing the uncanny murder of Philip Vantine. Both were typical of the parts they were called upon to enact.

The final character to throw light upon the mystery of the murders was Miss Gertrude Remillard, who as Mademoiselle Charriere, had been drawn across the ocean to the Vantine home to procure letters, which if secured by her husband, would result in her being blackmailed. The madame succeeded in her venture, but at that was unaware of the presence of the priceless gems of a once famous foreign nation being contained in another dangerously and cleverly hidden drawer in the mysterious cabinet.

Other than being a dramatical accomplishment, "In the Next Room" was highly a financial success and much credit is deserving of the group of Putnam young people who so excellently portrayed the roles.

The influenza outbreak in this city is believed today to be curbed, and chances for further spread of the disease are thought to have been stamped out, according to the city health department. The first cases were discovered about a fortnight ago, when eleven cases were reported. City Health Officer Peter A. Gardner at once applied the quarantine rules, which were faithfully adhered to by the members of the sick families and today there is but one case of the "flu." Diptheria which developed in the School street section of the city has been limited to two cases, both of which are of a mild nature.

The "Tri Y" club, a flourishing girls organization of the city, and a member of the national Y. W. C. A. movement, holds its first annual dance at the Putnam mhigh school auditorium Friday evening. The entertainment while not a high school social function was largely attended by the student body and others interested in the organization. The affair was a social and financial success and proceeds will be devoted to the advancement of other club activities to be given this year.

The exact location of the six million dollar veterans hospital, which is slated to be situated in some favorable part of southern New England is still hanging in doubt, according to word received here last week. Putnam committees making an effort to secure the hospital project for this city still are hopeful that their sites will be chosen by the national hospital veteran bureau. The chamber of commerce and committee from the common council, American Legion and Veterans of Foreign War posts have been cooperating and working quietly for the proposed hospital.

The new industries committee of the Putnam chamber of commerce continues to work on its presently active scale, but as yet is unable to report any definite results toward securing any new industries to occupy the closed textile plants of Putnam. The committee has for the past several months been centering its efforts around the task of inducing a textile organization to establish itself within the walls of the long since closed Manahansett Manufacturing company in the south end of the city.

The Putnam fire department is now in possession of 1,000 feet of new hose. The hose, around which a storm center grew in the common council as to whether the department really needed the additional supply, has at last arrived at the central station. The new hose will be used with the apparatus stationed at the central fire station on Union square and at the Smith street station in the north end. The hose has not as yet been used.

Both the Putnam town schol board and Superintendent of Schools Leon M. Farrin have expressed themselves as being grateful for the invaluable services being rendered the educational department of the town of Putnam by Miss Elizabeth Francis of Danielson, as supervisor of physical education. Miss Francis is conducting regular classes in the schools of Putnam, without salary, she being reimbursed by the school department only for funds expended for her transportation to and from Putnam. Miss Francis is a college graduate in this subject, and is working among the students in the schools of Putnam for experience. At a recent meeting of the school board her work was highly complimented.

An exceptionally light session is expected this year by the board of relief when they convene on February 1, to hear the protests of taxpayers. The work of the board of assessors has been completed and the grand list placed on record. The task of making satisfactory adjustments will be considerably lighter this year, since the bulk of the 1928 session was due to the revaluation of property.

Putnam eased away from the snowbound environment today as the temperature mounted to several points above freezing. Friday's snow storm was one of the worst hazards to safe traffic yet this season, since it was followed with a freezing rain that coated the highways with glare ice. The condition of the highways failed to bring about any automobile casualties, according to reports from the local police department and the Day Kimball hospital. The fleet of trucks of the state highway department was engaged today in the spreading of sand upon the surface of all traveled thoroughfares in this section to relieve the icy and dangerous conditions.

Several of the textile plants in this city and in neighboring towns and villages are now in the midst of a mid-season slump in business, which has tended to temporarily throw numbers of employes out of work. This is true especially among the woolen and worsted mills. Local silk plants as of late have recovered from their annual layoff, generally consisting of two weeks and have restored their plants to full or part-time running schedules. Reason for the partial suspension of business operations in the woolen and worsted mills is given as due to the sample season, when only a small amount of the product is manufactured to be distributed among the purchasers for inspection.

Local banks are now displaying samples of the new currency that will commence to be turned out by the bureau of printing and engraving on April 1. The new bills, which will be printed in all denominations will be distributed on July 1, 1929. The new bills, of which sizes are now on exhibition are attracting much interest.

Mrs. Sarah A. Joslin for many years a resident of this city died today at the home of Chester M. Eliott on Eden street. Mrs. Joslin was 92 years of age. She is the mother of the late Mrs. Chester M. Eliott who died a few years ago. Since the death of her daughter Mrs. Joslin has maintained her home at the Eliott residence.

Henry Babbitt, 82, died in a Boston hospital last evening following an illness of but a few hours. Mr. Babbitt was a former resident of Wilsonville and was one of a long line of members of the Babbitt family who for the past three score years have resided in Thompson. Mr. Babbitt is survived by one brother, Allen Babbitt, of Thompson.

Alver A. Parsons, who has lived in Putnam for many years, died this morning at the Day Kimball hospital following a prolonged illness. Mr. Parsons was 74 years of age. He was born in Southbridge, but came to Putnam at an early age where he entered the employ of the New Haven railroad, as a mail clerk. He was a charter member of the Quinebaug lodge, A. F. and A. M., and until his recent illness was highly active in Masonic affairs. Mr. Parsons, during his long term of years as a resident of this city has made a wide circle of friends and acquaintances, who will regret to learn of his death. There are no immediate relatives surviving him.

There is a continued improvement in the train service now being rendered by the New Haven railroad in the delivery of the early morning mails between New London and Worcester. Since the scores of protests were entered against the type of service being given by the railroad, the officials of the road have taken steps to improve conditions.

The chamber of commerce will entertains the champion Putnam high school football eleven of the past season at a banquet to be held at the Putnam Inn on Tuesday evening. It will be remembered that the local eleven finished their schedule without a single defeat or tie.

A penny social is to be held Monday evening at the Odd Fellows hall on Putnam street. The affair is being sponsored by the Putnam grange and a cordial welcome to the public to attend is extended by the patrons.

A blacksnake was found frozen on the steps of the fire station on Union square Saturday morning. The reptile was about five feet in length, and about two inches in diameter.

Mrs. John Andrew Kennedy of Sawyer district died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Volney U. Reed on Monday, Jan. 21. Mrs. Kennedy was for 40 years a resident of Putnam. For two years previous to her death she was confined to her home suffering from a nervous stroke.

JEWETT CITY

BOROUGH ELECTION TODAY WITH BUT ONE CONTEST

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 27—Monday is borough election day. Polls open from 2 to 8 p. m. Not within the 34 years of its existence have the offices to be filled, and party ratifications left but one electoral office on both tickets. The only contest to be decided by the actual counting of ballots cast will be that of borough bailiff, which is of minor importance. Henry Vegland, democratic and Hector Sebileaud, republican, are the nominees.

The warden, E. J. Jodoin, was elected in 1928 for a two-year term. The burgesses, auditors and assessors are elected by virtue of their nomination. The republican caucus made party nominations for neither clerk, treasurer nor tax collector, instead, ratifying the democratic nominations of John F. Barnett and Ulderic E. Jodoin.

Another condition not existing since the inauguration of the borough will be the fact that two republican burgesses' names appear on the ballot. The condition is explained in the fact that Burgess E. L. French has resigned and the two-year term of Thomas McBroome has expired. Mr. Broome will succeed himself and Felix Gullet will become the new republican official. John McDermott will be the re-elected democratic burgess, Henry E. Olson serves another year.

The greatest galaxy of amateur minstrels ever seen on the local boards, will get together in the coming K. of C. Swanee revue. Among the soloists will be Misses Agnes Gill and Valeda Boule, with John McCarthy and Charles Donohue; all have won favor in local plays. Miss Teresa McNally Elizabeth Crotty and William Shannon, the last named from Norwich, will make their first local appearance. The great and inimitable end men four will be Zeb Hiscox, Bill Marshall, Herb Thompson and top-notcher Jack Kelly, the last from Norwich, also the acknowledged premier interlocutor Chet Dudkowski.

Mrs. George W. Robinson

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 27.—Mrs Della Soule Robinson, 73, widow of George W. Robinson, entered into rest Saturday morning, after a long period of ill health. For three years she has been cared for most faithfully by Mrs. Minnie Hobart and Mrs. Carrie Waters at Mrs. Waters' home in Lisbon. Too much cannot be said in appreciation of their devotion and of the unremitting attention given by Mr. and Mrs. F. E Robinson to Mrs. Robinson's welfare. Mrs. Robinson was born in Jewett City June 2nd, 1855, the daughter of Dr. William and Harriet Hall Soule. In her younger days she taught school in New Baltimore, N. Y., and for four years in Griswold. She married in 1878 George W. Robinson, living in Willimantic for nine years, spending the rest of her life in Jewett City and Lisbon. Mr. Robinson died three years ago. There were two children, Helen, who died in infancy, and Clarke, who died at 24 years of age, as the result of an accident. Mrs. Robinson united with a class of 25 with the Second Congregational church 57 years ago, during Rev. Jeremy Tuck's pastorate. She was a member of the Ladies' society of the church, and a Sunday school teacher until her health began to fail. The older residents here remember well the entertainments she and her sister, Mary, arranged with such ability and conducted for the benefit of the church. She was a member of the C. E society and held several offices in which she served faithfully. She was particularly interested in the Missionary society and had acted as president, vice president and secretary of the organization. She was made a life member of the W. B. F M by the local society.

The marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Robinson was the first to be performed in the present Congregational church. She was a charter member of Doreas circle of The King's Daughters. She was well known to The Bulletin's Social Corner family as Delish Deal. Mrs. Robinson's passing takes away the last member of the Soule family who have lived in Jewett City nearly one hundred years. A half-sister, Mrs. Edward Cady lives in Oxford, Mass., and a number of nephews and nieces survive her. The Soule family was of Pilgrim descent, Mrs Robinson being a direct descendant of George Soule one of the Mayflower pilgrims, and the 26th signee of the famous compact of November 1620, at Plymouth. Her ancestry extended back to Revolutionary war times in three lines, including the Clark, Hall and Soule families.

MRS. ANDREW COMAGER WOULD HAVE BEEN 95 IN APRIL

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 27—Mrs. Althea Comager died Saturday evening at the home of her sons, George and Simon.

Mrs. Comager would have been 95 in April and besides being the oldest resident of Griswold, was one of the oldest persons in this end of the state. While a member of no church, she has been for years quite regularly identified with the worshippers at the Baptist and Methodist churches.

For many years she was an attendand at the summer camp meeting services at Willimantic. Mrs. Comager survives her husband, Andrew Comager. He was a member of the G. A. R., and fought in a northern regiment. Previous to the breaking out of the Civil war, he was a slave on a southern plantation. He was a man of giant stature and for many years, on Memorial day he proudly carried the colors during the local celebrations.

Mrs. Comager was very proud of a Revolutionary descendant in the person of Philo Phillips, whom records at the pension office in Washington declare, was a volunteer in a Rhode Island company. She was eligible through this line to have been enrolled in the D. A. R.

In spite of age, she possessed such a marked degree of vigorous health, that on recent summers she enjoyed with friends many trips berrying, filling her pail and keening pace with those in the party whom she could tell of seeing three score years pass before they were born. Her surviving brothers are Hosea and Samuel Whitford and her children are George, Mary, Charles, William, Belle, Fred Oliver and Simon 5 grandchildren, 18 great-grandchildren.

OVERSEER JOHN JACOBS HAS COLLARBONE BROKEN

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 27—John Jacobs has a broken collarbone and is badly bruised as a result of the upsetting of his automobile Saturday. He was driving alone toward Providence when in Scituate the machine suddenly ran up a bank and in falling back turned over several times. A farmer happening to witness the accident extricated Mr. Jacobs from the wreck and a state trooper from the barracks nearby brought him to his home in Jewett City. The machine was towed to Miller's garage. The steering wheel was found to be broken, which is supposed to have caused the mishap. Mr. Jacobs is overseer of the finishing department in Aspinook bleachery.

The committee in charge of the food sale Friday held under the auspices of the Congregational Ladies' society was Mrs. Abraham Zegeer, Mrs L. G. Buckingham and Mrs. W. H Payne.

POETRY

Who Loves, Lives Not in Darkness

Who loves, lives not in darkness nor in gloom,
And on each bough a bird is singing clear,
And all earth's quickenings are in his ear
As music, for his happy heart hath room
For beauty, and in his glad eyes the bloom
And bud of nature lovely doth appear;
Seeing with vision of such charm and cheer
As cleaves the darkness and survives the tomb,
Who loves, hath heavenly hosts at his command,
That reckon not with matter nor with time;
That in the mortal the immortal find,
To him they trust, led by an unseen hand,
Eternal realms where spirit is sublime,
And love hath God, and God hath love enshrined.

—Grace Wight Buckle, in Boston Transcript.

Sleigh Bells in Early Morning

After the ceaseless whir and monotone
Of scudding motors with their raucous cries,
The trolleys' strident intermittent groan
Broken by shrieks and harsh cacophonies;
How bright and lightsome are the sleigh bells clear
Chiming in the crips air of morning early,
A soothing music that beguiles the ear,
After the harsh, unmeaning hurly-burly.

No two alike: This one more slowly ringing
The sleepy horse still drowsy—snow-clogged feet.
But yonder clouds of powdery snow outflinging
The eager hoofs dance in proud rhythmic beat.

Thoughts of old winsome days are echoing
In those keen bells, though now the humble sleigh
May be the little tradesman's come to bring
The simple necessaries of the day.

But oh, the picture! silken tassels red,
And cheeks as red stung by the bitter blow,
Steeds prancing, gay bells on each tossing head,
Pouring their silver on the crystal snow?

—Charlotte F. Babcock, in Christian Science Monitor.

At the last meeting of Plainfield grange, the master, Elmer Greene, in the chair, a large number was present. Canterbury grange degree team conferred the first and second degrees on a class of four. The master gave a report of the State grange meeting in Bridgeport, which was listened to with much interest. The next meeting will be held Feb. 5, at which time the third and fourth degrees will be given candidates. The work will be done by the degree team of Plainfield. Lunch was served by a committee of three, Mrs. Elmer Greene chairman.

Miss Nellie Sullivan, of Central Village, is ill.

TECH GIRLS START AT MORE THAN $30 WEEKLY

PITTSBURGH, (AP)—Young women from the Carnegie Institute of Technology are running the men a close race in salaries earned the first year out of college, with an average of a little more than $30 weekly, against a fraction above $36 for the men.

The institute has a bureau of recommendations, under John D. Beatty, and keeps records of the students whom it helps to place in employment.

"Sixty-nine of the women graduates," Mr. Beatty reports, "were placed by the bureau in jobs valued at $112,092. Work taken by the co-ed graduates included jobs as dieticians, demonstrators, interior decorators, scientific assistants, secretaries, social workers and teachers. Of the male members of last year's graduating class 194 were placed in jobs valued at $388,878 a year."

FRENCH CIVILIZATION STUDIED BY AMERICANS

PARIS (AP)—For the sixth successive year a group of American students is studying at the Sorbonne with no more cost to them than they would incur at their local universities in the United States.

Equalization of their expenses is taken care of by the University of Delaware, which arranges the course with subsidies granted the college by Pierre S. DuPont, an American of French antecedents interested in bringing the United States and France to a closer understanding of their mutual civilizations.

While the University of Delaware group is in Paris, its members pledge themselves to live as nearly as possible in the French manner.

WOMEN ASKED TO CHECK CANADIAN EMIGRATION

TORONTO, Ont. (AP)—Women have been asked to help check the exodus of young Canadians from their country.

The committee of immigration of the Women's Institutes has asked members of branch organizations to take up the problem of keeping young people within the country's borders.

Suggestion was made that the Women's Institutes strive to bring about the introduction of a system of vocational guidance. The plan considered is not one for vocational training, but a method of assisting young persons to find in Canada an occupation for which they are suited.

THIEF WHO STOLE NEW LONDON CAR BANGED INTO TREE NEAR HOSPITAL

George W. Chapin, 43 Perry street, suffered from the meanness of an automobile thief Saturday night, and although his machine has been recovered it had been badly damaged prior to being abandoned. Chapin parked the auto on Montauk avenue Saturday night and when he returned to the location where he had left it the car was missing. Chapin reported the theft of the car, a Hudson, at police headquarters, but no trace of it was found, although it was abandoned on Pequot avenue about 1:30 o'clock this morning. An investigation by the police today revealed that the automobile collided with a tree in front of Home Memorial hospital and the crash was heard by one of the nurses, who looked through a window and observed a man alight from the car after his efforts to start the engine proved unsuccessful.

LAWRENCE FOWLER CLAIMS NO FRAUD INTENDED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 27—Lawrence Fowler, insurance solicitor, who was arrested Friday night by State Police Officer William MacKenzie, charged with forgery, will be presented in the Groton town court Monday. He is at liberty, having secured a surety on his bond of $1,000. Fowler was arrested on a warrant issued by Prosecuting Attorney Harry Brogan and upon complaint of officials of the American Legion at Hartford. He is adjutant of the local legion and as such received five checks, of the face value of $17 each, which checks were to have been paid to Groton residents, who are entitled to benefits weekly from the legion. It is the claim that last week the checks were received by Fowler and that he endorsed the signatures of the payees on each of the checks, but that the money was not paid them. When the matter was brought to the attention of legion officials the complaint, which resulted in Fowler's arrest, was made to Prosecuting Attorney Brogan. Fowler admits having received the checks and to having endorsed them, but denies any misappropriation of the moneys. He declares that he was authorized by the payees to endorse the signatures of the beneficiaries and that the money was expended for groceries and the like which had been supplied the war veterans.

Charles McKeon of Oakdale, was arrested Friday afternoon by Traffic Officer [illegible] Savanaugh charged with violating the traffic rule in passing a red light of an automatic signal, corner of Bank and Howard streets. McKeon was ordered to appear in the police court Monday.

Falvey went to the Firemen's lunch room, Bank street where he created a disturbance. When remonstrated with he became abusive. The police were requested to take charge of Falvey and he was arrested by Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin and Patrolman George Cockell. Falvey obtained a surety on his bond of $50 for his court appearance.

Mrs. John Cavanaugh, wife of Detective Sergeant Cavanaugh, is confined to her home on Montauk avenue by illness.

At the Y. W. C. A. there will be a current events lecture Tuesday afternoon, an address in the course of mental hygiene and an exhibition of hooked rugs Wednesday.

Fidelity chapter, Order of Eastern Star held a social at the home of Mrs. Frederick Zepp of Williams street at the week end. Bridge was played by some of the members while others devoted their time to sewing. Refreshments were served by the hostess.

Members of the Kwarterante Bridge club were entertained recently at the home of Mrs. Vincent T. Ryan of 835 Bank street. The prizes were won by Mrs. John J. Boyle and Mrs. Alexander McPhail.

Rev. Charles E. Spaulding, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church has returned from Boston where he has been visiting friends for several weeks. While in that city he gave an address at the Kenmore hotel before an audience of more than 300. He illustrated his talk, which was regarding South America, with slides and moving pictures of the route followed by President-elect Hoover in his recent tour.

At a bonnet and necktie party held in Eagles hall by members of the auxiliary to the Master Plumbers association, a large number was present. The chief entertainment of the evening was in the making of bonnets by the men for the women present while the latter made ties for the men. Later bridge and pinocle were enjoyed and refreshments were served.

Miss Agnes Winslow was hostess to members of the Annie Laurie club at the week end at her home in Union street. The feature of the evening was the serving of a Scotch Haggis supper in honor of the birthday of Robert Burns, following which Miss Winslow presented a $5 gold piece to Mrs. E. G. Blake, in appreciation of her services as treasurer during the past year. Songs and recitations provided entertainment.

Two drunks were landed in the police dragnet Saturday evening and will be among those presented in court Monday. One was found on Main street by Patrolmen Elwood Bailey and Harry Watterson and the other was arrested on Bank street by Traffic Officer John Courtney.

POETRY FOR THE WIDEAWAKES

Play the Game

When the umpire calls you out,
It's no use to stamp and shout,
Wildly kicking dust about,
Play the game!
And though his decision may
End your chances for the day,
Rallies often end that way,
Play the game!

When the umpire shouts: "Strike two!"
And the ball seemed wide to you,
There is just one thing to do:
Play the game!
Keep your temper at the plate,
Grit your teeth and calmly wait,
For the next one may be straight,
Play the game!

When you think the umpire's wrong,
Tell him so, but jog along;
Nothing's gained by language strong,
Play the game!
For his will must be obeyed
Wheresoever baseball's played,
Take his verdict as it's made,
Play the game!

Cow-Bells

O what is there behind the hills,
That all the bells must know?—
Over in all the light that fills
The Valley with that glow?

I followed a bell, and it all came true;
Some down, and a yellow-bird:
And Cedars—oh!—and specked with blue;
And everything else I heard.—

Only whatever it is beside
The bell with the farthest call:
The one I follow and never find,
The loveliest one of all!

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

A sudden falling off of the letters from the members of the Wide Awake circle was noticed by Uncle Jed about Christmas time. The holidays were evidently responsible for this lact of interest by the members, who apparently were engaged in their Christmas shopping and other matters that come up at this time of the year. Now you are back again in the school room and have ample opportunity in the evening to write in short letters, which may not be of interest to you, but are eagerly looked forward to by the other members.

Sometimes the members of the circle prepare letters for Uncle Jed for probably a little more than three months and then stop writing. Oftentimes a writer becomes discouraged because he does not receive a prize book as often as he thinks he ought to. You must remember that there are many members and that a book can not be won by every member every time he sends in a letter. In time you will be the fortunate one and receive a book.

A number of writers compose letters and fail to sign the article, thus leaving him as a winner of a book. Sometimes the story is very good and is deserving of a prize, but the rules of the circle prevent Uncle Jed from picking the writer as a winner. Always remember to write plainly, on one side of the paper and sign your name, address and age at the conclusion of the article. An article written in this way and being original stands a much better chance of winning a book than one that is not. This warning is again given by Uncle Jed as he has received several letters of late without being signed or written illegibly.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

A Visit to Germany

Dear Uncle Jed: I arrived at Hamburg, Germany, about a week ago after a stormy voyage. My parents and I started from New York and sailed for five days. I was glad when it came to an end.

Hamburg, as you know, is the largest port in Germany. A steamer trip on the Elbe and in the port gives us the best idea of the wonders of Hamburg, one of the most important places for trade in the world, connected by railway with every part of Europe. We also visited many places of interest.

After spending two days in Hamburg, we left for Berlin. It was a pleasant journey to the capitol. Here we saw many beautiful universities and public buildings which we greatly admired. We visited one of the many factories in which they manufacture guns and bullets.

The German people are very kind to us. We greatly appreciate this.

On the following morning, after having a breakfast of black bread, wine and other course foods, we resolved to visit Leipsig. Leipsig, as we learned in school is a seat of book trade, and lenses for telescopes and microscopes are made for the whole world.

At the city of Essen, situated on the Rhine, we visited the great Krupp steel works. I was astonished at the sight of the large guns and bullets. Krupp's factory alone employed 30,000 people and for miles around are growing towns, with tall, smoking chimneys, reminding us of Pittsburgh in our own country.

The next day we all agreed to take a trip to Germany's ancient, greatest perfume city of Cologne. Here we visited its greatest cathedral, which is one of the most magnificient Gothic structures in the world and costs $10,000,000.

We are having a really wonderful time in Germany. I cannot tell you about all the things I saw because it would take too long.

Winter Sport

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the third letter I have written to you. Now I am about to tell you about my winter sport. In the morning we leave for school, and when we reach it my dear teacher is not there, so we go out of the room and go to the next lot to our school house. There we go sliding on our sleds and the most fun of all is to get a bunch of girls and a bunch of boys together and then we fight against the boys. The boys are afraid of us and start to say that their hands are cold and that they cannot make any more snow balls. When the bells ring for us to go into school we can hardly wait for recess to come. When night comes we hurry home to go sliding. We have a very good place to slide. We play till dark, then we get the wood for our mother and then go in for the night.

My School Room

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my second letter I have written to you. I am going to tell you about my school room. It is a big room and has seven blackboards. We have 22 children and the teacher's name is Miss E. T. Cronin. I am in the fourth grade. My room is the most pleasant room I have ever been in and I like it the best. It has many pictures. The school where I go to is called Dublin.

We face north—that is, the children. The teacher faces the south. Her desk is facing the children. We all love our teacher.

Feeding the Birds

Dear Uncle Jed: One day after it rained I saw a pair of blue-jays in the yard hunting for their breakfast. I threw some corn to them. The next morning they came again and brought two other ones. And the next morning there were six of them. I fed them for a month, and they came every morning.

One morning instead of just the blue-jays coming, a big block of sparraws came and drove them away. The next day they came again and drove them away a second time. The blue-jays never came again.

Had Bad Habit

Dear Uncle Jed: There was a little girl who had a bad habit. Every time her mother used to send her to the store to get something she always forgot what she wanted. She came back home for the second time. Her mother told her again and she went to the store and forgot again. Her mother couldn't send her any place because she didn't have any memory. The next day it was her birthday and she was to have a party after school. She reminded her mother not to forget to invite her friends. But her mother, in order to punish her, did not invite her friends, and when the girl came back her friends weren't there. She asked her mother if she had invited them and her mother said, "I forgot." Since then the little girl has mastered her fault and has never forgotten again.

Kicked by a Horse

Dear Uncle Jed: I wrote to you before. I hope you and the Wide Awakes enjoy reading my story. The name of my story is The Kicking Horse. I spent my Christmas at my grandfather's farm. My grandfather had three horses. Two of the horses I knew very well but one always tried to kick me. One day my grandfather sent me to the grain stre to tell the man to bring some oats. My grandfather let the horses out to get a drink. While I was walking the horse recognized me. He jumped over the fence and ran after me. I couldn't run so I stopped. The horse gave me a kick. Before I felt the pain I awoke and found myself in bed.

A Dream

Dear Uncle Jed: I have written to you before and enjoy writing. I am going to tell you about a dream that came true.

I dreamed that one morning my father told me that we were going for a visit to New York. I felt so glad. Although I loved the country I felt so glad to think I was going to see the strange animals in the park, and see the pretty streets nd other beautiful things.

When I awoke in the morning father and mother were down stairs, dressed quickly and went down stairs. At breakfast I told my mother and father about my dream. They started to smile. Then my father said, "I must tell my secret, and it is that Thelma's dream is true."

I felt very glad to think my dream came true, because it is very seldom that a dream comes true.

My Jack Knife

Dear Uncle Jed: I am now going to tell you what an advantage it is to have a jack-knife. One morning when I got up I saw a small package on the pillow. I wondered what it was so I picked it up and on the wrapper it said: "To Master Benjamin Kerachsky." I tore the wrapper off as quickly as I could. Under the wrapper there was a box. When I opened the box I was overjoyed. It contained a good sized jack-knife.

I dressed quickly and ran downstairs. I showed my mother the box which I had found and asked her who had presented it to me. She said that she knew nothing about it. I asked all the members of the household the same question, but received no better answer. Seeing that they would not tell me what I wished to know, my curiosity had to be left unsatisfied.

I highly prized the gift because it was a very useful tool. I often spend my time in whittling. One day I decided to make a bow and arrows. With the help of the jack-knife my wish was soon fulfilled. Now a was happy because I had longed for a bow and arrows. There are many other toys that I made with the jack-knife.

I think that a jack-knife is one of the best gifts that a country boy can get.

A Trip to Indian Rock

Dear Uncle Jed: On Christmas, when we had a week and two days' vacation from school, my brother took me to Indian Rock. First he showed me some squirrels' nests. They were on the top of tall thin trees. Next we saw some beautiful scenery. It was a big stone on which we sat to rest. On the bottom of this rock was a pool and and on the side of the pool was a spring. We saw some chipmunks which, of course, ran away the minute they saw us. I asked my brother if he would take me to the rock with the picture of the Indian on it. Later I grew tired so we went home. I told m brother I had a lovely time and would like to go there again. Wishing you a happy New Year and many of them.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my second letter to you. I hope you will enjoy it. Uncle Jed, I am writing to thank you for my book. I like it very much.

I have been trying to get the three books of the series. I have read two of them. The next book, if I get any, I hope will be The Girl Scouts' Rally.

I received my book today. I like it very, very much. I have told my friends about you and they told me they were going to write to you.

Jack and the Giant

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the third time I have written to the Wide-Awakes. I am going to tell you about the story of the giant of beggars' hall. Once a boy's mother and father were king and queen. The boy's name was Jack. One night a bridge was almost torn down. The king was angry. He sent Jack to the bridge. That night a giant came and tried to pull down the bridge. Jack said: "Who are you?" The giant tried to fight him. They to a castle to live. Then he went to another palace and stayed a long time. Then he went in a bag and went to another palace. When he got there the bag burst and Jack jumped out.

The giant said: "You are the first man in my castle." Jack stayed one years and one day he said "I must go." The giant gave him a wishing cup and he wished himself at home and he was there.

First Skating Lesson

Dear Uncle Jed: I am a boy of 13 years of age. My name is John Boluck. I would like to correspond with you. This is my first letter to you. I will write and tell you about my first skating lesson.

I bought a pair of skates last year, so I thought that I would try my first lesson. I came down to the pand. I put on my skates and tried to skate. What do you suppose happened? Well I will tell you. When I stepped on the ice I fell down. I got up and tried my luck again. Next time I went I did better. So now I know how to skate.

My Rabbits

Dear Uncle Jed: I am 11 years old. My name is Nicholas Boluck. This is my first story to you. I am going to tell you about my rabbits.

I got a pair of rabbits this year. They are all brown, but small. This is what they eat: They eat apples lettuce, cabbage and carrots and drink milk. This is all for my first letter.

Saw An Airplane

Dear Uncle Jed: I decided to start the New Year right, and write to you. I am going to tell you about an airplane.

The other day there was an airplane that circled around the school and landed about one-half a mile or more from school.

Our teacher said she would let some of the children go if we would report on what we saw. Our teacher let four boys go first, about ten minutes later she let three other girls and myself go.

We had to climb under many fences We also had to climb over a few. The boys made fun of the girls climbing fences; the girls did not mind that.

There were two aviators. They wore heavy shoes lined with sheepskin. Their heads were covered with a hat that was lined with sheepskin and buttoned in back of their chin. They wore combination suits of trousers and jackets. They had their regular clothes on under the combination. The combination was lined with sheepskin. On their hands they wore fur mittens and a black mask on their face. It was lined with sheepskin. They also had big goggles.

One man had to start the propellor going before they could go up. The airplane had to come down because they were out of gas.

The Airplane

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my second letter to you. I am going to tell you about the airplane that landed in Colchester.

One day last week while we were in school we heard a very, very loud noise. We all ran to the window and saw an airplane flying very low, almost touching the tree hops. We thought it was trying to find a place to land because it kept going around and around. In about ten minutes school was let out and we discovered from some of the older people that it landed in Mr. Bock's lot. We all went down and saw many people already there to see it. There was only one man in the airplane. The reason that it had to land was because it didn't haave enough gasoline. After a garageman brought it some gasoline it started off again. It was on its way from Hartford to Providence. It was nice to see. This is the second time an airplane has landed in Mr. Bock's field.

A Trip in the Woods

Dear Uncle Jed: I am in the fourth grade. This is the first letter I ever wrote to you. It is about a trip in the woods.

One winter Sunday in January my sister and I went for a walk in our woods. My dog, which never leaves me, followed us along or rather led us along. We had to pass several brooks which were covered with ice at this time of the year. A light snow had fallen the day before and so it was dandy sliding.

We were having a wonderful time when we heard the dog bark. He must have got tired sliding, for it isn't very easy to slide on four feet, and so he went sniffing around for rabbit trails. He led us through the woods. And we dodged stumps of trees and jumped over stones until we came up to an old tent that had been built several years ago. We followed the dog. There we saw a trap which my brother had set and it was down. A rabbit had the misfortune to nibble the bait, but he was alive, because it was a box with a wire top. We took it out, which took us a long time, but we carried it home. Now it is a great pet of ours.

Father Has Accident

Dear Uncle Jed: My father and mother went to see my sister Doris and on the way home they had an accident. They crashed into a fence and slid sideways. No one was hurt. The state police on the Hartford road pulled the car out. The machine was damaged a little. I was in the house all alone till 10 o'clock in the night, waiting for them to come home. It seemed like they had a Pilgrim's voyage.

What I Do

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you what I do on my father's farm. At 6 o'clock in the morning I go milking at 4 o'clock and finish quarter of five.

I was very sick for 4 days. When the first day I didn't come to the barn my cows started to "Moo." When I came back to the barn again I patted each cow and they all licked my hands.

ROAD CLEARING MADE DIFFICULT BY RAIN

Rain and sleet falling on top of the mantle of snow which fell throughout Connecticut Friday made the clearing of the state highways much more difficult than would ordinarily have been the case with a fall of snow of equal depth.

Work of clearing the snow from the trunkline and state-aid highways began in, some parts of the state as early as 3 o'clock Friday morning, and, although plows were still in operation in some sections of the state during the afternoon, most of the roads had been completely freed of snow by noon. When the rain and sleet began to fall, the department immediately turned their attention to sweeping the pavements before freezing set in. The rapidity with which the rain froze to the pavements, however, soon made it necessary to begin sanding operations.

Sand trucks were at work on those sections of highway where ice conditions were worse by early afternoon. With the continuation of the fall of rain throughout the day.

The highway department reported that the snowfall varied from four to five inches in depth in the northwestern part of the state to about one inch on the roads along the shore of the Sound.

SUPERIOR COURT IN NEW LONDON FRIDAY

CHILD'S SKULL FRACTURED WHEN HIS SLED RAN INTO MACHINE

Buddie Baker, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Baker, of No. 55 Freeman avenue, was seriously injured about 4:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon near the Broad street grammar school, when the sled upon which he was riding ran into the rear of a Dodge touring car operated by John Keller, 20, of No. 10 Hadley avenue, and owned by Frank Keller of the same address. The youth is suffering from a fracture at the base of the skull and a possible fracture of the clavicle. His condition was reported as comfortable Sunday evening by the W. W. Backus hospital, to which he was taken.

At the time of the accident the Baker boy was coasting down Warren street and as he drove onto Broad street two automobiles, a Ford and the Dodge, were traveling in opposite directions on the street. The driver of the Dodge car noticed the Baker boy on the sled approaching his machine and attempted to steer clear of him, but was unable to do so on account of the approaching Ford machine, the sled striking a rear wheel of the Dodge car.

The driver of the Ford machine did not stop, as he apparently did not know of the accident. Dr. R. R. Agnew, who was in the vicinity at the time, attended the boy, who was taken to the hospital in Mr. Keller's machine. Coroner Edward G. McKay was called and after investigating the accident exonerated the driver from blame.

SIN GERM'S INFLUENCE—FATHER REILLY'S WARNING

The two curates of St. Patrick's church put in a busy day Sunday. The junior assistant, Rev. John J. Reilly, read the 7:30 low mass, administering communion, with Rev. Myles P. Galvin's aid, to a large number, including a good representation of the Holy Name society, Patrick M. Coleman, president. Father Reilly read mass at 8:15 for the Italian Catholics. The 9 o'clock mass was read by Father Galvin, who also sang high mass at 10:30. The rector, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, is having his annual three weeks' vacation in Florida.

Preaching at 9, Rev. Father Reilly, after reading the gospel appointed for Septuagesima Sunday, the parable of the laborers in the vineyard, Matthew 20:1-16, took up the fact of the frequency with which Christ, through miracles, showed His power over every force in nature. Strangely enough, the Saviour in numerous instances dealt with the appalling affliction of leprosy. The world through ages had accepted this scourge, until heroic figures like Father Damien directed the attention of mankind to it. Lepers were frequently the objects of Christ's attention, so often as to excite the wonder why.

Leprosy provides a startling parallel with another malady in the life of men, that leprosy of the soul, sin. Writers of old gave most revolting pictures of leprosy. The more delicate anything, the more repulsive it becomes when corruption attacks it. So when sin attacks the soul—it is easy to realize how repulsive it must seem to the angels, to God. Adding to the terror of leprosy itself is the fact that its germ has never been isolated. So in the spiritual life—the germ of a bad thought, of a so-called smutty story, the word which must make the angels stop their ears in horror, who can measure its effect on the soul of others? It may prove an influence reaching even to the Judgment Day, attributable to the germ from an evil tongue. "I will—be thou clean," were the words of Christ to the lepers, as His outstretched hand cleansed them. Similarly, He would cleanse us; but it rests solely with the human heart, with the human resolve, to become pure as Christ would have us pure. His words on the cross hold good here—"Not My will, but Thine be done." Hence the tremendous responsibility placed upon man, with free will, not to be less good, less pure, less high than the Saviour would have him be; to be mindful of his possible influence on the lives and souls of others.

The Redeemer's outstretched hand left the lepers clean. Too many Catholics lead mere natural lives; they seek not the cleansing, the glorifying touch of Christ. The preacher rebuked such in their spiritual lethargy, urging them to rise above the purely material, to acquire the purpose of fervor and loyalty and love for Christ.

This 9 o'clock mass is intended primarily for the parish children, although adults are permitted by courtesy to crowd in; hence the Junior choir does the singing, opening Sunday's service with a Hymn to St. Joseph, foster-father of the Christ-Child, in his devotion, purity and humility. At the consecration they sang "I Love Thee, My Saviour," and at communion time, "O, Lord, I am not Worthy that Thou Shouldst Come to Me." Mr. LaFontaine, the organist, singing the last stanza in solo.

WOMEN INVITED TO AGRICULTURAL MEETING

Seventy-nine women's clubs representing a membership of approximately 10,000 women in Connecticut have been invited by Commissioner of Agriculture S. McLean Buckingham to attend the fifth union agricultural meeting at Hartford Thursday, Jan. 31. "In view of the fact that the women of the country have the handling of a large percentage of the family budget, any meeting for the purpose of drafting a future agricultural program would fall short if it failed to give this large unit of purchasing power a chance to express its needs in reference to agricultural products," declares Commissioner Buckingham.

Mrs. Guy E. Speare, chairman of the New England Conference of Women's Clubs of Plymouth, N. H., will give the housewife's viewpoint in her address, "The PresentDay Situation from the Consumer's Viewpoint." Mrs. Speare asserts that the Federation of Women's Clubs is the logical unit through which the producers may reach a better understanding with the consumers.

"New England housewives prefer native products," declares Mrs. Speare, "but these native products must be uniform in quality and labeled accordingly if consumers are going to recognize them as bona fide native products and pay a price consistent with superior quality."

Mrs. Speare's address is scheduled for 1:45 o'clock and every woman who can possibly do so is urged to attend and hear this nationally recognized speaker. Other speakers on the afternoon and evening program include Commissioner of Agriculture Harry R. Lewis, of Rhode Island; Hon. L. J. Dickinson, congressman from Iowa; a representative of the division of cooperative marketing of the U. S. department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., and Earl Whitehorne, commercial editor of the "Electrical World," New York city.

$500 SUIT PARTLY TRIED IN COMMON PLEAS COURT

Following partial trial of the $500 damage action brought by Frank C. Rice against Dr. Frank C. and Olive Atchison, all of this city, in the court of common pleas here Saturday, Judge Charles B. Waller continued the case for further hearing on Feb. 4.

Rice claims that the defendants owe him $455.50 on a bill for $555.50 for labor on property of the defendants in Beech drive

MUCH INTEREST IN BILL TO CONSOLIDATE DISTRICTS

The interest of Groton residents and taxpayers has been greatly aroused following the introduction into the legislature Thursday by Representative Hiram W. Schriver of that town of a bill which, if approved, would do away with the present method of collecting the various town, borough school and fire district taxes, and would amalgamate the 12 or more agencies now engaged in such collection into one office. The bill provides for the appointment of a tax collector by the board of selectmen for a term of five years, and places upon the collector the sole responsibility for the collection of the taxes.

The complete text of the bill follows:

Section 1. The property tax collector of the town of Groton shall be, ex-officio, collector of taxes for all boroughs, fire districts, school districts and other municipal associations located in whole or in part within said town.

Section 2. This act shall take effect upon its approval by a majority of the electors of the town of Groton voting at a special meeting to be called by the selectmen of the town of Groton to be held on the first Monday of August after the approval of this act by the governor.

Section 3. Upon such ratification, the board of selectmen shall appoint a tax collector, who shall take office on the first Monday of October following his appointment, and who shall hold office for five years. Said board shall fix the salary of the tax collector.

Section 4. Within six months from the day of the passage of this act the treasurer and collector of each district mentioned herein shall certify in detail with names and addresses to the town tax collector authorized to be appointed by the provisions hereof, the amount of uncollected taxes, due and payable, to the respective collectors of such subdivisions of the town.

Section 5. All rate bills of all taxing districts named above, which are not fully collected, shall be delivered to the town tax collector within ten days after his appointment, subject to the penalties provided in section 1290 of the general statutes, revision of 1918.

Section 6. All special acts or parts thereof inconsistent with this act are repealed.

HEARING NEXT MONTH ON FORT GRISWOLD BILL

The judiciary committee of the general assembly will hold a hearing at the state capitol at Hartford Feb. 5 at 1:30 p. m. on the resolutions that have been introduced calling for the appointment of Prosecuting Attorney Daniel M. Cronin as judge and John J. McGarry as deputy judge of the New London city and police court. There is little likelihood that the resolutions will be contested and the hearing promises to be a brief affair.

The judgeship resolution, introduced by Representative Russell H. Corcoran, calls for appointment of Mr. Cronin for a two-year term, beginning July 1, next. There are two resolutions in on the deputy judgeship, both of which were also introduced by Representative Corcoran. The first calls for the appointment of Mr. McGarry to serve until July 1, next, and the second for his appointment for the regular two-year term, beginning that date. Mr. McGarry is serving as deputy judge at the present time under a recess appointment made by Gov. John H. Trumbull following the death, several months ago, of Deputy Judge Lewis Crandall.

Provided no opposition develops to the appointment of either Cronin or McGarry it is expected that their resolutions will be favorably reported by the judiciary committee and will be enacted into law during the week ending Feb. 9.

On the afternoon of Feb. 5, the military affairs committee will also hold hearings on three bills, introduced by Representative Hiram W. Schriver, of Groton, concerning an accessible entrance to Fort Griswold at Groton; calling for repairs to the Groton monument and requesting an appropriation for the preservation of the original headstone at Colonel Ledyard's grave in Ledyard cemetery, Groton. Two thousand dollars is asked for the purpose of widening and improving the Fort street entrance to the fort; $1,000 for making repairs to the roof of the monument, and $1,000 for the erection of an appropriate covering for Colonel Ledyard's headstone.

TAFTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Philip F. Linderson with their children Arline and Philip, Jr., of Gurleyville were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Linderson and family of North Third avenue.

Hormidas J. Garry of Dion street left Saturday for Canada, having been called there by the death of his sister.

The carnival being given by the Taftville Athletic association was continued Saturday evening at Parish hall, and as usual there was a large attendance to enjoy the novelties and patronize the booths. Dancing, for which Humphries' Orchestra player, continued until midnight.

One of the prominent citizens of the fifth district, who is also a property holder issued the following statement on Friday, regarding the new values which the assessors are placing on local property, "Taftville taxpayers have been watching the columns of The Bulletin for the past three weeks for the usual tax list but instead they have received letters with their revised tax valuation. Most of them are very much dissatisfied and a movement has been started to form a Taxpayers' association with the object of giving more attention to this matter."

Coasting never was so good in the village as it was on Sunday and all day long and into the evening, young and old were out to enjoy the invigorating sport. Popular spots were North Third avenue, the big vacant lot north of North B street and some of the "Cow Hill" lots at the south section of the village. Heavy traffic during the day on Providence street, prevented much coasting on that thoroughfare and the Merchants avenue hill.

Mrs. Harold E. Linderson and her daughter Miss Janet Linderson of Centerville, R. I., have been passing several days at the home of Mrs. Linderson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Yerrington and family of South Second avenue.

PICTURE "THE HARVESTER" ON Y. M. C. A. SCREEN

Another very large audience attended the Y. M. C. A. afternoon service Sunday in the large gymnasium at 2:30.

After the scripture reading and prayer two hymns were sung from the screen. The beautiful and wholesome moving picture titled, "The Harvester" was shown in seven reels. This was based on the written story by Gene Stratton Porter, and like all of her stories it had that peculiar gripping influence that impresses and helps one to follow high ideals.

During the service, Secretary Edwin Hill gave a brief talk, and he spoke in part as follows: "The title of this picture, "Harvester" suggests several things to us. It suggests a harvest, for there is no need of a harvester unless there is a harvest. A harvest suggests a sower, and a sower suggests seed. Every one of us is sowing some kind of seed of character, and the vital question is, what will the harvest be? In the old book we read these words: "Be not deceived, God is not mocked, whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap."

It might not be so serious if we did not have to reap, but we must reap as surely as we sow. I read this past week of three young fellows, who evidently began a few years ago to sow the wrong kind of seed, and the other day they were led in turn to the electric chair to satisfy the law. Their ages were 19, 20 and 21. The reaping was terrible. A young girl determines to have her own sweet way, and ignores her mother's advice, and she makes a misstep, and her good name is blasted; her character ruined save as God intervenes to save her. She has a broken life, a broken mother's heart. The reaping time is terrible. Every one of you is building some kind of a life; what shall it be? We are all building for eternity, and the kind of seed we sow makes the difference. Life is not long at the longest; time is passing all too quickly. I sincerely hope that every one of you will be very careful what kind of character seed you are sowing, for there is no escaping the fact that there is a reaping time."

In the absence of the regular pianist, Hugh Kinder, the piano music was furnished by Louis Mell, who did splendid service.

Next Sunday the Dickens' story, "Cricket on the Hearth" will be shown in seven reels.

PROMOTIONS FOR FOUR "NEW HAVEN" OFFICIALS

The promotion of Lieut Col. A. L. Bartlett as engineer for the New Haven division to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of H. F. Fifield has resulted in the advancement of three other employes, according to the New Haven railroad's magazine, Along the Line.

T. P. Polson, assistant engineer for the Danbury division, has been appointed engineer for the Boston division to take the place of Mr. Bartlett. A. A. Cross, track supervisor of the New Haven division, has succeeded to Mr. Polson's place, and John B. Bell, assistant track supervisor at Waterbury, has been promoted to Mr. Cross' former position. Both Mr. Cross and Mr. Bell will have headquarters at Putnam.

"Lieutenant Colonel Bartlett," the magazine says, "was born Nov. 22, 1884, and entered railroad service with the Northern Pacific as transitman in 1909. He went with the United States engineering department in 1910, where he remained until January, 1912, when he entered New Haven service as transitman, his first duties being in connection with the Rhode Island East Side tunnel.

"Two years later he was promoted to assistant engineer at New Haven; in 1916 he became general foreman at Saybrook and later that same year track supervisor at Providence, R. I.

In 1917 he entered the army and was made a captain. He was promoted to major in 1918 and a little later to lieutenant colonel. During his service with the A. E. F., Colonel Bartlett participated in the battles of Seicheprey and Apremont in the Chateau Thierry, St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne offensive. On his return to the United States he spent considerable time in assisting in the preparation of a book, History of the 101st U. S. Engineers.

MANY EXPERTS TO SPEAK AT FORESTRY CONGRESS

(Special to The Bulletin)

HARTFORD, Jan. 27—Preparation of a program for the greatest development of New England forests thus far attempted will occupy a congress of many of the most eminent forestry experts in the country at Hartford, February 1 and 2. Primarily the aim of the meeting will be to increase the part played by its twenty-five million forest acres in making New England a leading recreational section and add to the usefulness of the forests to wood production, agriculture and industry.

That New England has many undeveloped resources for providing recreational facilities will be shown. The best means of bringing about this development will be one of the matters for solution.

Conservation of the present tracts through the suppression of fires and providing of protection from insects, plant pests and vandalism will ba one of the immediate problems. Experts will also bring new ideas on marketing of forest products.

Federal bureau experts will discuss the possibilities for creation or extension of national forest reserves in several of the New England states.

Forests, floods and water power, as closely allied subjects, will be grouped for discussion and practical suggestions. The importance of forests as protection for native fish and game and as a barrier against the washing away of farm soils will be presented. The thoroughness with which it is planned to discuss such matters is indicated by the congress' request to A. C. Eaton, Boston hydraulic engineer, to present a plan for flood control by means of storage basins.

Besides the experts who will lead the discussions, there will be representatives of lumber, paper, agricultural, recreational and civic interests. The congress will open at 10 a. m., Friday, with Col. T. S. Woolsey, Jr., president Connecticut Forest and Park association, as chairman. There will be addresses of welcome from state and city officials.

C. R. Tillotson, district forest inspector, U. S. Forest Service, Amherst, Mass., will speak on "Forest Fire Suppression in New England." He will be followed by Dr. H. B. Peirson, forest entomologist, Maine Forest Service, on "Protection of Forests from Insect and Plant Pests."

Marketing will be discussed with H. R. Lewis, commissioner of agriculture, Rhode Island, presiding. The speakers will be: E. C. Hirst, chairman, New England section, Society American Foresters, Concord, N. H., "Problems in Marketing New England Forest Products"; Franklin Reed, forester, National Lumber Manufacturers' association, Washington, D. Hawes, state forester, Connecticut, "Utilizing Southern New England's Low Grade Forest Products"; Julian Rothery, forest engineer, International Paper Co., New York, "Pulpwood in New England"; Henry S. Graves, dean, Yale school of forestry, "Forestry in New England."

Forestry Service, Washington, D. C., on "National and State Forests in Relation to Public and Private Recreation"; Dr. J. Horace McFarland, past president, American Civic association, Harrisburg, Pa., "Bringing Folks to the Forest"; Paul Redington, chief, U. S. Biological survey, Washington, D. C., "Fish, Game and Forests."

On Saturday morning the business sessions will be resumed at 9:30 o'clock. Under the general subject of Outdoor Recreation the speakers will be: John C. Cosseboom, New England council, Rhode Island, "Conserving and Developing Natural Resources for Recreation"; Fred S. REV. RICHARD FANNING AT MARYKNOLL ORDINATION

Rev. Richard Fanning, third of the five sons of Mrs. Fanning and the late Corporation Counsel Joseph T. Fanning, left Saturday on his return to St. Mary's seminary, Baltimore, after three weeks' vacation at his home on Lincoln avenue, Norwich. He was ordained a deacon recently and will probably be ordained to the priesthood late in the spring. During Saturday afternoon he was the guest of his eldest brother, Paul Fanning, now in the office of the Studebaker Co., New York, going later to Maryknoll, on the Hudson. There, on Sunday, he assisted at the ordination of his room mate at Holy Cross college, Worcester, Rev. Fred A. Donaghy, of New Bedford. The latter was one of nine young seminarians ordained priests at the Catholic Foreign Mission seminary by Bishop Dunn. When these Catholic missionaries leave for China, Japan, India and other foreign fields it is for life. They will be assigned in June.

NEW PRESIDENT CHOSEN BY ITAL.-AMER. CITIZENS CLUB

At the annual meeting of the Italian-American Independent Citizens club, held at Carpenters hall Sunday morning, the following officers were elected to serve for the ensuing year: President, James V. Pedace; vice president, John Tramantozzi; secretary and treasurer, Cesedio Leone.

The retiring president, Antonio Tomaino, has headed the organization for the past ten years and during that period it has grown to be one of the strongest of its kind in the city. During the meeting, Mr. Tomaino, who was replaced in the presidency at his own request was tendered a vote of thanks in appreciation of his efforts.

At the present time the club numbers well over 100 members and with a future drive it is expected that this number will be doubled.

The advance in copper prices to 17 cents a pound and activity in the steel mills has stimulated preparations in the northwest for the greatest mining operations in several years. Copper is likely to stay around its present price level for many months to come, metal experts say.

HOUSE COMMITTEE URGES APPROVAL OF SMITH BILL

Appeal Made by Irrigation Committee to lighten Tax Burdon Upon Farmers in Levee and Drainage Districts—Smith Measure Would Create $180,000,000 Fund For Loans Without Interest to Districts For Redeeming Their Bonds—Representative Rainey Suggests Bill be Modified to Limit Loans to Levee Districts Along Navigable Streams.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—(AP)— An appeal was made today to the house irrigation committee to lighten the tax burden upon farmers in levee and drainage districts by approving the Smith bill to create a $180,000,000 fund for loans without interest to the districts for redeeming their bonds.

Representatives Rainey of Illinois and Driver of Arkansas, both democrats, urged approval of the legislation, declaring that in many instances the levee district taxes of farmers were larger than the total amount of their others taxes.

For sale purposes, Rainey said, many of the lands in levee and drainage districts in Illinois were worthless because of the heavy assessments laid against them for improvements.

Both Rainey and Driver contended that with the passage of legislation to authorize the lending of money to districts to pay off their bonded indebtedness as provided in the Smith proposal, the load would be greatly lightened by the elimintion of interest charges.

Rainey suggested that the Smith measure be modified to limit the loans to levee districts along navigable streams. He said that there were 1,095 levee, drainage and sanitary districts in Illinois alone, and that under the present language of the bill, all of these, including probably the Chicago drainage district, would be eligible for loans.

With the loans limited to navigable streams, he estimated that districts in 35 states would receive benefit from the legislation.

W. W. Powell, Washington legislative representative for a group of drainage districts, said that many farms in drainage districts were being sold for their taxes and that this condition would continue unless some relief was afforded.

HOOVER SUPPORTS PRES. COOLIDGE ON CRUISER BILL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—(AP)—A telegram from President-elect Hoover expressing agreement with the views of President Coolidge was read in the senate today as discussion on the cruiser bill was turning to Mr. Coolidge's insistence that the clause providing for immediate construction of the sixteen warships be eliminated.

The communication was addressed to Mr. Coolidge and was sent to the senate by the president's secretary, Everett Sanders. It was read in the senate by Chairman Hale of the naval committee. Last night, Chairman Britten of the house naval committee had issued a statement representing Mr. Hoover as being in favor of retaining in the pending cruiser bill the provision that the ships must be laid down before July 1, 1931.

"My attention has been called to a statement respecting pending cruiser legislation appearing in this morning's press," Mr. Hoover's telegram read. "I have made no public or private statement upon this question, further than appeared during the campaign. I have stated universally to various callers that it would be improper for me to express any views on current matters of the administration. I regret if this reticence should result in misapprehension. As you know I warmly support your views and you may so inform others if you wish to do so."

Immediately after reading the Hoover telegram to the senate, Chairman Hale read a communication from Paul V. McNutt, commander of the American Legion, warmly endorsing the cruiser bill and declaring that the former service men desired "steel ships and not paper ships."

The reading of the two communications one after the other, drew a protest from Senator Brookhart, republican, Iowa, who said it was obvious that the chairman desired to offset the president-elect's views with those of the American Legion.

Furthermore, Brookhart declared he did not believe that all of the members of the American Legion were in favor of immediate construction of the cruisers, declaring he doubted whether the former service men would support "such a bloodthirsty proposal."

The communication from Mr. Hoover supporting President Coolidge's opposition to the time clause arrived at a juncture in the discussions in the senate when it appeared as if the advocates of immediate construction of the cruisers had sufficient votes to override the president as was done in the house last year. Whether the frank statement of the incoming president's views will tend to diminish this strength remained to be seen but Chairman Hale and others leading the move for enactment of the cruiser bill showed no apprehension that it would turn votes from their column when a motion to eliminate the time clause reaches a vote.

As soon as the Hoover telegram had been read in the senate, Representative Britten wired Mr. Hoover that he was sending to Florida a copy of the press release he (Britten) gave out representing Hoover as in favor of retention of the time clause. Britten informed the president-elect that he was doing this in the hope of clearing up the matter and to demonstrate that no offense had been intended in issuing his statement.

Earlier in the day when Britten was informed that Mr. Hoover's office had denied such a cruiser discussion as was attributed to him, the congressman reiterated his conviction that the president-elect would be pleased if the time clause were retained.

As these new elements were being injected into the senate discussion, the debate continued with Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, and Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, holding the floor throughout the afternoon.

CUTTER IS NEARING STEAMER SILVER MAPLE

BOSTON, Jan. 28—(AP)—The fate of several vessels lay in the wintry clutches of the gale-swept Atlantic tonight, as speeding coast guard cutters raced to the assistance of one and anxious owners and crew relatives waited for word of two others.

Far out to sea, the coast guard cutters Tampa and Mojave plowed through mountainous waves in their race to the assistance of the disabled British steamer Silver Maple. They were still many hours from their goal.

From St. John's, N. F., came word of apprehension over the fate of the coal-laden steamer George Cochrane, which left Sydney, N. S., a week ago. Possibility that she may be held by ice in the Gulf of St. Lawrence tended to alleviate fears for her safety.

The steam trawler Seiner, with a crew of 20, more than a week overdue at Groton, Conn., was reluctantly being included in the list of lost ships in shipping circles here. She was last seen off Georges Bank, Jan. 13.

Somewhere in the vicinity of 35.23 north and 56.48 west, south of the trans-Atlantic steamer lanes and 420 miles northeast of Bermuda, the Silver Maple was moving cautiously through the sea. Her steering gear damage to which caused her to broadcast an SOS Saturday, apparently had been repaired, permitting a speed of seven knots.

The Tampa was still more than 200 miles west of the Silver Maple tonight. She expected, however, to reach her some time tomorrow morning. The Mojave, traveling on the same course as the Tampa, was 50 miles north of her sister ship.

The Silver Maple has a crew of 40 men. She is owned by the Silver Line Limited, and sailed from Oran, Jan. 15, bound for New York.

SAYS $2,500 CHECK WAS "LOVE OFFERING"

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 28—(AP)—Payment of a $2,500 check to Superior Judge Carlos S. Hardy was in the nature of a "love offering," Aimee Semple McPherson told an investigating committee of the state legislature today.

The evangelist said the check was issued because of radio talks, church work and financial advice given by the jurist and concluded her statement by saying:

"I told Mrs. Kennedy (the evangelist's mother) that I thought it would be best to give Judge Hardy a love offering."

Mrs. McPherson denied that the check was paid for "legal" advice, the controversial point on which the committee has been charged with determining whether the jurist is subject to impeachment proceedings for acceptance of a "fee" while in office.

The session developed into a series of legal encounters almost from the time Mrs. McPherson took the stand. She refused to answer numerous questions concerning her alleged kidnaping more than two years ago, but replied readily when asked if the check was for "advice" in connection with her story of abduction.

"Did Judge Hardy advise you during your kidnaping case?" Chairman Walter Little asked.

"No," the evangelist replied.

"Did he advise you while you were before the grand jury?"

"No."

"Did he advise you when you were before the court of justice?"

"No."

From this point on, the questions were met with repeated answers of "I don't know," as it was attempted to develop the evangelist's knowledge of her asserted kidnaping.

TO APPEAR THURSDAY BEFORE SENATE COURT

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Jan. 28—(AP)—Appearance of Henry S. Johnston, suspended governor, to answer charges before the state senate court of impeachment, was postponed today until Thursday and the spotlight swung back to a committee investigation of far-flung activities of the governor's confidential secretary, Mrs. O. O. Hammonds.

Johnston was scheduled to plead before the senate court today to five of the eight charges voted by the house of representatives. Upon motion of his attorneys, however, the hearing was continued until Thursday so one demurrer could be entered against the entire group, as he is under summons to plead to the remaining charges on that day.

POLICE SEARCHING FOR MURDERED WOMAN'S HUSBAND

BOSTON, Jan. 28—(AP)—Police of northern New England were today asked to assist in the search for Christopher E. Cullen, of East Weymouth, whose bride of a few days, was found shot to death in a remote field in Hingham Saturday.

The Massachusetts authorities enlisted the aid of the police of Vermont and of New Hampshire when they received information that a man answering the description of Cullen, was seen on a Boston and Main railroad train apparently en route to Montreal.

The police of Hingham today obtained a warrant for the arrest of Cullen on a charge of murder. His bride, who was Miss Cora Jacques, of Lowell, apparently had been shot to death with a 22 calibre rifle. Cullen was known to have purchased a rifle of the same calibre and a supply of cartridges a short time before the estimated time of the shooting. He was at one time committed to a state insane hospital as an "alcoholic" but had been discharged as fully recovered.

SMALL HOPE FOR PEACE IN SALVATION ARMY

LONDON, Jan. 28—(AP)—Prospects for peace in the Salvation Army's legal battle over a successor to the deposed General Bramwell Booth, appeared meagre tonight in authoritative army quarters.

On the eve of the re-opening of the case in chancery court, which is to be tomorrow morning at 10:30, army officers said they saw little hope for peace.

Those in official circles said Booth's lawyers made an offer to army solicitors over the week-end to the effect that the deposed leader would make certain reforms if adjudication in court were set aside. It was stated, however, that the high council would maintain its stand that Booth no longer was general and therefore was not in a position to make such an overture.

Should Booth withdraw his action tomorrow, an official said the council would reconvene Thursday and immediately consider "the easiest way out" for the deposed leader, probably voting him the honorary title of retired general and retirement funds sufficient for his present and future needs.

STEAM TRAWLER SEINER GIVEN UP FOR LOST

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 28—(AP)—The lamp which the mariner's wife of old set each night at the window to guide her seafaring husband's footsteps safely back over the dangerous floors of his trade burns figuratively in the fancy of Mrs. Edward C. Morgan, of 15 Highland avenue, West Haven, as she and her daughter, Grace, weep with anguish over the fate of husband and father, the engineer of the steam trawler Seiner, which mysteriously disappeared two weeks ago en route to Groton, Conn.

Nightly either wife or daughter, with breaking voices, have telephoned the Associated Press for the meager details of the reports which have come about the vessel. Tonight they learned shipping circles had reluctantly listed the ship among the missing, but though such news was heart-breaking, they refused to yield to the tentacles of grief.

DENSE FOG CAUSED THREE COLLISIONS

LONDON, Jan. 28—(AP)—Dense fog today caused three serious ship collisions in the waters around England. The Dutch steamer Meranke, Batavia to Liverpool, was beached between Hythe and Sandgate to prevent sinking after collision in the channel with an unidentified steamer eight miles east of Dungeness. The crew remained on board and hope to patch the vessel sufficiently to permit a tow to Dover tomorrow.

The Greek steamer Nelon, Buenos Aires for London, put in to Dover badly damaged after colliding with the British freighter Ravelston. The Ravelston radioed that she would be able to make port without assistance.

The British motor vessel Palacio took aboard the crew of the British tanker Inverurie although herself badly damaged and with the fore peak full of water. They collided off the mouth of the Mersey at Liverpool.

ANXIETY FELT FOR SAFETY OF STEAMER

ST. JOHN, N. F., Jan. 28—(AP)—Anxiety was felt here today for the safety of the steamer George Cochrane, which left Sydney, N. S., a week ago, coal laden for this port. Inquiries at various places on the coast where the vessel might have taken shelter have been fruitless. It was thought by some maritime authorities that she may be held by ice in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Ask Higher Tariff On Farm Produ[illegible]

Representatives of [illegible]al Farm Bureau an[illegible]nge Joined in Appeal.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—(AP)— Organized agriculture threw its weight today behind the movement for sweeping increases in tariff rates on all classes of farm products.

Appearing before the house ways and means committee at the fourth day of hearings given over to agriculture import duties, representatives of the American farm bureau federation and national grange joined in appealing for higher tariff protection on scores of commodities.

Submitting a proposal for increasing duties on items in 60 of the 80 sections of the farm schedule, Chester Gray, Washington representative of the American farm bureau federation, declared it was his belief that "tariffs on raw farm crops wil not necessarily increase the price over the retail counter but will protect the American farmer from his foreign low cost producer competitor."

"If the American farmer can be protected from the competitor abroad who has the lowest cost," Gray argued, "there will be enough efficiency and competition among farmers on our farms to supply food, clothing and shelter for our people at a reasonable price and on the basis of what we call the American standard of living."

Gray contended that the "American consumer, who is very largely a farm resident as well as an inhabitant of towns and cities, in recent years, is troubled not with kitchen costs as the main factor in the cost of living, but with rent, motor costs, amusements, and various other modern factors which make the family budget shring more than kitchen costs."

THREE CHILDREN SUFFOCATED IN FALL RIVER FIRE

FALL RIVER, Mass., Jan. 28—(AP)—Three of the five children of Mrs. Mary Massa died of suffocation and the mother was probably fatally burned, when fire destroyed their home in a three-tenement house here today. All had been trapped on the third floor with the only exit blocked by fire.

The dead children were: Irene 5, Angelina 4, and Laura 3. Arthur Massa, the husband and father, was absent at work, and two other children also were absent, Delina, a twin of Irene and Mary.

The family resided on the third floor of the three-story wooden dwelling. Early this evening, John Carvalho, owner of the property, who resided on the first floor, was attempting to repair an oil stove which exploded in the process. In his subsequent efforts to hurl the flaming stove into the back yard, it fell into the rear hallway. The flames blocked the only exit from the Massa apartment.

STIFF OPPOSITION TO "DRY" APPROPRIATION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18—(AP)—With a stiff opposition in prospect, the house tomorrow will take up the senate proposal to put $24,000,000 in the hands of the president for prohibition enforcement.

Although consideration of the question is expected to give rise to a heated discussion, democrats who are leading a drive in behalf of the additional appropriation said that there probably would not be any attempt tomorrow to put the house on record.

Two Dead In Fire At New London

Four Others Probably Fatally Injured In Tenement House Blaze Last Night.

(Special to the Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 28—Two are dead and five others were probably fatally burned in a tenement house fire here tonight. The dead are Mrs. Mary Spinnato, about 77, of 131 Jefferson avenue, and her grandson, Dominic, 4, same address. Those probably fatally burned are Mrs. Rose Spinnato and her four children, Lena, Victor, John and Orati. All are patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital.

The fire occurred about 9 o'clock when members of the family were working on leather goods, using a celluloid preparation. While the children were applying the celluloid, which was in a large container, the heat from a kitchen range ignited the celluloid. In an instant the inflammable material enveloped the entire room, setting fire to the clothing of all of the occupants.

An alarm was rung in Box 36, corner of Jefferson and Garfield avenues, summoning Chief Thomas Shipman and four pieces of apparatus. In the meantime the occupants of the room were trying to escape. The elder Mrs. Spinnato and the small child, succeeding in getting out. The child died in the yard and Mrs. Spinnato collapsed and died in the doorway.

The other victims were imprisoned in the room where they were found by firemen. The bodies of the dead were removed to an undertaking establishment and the five other victims were rushed to the hospital. Two of the victims are not expected to live. A three year old child asleep in an adjoining room escaped injury.

COOLIDGE URGES ECONOMY IN FEDERAL EXPENDITURES

Addressing the Business Organization of the Government For the Last Time, the Chief Executive Cautioned That the "Rapidly Mounting" Cost of State and Local Governments Must be Sharply Curtailed if National Prosperity is to be Maintained—Warned That the Margin Between Prosperity and Depression is Always Very Small—Praised General Lord, Director of the Budget Bureau.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—(AP)—Addressing the business organization of the government for the last time, President Coolidge tonight issued a warning that rigid economy in federal expenditures must be continued and the "rapidly mounting" cost of state and local governments must be sharply curtailed if national prosperity is to be maintained.

At the same time, the chief executive declared that the budget system, "put into operation to save the country from economic disaster," had been fully justified by the results of its eight years of operation. He paid tribute to Brigadier General Herbert M. Lord, director of the budget bureau, and the "great rank and file of the government personnel" for the cooperation which he said had made the system a success.

The president's address was delivered at the sixteenth regular meeting of the business organization. The sessions are held semi-annually and are attended by cabinet officers, heads of governmental bureaus and federal employes charged with the responsibility of disbursing federal funds.

General Lord, the only other speaker of the evening, declared that a steady increase in national expenditures must be expected, a circumstance which, he said, must not weaken the government's budget policy. As one means of averting a threatened deficit for the present fiscal year, he recommended that vacancies be allowed to remain unfilled until after June 30, bringing about a saving which he estimated at "the far from negligible sum of $12,500,000."

After enumerating the accomplishments of the last eight years, Mr. Coolidge declared that much remained to be done. In spite of determined efforts for economy, savings in interest due to reduction of the national debt, and four reductions in taxes, he said, government expenditures are showing a tendency to increase. Bills pending in congress a short time ago, he estimated, would have doubled the annual national outlay, while measures are now on the congressional calendars, approved by committees, which would, if passed, cost the government more than a billion dollars. But for a policy of rigid economy he said, many of these would have become law.

"It would be a great mistake to suppose that we can continue our national prosperity," the president continued, "with the attendant blessings which it confers upon the people, unless we continue to insist upon constructive economy in government. The margin between prosperity and depression is always very small. A decrease of less than ten per cent in the income of the nation would produce a deficit in our present budget.

"The cost of state and local governments are rapidly mounting. From $8,900,000,000 in 1922, the national industrial conference board estimates that they reached $9,931,000,000 in 1927. This is such a heavy drain on the earnings of the people that it is the greatest menace to the continuance of prosperity. It is a red flag warning us of the danger of depression and a repetition of the disaster which overtook the country in the closing days of 1920. It is a warning that should be heeded by every one entrusted with the expenditure or appropriation of public funds! It is the reason that further commitments by the national government for any new projects not absolutely necessary should be faithfully resisted."

Mr. Coolidge outlined the conditions he said had been prevalent when the budget system was instituted, enumerating depression in business, declining wages, unemployment, lack of markets, and the low price of securities, including government bonds.

"Confidence in our entire economic structure had been shaken," he said. "Progress had stopped."

The country, Mr. Coolidge continued, had been living beyond its means, spending much more than it was earning, using up its capital, and the savings of previous years were being exhausted, principally through government extravagance. As a means of bettering conditions, and curtailing national expenditures, he said, the budget system was adopted.

"Seemingly without effort," he went on, "but actually by hard and effective work the change was wrought. Each of the succeeding years brought an ever-increasing improvement in the business of the government. Expenditures diminished until 1927, when, exclusive of the amount applied to debt reduction, they reached a point below the three billion mark. This was two billions below 1921. Billions were cut from the public debt with a large saving of interest. The first tax reduction came in November, 1921, and was followed by three succeeding reductions. Funds were saved to meet the cost of our much-needed public improvements, which had been in abeyance during the war period. Short-time notes and long-time bonds were paid off and refunded at lower rates."

While not claiming "that action by the national government deserves all the credit for the rapid restoration of the country's business from the great depression of 1921 or for the steady progress that has since taken place," the president declared that "unquestionably, however, wise governmental policies, and particularly wise economy on government expenditures with a steady reduction of the national debt, have had a dominant influence."

Director Lord, too, praised governmental employes generally for their cooperation in making a success of the budget system. A large part of his address was devoted to an account of the battle against a threatened deficit in the current fiscal year.

"Every year since the installation of the budget system," he said, "has been a fighting year, but this year we are making the supreme fight of our history."

Expressing an expectation for increased expenditures in future years he declared that "with the growth of the country new important projects will present themselves calling for more money from the treasury, and no matter how great the revenues, unless they are courageously controlled, and wisely directed into channels of useful and necessary purposes, burdensome additional taxes, or inability to carry on necessary constructive work will result."

"In conclusion, General Lord praised President Coolidge as "the inspiration of our thrift crusade," asserting that the chief executive had vitalized it and given it human interest.

CREW OF AMERICA HAILED AS HEROES

NEW YORK, Jan. 28—(AP)—Eleven men who "only followed the call of duty," and so wrote one of the most thrilling chapters in the whole history of sea rescue, were hailed as heroes in their home port today.

Brought from Hoboken, where their ship was docked after accomplishing the rescue of 32 men from the sinking Italian steamer, Florida, in an Atlantic gale, on the city tug Macon, Captain George Fried, of the United States liner America, Chief Officer Harry Manning and the eight men who helped him effect the rescue in a 30-foot lifeboat, and Chief Radio Operator Nelson Smith, were escorted up Broadway to city hall through a white-storm of paper and ticker tape thrown from windows of skyscrapers.

There illuminated scrolls were presented, speeches of congratulation made, and rewards were made from a fund by public subscription.

"I just want to say," Captain Fried told Mayor James J. Walker, "that we all thank you and to further state that in doing our duty on the high seas we are doing no more than you do in your several walks of life. It is expected of us to do these things and we try to do the best we can."

Chief Officer Manning then spoke in similar vein. "I," he said, "only did my duty. The best I knew how."

Captain Giuseppe Favolosso of the foundered Florida, became so excited as one official after another spoke in praise of the America's men that he suddenly rushed across the aldermanic chamber and threw his arms first about Captain Fried and then about Manning, kissing them soundly on the cheeks.

After the scrolls and medals have been presented and the speeches made, the public subscription, raised by Paul Block, newspaper publisher, was divided by Borough President Byrne of Brooklyn. The money awards came as a complete surprise to the men of the America.

"I have something to give away," Byrne announced after telling who had raised the fund. "Coin of the realm. And so I hand you, Captain Fried, the sum of $5,000; to the kid himself (it was Manning he thus referred to) $2,500; and here I have $4,500 for representatives of the crew of the lifeboat and the wireless operator, in the sum of $500 each."

Byrne said that the subscription fund still was open and before it was closed there would be something for every member of the American crew, from bridge to the boiler room.

After the reception at city hall, there was a luncheon at which the America's men were guests of honor, and from then until the hour of their sailing on Wednesday their schedule was filled with engagements for luncheons and dinners and theater parties.

HUNDREDS AT FUNERAL OF FOR. SEN. UNDERWOOD

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 28—(AP)—The body of Oscar W. Underwood, former United States senator from Alabama and statesman of international repute, was buried here today with a quiet dignity that seemed a fitting climax to his long public service. Mr. Underwood died Friday at his Woodlawn, Va., estate.

At the Independent Presbyterian church, where the body lay in state for two hours preceding the funeral services, the great, near great and just plain people of his adopted state filed by the flower-banked bier by the hundreds to pay final tribute to the late democratic leader.

Following reading of passages from the Book of Psalms, by the Rev. Dr. Henry M. Edmonds, pastor of the church and personal friend of Mr. Underwood, the bronze casket was closed and the funeral procession proceeded across the south side of Birmingham to Elmwood cemetery. Police led the way and overhead two airplanes from the 106th Observation squadron, Alabama National Guard, droned out a farewell from the air.

At Elmwood, the canopies plot was the mecca for other hundreds who were unable to enter the church. The body was committed to the grave without a eulogy, the simple service being in deference to the wishes of the late senator and his widow.

CRIPPLED SCHOONER TOWED INTO PORT

HALIFAX, N. S., Jan. 28—(AP)—Her crew of eight exhausted by pumping continuously for seven days, the storm crippled Gloucester schooner, Thomas S. Gorton, was towed into port today and safely docked.

The schooner, owned by the Gorton-Pew Fisheries company, of Gloucester, and commanded by Wallace Parsons, left Bay of Islands, N. F., on January 19 for Gloucester, with a half cargo of 900 barrels of herring.

The next day a full gale was encountered. Huge waves rolled up by the 75-mile wind crashing down on the little schooner. That night both dories, the helm jib and foresail were carried away, the foreboom was broken and extensive damage was done the hull.

MISS LILLIAN CROOK HURT WHEN AUTO OVERTURNS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 28—Charles Krombie of South Coventry narrowly escaped injury and his sister-in-law, Miss Lillian Crook, also of Coventry, was quite badly hurt about 9 30 o'clock this morning when the small sedan driven by Krombie skidded and overturned on West Main street, near the home of Dr. George E. Wilcox. The machine came onto a patch of ice and shot off the highway turning over on its side and coming to rest against a telegraph pole. The occupants were pinned in the car and were extricated only with difficulty by a passing motorist, whose name was not secured at the time. Mr. Krombie and Miss Crook were taken to the office of Dr. Samuel J. Turcotte where the latter received treatment for a fracture of the left thumb, fracture of the nose laceration over the right eye and laceration of the upper lip. Other than being temporarily dazed the driver was apparently injured. Both are now at their home. The sedan was badly wrecked and towed to the Leonard Bros. garage.

MONTHLY COLLECTIONS TO BE TOKEN FOR NEW RECTORY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 28—Monthly collections will be taken at St. Joseph's R. C. church beginning in February to establish a fund for the building of a new rectory, considered one of the most dire material needs of the parish at the present time. Announcement of the plan for a new structure, work on which will start in the spring or early summer, has been made by Rev. Henry E. Quinn, pastor. While the delapidated condition of the present rectory has been common knowledge among the parishioners for some time, this is the first actual movement for a new building. The rectory was erected 69 years ago by Father Hugh J. O'Reilly, the first resident pastor of the parish. The bishop of the diocese has approved the proposition and will supervise the building of the new home for the priests. Tentative plans call for a brick structure to be erected a little to the south of the present building. In order to make way for the new building and grounds the "twin" stone residences on the southwest corner of the parish property on Jackson street will be removed. The present rectory will either be moved to the site of the stone buildings or torn down, this matter remaining to be decided upon.

OBITUARY.

William Frederick Haass

Wilhelm Frederick Haass, 81, for many years identified with one of the nation's pioneer silk industries in Mansfield, died at his home on Hanks Hill, Mansfield, at noon today. He was born in Germany, January 21, 1848, and had been a resident of Mansfield for 38 years. He was employed as a stationery engineer at the Gurleyville silk mill in Gurleyville operated for many years by Edward L. Smith of 256 Prospect street, this city, retiring some ten years ago. The mill has since been destroyed by fire. The deceased leaves his wife, Caroline Haass, one son Wilhelm Haass of Miami, Fla., four grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Collision on Main Street.

Sedans operated respectively by Frederick A. Roy of Windham street and Dr. Nathan Spector of this city collided with some damage on Main street, in front of the Capitol theatre shortly after 6 o'clock this morning. Dr. Spector was headed in an easterly direction and Roy drove his car away from the curb to proceed in the same direction when the machines came together. As he started to drive off Roy saw the oncoming machine and brought his car to a stop but Dr. Spector was unable to halt his machine, owing to the icy condition of the street. The accident was investigated by Officer Roderick Lariviere and the owners agreed on a settlement of damages.

A number of entertainments to increase the fund for the annual two weeks in camp at Eastford in July, are being planned for by Troop No. 1, Boy Scouts of America of the First Congregational church. Preparations for these events are under supervision of Scoutmaster Robert C. Rose and his assistants, Attorney John B. Harvey, Maurice Hanna and Holbrook Yorke. Scoutmaster Rose holds the record for term of service in that capacity in eastern Connecticut, having headed Troop No 1 for the past 15 years. The troop is composed of four patrols of eight scouts each.

Coasting on Lewiston Avenue.

For the first time in many years coasting will be prohibited on Summit street and allowed on its neighboring thoroughfare, Lewiston avenue, according to orders given the police today by Mayor Charles A. Gates. Owing to increased automobile traffic over Oak street, which has a blind intersection with Summit, the change was deemed advisable. A police officer will be stationed on Lewiston avenue during the coasting hours.

Another season of public card parties and entertainments is being planned by the North Windham fire department for funds to eliminate the present debt of $600 on the property which consists of a hose house and a motor chemical truck. The department was organized two and one-half years ago and moved into its new quarters in August, 1926. The debt on the property was then over $3,000 but various forms of entertainment held in the hose house and at North Windham hall brought such a generous response that nearly $2,500 has been paid off this including gifts from residents of North Windham and vicinity.

The annual financial report of St. Mary's R. C. church was read at the Sunday masses by the pastor, Rev. J. J Papillon. Note was made of several improvements, some of them extensive in nature and all of which were paid for out of the receipts of the year. Coming in the nature of sorrowful news to many, announcement was made from the pulpit of the death last November of Rev. Charles J. Lemieux, a former curate of the local parish. Father Lemieux left St. Mary's church to engage in missionary work about 16 years ago. He died in Davenport, Iowa.

A sedan owned by Edward Corcoran of 29 Groton street, New London and driven by Jacob Freeman of the Oxford Hotel, Hartford, skidded on the slippery highway at Avery's corner in South Windham Sunday night and was damaged when it collided with a tree. The driver and other occupants of the machine which was headed for New London, escaped injury. Damage to the car consisted of a jammed left front fender and running board and smashed top. Police Officer Albert Montie investigated the accident.

The remains of Anton Douda were taken to New York city this morning for burial in the Calvary cemetery, New York. Arrangements were in charge of Avery and VanZandt.

JEWETT CITY

OLDEST MASON IN WORLD ENTERED MT. VERNON LODGE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 28—Mount Vernon lodge No. 75, F. and A. M., Clarence E. Whittaker, master, takes just pride in the following cutting from a Boston Sunday paper:

CHARLTON, Jan. 26—On Feb. 5, Leprelet Miller Logee, of Central Falls, R. I., who is a guest at the Masonic home here and who is believed to be the oldest Mason in the United States, if not in the entire world, will celebrate his 103d birthday. The celebration, plans for which are being completed by Supt. R. M. Handy, officials of the home and officers of the grand lodge, will be staged in the chapel of the home. Here a great birthday cake with 103 lighted candles will be placed. Here, also, will the dean of Masons throughout this country be greeted by Grand Master Herbert W. Dean of the Massachusetts Grand Lodge and Dudley H. Ferrell, relief commissioner of the Grand lodge of Massachusetts, and the full membership of Granite lodge, A. F. & A. M. of Whitinsville, of which Mr. Logee is a charter member.

Mr. Logee is in the best of health and can be found any day walking about the grounds and through the corridors of the home, smoking hsi favorite pipe. Mr. Logee is a veteran of the Civil war, in which he served as a member of the ordnance department because of his mechanical ability. He recalls that he did not fire a shot during the entire war, but had the satisfaction of placing a fuse in one of the big cannon at Nashville. He signed the bylaws of Mount Vernon lodge, A. F. & A. M., in Jewett City, Conn., in 1871, and was a charter member of Granite Lodge, A. F. & A. M., Whitinsville. He was presented the veterans' medal Jan. 8, 1926, and has been a guest at the home here since March 31, 1928.

The annual health report for the borough of Jewett City for 1928 records that there were sixteen cases of tuberculosis, ten of scarlet fever, eighty-three of mumps, fifteen of lobar pneumonia and one case of bronchial pneumonia, five cases of syphilis, one of gonorrhea, three of chicken pox, two whooping cough, four diphtheria and two cases of measles. Mumps were epidemic during November and December. For control of communicable diseases $66.00 was expended. For nuisances $6, dumps $6, inspecting water shed $6, all other unclassified $13.75, total $97.75.

Very few wells are used. Nearly the entire supply used is reservoir water. Rains have kept the reservoir well filled. The water shed is well cared for and supervised. It has been urged that the supply of ice, especially for domestic use, be taken from the reservoir. Ice from this source would be perfectly safe for use. There is danger of possible contamination of the water, from which the ice now used is taken, by the manufacturies located on this stream. Enlarging the plants, employing more help and greatly lowering the mill reservoirs increases this danger.

As to milk, there have been no material changes in the conditions of last year. About 1,100 quarts are daily sold. There is an increase of the amount pasteurized, about 50 per cent being pasteurized or coming from credited herds. Dr. eorge H. Jennings states in his report as health officer.

Although under several inches of snow, the ice on the Dorrville fields is taking another and fourth start, with six inches reported Monday evening.

Mrs. Walter Benjamin was at the organ. Among the flowers was the Order's emblem from Dorcas Circle of The King's Daughters, of which Mrs. Robinson was a charter member. Mr. Heibel's hands and face were blistered and his eyebrows were singed.

NOT A COUGH IN A CARLOAD

The Blunt Uncompromising Truth

IT takes an expert to select a first class diamond and appraise its value. With motor cars the situation is quite different. There are certain outstanding facts about automobiles that are common knowledge to every man, woman and child and these facts serve to create sharp distinctions and to classify cars on the basis of quality and value.

Thus Cadillac's position as the leader of the fine car group is an accepted fact that one would scarcely think of challenging and, in the minds of all, Cadillac is readily granted first place on the basis of prestige gained over a period of 25 years, the incomparable brilliance, smoothness, flexibility and reliability of its 90-degree, V-type, 8-cylinder engine, and its extraordinary value.

Safety and Control. But within recent months Cadillac and the Cadillac-built La Salle have forged ahead to such an extent that you may not realize how vastly their superiority over all other cars has been increased—especially from the viewpoint of safety and easy mastery of control.

Take these latter two points, which any one will quickly admit are of paramount importance in this day of high speed and congested traffic.

In braking, gear shifting, steering and all the operations of driving, either on mountain roads, or on level highways, or in city traffic, there are no other cars in all the world that can compare with Cadillac and La Salle.

If you will stop and study the situation for a moment, you will realize that the plainest and most outstanding fact in motoring today is that there are no other cars which can be classed with Cadillac and La Salle.

That is because, for one thing, you can not find on any other cars the Cadillac-La Salle Duplex-Mechanical Four-Wheel Brakes, the most powerful braking system ever developed, yet the easiest and quickest to operate.

On no other cars can you find the Cadillac-La Salle Syncro-Mesh Silent-Shift Transmission which enables you to shift your gears at any speed, under any conditions, without awkwardness or the slightest hesitancy. The operation is almost instantaneous as well as clashless.

The foregoing represent safety features of the utmost importance, as is the improved steering mechanism, but there is also the crystal-clear, non-shatterable Cadillac-La Salle Security-Plate Glass. In the event of collision you will not be injured by flying glass fragments; neither will there be any danger from the impact of stones cast up by the wheels of passing cars.

These are some of the new facts to add to those you already know about Cadillac and La Salle. A car will be placed at your disposal at any time so that you can familiarize yourself with them. When you have done so your conviction will be stronger than ever that in all the world there are no cars like these.

In addition to 23 refreshingly beautiful Fisher Bodies for the new Cadillac and the new La Salle, there are 15 exclusive and exquisite custom-built models Fleetwood designed and Fleetwood built.

La Salle prices $2295 to $2875; Cadillac $3295 to $3995; Fleetwood up to $7000—all prices f. o. b. Detroit. Cadillac-La Salle dealers welcome business on the General Motors Deferred Payment Plan

The Wave of Automobiles

It's nice to live in a house by the side of the road
And be a friend to man;
But in this motor age of automobiles
There's mighty few people who can.

There's a knock at the door, that makes the house shake,
As one hastens to open it wide:
"Got a telephone? I want to use it right quick!"
And you're hastily brushed to one side.

Muddy feet track the floor in the haste to get in,
Manners lacking or hidden away;
Message sent, man departs, doors left wide as he goes,
And not one word of thanks does he say.

Sunday evening in Winter and dreadfully cold,
Another knock comes at our door:
"Got a team? Get it out for I'm stuck in a drift."
A man whom we'd all seen before.

Husband ready for evening with slippers and pipe,
But cheerfully does his old clothes
And harnesses horses to pull the car out,
All the while it is fifteen below.

"Will pay you next week, if you'll drop in the store."
And he hastily drives on his way;
But he always is out when we stop at door,
And as yet we have not got our pay.

Twelve o'clock midnight and bangety-
bang
Till we're roused from our slumbers
so deep;
Man and woman demand to come in and get warm,
For the poor simple things have cold feet.

A big car drives in one Sunday in June
To change for a tire all new;
We're keeping the Sabbath, so the house is quite still,
And we're watching to see what they'll do.

The bed of geraniums recently set
To make our farm yard look quite gay,
Is looted of slips by the kind (?) women-folk,
While they think we're away for the day.

Now, I'm not a cynic, as this might suggest,
And I'll still do the best I can
To live in my house by the side of the road
And be a friend to man.

But I hope all who read and drive automobiles
A message may get from my rhyme,
And remember to say, when traveling away,
"Please" and "Thank You," just half of the time.

For a little politeness will go a long way
Toward helping to lighten the load;
And keep the hearts kind of the folks who must live
In the house by the side of the road.

—Elsia Holway Burleigh, in Kennebec Journal.

A Moral in Sevres

Upon my mantelpiece they stand,
While all its length between them lies;
He throws a kiss with grac hand,
She glances back with bas. ful eyes.

The china Shepherdess is fair,
The Shepherd's face denotes a heart
Burning with ardor and despair.
Alas, they stand so far apart!

And yet, perhaps, if they were moved,
And stood together day by day,
Their love had not so constant proved.
Nor would they still have smiled so
gay.

His hand the Shepherd might have kissed
The matchbox Angel's heart to win;
The Shepherdess, his love have missed,
And flirted with the Mandarin.

But on my mantelpiece they stand,
While all its length between them lies
He throws a kiss with graceful hand,
She glances back with bashful eyes.

—Mildred Howells.

DANIELSON

CONN. MILLS TREASURER'S OFFICE TO REMAIN HERE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 28—It is understood that the office of the treasurer of the Connecticut mills is to remain here for an indefinite period, notwithstanding the fact that the company has sold its mill, in which the treasurer's office is located, to Powdrell and Alexander. Under an agreement in connection with the sale Treasurer Victor Anderson and his office force will continue to do business in the quarters they have occupied for years.

Notwithstanding that the Connecticut Mills has done no manufacturing here for a year, its treasurer's office has continued to function in Danielson. Meanwhile, the company is operating its new mill in Alabama. However, much of the actual business that concerns the treasurer's office is transacted in New York, which is but five hours away from Danielson, and it may be that the treasurer's office will remain here for a long time to come.

Announcement of the mill sale has acted like a tonic in business circles in Danielson. With the big plant operating again, a prospect of the next few months, there will be many additional jobs for workers, more money in circulation from payrolls and, the chances are, better business for about every concern located here. It is a pleasant prospect, and happily comes as a promise that this year will be a prosperous one in Danielson and vicinity.

FUNERAL.

George LaForest.

This morning the funeral of George LaForest was held from his home on Franklin street and with a solemn high mass of requiem at St. James' church at 9 o'clock Rev. Antheleme Mollard, M. S., Rev. Joseph A. Demers, M. S., and Rev. Joseph Bergin, M. S., were the officers of the mass, at which many were in attendance. Burial was in Holy Cross cemetery. The bearers were Mr. LaForest's five brothers, William, Eugene, Alexander, Hector and Joseph and William LaFlamme. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Tourtellotte School Break.

State Officer Elton Nolan was in North Grosvenordale this afternoon investigating a burglary at the Tourtellotte Memorial High school. This is the second break at North Grosvenordale within a few days, the railroad station there having been entered a few nights ago. The Tourtellotte school is one of the finest in the state and many of its appointments and art objects are unrivaled in any school in southern New England. What the losses were had not been made known here up to this afternoon.

No Street For Coasting.

The coasting discussion is right up in the front row again, for the 'steenth time this winter. Incidentally, it appears to be getting nowhere, insofar as results are concerned. The young people continue to slide, and slide on some streets where there is the constant menace of a serious accident on account of motor traffic. No street has been set aside for their use, and there is little prospect of this being done. The sport goes on with the coasters taking their chances of being killed or injured and the prospect is that there will be no change in present arrangements so long as the season lasts and sliding is possible.

Real estate valuations in the Connecticut Village section of Danielson took a jump this morning upon publication of the fact that the Connecticut Mills plant has been purchased by Powdrell and Alexander. One man said that he felt his property had been increased at least $500 in value through the prospect of the mill again operating. It is known that others in the territory feel the same way about their holdings. Nearly all of the homes in that section are of comparatively recent construction and with modern appointments. The majority of them were built by the Connecticut Mills company and sold only about a year ago to individuals after the mill closed for an indefinite period.

This is the last week of preparation by the Service battery for the annual federal inspection scheduled for Monday evening of next week. The men are giving special attention to their equipment as well as to drills, and the prospect is for an excellent showing at inspection time.

$15,000 FIRE LOSS AS CONVERSE HOME IS BURNED

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 28—An overheated chimney was responsible for a rural fire loss of $15,000 today when the beautifully and modern farm house of James H. Converse of Sawyer district burned to the ground late this afternoon. The fire was discovered about 4 o'clock when flames were seen creeping upon the roof. Help was summoned from neighboring farms and the aggregation of volunteers were able to save the house-furnishings from the fire. A favorable wind carried the sparks off in the opposite direction of the large barn in the rear of the house, saving its contents of hay and livestock. The building, a two-story dwelling, was one of the most luxurious homes in the district. The flames spread so rapidly that within an hour the dwelling was a smouldering mass.

WEEDEN, FORMER TERRORIST HEREABOUTS, SETS LIFE TERM

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 28—Frank Weeden, who terrorized the country side several years ago, when he escaped from an insane institution in Rhode Island and sought refuge in the woods of Killingly and Putnam, is now an inmate of the Rhode Island state prison in Howard, Rhode Island, serving a life term for the uncanny murder of Dr. Russell H. Sartwell, superintendent of the state hospital for insane.

Weeden was sentenced to spend the remainder of his natural life in prison, on Friday, after a jury found him guilty of the crime.

The officials of the institution in Howard have taken all precautions to see that the maniac does not escape, as he has done in other places of confinement. According to the prison officials, Weeden will be served his meals in his cell, and all food will be passed through the bars to him on a paper plate. He will also carry the food to his mouth on paper knives and forks. This manner of serving the insane murderer has been adopted, since he was able to contrive saws, and other tools, which aided him in his escapes.

When Weeden first gained his freedom from the state insane hospital, more than five years ago, he did so with the aid of knives and forks, given him by which to eat with. While at large, it will be remembered, that he overpowered a youth in Killingly and forced him to dig his own grave, threatening to kill the boy, after the six feet of earth was removed. Fortunately the lad caught Weeden off his guard and struck him with the spade. Since then Weeden had made numerous escapes from prisons.

There was some anxiety caused a fortnight ago, when police alarms were dispatched throughout Windham county by the Rhode Island authorities, informing police to be on the look out for Frank Weeden, who had murdered Dr. Sartwell with a shot gun. Police in this section of the state cooperated with the officials from the neighboring state in the search for the crazy man, but he was later arrested in the capitol city of Providence.

Not Enough Traffic At Crossing

If the laws of average determine as whether or not May street crossing remains open between the hours of 11 o'clock in the evening until 5 o'clock in the morning, there will have to be a far greater number of vehicles passing over the crossing during these hours or it will soon be closed to traffic. The interstate commerce commission has ordered the N. Y., N. H., & H. railroad to maintain proper safeguards at this intersection of highway and railway. The railroad authorities feel it an unnecessary expense to station a gatemen on duty at this dangerous grade crossing, and yet they were skeptical as to closing it to traffic, for fear of a public protest arising against it.

The matter was taken up at recent meeting of the common council and the chairman of the highway committee recommended to the railroad that a survey of the number of cars using the crossing between the two gatemen work hour shifts be made and a report turned into the interstate commerce commission.

This has been going on for several weeks past and it was learned today through the offices of local railroad officials that during the last week of the check-up no cars passed over the crossing during five nights, and during the remainder of the survey traffic at this point has not averaged one car a night. This is ample reason for the crossing to be closed during the above mentioned hours and it is thought that an order will soon be put into effect. The gate will be left down all night and signs will be erected at the gate informing the public of the act.

May street crossing is one of the most dangerous at night. Freight trains working in the yards switch cars in the vicinity of the darkened crossing and often times push cars onto the crossing. If closed the railroad will have eliminated one of the worst menaces within the city.

Several Putnam people motored to Spring Lake last evening to witness the $50,000 fire that broke out in a boat house and completely destroyed the summer colony at the lake.

At about 9.30 o'clock the northern horizon bore marks of a great fire somewhere in the direction of Providence and many followed the reddened skies until they reached the beautiful lake, about fourteen miles north of Putnam.

Bystanders soon numbered several hundred and they attempted to organize bucket brigades to combat the flames and save some of the summer residences, but their efforts were fruitless.

Spring Lake is the summer home of many of Providence's wealthy folk, who during the past five years have constructed many beautiful homes along its shores, all of which were levelled to the ground last evening.

The origin of the fire is unknown and undetermined, but one who arrived shortly after the flames had broken out, said that a boat house, which seemed to be saturated with some inflammable substance was ablaze when he arrived and seemed as though flames spread from this structure.

The Lap tribes in the northernmost part of Norway recently suffered the almost irreparable loss of 50 per cent of their reindeer. As is customary, more than 2,000 head of reindeer had gone to their feeding ground on Maseroe island this spring. The only way of transporting this great herd is to make the reindeer swim across the narrow strait separating the island from the mainland. While the herd was recently being driven back by the same route, more than 1,000 reindeer were caught in the swift current of he strait and were carried out to sea where they drowned.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 28—Frank Grispino, alias Che Che, of 75 Liberty street, Pawcatuck, through his attorney, A. T. L. Ledwidge took an appeal to the common pleas court of New London, when a fine of $150 and 30 days in New London county jail was imposed by Judge William A. Grispino was brought before the court by State Trooper Bernard J. Kennerson, of the Groton barracks, as the result of a raid and reported sale secured by the state police. Prosecutor George R. GERMANY RESTS HOPES IN SYNTHETIC PETROL

BERLIN, (AP)—Every year Germany is becoming more thoroughly motorized. The country has almost doubled its number of motor-driven vehicles compared with only two years ago, and in the past twelve-month it has produced about $262,500,000 worth of motors of all classes, of which about 95 per cent have remained in the country, the rest having been sold abroad.

With a motor mark now for the first time reaching a million vehicles, the fuel question has become of great importance, as both benzine and benzol have to be obtained from bill, abroad and constitute a charge on the wrong side of the Fatherland's trade balance sheet. All hopes are therefore fixed on synthetic benzine, an invention of the German Dye trust, which is expected to produce from 200,000 to 250,000 tons in the coming year, or roughly, one-quarter of all the motor fuel used in Germany.

This means that Germany, although still far from being self-supporting in the matter of motor-fuel, will probably in 1929 need to import no more benzine from abroad than it did in 1928.

Preparation of programs for Mississippi river flood control work for the year beginning July 1, was announced by the flood control board to have been formulated upon the basis of an expenditure of $30,000,000 as provided in the war department appropriation

THE GOVERNMENT'S BUSINESS.

Getting together the business heads of the government for a discussion of accomplishments and to bring about a better understanding of the efforts in meeting common problems has been a capital idea. It has accompanied the introduction of the budget system in the national government and it has been provocative of good results. It provides an opportunity for the president to set forth his views and outline his methods and by so doing to get the desired cooperation from the members of this organization. In this he has been most successful.

In a review of the accomplishments during the past eight years President Coolidge attributes great credit to the advantages which have accrued from the adoption of the budget system and well he may when he enumerates the benefits which have followed. In laying stress upon the importance of the budget system he does not overlook the manner in which the major activities of the government were studied and harmonized. As the result of it he frankly declared "harmonious cooperation has won."

Good reason has the president for pointing to the reduction of $6,667,000,000 in the public debt in the last seven and a half years. Equally creditable is the fact that the saving in the interest account alone has totalled $963,000,000 while the public may be more cognizant of the fact that approximately $2,000,000,000 has remained in their pockets instead of being taken out in the form of federal taxation.

From extravagance there was a welcomed change to economy. Efficiency took the place of inefficiency and lack of organization. Not all that may have been desired in the way of removing red tape and reorganizing the government has been accomplished but such a fine start has been made that it was possible to show excellent results.

When it is possible to point to economically administered government agencies as providing the "best conducted big business in the world," it is something which hasn't always been possible, and the effects of it have been reflected in business operations in general throughout the country. Because there has been greater confidence in the government the people have had greater confidence in themselves is well put by the president, themselves is well put by the president, economy in expenditures and sound business methods have been influential.

With the government setting about the elimination of waste there was an incentive for others to do likewise. Other government methods have likewise been employed and it would be well if more of the states and cities were imbued with the same purpose that has guided the government.

The president takes time to point out however that while the government has been cutting expenditures it has not been neglecting necessary things. It has in fact been called upon to meet the unexpected in various instances but by its present system of business it has made such advance that the president is justified in his declaration that "you have given abundant reason for being proud of your great government."

When the president further declares that many undertakings could not have been attempted "without an economical administration," that a huge increase in expenditures would have been made but for "a policy of rigid economy," and that the continuance of national prosperity depends upon the manner in which we insist upon constructive economy in government we know from the manner in which it has been tested out that he is right.

It was a fitting and well deserved tribute which was paid by the president to Director Lord of the budget bureau.

MISREPRESENTATION.

Ever since Mr. Hoover was elected to the presidency it has been put forth as his policy not to interfere in any way with the legislation in the closing days of the present administration. It can be appreciated that he is in a position to have much influence should he be willing to so overstep the bounds of propriety. But Mr. Hoover has maintained a policy of hands off, the one thing that was to be expected.

Repeatedly there have been those who have endeavored to represent themselves as having either an insight into what is bound to be the logical development, or to hold an inside view of the president-elect's plans. Those who are endeavoring to construct the cabinet for him are for the most part guessing or speculating upon possibilities. Those who are taking the position as spokesman for the man who will be at the helm after the fourth of March are probably self appointed.

Such at least proves to be the case in connection with the Hoover wishes relative to the cruiser bill. When Representative Britten of Illinois declared it is Mr. Hoover's desire that we have a navy "second to none," it is immediately countered by the denial in behalf of Mr. Hoover that he made any such statement. He has a right to his own views but is properly unwilling to interfere with another's administration.

Thus Mr. Hoover has been misrepresented in an unfortunate manner. It is the first time that he has been forced to say anything one way or the other relative to legislation since congress assembled, but regardless of the motives of the congressman in striving to win support for the cruiser bill he forced a denial and placed himself in an unenviable position.

Mr. Britten doesn't have any more success in trying to represent Mr. Hoover than he did a while back in undertaking direct negotiations with the leaders of the British government and to the exclusion of the customary government channels.

NEW ENGLAND SHEEP.

For a number of years New England interest in sheep raising has been lagging, so much so that it is not with surprise that Director Klein of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce is able to point out that there was a drop of about 50,000 pounds in wool production from 1925 to 1927.

The natural inference is that raising sheep is not profitable. Ask those who have been connected with the industry and the reply frequently encountered is that dogs are responsible for it, and it is of too frequent occurrence that flocks of sheep in the past have been badly chewed up and killed off by roving dogs. There cannot be much incentive to go in for the raising of sheep when such a probability is faced.

The problem is not a new one but it hasn't been solved to the extent of lending encouragement to the man on the farm to put his money and time into the sheep industry. This in spite of the fact, as Director Klein points out, "sheep in New England seem to suffer less from worm and parasite complaints than those in other parts of the country," and "as New England contains approximately 65 per cent. of the wool manufacturing business of the country, the producers of raw wool in New England are assured of a ready and handy market."

In making the claim that opportunity awaits the farmer with unused pasture in New England who goes in for sheep raising, Dr. Klein recognizes what others have pointed out repeatedly. He believes that dogs can be handled by legislation and enforcement but neither of the latter efforts has resulted in making the farmer feel justified in increasing his activities in this direction or of launching out into additional undertakngs of this character. Experiences have been to the contrary. Perhaps it is the Pennsylvania method of enforcing dog regulations that is needed but sheep raising is unquestionably badly handicapped at the present time, even though it ought not to be so.

A STRONG INDICTMENT.

Through a change in the police commissioners and a shake up in the police force New York has been engaged in what has been hoped would be a thorough housecleaning. It was brought about by the need of clearing up a murder mystery. That hasn't as yet been accomplished but other conditions which needed attention are apparently getting it.

But while there is a housecleaning being conducted in that direction, new interest is created by the declaration of Charles E. Hughes that there is also need for the New York bar to start a housecleaning campaign.

Mr. Hughes was talking to members of the profession and he didn't mince matters. He struck out straight from the shoulder and told the lawyers that the responsibility rested upon them. If they were not in the class of those complained of they deserved to take action for the purpose of indicating their attitude toward such professional conduct. In other words he made it clear that the longer the present condition continues the greater is the blame resting upon the members of the bar association.

When he declared that it is his belief that "never at any place or at any time has it been more difficult to maintain the standards of justice than here and now" he was indicting the bar association for its tolerance in permitting such conditions to exist, and he was at the same time calling for action that will end a deplorable situation.

Fighting crime is to be expected. It must be a steady business. In the membership of any organization there are a few who may cover up their real nature for a time but when there is a failure to eliminate such members it reflects no credit upon the association. There should be no further disposition to overlook it but rather an eagerness to hasten the removal of the discreditable situation. In view of what Mr. Hughes had to say it will reflect to the detriment of the organization if it doesn't get into action quickly. It can no longer be claimed that nothing was known about it.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: Speaking of aviation, time has been flying for a long while, and successfully.

With baseball leagues holding their meetings, the suspicion grows that we are approaching another and popular season of the year.

The claim is made by the packers that 880,000,000 hot dogs were eaten last year. Does that include all that the Boy Scouts cooked?

In the launching of the Salt Lake City imitation champagne was used. It was a success which proves that the real stuff could have accomplished no more.

The desire of Mr. Hoover for an enlargement of the white house officers reveals the belief that an office should correspond to the amount of business it does.

What is given in the way of comfort and service in New York's penal institutions is shown by the statement that not a single prisoner was displeased last year.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—The old-time stage song, "A policeman's lot is not a happy one," might well be paraphrased into "A chairman's lot, etc." Every four years the chairman of the inaugural committee, who covers all preparations except at the capitol, and the chairman of the congressional inaugural committee, covering the entire ceremony at the capitol, have hot battles with those who want to be put in the front rank of the parade or have choice seats on the platform. Two men bear the brunt of the fray this year. They are Col. U. S. Grant, 3d, grandson of General Grant, general chairman of the inauguration, and Senator Moses, of New Hampshire, chairman of the ceremony at the capitol. To them come daily demands that far exceed the possibility of granting.

This year the overwhelming republican victory makes every state "toppy" and in addition there are four states, usually democratic, to be cared for above the usual quota.

Colonel Grant must see to it that the parade is imposing, yet within the limit of simplicity set by Mr. Hoover. The vexed question of position in parade has been cleverly adjusted by ruling that states shall fall into line in the order of their admission to the Union.

Details falling on Chairman Moses are trying to the soul. One is how to make 15,000 platform seats grow where only 8,000 grew before. Here are just a few of the perplexities of the situation. The huge platform erected on the steps of the east front of the capitol seats 8,000. That sounds big until you count those who must have seats allotted through their official positions. Then that 8,000 dwindles until, like Mark Twain's famous apple story, "There ain't going to be no core."

For instance, the president and vice-president-elect are accorded as many seats as they desire, so are the retiring president and vice-president. The cabinet must have seats for itself and family, so must the supreme court and others in high judicial positions and the assistant secretaries of departments. The diplomatic corps must be shown every possible courtesy, and as there are 54 nations represented in Washington, a big slice of seats must be given them. Governors from the 48 states, with staff and council, will be represented, or present, at the inauguration. What about the national republican committee, with its high officials and 96 national committeemen and the 48 state committees, with their separate woman's divisions, all having done splendid work in electing Hoover and now want to see him inaugurated? It is the invariable custom to accord the states from which president and vice-president hail, at least twice the number of seats it would otherwise secure; and this year, not only does California and Kansas need an unusual supply, but the entire chamber of commerce of Palo Alto has notified Chairman Moses that it is coming to see Hoover take his oath. Certain high army and navy officers must be seated, in recognition of the fact that the president is chief of the army and navy. This year the British embassy has asked the courtesy of seats for 150 naval cadets coming from Australia to witness an American inauguration.

All those mentioned take out quite a chunk from the total 8,000, but they are only a small part of the reservations. A senator has only ten seats allotted to him. But when a small army of constituents, workers and friends, drop in, ten tickets go only a small way, yet count them up, and you will see that it takes 960 seats for the senate. Representatives get eight each, and as there are 435 members of the house their allotment chips off 3,480 seats in a twinkling. Senators and representatives-elect must receive equal courtesy, so 700 more seats are chipped off the list. There are 300 members of the press gallery to be so seated that they can report the ceremony to papers all over the world.

If anyone has an adding machine handy, and can find any seat fragments left, it might save Chairman Moses from having any more vials of wrath broken over his head, and provide seats for the rank and file, who for absolute lack of seating space, must now be content with "standing room only."

As president of the National Aeronautic association, Senator Bingham has mapped out a very ambitious program for 1929. One of the most important features is the recommendation of an air port at Washington, and for support of the flying club plan, which has made private flying very popular in England.

The Bingham report, just issued by the association, touches on civilian, military and air mail flying, each receiving attention. It recommends air port development, adequate license and training in civilian aviation, extension of the South American air mail service. Military aviation commands a high place in the Bingham report, together with an added airplane service for the army. Senator Bingham urges at least three new aircraft carriers be provided in the next two years, for army and navy planes.

Senator Bingham has taken up extensively in the senate that the house has failed to provide sufficient funds to carry out the army air corps five years building program and fears the nation's airplane defense service will be seriously impaired unless the senate provided for the deficiency. Senator Bingham will be the principal speaker at the anniversary banquet of the Washington chamber of commerce at its 22nd anniversary banquet to be held Feb. 9.

We hear a good deal said about "the unusual course" followed by President-elect Hoover, in remaining in Washington during the interim of his election and inauguration. But in fact, there is nothing strange or even unusual about it. President Harding remained in the senate long after his election, taking part in legislation and living the normal life of a United States senator, regardless of his elevation to the rank of president. The Hardings owned a home here during the senator's incumbency in the senate, and saw no reason for abandoning it, just because elected to the presidency. Shortly before March, however, the Hardings took an extended southern trip, returning just before the 4th of March.

It is the same with the Hoovers. They own a beautiful house up in the residential district, which has been the Hoover home ever since Mr. Hoover began his term in the cabinet, and during his service as food administrator under President Wilson. Just why he should be expected to abandon it, and skin around the country, unless he prefers to do so, is a mystery to those who are familiar with customs of presidents-elect. Mr. Wilson had a home in New Jersey and had never been affiliated with Washington, so naturally did not come here for any length of time until he assumed his office. So, taken all in all, Mr. Hoover is pursuing the natural instead of the unusual order of procedure, in retaining his home and headquarters here even though he enjoys travel and will be away much of the intervening period.

It is rumored here that when the president's term of office is ended, Mrs. Coolidge will use a little of the leisure thus obtained to carry on her pet "avocation," which is photography. Mrs. Coolidge is often seen at white house outdoor occasions, with a little movie camera, taking shots from the outskirts when the president is bestowing a medal or something of the sort. More than that, she has a splendid collection of photographs she has taken on their vacation trips. She is an expert in amateur photography and "back home" used to develop her own films.

President Coolidge has signed the bill providing for an additional judge in the Second federal circuit court.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 — (AP) — Japanese officials in Washington take great pride in the flowering cherry trees, gift of the mikado to President Taft, that grace the rim of the tidal basin on the mall.

They are the most gorgeous sight the capital afford in the brief hour of their glory. Experts study their progress toward bloom for weeks in advance. They set the day and the very hour when these millions of blossoms will open. It is vital advance information for the tourist agencies.

Pilgrimages come by train, bus and motor from half-way across the country to see the trees, shrouded in their unbelievably beautiful early spring gowns of pink and white.

Since the cherry trees first blossomed a new industry in landscape gardening has sprung up. No nature lover who sees them in bloom but longs for one or two to set out on his own lawn. Rich folks lay plans for whole orchards where the fruition shall be just a week of superb beauty.

Crowd to See Them

Uncle Sam's own great orchard far more than forms the setting for the waters of the tidal basin. Double lines of the double blossom trees parade the roadways of the mall for miles.

They march all down the drive beside the Potomac to Haines Point, over the harbor branch from the war college and the naval air station.

It is low ground where this particular lane of Japanese trees stands. Last year nature conspired against them. Heavy, continuous rains in early summer left them for days in standing pools of stagnant water, and many of the trees died.

To Replace Dead Ones

The government of Japan has come to the rescue. Through the embassy, it has offered to replace all the dead trees. American experts are weighing the problem of safeguarding them in future against such disaster. Schemes for raising the setting of the trees are being worked out to insure adequate drainage. Acceptance of the friendly, graceful gesture of the Japanese awaits a decision on that point.

Years ago the Japanese offered to complete the cherry tree picture on the mall by contributing an ancient Japanese stone lantern, a most treasured art relic in Japan. As the story goes, however, new fangled American notions caused some hemming and hawing.

Requests for blueprints, front, side and rear elevations, and what not, upon study of which acceptance of the offer would be based, intervened. And that, of course, ended the thing. Those lanterns are regarded almost reverently in Japan, whatever might be western appreciation and understanding of them.

THE RADIO INTERVENES

Mr. McTavish had tried to say it again and again and failed. A man in love is likely to seize at any straw and certainly Mr. McTavish had done his best. When the florists' signs advised, "Say it with flowers," hadn't he sent the widow a wee flowering plant? And when the confectioners' ads read: "Tell her with sweets," hadn't he bought her a box of choicest chocolates?

Aye, they might have their fling at the Scotch for being tight, but Mr. McTavish had lavished a tidy sum on the plump and dimpling object of his adoration and where had it got him? The widow merely fluttered and cooed and thanked him prettily. And McTavish, in turn, could only hem and haw, and inwardly berate himself for his cowardice.

When a man has reached the age of 50 before he feels the stirrings of romance, his courtship is a serious matter, and alone in his bachelor apartments Mr. McTavish had often rehearsed his proposal. He would ring the widows bell, greet the lady with dignity and immediately plunge into his subject.

Simple, wasn't it? You would certainly think that McTavish could have managed to say that much. But no. Once within the widow's presence the words would not come out. One one occasion only had he been near to breaking the spell and then his heart had failed him in the pinch.

"Ma'am," he had inquired of the widow, waving a bony hand toward the window sill, where bloomed a wee flowering plant, and then gesturing further to the goldfish bowl on the center table, "ma'am, have ye given a thought to what these things mean?" The widow's cheeks flushed pink.

"You mean your gifts to me?" she faltered.

"Aye," Mr. McTavish rose stiffly from his chair. "Those gifts mean—in fact, they are tokens of my undying—er——". And right there the one desirable, most necessary of all words died away behind his laboring Adam's apple.

And then, as if matters were not bad enough, a rival appeared upon the scene. William Buckley was a newcomer at the little apartment hotel, where both McTavish and the widow resided, but he lost no time in making that lady's acquaintance and in showering her with his attentions. Fat, pinked-faced and loquacious, Buckley at once appropriated the widow's evenings to himself.

Crowded to the wall, McTavish endured for a month and then determined on desperate measures. It was the radio that brought him to his decision. An ornate affair in a carved cabinet, Buckley had insisted on installing it in the widow's apartment, and beside its ostentatious elegance McTavish's flowering plant and goldfish were hopelessly outclassed.

The time had come when McTavish must propose quickly or all would be lost. And so, with firm resolve, he called at 7.30 the next evening instead of waiting until the customary 8 o'clock.

The hateful radio was playing even as he entered, but McTavish shut his ears and tried to concentrate on the words he had so long rehearsed. The widow chattered cheerfully; McTavish answered her in hoarse monosyllables. The blood was pounding in his temples. If he could only remember!

"There's a Scotch singer on tonight," said the widow. "I'm going to tune in for you."

McTavish scarcely heard her. He was telling himself that he must hurry before the detestable Buckley arrived or it would be too late. Suddenly he started. From the radio issued sweet and familiar music, followed by a man's passionate voice.

"Maxwelton's braes are bonnie"—McTavish felt the blood rush back to his heart; entranced, he sat there until the singer brought his ballad to a close. "And for bonnie Annie Laurie I'd lay me doun and dee!" That was it! Those were the words for a McTavish. Boldly he reached forward and clasped the widow's hand.

"Darling!" he cried. "That's what I've been trying to say. For you—I'd lay me doun and dee!" Ten minutes later Buckley rang the bell and was met at the door by his rival.

"Ah, McTavish," he smirked, "don't let me run you away so yet." McTavish extended a proprietary arm and drew the blushing widow to his side.

"Aoon!" he drawled. "I dinna need words. Your radio said it for me!"—Exchange.

YOUR HEALTH

BIG BUSINESS FINDS HEALTH PROFITABLE

By W. V. Gage, M. D.
Denver, Colo.

The reward that inevitably comes to hime who cares for his body as nature demands may be measured upon last analysis, in dollars and cents.

When at last "big business," in its continual search after items that are best from a financial standpoint, comes to see that big men and little men are as they are largely because of previous body care, nothing can stand in the way of the success of the clean body propaganda that "big business" will inaugurate.

Edison has said that "the simplest thing is the best thing, and usually the last found out." As an illustration, let us cite the fact that, as employes, well folks are of more value than sick folks.

Most of the conditions of "disease" that cut into the dividends of the average business are "deficiency disorders," and preventable simply by the teaching of rational habits of life.

Oneof the most easily preventable departures from normal is the common cold. Colds cost "big business" millions of needlessly lost dollars every year. In no other department would a like ridiculous expenditure be countenanced.

The teaching of the value of the physiological, clean and perfect body, as an asset to both employer and employe, seems surely to be "the stone which the builders rejected," when it is as positive as gravity that this rejected "stone" can triumphantly become the real "head of the corner" in the building and the maintenance of any successful commercial enterprise. The Panama canal was possible, not because of the presence of a multiplicity of steam shovels and engineers, but because of an absence of mosquitoes, and the consequent health of workers.

In a day and age when scientific experts in every line of endeavor are called into solem consultation regarding the best methods of rendering every other department more nearly perfect, it is past understanding that the perfect body, the most obvious item of all in the spelling of progress, should be so criminally neglected.

Think of the Utopian status of any enterprise of today, the activities of which were in no way interfered with by the handicap of easily preventable states of disease, this to include every component part of the institution, from president down to custodian of the cuspidores.

What chance would a competitor have whose personnel carried a disease handicap.

Big business will eventally realize that when its army or helpers is made up of individuals who, because of proper habits of life, are rendered free from sickness and burden, it has developed an asset valuable above all other things found on the right side of the ledger.

It will come to know that, as loked at from the standpoint of dollars and cents, the bodies of its employes are entitled to the care now lavished upon favored domestic animals, with which it is hoped to make a showing at the next fair. Stomachs of employes are worthy of more financial notice than are the radiators of a good fleet of trucks in the winter time. Money spent in saving stomachs is an investment, not a dead expenditure.

Burgess Bedtime Story

Spooky Becomes a Prisoner.

Before you move be sure you know
Just where you are about to go.
—Spooky the Sreech Owl.

Spooky liked Farmer Brown's barn. He liked living in there. For a while there was better hunting than there was outside. You see, there were many mice and many rats in Farmer Brown's barn, and rats and mice are the favorite food of the Owl family. So, take it all in all, Spooky was spending the most comfortable winter that he could recall.

Spooky hadn't lived in that barn a very great while before he knew all about it. He knew just where he was most likely to find a dinner when he was hungry. He knew that the grain bin was a continual temptation to the rats and mice. The big rats he let alone, but the small and half-grown rats he caught whenever he could. Once in a while, Farmer Brown or Farmer Brown's Boy would be careless and leave the lid of the grain bin up. If it were left up any length of time at all, a mouse or a rat was pretty sure to get inside. Spooky had discovered this. So he used to perch up on a rafter in the roof, from which he could look down into that grain bin.

It happened one morning that Farmer Brown's Boy was in a great hurry when he fed the horses and the cows. He fully intended to close the lid of the grain bin; but he didn't do it. He went off and left it open. It wasn't a great while before a venturesome young rat was inside that grain bin. Spooky saw the young rat go in. Spooky shifted his position and leaned over, so that he could see better. There was the young rat in a corner of the grain bin, stuffing himself. Spooky was tempted. Spooky was sorely tempted.

"I can drop right down in that place, pick that young rat right out of it, and get out myself without a bit of trouble. I don't believe there is any danger there at all," thought Spooky.

Still he hesitated. You see, he was a little suspicious of that grain bin. He had seen rats and mice go in and out of it and nothing happened to them. But he had also seen it opened and closed by Farmer Brown and Farmer Brown's Boy. And anything that could be opened and closed must be regarded with suspicion. So now, two or three times Spooky leaned forward as if to fly down, and then drew back. He just didn't quite dare to do it.

By this time there was another young rat in the grain bin. Spooky could see the two rats stuffing themselves as only rats can. The sight was too much for him. It certainly couldn't be any more dangerous for him in that bin than for the two rats that were there. Down flew Spooky, as lightly as a feather. There was no sound. There was nothing to warn those rats. Down he dropped, straight into that grain bin, and had one of those rats before the latter knew he was about. The second rat squealed with fright and scrambled up out of that grain bin.

Now, it just happened that the lid of that bin was not thrown way back. In fact, it was almost balanced. A good puff of wind would have blown it over and closed it. The frightened young rat in scrambling out hit it, and down came the lid with a bang. It scared Spooky almost out of his wits and at the same time made him a prisoner. It was dark, of course. Spooky didn't mind the darkness, but it did frighten him to be a prisoner. When he tried to fly up, all he could do was to bump against the lid of that grain bin.

Spooky had been frightened more than once in his life, but never had he had quite such a fright as this. He was so frightened that he actually forgot the young rat he had caught. And when Spooky the Screech Owl has caught a rat or a mouse and forgets it, you may know that he is very much upset, indeed. He imagined all sorts of dreadful things. He wondered what Farmer Brown's Boy or Farmer Brown would do to him, for he knew that one of them would be sure to find him there. Altogether, it was a most forlorn little Screech Owl that cowered down in a corner of the big grain bin.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Decries Needless Expenditure.

Mr. Editor: I was greatly pleased to read the statement by Chief Stanton relative to the idea of ripping up Shetucket street pavement for a new short length main.

Why go to all the expense and bother of such work when it isn't needed? One little hydrant on Shetucket street would be replaced by the costly change but that benefit can all be obtained by a new and big hydrant at the corner of Water and Shetucket street if connected with the existing 12 inch main there.

That would be a good move. It isn't necessary to dig up Shetucket street to get it. Why dig up Shetucket street to get nothing more?

We have ways and calls enough for money in Norwich without suggesting needless expense, or getting experts here from New York to back up a poor business policy.

Let's get busy with something that will help Norwich industrially instead of chasing around a lot of schemes that simply mean more expense and nothing to show for it.

Too Much "Dosing" Lowers Resistance to Flu-Attacks

A peculiarity of influenza is that its toxins upset the digestive system. Too much "dosing" especially in the case of children still further disturbs the digestion, and should be avoided except on advice of a physician.

Vicks VapoRub is especially valuable because it is applied externally and so can be used freely with no risk of upsetting the digestion. Nor can it interfere with any other treatment your doctor may prescribe.

Rubbed on the throat and chest, Vicks acts two ways at once: (1) through the skin like a poultice, and (2) By means of its medicated vapors, released by body-warmth and inhaled direct to the inflamed air-passages.

Keep Your Skin Young

Tedious treatments unnecessary! Just daily cleansing with Resinol Soap, and a touch of Resinol Ointment for the occasional pimple or roughness will keep most skins clear and smooth. TO EAT WITHOUT BECOMING FAT

Avoid Too Much of Any Food —and Too Little Exercise, Say Authorities

Some people seem to think that all they need to do to reduce is to stop eating sugar. That isn't true. As a matter of fact, as a prominent medical authority says, "Every food that has any food value at all is fattening if taken in large enough quantities." "Reducing weight," he goes on to say, "means to eat less, keeping the diet balanced and attractive."

Medical authorities are alarmed at the national "craze for reducing." "The experience of centuries has shown," says a celebrated doctor, "that a poorly nourished body becomes much more quickly subject to such disorders as anemia, tuberculosis, the common cold, or various types of infection, than does one properly upholstered. . . . The craze for thinness is an attempt to modify the process of nature."

How much more wise and sane it is to eat moderately of all foods rather than omit the one ingredient that adds so much to the enjoyment of eating. Sweetness is nature's ideal flavor. And no other food is so pure or so cheap as sugar. Eat plenty of such healthful foods as cereals, apple sauce, grapefruit and fresh and canned fruits and vegetables of all kinds—sweetened to taste. Sweetening makes it easy to eat the healthful foods regularly and daily. Don't overeat, but remember it is dangerous to undereat. The sugar way is the happy way. The Sugar Institute.

CITY'S COST OF REMOVING SNOW AND ICE FAR BELOW THAT OF OTHER YEARS

That Norwich is well ahead financially of previous years in regards to the removal of snow from the city streets is an almost self-evident fact. Norwich has been blest, or otherwise, with an exceptionally small amount of snow and ice up to the present time with the result that the street department has had little or no expense in the removal of snow and ice, an item that has amounted to thousands of dollars in other years.

Street Commissioner Wightman said Monday night that the expense of the removal of snow and ice from the city streets was a negligible amount and that no extra men had been employed. The department has removed snow from the main streets of the city where it hampered traffic and has also sanded the streets and sidewalks where ice had made the streets dangerous. There have been but two snow storms that amounted to anything, the recent one being the worst. Two ice and sleet storms made traffic hazardous and necessitated the use of sand but rapidly moderating weather caused the danger to clear up within a few hours.

The winter of 1927-1928 was the most open winter in over ten years, but so far the present season is far ahead of last year. The total expense of removing ice and snow from the city streets last winter was $2,010.56 while the winter of 1926-1927 set a high record of expense, the total being $9,281.94.

As might be expected, the months of December and January were the high months of each year for snow and ice and caused more than half of the year's expense for the item of snow and ice. A comparison of the months up to February of the past three winters follows:

1926-1927—October, $291.87; November, $828.38; December, $4,271.58; January, $2,660.38.

1928-1929—October, ——; November, ——; December, $86.00; January, $155.00.

The figures for December and January of the present winter are simply estimated as there are no figures available. If the weather during February and March is as open as December and January, the city street department will have considerable extra money to spend in other ways on the repair and upkeep of the streets.

First Selectman William S. Murray of the Town of Norwich said that the highway department of the town had been to very little expense in the matter of ice and snow. The plows have been out on several of the roads in the town and the sanding crews have been out several times.

LOCAL C. A. R. TO SEND DELEGATES TO CONVENTION

In the March, 1928, number of the magazine of the Children of the American Revolution, the great, great grandniece of General Washington, tells of the honors paid an unknown soldier of the American Revolution.

On February 22, 1928, after attending service in Old Church church, she went to the old Presbyterian meeting house for a most interesting ceremony. The Alexandria post of the American Legion had planned the placing of a tomb of a real evolutionary unknown soldier.

"The story according to the Presbyterian records gives the following: The walls of the Catholic church bound the Presbyterian cemetery along one side. When its foundations were being dug in 1826, the workmen had gone beyond their line by one foot, and unearthed a munition chest containing human bones and a pair of military spurs which identified the tenant of the grave as a soldier. This foot of land was allowed the Catholics who built their foundation, walling up that side of the grave.

From the Presbyterian records we find "Buried on January 9, 1821, an old Revolutionary soldier from Kentucky."

No name, a stranger far from home, he was buried by the St. Andrew's society which was then caring for the churchyard. His munition chest served as a trunk, like that of Captain Bally Bones in Treasure Island, and he had preserved his military spurs as a souvenir of his past and the chest was less expensive than a coffin, so the canny Scots buried him in it, five years before he was unearthed by the workmen.

He had waited long for recognition, but on February 22, 1928, his monument was the first unknown soldier of the Revolution to be thus honored.

The American Legion post at Alexandria placed a temporary marker at this grave, intending later, to erect a permanent one, but the post was so impressed by the services held there by the National Society of the American Revolution, during the April convention, that it has granted the privilege to the "Children" of placing a permanent marker.

It is the idea to have a simple monument, in keeping with the surroundings, and with the period in which this man lived, and fought so valiantly for his country.

Each member of the National Societ towards this monument, and the names of those contributors will be written in a book which will be kept on a table in the old meeting house, as an historical record.

The monument will be an appropriately dedicated during the week of the national convention in Washington in April.

Be Ready

When your Children Cry for It

Baby is likely to wake you any night with that sharp cry which means just one thing—colic! Be ready. Keep a bottle of Fletcher's Castoria in the house. A few drops of this pure vegetable, pleasant-tasting preparation comforts a colicky, fretful or feverish baby in a jiffy. In a few moments your anxiety is over and baby's sleeping soundly again. And you've only done what your doctor would advise. He'll tell you Fletcher's Castoria doesn't contain any harmful drug—that it's safe for the youngest infant and effective for children of all ages in cases of constipation, colic, gas, diarrhea and those upsets when you don't know just what is the matter. Avoid imitations. Genuine Castoria bears the Fletcher signature.

BOXING RETURNS TO EASTERN CONN. FRIDAY EVENING AT NEW LONDON

Amateur boxing will be resumed in this section Friday night at New London when the Union Athletic club, Pop Connelly, promoter, will stage a show at 663 Bank street. Several well-known boys are lined up for the card, which is the first in some time hereabouts.

Norwich boys will appear on the card with Frankie Adams in one of the feature bouts. Other local fighters who are scheduled are Young Sharkey, 118, Baby Joe Gans, 101, and Johnny Gans, 120. Paul Martell, 170 and Young Phillipino 125, of New London, Young Austin Rice, 130, Quaker Hill, Shiek Guida, Montville and Young Lewis, 145, New London, are other boys already lined up. Connelly is scanning the horizon for several likely looking matches and will have some more announcements.

FRANKIE ADAMS

There will also be a wrestling match between the Coast Guard champion and Young Whiteman of Boston, the latter a telephone lineman, who is in top condition.

Several boys from the Coast Guard and Sub Base are being sought and three from each place have already practically agreed to appear.

This show is bound to draw a large number from Norwich as the fight game has been rather inactive in late weeks.

PROSPECTS OF $3,000,000 RACE TRACK IN RHODY

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 28—(AP)—Visions of a $3,000,000 race track in Portsmouth, were aroused today by the statement that such a track will be constructed if a pending bill to legalize horse racing is passed by the general assembly. The promise was made by R. A. Clifford, of New York and Newport, who plans, with associates, to carry out plans for the project as soon as the so-called Newport county horse racing bill introduced in the house of representatives by Fletcher W. Lawton, is passed.

Mr. Clifford told the Evening Bulletin by telephone that he had been given to understand that the bill was going to pass this year, but he would not say from whom he had received this information.

Then roposed race track would be located on the shore of Narragansett bay, between the new Mount Hope bridge and the Weyehauser Lumber company's plant.

EITHER HEENEY OR PAULINO FOR K. O. CHRISTNER FEB. 22

NEW YORK, Jan. 28—(AP)—A long conference between Tom McArdle, Madison Square Garden matchmaker, and the managers of Tom Heeney and Paulino Uzcudun today failed to determinew hich one of the foreign heavyweights will get the February 22 date at the Garden with the redoubtable K. O. Christner.

Although last week he issued a long pronouncianiento to the effect that Heeney would take no foe but Dempsey, Charley Harvey, the New Zealander's pilot, today appeared in a receptive mod as did Al Mayer, Paulino's representative. McArdle made it plain that either fighter would be acceptable to the Garden and that the match probably would go to the one whose terms were the less exacting.

The verbal shadow boxing will be resumed later in the week, perhaps tomorrow. Christner's consent to a bout with either Heeney or Paulino already has been received.

BUSINESS STOPS DEMPSEY FROM TRAINING PROGRAM

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 28—(AP)—Business prevented Jack Dempsey from entering upon his training program today.

The former heavyweight champion, who stepped into the job of promoting the Sharkey-Stribling fight after the death of Tex Rickard, had laid his plans to start road work today with the implication that he might return to the ring if he found through his workouts that his body was in condition.

At noon today, however, he was forced to abandon the plan until tomorrow, at least, because of a business conference at Palm Beach. Dempsey and other officials of Madison Square Garden corporation, went to Palm Beach to discuss ticket reservations for the fight, but returned tonight.

Dempsey was informed today that "Pa" Stribling had written to a friend here that his son will come by train to Palm Beach on Tuesday but that he will meet his plane there and fly here Wednesday.

PLAINFIELD PROS TO CHANGE LINEUP FOR CANADIENS GAME

The Plainfield Pros will present a revamped lineup for their game with Les Canadiens five of Toronto, Canada, Wednesday night, at the Community house. In an effort to shake the slump that has been following the team the past few weeks, Whitey Bernot has been shifted to guard, Pop Williams to center and Tisdell to forward to replace Brusso. Dissinger will perform at the other guard with Kasper at the other forward. It is expected that this lineup, will break into the winning column once more. Reddy and Brusso will be the subs.

LEE MEADOWS REINSTATED WITH PIRATES FOR SEASON

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 28—(AP)—Lee Meadows, veteran despectacled pitcher for the Pittsburgh Pirates, whose name was placed on the voluntary retired list last year, has been reinstated, it was made known at Pirate headquarters today. He will try a comeback during the coming campaign. Meadows retired because of physical disabilities which failed to game at the Tawn hall Friday night.

Baker-Myers Bout Off

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 28—(AP)—The ten round welterweight bout between Sammy Baker, New York and Pete Myers, San Francisco scheduled for next Friday night, was postponed today until February 8 because of an injury suffered by Baker during training. Baker's lip was badly cut.

DAVE BARRY CANNOT REFEREE IN MICHIGAN

DETROIT, Jan. 28—(AP)—Dave Barry, referee who made the "long count" in the second Dempsey-Tunney fight in Chicago, will not be allowed to referee in Michigan, James Brown, chairman of the state boxing commission, announced today. The action was occasioned by plans to have him officiate on an amateur card in Grand Rapids, February 8.

BASKETBALL BRIEFS

The settlement of quite a basketball feud down south of us is bound to come shortly. Battery E of Westerly and the Stonington Ironmen have become real rivals this season and are now hurling challenges and what not at each. Battery E claims that the Ironmen cannot stand a rough game and the latter team claims they are surely equal to anything the Soldiers can, rough or otherwise. These teams will provide the natives of these communities some action in the near future.

The baskets at the Y have been moved out about ten feet, being suspended through pipes.

The Plainfield Pros sure deserve credit for bringing to Eastern Connecticut the very best in attractions. They deserve good crowds for right now the Community House is seeing as good, if not better, games than any floor in Connecticut.

No doubt there will be a large number of local fans making the trip to New London tomorrow night for the opening game of the state Y championships. Norwich and New London furnish the fireworks. New London is the present titleholder with Norwich, for the first time in years, conceded a chance of getting into the race.

HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS

Chapman Tech with 13 victories in 14 starts this year and safely in the lead in the Conference race, should get something of a test in Putnam high tonight at New London.

The present conference standing:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Chapman Tech	3	0	1.000
Putnam	2	1	.667
Windham	1	1	.500
N. F. A.	0	2	.000
Stonington	0	2	.000

There was plenty of action in the Stonington-Tech game Friday night, which Tech won, 22 to 16. At times the going got rather rough and Referee Guyer was forced to banish two Stonington players on personal fouls.

Examinations have called a halt on basketball at the Academy for the first part of the week. The slight rest may be just enough to put the Wildcats on their feet. A better second part of their season is hoped for, we know.

Torrington got a surprise the other night in Lyman Hall of Wallinford, which decisively beat the Gareymen, 32 to 17.

SID TERRIS KAYOED BY BABE HERMAN IN SIXTH

NEW YORK, Jan. 28—(AP)—The comeback aspirations of Sid Terris, once famed "Ghetto Ghost," came to an abrupt end tonight when he was knocked out by Babe Herman, Pacific coast slugger, in the sixth round of a ten round bout at the St. Nicholas Arena.

Herman was fighting a losing battle when he suddenly unleashed a terrific right hok that landed flush on Terris' jaw. The one-time lightweight contender went down like a log and was counted out after 22 seconds of fighting in the sixth round. In the previous round, Herman had gone down for a count of nine after one of Terris' right hand smashes caught him on the chin. Strangely enough, it was that punch that turned the whole tide of battle to Herman. He got up off the floor and tore into Terris with a terrific assault that carried the New Yorker back to the ropes. Herman lashed out with both hands and had Terris out on his feet at the bell.

As they came out for the sixth round Herman's wild overhand right connected and the former Ghetto idol had met his third knockout defeat in less than a year. Jimmy McLarnin and Ray Miller knocked him out in one round apiece last summer.

Terris took the first four rounds by wide margins. He was an elusive target and Herman could not find the range. It was only after he had been knocked down that Herman woke up and thereafter Terris did not have a chance.

REPORT DEFOREST TO TRAIN RISKO

NEW YORK, Jan. 28—(AP)—Johnny Risko arrived here today from Cleveland and lost no time embarking upon a final program of training in preparation for Friday night's bout with Max Schmeling, "the German Dempsey" at Madison Square Garden.

The Cleveland rubber man who has not been quite so elastic as usual in losing recent decisions to Jimmy Maloney and Ernie Schaaf went directly to the Pioneer Sporting clubs accompanied by Danny Dunn, his manager, and Frank Lennon, Cleveland heavyweight. Risko and Lennon boxed four fast rounds. Meanwhile the word went abroad that Risko, dissatisfied with his physical condition, had asked Jimmy De Forest, veteran handler of boxers and one of the proprietors of the Pioneer S. C. to supervise his final training.

Chapman Tech's position as leader in the Eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island Interscholastic conference basketball race, is menaced tonight by Putnam high in the game at New London. At present, Tech stands undefeated in scholastic competition, having won 13 games and lost one, to the Alumni. Putnam stands second in the conference race with two victories and one defeat for .667, while Tech has won three.

Putnam to Fight Hard

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 28—The fast Putnam high Noyes-coached basketball five are to journey to New London Tuesday night to tackle the onrushing Chapman Tech quintet, in their first basketball encounter of the season. Putnam will fight to knock the Chapman court aggregation off the pinnacle of the Eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island Interscholastic league.

Putnam Ready

Since their overwhelming victory over the Killonians of Killingly high school, last week, the Putnam hoopsters have been showing some speedy practice work on the local court and are in A-1 shape for their foreign battle tonight.

The sharp-eyed duo, Carman Leo and Capt. Walter Cody, continued to exhibit their exceptional work which spelled defeat for the Killingly aggregation last week. Reynolds and Sabin, the invincible guards, are ready for the onslaughts of the Whaling city group, while the stalwart Bill Shann is prepared to conquer any form of defense the opponents may set up.

To Use "Stalling Gag"

Coach L. F. Noyes said today that he plans to use his famous "Stalling Gag" against the New Londoners. The fans will remember that the slow work of the Noyesmen was responsible for the defeat of the Wildcats of Norwich Free Academy, and the speedy lineup from Woodstock academy. This tactic was also used against the Killionians of Killingly last week and served to baffle every player on the opposite team. Coach Noyes did not reveal what mode of defense he would use against the league leaders at New London tonight.

Many local fans are today anticipating the hour when the opening whistle will be sounded to send the Putnam net tossers into action, in an effort to regain the top berth in the league.

"When a sweet tempts me, I light a Lucky Strike."

Rosalie Adele Nelson

Rosalie Adele Nelson,
The Original Lucky Poster Girl

Reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet.

"I'm a 'Lucky Girl' because I've found a new way to keep my figure trim. Whenever the desire for a sweet tempts me, I light up a Lucky Strike. It's remarkable how nicely the toasted flavor of Luckies satisfies me. Toasting has taken out all impurities—all that is left is the thrilling Lucky aroma. I certainly am lucky to be 'The Lucky Girl.'"

ROSALIE ADELE NELSON

THE modern common sense way—reach for a Lucky instead of a fattening sweet. Thousands are doing it—men keep healthy and fit, women retain a trim figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest tobaccos, skilfully blended, then toasted to develop a flavor which is a delightful alternative for that craving for fattening sweets.

Toasting frees Lucky Strike from impurities. 20,679 physicians recognize this when they say Luckies are less irritating than other cigarettes. That's why folks say: "It's good to smoke Luckies."

A reasonable proportion of sugar in the diet is recommended, but the authorities are overwhelming that too many fattening sweets are harmful. So, for moderation's sake we say:--

"REACH FOR A LUCKY INSTEAD OF A SWEET."

"It's toasted"

UTILITIES AND RAILS HELD STEADY, WHILE INDUSTRIALS SOLD HEAVILY

NEW YORK, Jan. 28—(AP)—The stock market pranced about nervously today as the credit outlook became somewhat uncertain with the approach of the month end. Heavy buying of utilities continued and the rails held steady, but a wide assortment of industrials were sold heavily.

The market opened with a burst of strength, nearly 1,000,000 shares changing hands in the first half hour, but was swept by a wave of selling around midday, inspired largely by circulation of predictions that the call money rate would be boosted to 10 per cent as corporations withdraw funds to meet February 1 interest and dividend payments, amounting to about $375,000,000.

Confidence was partly restored, however, as bankers were inclined to place the estimates of 10 per cent. money as about 2 per cent. higher than the situation calls for, with the New York banks having reduced their borrowings considerably since January 1 and in a good position to prevent any severe flurry in money. The market rallied considerably in the late trading, although a sprinkling of issues closed 2 to 13 points lower.

Call money held at 6 per cent. all day. Wall street was inclined to ascribe this to easing off of credit through the recent arrivals of gold from Canada. The expected further takings of gold in London today, however, failed to materialize.

The day's news was mixed in character. Introduction of bills in the senate designed to curb the use of credit for speculation caused some uneasiness. There were a number of highly satisfactory earnings reports for 1928, however. The New Haven railroad reported earnings on the basis of $8 a share, in contrast to $5.49 in 1927. Radio Corp. reported earnings equal to $15.24 per share, against $6.15 in 1927. The American Smelting and Refining Company was reported to be negotiating properties in South Africa.

The utilities were helped by several good earnings reports and merger prospects. American Power & Light, Detroit Edison, Electric Power and Light and Commonwealth Power were among issues breaking into new high ground on gains of about 4 to 6 points. Brooklyn Union Gas again crossed the 200 mark. Consolidated Gas, however, yielded more than a point to realizing.

Radio (old) mounted about 10 points on publication of its preliminary earnings report, but closed only 5 points higher. New York Central rose more than 3 points to 198 5-8 on the announcement of the interstate commerce commission's qualified approval of its subsidiary unification plan, but lost part of its gain.

Tobacco stocks made good headway, which was interpreted as indicating that selling for the estates of large holders of these shares who died last year has been largely completed. Liggett and Myers and American Tobacco B made extreme gains of about 5 and 7 points, taking them to new high ground.

Westinghouse Electric made an extreme gain of about 10 points, while General Electric sold at one time 4 points lower. International Harvester sold up about 5 points to a new top, while Case Threshing dropped 13 points. Colorado Fuel and Iron, Commercial Investment Trust, Coty, and Electric Auto Lite mounted 3 to about 3 points to new tops.

Gardner Motors again was heavily bought, having come into popularity as the "big board's" only low-priced aviation stock. Indian Refining jumped about 4 points to a new high on reports that large oil companies were seeking its cracking process. Other oils were heavy.

A number of important issues prominent in the upturn last week were heavily sold. American Telephone, General Motors (old), Johns-Manville Midland Steel Products preferred, Nash Motors, Rio Grande Oil, St. Joseph Lead, International Nickel, and Simmons, were among issues which closed 2 to 7 points lower.

The commodity markets mostly closed firm. Wheat was higher on better Liverpool cables and more cold weather over the winter wheat belt. Cotton closed steady after fluctuating irregularly.

In the foreign exchanges sterling was markedly firmer, London cables being quoted at $4.84 31-32. The Canadian dollar remained heavy.

SUNDAY MOVIES VOTED IN STONINGTON MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Jan. 28—Decisive and favorable action was taken by a very largely attended Stonington town meeting Monday night in the town hall, in the matter of authorizing moving picture exhibitions in the town on Sundays. The meeting, called by the selectmen, was for the same purpose as a meeting held a week ago Friday, on petition of Theatre Manager John B. Findlay and 426 others. But the clerk of that meeting, Dr. James H. Weeks raised the issue of the statutory five day notice requirement as not having been met, so adjournment was taken without action at that time.

At Monday evening's meeting the Stonington selectman, John Fribance, of Mystic, Arthur E. Babcock, of Pawcatuck and Joseph A. Vargus, of Stonington were seated on the platform. Selectman Fribance called the meeting to order. Albert G. Martin of Pawcatuck was nominated for chairman of the meeting by Capt. Alvin Byers, of Pawcatuck and was the choice. The call was read by Town Clerk Elias B. Hinckley.

The favoring resolution was presented by Attorney John F. Gallagher, representing Manager Findlay. In a short address, he stated that the mind of the many present, packing the standing room at the rear of the hall, had been made up before they came. He said the Connecticut legislature legalized Sunday pictures and Manager Findlay had sought Sunday authority at the request of many patrons in Stonington and Westerly. Many in Pawcatuck, Stonington and Mystic now go to Sunday pictures in New London, Norwich and Providence.

He promised that the type of pictures would be of a nature not offending morals and stated that all kinds of sports were now being legalized on Sundays. In the 59 towns and cities of Connecticut, including Moosup, Jewett City, Baltic an dother places he had learned of licenses being revoked; and he added that the patrons going out of town with subsequent trade on Sundays, it might be continued on weekdays.

On motion of Stephen J. Crouch, a paper Yes and No ballot was ordered. Chairman Martin named as teller for the town ballot boxes on the platform Capt. Elvin J. Byers and Pierce A. Morrison of Pawcatuck, James Shea, 32 Liberty street, Pawcatuck and Everett Wilsof of Mystic.

At 7:44 balloting began, the lines passing down the two center aisles. The voting ended 17 minutes later. After a 13 minute count, at 8:20 Chairman Martin announced the result as follows:

Total vote cast 682
Yes 469
No 213

The 213 No announcement was drowned in cheering and stamping.

MYSTERY ABOUT RODNEY JACQUES DEAD FROM BURNS AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 28—Rodney Jacques, 49, of 12 Hill street, died tonight at Lawrence-Memorial hospital of third degree burns, received Sunday when his bedding became ablaze through ignition from the exploding of an oil heater with which he obtained heat for his one room in the tenement which he occupied. In passing away, Jacques refused to make a statement, both as to his identity and the method by which he had received his serious burns, the man remaining absolutely silent since he was taken to the institution. So far as is known Jacques had no near relatives, at least hereabouts. Last December the room which Jacques occupied was attacked by fire in exactly the same manner as that of Sunday, but Jacques escaped injury at that time. The same day he was picked up drunk by the police and the following day he was sentenced to jail. Sunday afternoon while Jacques split the oil stove, which was close to his narrow bed, exploded, setting fire to the bedding and before Jacques was aroused by the fire, he had been burned about the head, face, neck and shoulders. He was taken to the hospital, where he lingered until about 7 o'clock tonight.

AGAIN MRS. HIGGINS CALLS FOR POLICE AID

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 28—This evening Mrs. Edward Higgins of Blackhall street, made another call upon the police, declaring that when she alighted from a trolley car, a colored man who was at the corner of Williams and Blackhall street, followed her. Patrolman Frank Philopena went to the vicinity of the Higgins home and on Williams street he foun da Negro porter, employed by a pharmacy and escorted the man to the Higgins home, but Mrs. Higgins could not identify him as the man who, she claimed, had followed her. The colored man had been sent by his employer, it was found, to deliver a prescription at the residence, 99 Williams street, which fact accounted for his being in the neighborhood where Mrs. Higgins resides.

HOME OF MANUEL SILVA, COHANZIE, DAMAGED BY FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 28—The residence of Manuel Silva, a two-story wooden structure at Cohanzie, was partially destroyed by fire this afternoon and although assistance was requested and obtained from the New London fire department, the house was so badly damaged that it is possible that the fire will entail a total loss. The fire was discovered about 4 o'clock when members of the family detected smoke issuing from the upper part and roof of the house. An attempt was made to subdue the fire, which was in the partitions and beneath the roof, but without success. It was the nthat a telephone message was received at fire headquarters asking for aid. Chief Thomas Shipman and the Niagara Engine company responded, but by the time the firemen arrived at the burning house, which was located off the main highway, it was practically doomed. Volunteers assisted the local firemen and the fire was subdued, but not until the entire upper part of the building had been destroyed and a section of the first story damaged.

Patrolman George McCaskey was unable to perform duty tonight, being confined to his home on Wightman street, threatened with grip.

Street Sergeant Samuel Hick, who has been ill at his home on Blydenberg avenue for several weeks, resumed duty this afternoon.

The police received a telephone message late last night from Mrs. Edward Higgins, 84 Blackhall street, that a man was prowling beneath the window of her sleeping room. Officers Michael Dorsey and Albert Iverson, who responded, were unable to obtain any clue to the alleged prowler. Mrs. Higgins informed the police that about 14:15 and a short time after she and her husband had retired, the sound of someone walking on the ice near the window was detected and upon investigating they saw at the window a man who carried a searchlight. Mrs. Higgins a week ago claimed to have been attacked by a Negro while about to enter her home and to having been knocked down and beaten. No trace of her alleged assailant was ever obtained.

WOMAN HAD BEEN DRINKING—WAS NOISY ON THE TRAIN

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 28—In the city court today, four cases were tried, all being charged with intoxication. Three of the accused, one a woman, were fined, while the fourth forfeited his bond of $25 by failing to appear. The woman was a stranger in New London and was arrested by railroad police. She was a passenger on the train that arrived in New London from New York at 3:20 o'clock this morning and created a disturbance on the run from New Haven to this city.

A still alarm caused two pieces of fire apparatus and Chief Shipman to respond for a slight blaze at the house, 11 Starr street this noon. The fire was not serious and was extinguished with but little damage.

At the annual meeting of the Thames club, held at the club house Saturday night, Thomas S. McGinley was elected president. Other officers elected were: First vice president, Robert B. Preceding the meeting a delicious turkey dinner was served.

The cold snap of the last few days has brought joy to the hearts of New London juniors. Every pond is frozen over and the kiddies are taking advantage of it. Tonight, after school, hundreds could be seen going skating bound. However the freeze has not been such as is of great benefit to ice men. It will take several more nights or so of cold weather for the ice to form of a sufficient thickness to make cutting profitable.

Lawrence Packer, insurance solicitor, and adjutant of the local American Legion, was presented in the Groton town court today charged with forgery. The case did not get to trial, being continued to Monday next, because of counsel for Packer being unable to attend the court session. Packer it is claimed, as adjutant of the legion, received five checks, each for the sum of $12, and made payable to beneficiaries of the legion. He cashed the checks by endorsing the names of the payees to the checks and the latter claim that they did not receive the money. Packer's claim is that while he endorsed the checks, he was authorized to do so by each payee, and that they received benefits from the money he received through the payment of bills for groceries.

Crashed Into Wall.

An automobile driven by Carl French, 894 Bank street, was wrecked Sunday on the New Haven turnpike when it crashed against a stone wall. French escaped injury other than bruises. The automobile was headed in a northerly direction about 1.30 o'clock and was followed by a machine owned by the Firestone Rubber company and driven by Samuel Kent, of Mystic. The machine driven by Kent was following closely the car ahead and when the latter was suddenly driven from the highway to a driveway, a near-collision resulted. Kent's automobile was guided so as to avoid a crash, but French's collided with the wall. The state police were notified of the accident and Officers William MacKenzie and Arthur Whitmarsh are making an investigation.

Breed Theatre.

Featuring one of the best double feature bills at the Breed theatre tomorrow and Thursday, "Stocks and Blondes."

Written and directed by Dudley Murphy, this screen play shows Wall street "daddies" at work and play. Cold, crafty and shrewd when at business, they drop all cares when the day's work is done to seek entertainment in the hectic night life of Broadway. And there is where the golddiggers of the cabaret take them in and shake them down.

Second feature! Heart Trouble. "What might be a hearty laugh to some will be but a chuckle for others and vice versa.

"In other words, the producing of a comedy becomes the most serious of all screen fare."

Langdon's latest "Heart Trouble" is the result of several months concentrated effort and he has given the screen a production and performance taht is by far his best.

This bespeaks volumes for this sterling comedy star for he has given the silent drama hours of keen entertainment.

Palace Theatre.

"The Whole Town's Talking" and it's a fact too. Never before in Norwich's interesting theatrical history has the show-goers had the opportunity to talk about a show. Accomplishing, almost the impossible, was the feat the management attempted when they stated that they would recruit thirty local girls and stage a Norwich Follies. You can be the judge of the success of their endeavors just as the audience yesterday and last night judged them.

These local girls deport themselves just like real professionals and when one considers that hardly any of them have ever had stage experience then you will marvel all the more.

The local Follies act runs over 45 minutes and is really an elaborate Broadway production. Dozen of changes of costumes and scenery takes places in the course of the show.

Besides this great production act there are other Big Time Vaudeville acts on the same bill including Maxon & Co., in a new and novelty act that will start the stage show off with just the right tempo. Following them will come one of the greatest low down Hokum doubles on the vaudeville stage. Raymond and Gibbs are nationally known stage comedians and in larger cities are known to all theatre fans.

Hollywood's famous Music Box theatre was turned into a Broadway playhouse for sequences in Columbia's "The Street of Illusion," the picture at the Palace theatre. The Music Box is the home of elaborate revues and a favorite playhouse of movie celebrities.

For "The Street of Illusion," a drama was enacted on the stage in which Virginia Valli appeared as heroine; Kenneth Thomson as hero; Ian Keith as a butler and understudy for the star; Harry Myers as stage director and Vadim Uranoff as an actor. Each of these movie favorites has won an enviable reputation upon the spoken stage and it was like old times for them to get into the theatre again.

The play in the picture is called "The Avenger." The action shows the manner in which a Broadway production is cast, the rehearsals, the setting of the stage, the opening performance and other points of interest in the staging of a drama.

Lawrence Tibbett.

Rarely is such enthusiasm given to any singer as falls to the lot of America's famous baritone, Lawrence Tibbett, who will be heard at Slater hall Friday, February 15 under the auspices of the Rotary club for the benefit of the Blackmar fund. His immense tour from coast to coast and back again last season recorded many triumphant scenes.

A new contract was made the spring previous, after many conferences between his managers, Messrs. Evans & Salter an dthe Metropolitan Opera company, which, while calling for his usual number of appearances in opera, still made possible his beginning them later thus allowing much more time for concert tours. Even despite this though every available concert date was contracted for months in advance of the season.

It is the highly developed emotional power of Tibbett and his ability as a singing actor that aid in gripping attention of his hearers from start to finish. As the Fresno Bee declared, 'He lives his songs," and he gives to them such vital dramatic significance that they thrill the imagination of his listeners. In line with this is the statement in the Spokane Chronicle. "Possibly at no time has a concert artist been so enthusiastically received as was Tibbett, his listeners all but cheering his every number."

And here comes a vastly important point in any concert by any singer, the making of the program. In recording this feature as evidenced by Tibbett the News of Denver said, "His program appeals equally to the musical layman as well as the connoisseur," the Tucson Citizen expressed it, "From the opening song to the close of the long program, consisting of 16 numbers, augmented by 10 encores, Tibbett held his audience enthralled."

Exactly the same is his reception in New York and everywhere. The New York Evening Sun said of him when he finally reached the end of his immense tour. "Song recitals by this admirable singer are wont to bring the support of large and enthusiastic audiences, and the one of last night was no exception to the rule."

Broadway Theatre

Last night's audience at the theatre showed by spontaneous applause their appreciation of the tremendously effective epic of South Pole exploration by airplan, about which the sensational all-talking picture is built.

Vitaphone was never more effective than in its rendition, not only of all the words of the players—who show themselves masters of diction—but of sounds of wind and weather, of the whirring of motors, the crackling of ice in the vase plains over which the plane flies—and on which it meets destruction—and in a musical accompaniment of just the right timbre to interpret the rough and ready, breathtaking spirit of the play.

Monte Blue makes his talking picture debut, so we are told, in "Conquest." It must be said that his voice is quite in keeping with the manliness of the presence which has endeared him to picture fans all over the world. His acting of the trying part which traverses many moods, as well as his handling of the plane as pilot, is masterly. H. B. Warner is always superb in his portrayals of character, and in "Conquest," he has a tragic part, worthy of his genius. Lois Wilson is always charming, a record which she sustains as the girl loved by both airmen, and the unwitting cause of the conflict which parts them and brings their efforts to destruction.

Del Ruth has done a magnificent piece of direction, making the scenes of flight and desolation and conflict seen as if lived in the presence of the onlookers. "Conquest" is worthy of its great subject. Splendidly staged and acted—and Vitaphone adds the final magic.

A wise man is one who never argues with a woman.

SAY HANDS MAY SPREAD FLU

Health Authorities Urge Public to Avoid Needless Risks

Advise Removal of Germs From Hands as Simple Protective Measure

In an attempt to help the public protect themselves from flu, which has been spreading so fast that a million and a quarter new cases of it appeared in one week, health authorities are advising that everybody fight this malady by taking all precautions against it.

One important point stressed in combating flu is that hands may spread it, just as they carry and spread the germs of other serious diseases.

In its list of protective measures cautioning people to avoid crowds, to get plenty of rest, exercise, fresh air and nourishing food, the Life Extension Institute urges that hands be kept germ-free. The special importance of this simple health habit is readily apparent when we consider that hands are constantly exposed to contact with germs.

Germs a constant menace

We handle money, shake hands, turn doorknobs—regardless of whose germ-laden hands touched these objects before us or how many germs may in this way be transferred to our own hands. Since germs on hands may easily reach the mouth and become implanted in the system, it is wise for everyone to follow the advice of authorities—that is, wash the hands many times a day and be sure to get rid of these unseen germs.

Millions already know that the easiest way to accomplish this is with Lifebuoy, the famous health soap which has an antiseptic, germ-removing lather.

Mothers in countless homes all over the country—teachers in over 63,000 schools where the Lifebuoy habit has been taught—have found that washing with Lifebuoy frequently during the day, after work or play and always before eating, provides a practical, everyday safeguard against disease. Doctors always make a habit of removing germs from their hands to protect themselves and patients.

Since the outbreak of the flu—more and more new thousands are turning to Lifebuoy. Mothers are all urged to do likewise and adopt Lifebuoy as the regular family toilet soap.

Lifebuoy is obtainable wherever soap is sold. Its cost is no greater than other toilet soaps, so you secure its extra protection free.

GREENEVILLE

Baronowski-Boully

A very pretty wedding took place at St. Joseph's church Monday morning at 9 o'clock when Miss Wanda Baronowski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Baronowski, of 56 Russell road, was united in marriage with Leo Boully, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Boully, of 681 North Main street, with the ceremony being performed by Rev. William Toper. Miss Yvonne Yergeau acted as maid of honor and the Misses Regina Izbicki and Johanna Jurezik were bridesmaids. Stanley Baronowski, a brother of the bride, acted as best man, while Andrew Jurzik and John Malerba were ushers at the church. The bride was beautifully attired in a white satin gown, trimmed with Spanish lace. She carried a shower bouquet of white chrysanthemums and lilies of the valley and wore a veil caught up with orange blossoms. The maid of honor was handsomely attired in orchid crepe de chine gown and wore a picture hat to correspond and carried an arm bouquet of pink chrysanthemums. The bridesmaids were gowned in orchid and pink crepe de chine gowns and wore picture hats to match and carried bouquets of pink chrysanthemums. After the church ceremonies a wedding breakfast was served at Pulaski hall with 300 relatives and friends attending from New Haven, Jewett City, Philadelphia, North Grosvenordale, Meriden, Plainfield, Taftville and Norwich. Following the breakfast, dancing was enjoyed during the remaining part of the day with Panek's orchestra furnishing music for dancing. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts, namely, furniture, silverware, cheques for substantial amounts, gold pieces, linens and cut glass. Mr. and Mrs. Boully left late in the day for a two weeks' honeymoon trip to New York city, New Jersey and Atlantic City. The newly married couple have a large circle of friends in Greeneville who extend their wishes for a happy and prosperous married life.

TAFTVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gley and their daughter Miss Hazel Gley of Mystic were visitors over the weekend at the home of Mrs. Gley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Meyer and family of Blissville.

Forty Hours Devotion opened Sunday after the high mass of the day at Sacred Heart church, following a procession of the Blessed Sacrament, in which many of the children of the parish took part, strewing flower petals before the Host. Many visiting priests are assisting the local clergy in hearing confessions during the Forty Hours.

John Pickos has resigned his position with the weaving department of the local mills.

Grand Knight John J. Daley was the presiding officer at the business meeting of the members of Ponemah council, No. 34, Knights of Columbus held at their rooms on Providence street Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. George Heibel, Jr. and family of Blissville are moving to Patterson, N. J., where Mr. Heibel has accepted a position.

At the morning service of the Taftville Congregational church on Sunday, Rev. William Penner of the Hartford Theological Seminary, whom the church has recently called to the permanent pastorate, occupied the pulpit. The offertory sung by the choir under the direction of Miss Nellie S. Howie, the church organist and choir leader was "I Will Praise The Lord."

Mr. and Mrs. Fred White of South street and Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Revial and Mrs. Mathilda Caron of Riverside grove were in Rockville on Saturday to attend the funeral of a relative, Mrs. Pierre Caron.

A very successful card party was held in the rooms of St. Veronica's society on Providence street Friday evening, the affair being in charge of Miss Catherine Hasler, assisted by her committee, Miss Anne Daley, Miss Helen Breault, Miss Julia Chappell and Miss Grace Phalen, who served refreshments. The first prize for ladies was awarded to Miss Mary Ward, the second to Miss Mary Nolan and the consolation to Miss Irene Chappell. Arthur Lambert of Baltic was the winner of the first prize for gentlemen; Alfred Senecal the second; and the consolation was awarded to Joseph Connell of Norwich.

That Baby You've Longed For

Mrs. Burton Advises Women on Motherhood and Companionship

"For several years I was denied the blessing of motherhood," writes Mrs. Margaret Burton of Kansas City. "I was terribly nervous and subject to periods of terrible suffering and thought, why I am the proud mother of a beautiful little daughter and a true companion and inspiration to my husband. I believe hundreds of other women would like to know the secret of my happiness, and I will gladly reveal it to any married women who will write me." Mrs. Burton offers her advice entirely without charge. She has nothing to sell. Letters should be addressed to Mrs. Margaret Burton, 691 Massachusetts, Kansas City, Mo. Correspondence will be strictly confidential.

SON OF LOCAL MAN SAID TO BE IN ALLEGED N. Y. BANKRUPTCY RING

Metropolitan papers of Monday carried stories connecting Sidney F. Strongin of Brooklyn, N. Y., and a summer resident of Gardner lake, son of Louis Strongin of 53 Pearl street, this city, with an alleged "bankruptcy ring" operating in Brooklyn. The connection of Strongin with the ring came out through a letter from Representative Andrew L. Somers of Brooklyn to the attorney general urging investigation by the department of justice of receivership appointments by federal judges.

In his letter Mr. Somers declared that Federal Judge Grover M. Moscowitz in Brooklyn has assigned "at least forty" receiverships to a group of three lawyers with joint offices at 189 Montague street, Brooklyn. The letter adds that Judge Moscowitz is also listed as one of the occupants of the offices in the building directory. The lawyers named are Sidney F. Strongin, Minnie Schwartz and Milton Hertz.

If the attorney general fails to conduct the investigation he has requested, Mr. Somers will move for a congressional investigation at the next session, he said. Mr. Somers had not received an answer from the attorney general at that time.

Judge Moscowitz is said to be a brother-in-law of Mr. Strongin.

TO LOCATE VETERANS' HOSPITAL IN THIS STATE

(Special To The Bulletin.)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28.—The meeting this noon by officials of veterans bureau finally settled on Connecticut as the state in which the new veterans' hospital will be located thus eliminating Rhode Island from the list. It was recommended by Gen. Hines and the officials that a site near either New Haven or Hartford be selected on account of transportation facilities, but no specific site was recommended today.

Representative Tilson received telegrams from many people and organizations asking him to recommend certain locations, among them are those from the state department of veterans of foreign wars and the department commander of disabled veterans. The former recommends a site in the vicinity of Hartford, without specifying town or city and the latter asks that the Hall farm, Glastonbury, be selected. Representative Tilson, however, states that he does not feel he should take any active part in the selection of a site, so long as it is in the state of Connecticut. He explains that as he was especially active in securing the hospital for the state, he ought not to attempt to influence any particular site. Col. Tilson said today "I want the hospital located where it will be most convenient for the greatest number of veterans and their families. I do not feel it would be proper for me to attempt to influence its location in any specific location."

HOME FROM AUTO TRIP TO CHICAGO

Last Monday evening Mrs. Phoenie E. Ames of No. 198 West Thames street, and Herbert J. Hammond of Mohegan returned from an automobile trip to Chicago, Ill., where Mrs. Ames was called by the illness of her daughter, Miss Millicent Ames.

The trip of over 2,700 miles was made in a new Essex sedan recently purchased by Mrs. Ames and on their return trip Mr. Hammond drove the car from Cleveland, Ohio, to Norwich. Severe weather, snow, rain and icy roads were encountered and many wrecked cars were seen along the route, but Mrs. Ames and Mr. Hammond met with no mishaps, and considered their trip both interesting and fortunate.

ESCAPES JAIL SENTENCE ON PLEA OF ILL HEALTH

In the city court Monday morning Mrs. Stephania Teczar of No. 10 North street, charged with violation of the liquor law, was given a fine of $200 and costs, together with a 30-day jail sentence, suspended. A jail sentence was not imposed upon the accused by Judge Arthur F. Libby in consideration of her condition and that of her three children, who are very ill. Local and state police raided her residence at No. 10 North street last Thursday and found a quantity of liquor, but the accused was not arrested at the time as she was ill with influenza. Her case was not brought up at her request until Monday morning, when it was learned that the three children were ill and that she had not wholly recovered. In imposing the sentence Judge Libby made it clear that if Mrs. Teczar was convicted in his court again on the same charge she would go to jail, whether she were sick or well.

SLIGHTLY INJURED IN MAIN STREET AUTO CRASH

Mrs. James J. Way of No. 25 Peck street was slightly injured shortly after noon Monday in an automobile accident on Main street. Mrs. Way was thrown from the machine owned by the T. N. M. Lathrop Co., and operated by her husband, when it was in collision with a delivery truck driven by Anatol Ridiger, 38, R. F. D. No. 5 near the Elks' home. It is understood that the Ridiger machine came out of the driveway near the postoffice, shot across the street and pushed the touring car onto the sidewalk. Both cars were damaged.

LOCAL AUX. V. F. W. OFFICERS ATTEND QUARTERLY MEETING

The quarterly meeting of the department of Connecticut, ladies auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the U. S., was held at the Middlesex auxiliary rooms, Middletown, on Sunday afternoon.

A meeting of the department council of administration was called at 11:30 a. m. Following the council meeting a delicious dinner was served by the Middlesex auxiliary. The business meeting opened at 2:30 p. m. with the department president, Miss Helen Shanahan of Waterbury, presiding. Much routine business was transacted, and following this, several interesting addresses were made. Captain Simons of the U. S. Veterans bureau, Hartford, gave a very instructive talk, which was highly appreciated. Past Department President, Mrs. Rose Langley of Danbury, state chairman for the V. F. W. national home committee, spoke at length on the V. F. W. home at Eaton Rapids, Mich., its aims and purposes, and the plans for financing it. Mrs. Agnes Hunt of Middletown, national council member, also made a few interesting suggestions.

All auxiliaries were urged to have representatives present at the dedication ceremonies on next Sunday when the department of Connecticut V. F. W. and auxiliary present to the hospital at Fitch's Soldiers Home, Noroton, a fully equipped two bed room, dedicated to the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Connecticut department.

All department officers and auxiliary presidents were requested to be present at a meeting to be held at the Lieut. Caldwell Colt Robinson D. S. C. Post rooms in Hartford, on Saturday evening, Feb. 9th.

The next quarterly meeting of the department will be held at the Raymond W. Harris post, Bridgeport, on Sunday, April 28.

Among those attending from Norwich were dept. patriotic instructor, Mrs. Rosamond Jacques, department color bearer, Mrs. Mary Hull, Mrs. Agnes Poliquin, president of Auxiliary No. 594, and Mrs. Emma Hull.

OVER $4,000 RAISED FOR LOCAL PALESTINE APPEAL

Norwich Jewry turned out in great numbers to greet Maurice Samuel, the author of "You Gentiles," and "I the Jew" who was the main speaker at the mass meeting held under the auspices of the Norwich United Palestine Appeal Sunday evening at the Community House.

The meeting was presided over by Rabbi Joseph N. Rosenberg, the chairman of the local appeal who also delivered the introductory address emphasizing the importance of the upbuilding of Palestine as a Jewish Homeland. "From the Jewish homeland," he said, "there will radiate light not only for the Jewish people, but also for mankind as a whole." He rejoiced at the fact that new leaders are rising to take up the work of the older generation. He pointed to the guest of the evening, Mr. Samuel, "as one of the men whom the Zionist movement has brought to the front as champion of their people's cause.

Maurice Samuel gave the main address of the evening, having kept the vast audience spellbound for over an hour. Mr. Samuel stressed mainly the self respect and dignity which the Zionist movement has brought to the Jewish people. He drew a vivid comparison between depressed Jews in Poland and other countries, the countries he had visited several years ago as a member of the U. S. commission sent to Poland shortly after the war, and the self-respecting dignified builders of the Jewish homeland. He portrayed graphically the progress already made in the valley of Yezlel which until a few years ago was a malaria infested region and which through the self-sacrificing spirit of the "pioneers" has been transformed into a flourishing spot, studded with a number of growing settlements. He spoke of the Zionist movement as the "Romance of History" unparalled in the annals of the world.

The call for funds towards the local United Palestine appeal was met with a generous response. Fully $4,000 has been obtained at the meeting. A number of workers will canvass the city and judging by the enthusiasm displayed, it is safe to predict the local quota will be raised in full.

The local chapter of Hadassah which has always cooperated with the local United Palestine committee headed the list of contributions by giving $750 to the cause.

Another attraction of the evening was Miss Chayele Grober, the star of the "Habimah," the Moscow Art theatre, who rendered a number of selections accompanied by Miss Pola Kadison at the piano.

The floor committee, was: Samuel Taylor, Abner Schwartz, Abraham Cramer, Oscar Silverman, Jacob Wechsler of Jewett City, Morris Sussman, Israel H. Mandell and David N. Gordon.

The secretary, M. I. Silverman, was assisted by Miss Sarah Stamm and Rivy Rosenberg. The ushers were girls of the Junior Hadassah, Rivy Rosenberg, Sarah Stamm, Ida Feister, Miriam Shereshevsky, Rose Moyel, Minnie Mopsik, Molly Segal, Ida Yoselevsky and Celia Lidofsky.

PREACHER FROM NEW LONDON HEARD AT METHODIST CHURCH

Rev. Elmer G. Page, assistant pastor of the New London Methodist Episcopal church, preached at the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church Sunday morning, giving a forceful sermon on the theme, "The Christian's Hope," taking for his text John 14:1, "Let not your heart be troubled." The special music was in charge of Mrs. Lewis Aldrich. The pastor of the church, Rev. George Warren Potter, who has been confined to his bed, ill with grip, is greatly improved and expects to be able to take up his work this week.

The Junior Epworth league Sunday afternoon was in charge of Mrs. Helen Heviland Potter.

The C. E. meeting was led by the newly elected president, Lewis Aldrich. At the evening service Mrs. Potter spoke on "The Approach of Lent."

The meeting of the Boy Scouts this week is to be held Wednesday instead of Friday evening on account of an entertainment Friday.

The Camp Fire girls are to meet at the parsonage Wednesday evening.

Rehearsals for "Old Sweethearts," the C. E. play, are to be held in the vestry Tuesday and Thursday evenings.

The meeting of the Boy Scouts connected with the Methodist church, held Friday evening, was in charge of the assistant scoutmasters, Lewis Aldrich and Ralph Smith, in the absence of the scoutmaster, Rev. Mr. Potter. Assistant Smith opened the meeting with the usual ceremony. The efficiency contest showed that Scout Clayton Rose has increased his lead, as he now leads by 18 points. Scout Arthur Bennett holds second place. The old reliable game "Murphy Says" was enjoyed, under the direction of Assistant Scoutmaster Smith. The song period was led by Aldrich and Smith. The meeting closed with a movie thriller followed by the Scout oath and benediction.

The Wolf Cub meeting at the Methodist parsonage, Saturday morning, was in charge of Assistant Scoutmaster Smith and the assistant cub master, as Rev. Mr. Potter, the cub master, was ill. Following the opening ceremony, Assistant Scoutmaster Smith led the Cubs in a song period. The Cubs told the story of Mowgli. The meeting closed with the Wolf Cub Yell, after Assistant Scoutmaster Smith had told the Cubs the story of White Fang.

DAVID H. FANNING'S STOCK WAS SOLD TOO SOON BY BANK

A surprising fact has become known in connection with the liberal gifts of the late David Hale Fanning, Worcester, Mass., corset millionaire, to Connecticut College for Women, at New London.

When Mr. Fanning died, about three years ago, his estate included 6,000 shares of a certain stock which had been bought on pure speculation. In due time the Worcester trust company which had been named as executor of his will sold these bonds for $200,000.

It comes out now that had said said shares been held in the recent boom period of the market they would have brought a full $700,000.

Since Connecticut College was bequeathed a share in the residuary estate, it would have received, instead of one-third of $200,000, one-third of $700,000—a very nice increase in income, had such been possible.

FORMER NORWICH MAN DIES IN NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 28—Michael McNamara, about 60, well known traveling engineer of the New Haven railroad, died at his late home, 40 Garfield avenue, tonight, of pneumonia. He is survived by his wife, two daughters, Mrs. Fred Benvenuti, and Miss Mary McNamara and two sons, Thomas and William McNamara, all of New London. Mr. McNamara was born in Norwich, where he resided many years, prior to his removal to New London. He entered the employ of the railroad as fireman and upon being promoted to engineer he operated locomotives, hauling freight trains on the main line until about three years ago, when he was appointed traveling engineer. One of the annual duties of Mr McNamara was to be in charge of the locomotive hauling the Yale-Harvard boat race observation train. Mr. McNamara had been ill about two weeks.

MARGARET FULLER'S BOOK TELLS INTERESTING STORY

Of the latest book by Margaret Fuller, of Norwich Town, the Philadelphia literary authority, Dr. James Hosmer Penniman writes:

Her Son, Margaret Fuller's new book, will be published in New York Feb. 14. With its lace-like jacket it will make a charming valentine. It is not a novel but a chronicle of youth. The characters are actual people and the episodes are doubtless family history, but the charm of the narrator is such, the style is so simple and direct, the carefully chosen words are so fitted together like bits of mosaic, that the incidents could not be more interesting if they were imaginary.

The book is really a New England Emile, or treatise on education, and should be read by every parent and by every teacher. Emile was an imaginary child and Rousseau had no difficulty in settling with him the problems which the author evolved from his own imagination. Stephen Wolcott is a real boy, shaped by environment and heredity and his youthful mother had to deal with her own faults as well as with those of her son.

She did not leave him to learn from bad boys and from the street. Stephen went to day school and Sunday school and to church. Deeds not words were the language she strained to teach him. The will to do. The will to succeed. The determination to make his deeds count. What did mothers know of love who let their little boys whine and dawdle!

You are to do what I tell you, and you are to do it the minute I tell you, and are not to ask any reasons. It is enough for you that you are not a fool and that I have your interest at heart. If ever you say why to me, I will tell you on your seat in a way that will change your why to wow. We will learn something new every school day. My washing and baking make no difference, we will have our dinner together, and after we have had our dinner, we will have our time together. And we will make a game of it, and we will try and see who can learn the first lines first. I shall learn fastest at the start, but if you wake up, I may not keep ahead of you long. I am not going to baby you! If I can learn faster than you, I will learn faster and I will beat you.

Mr. Wolcott considered a university education everything; but she held that if a boy has no brains, a college education can do him no good, and if he has brains he can get on without the college education.

She went over the words of her class motto: Perseverance and fidelity lead to honor and success. She never failed to read a chapter of the Bible at night. It was the way of Perseverance, Fidelity and Success.

DETECTIVE JACKSON SLAIN IN WILLIMANTIC

County Detective W. E. Jackson Was Shot Dead in the Kitchen of His Home — Body Was Found by Wife and Daughter Upon Returning From Trip Down Town—They Had Been Absent Only 30 Minutes—Bullet Entered Right Cheek and Apparently Had Lodged in the Brain—Detective Jackson Probably Was About to Leave the House to Milk Cows—No Clue to the Murderer.

(By a Staff Correspondent)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 29—County Detective William E. Jackson was found murdered in the kitchen of his home at No. 37 Quarry street at 6:20 tonight, apparently a victim of his criminal investigation work.

His body was found by his wife and daughter as they came into the house upon returning from downtown. He was shot through the right cheek directly under the cheek bone by a bullet that apparently found its way into the brain, causing instantaneous death. Mr. Jackson had been alone in the house but 30 minutes, his wife, having left at 5:50 o'clock for downtown to call for their daughter, Juanita, who is a partner in conducting the Quality shop on Main street. When Mrs. Jackson left her husband was seated in the living room reading the evening paper.

The first theory was that he had committed suicide, but a search failed to disclose any weapon in the room. Officers Arthur Hurley, William Hurley and Lee Piche, who searched the house, found all firearms, owned by Mr. Jackson, including three revolvers, in other rooms and were fully loaded. Dr. Fred M. Smith, who was first summoned to the scene, was unable to locate Medical Examiner Dr. Louis I. Mason, of this city, and Medical Examiner William L. Higgins, of South Coventry, was notified.

Medical Examiner Higgins conducted an investigation. All windows were intact. It is believed that bullet was fired from the rear door of the house which leads into the kitchen.

An investigation revealed a powder mark near the lower side of the wound, indicating that the bullet was fired at close range.

Detective Jackson was evidently about to leave the house to milk his cows, as he wore a corduroy short coat, boots, and cap.

The milking pails found in the barn had not been used this evening.

A thorough investigation to uncover the identity of the murderer was started at once by the local police. County Detective Edward J. Hickey, of Hartford, was called into the case and left Hartford early this evening for this city.

Detective Jackson had been suffering from grip the past few weeks but was recovering. Yesterday he drove to Putnam and was out for a time today, returning home about mid-afternoon.

Coroner Arthur J. Bill, of Danielson, was notified and an inquest will probably be conducted tomorrow. An autopsy is to be performed to locate the bullet, which is thought to have lodged in the brain.

William E. Jackson was born in Lebanon, Nov. 11, 1875, the son of Edward A. and Sarah R. Ellis Jackson. He was united in marriage in 1902 with Gertrude Belle Tracy, of Lebanon. He leaves besides his wife, one daughter, Juanita; three brothers, Edward, of this city, Grover, of New Jersey, Wendell, of Norwich; his mother, also of Norwich, and three sisters, Mrs. Margaret Cady, of Woodstock, Mrs. James Austen, of Norwich, and Miss Olive Jackson, R. N., of Norwich.

Mr. Jackson came to this city to reside with his parents when a child. He became interested in military organizations at an early age and served during the Spanish-American war, enlisting at Philadelphia in Co. F, 12th U. S. Infantry. He saw active service in Cuba, being honorably discharged owing to illness. During the war he contracted Cuban fever and following his discharge was a patient in a hospital for a long period.

Early in life he was employed as a stone mason in the employment of his father in this city. Following his return from the war he was a driver for the former Snyder bakery, remaining at this employment for three years. He was elected constable of the town of Windham and also city sheriff, following the war. He was employed for some time as an agent for the Metropolitan Insurance Co. and later served as a detective on the Erie railroad in New Jersey for about a year. He returned to Connecticut in 1904 and accepted a position on the state police force, which was then under Supt. John Hagen, and had but nine members. In 1917 he resigned to accept a position under the late State's Atty. Maj. Hadlai A. Hull, of New London county, as county detective. Later he held a similar position in conjunction with his New London county work in Windham county under the late State's Atty. Charles E. Searles, of Putnam. On Oct. 1, 1923, he resigned his position in New London county and had since confined his activities wholly to this section.

At the time of his death he was serving his fourth term as alderman of the first ward, being first elected in December, 1921, by the largest majority in the history of the ward. His subsequent re-elections to that position were always by substantial majorities indicating that he had very strong backing of the ward residents. He had held practically all of the important chairmanships of city committees and was president of the board during the administration of former Mayor John C. Tracy and president at the time of his death under Mayor Charles A. Gates. His last re-election as president of the board was at the annual meeting last December.

County Detective Jackson spent a quarter of a century on the trail of the criminal, his unrelenting investigation taking him practically to every state in the Union and making him one of the outstanding figures in a number of important trials and cases, some of which were of national interest. Among these might be mentioned the case of the Diamond Bros. who were electrocuted in New York for murder, and the conviction of second degree murder of the Worcester tea-box bandits, charged with the killing of State Trooper Irving H. Nelson at Pomfret. His most recent investigation which was still under way at the time of his death was the murder of Mrs. Rosaria Lorella in this city, Jan. 3 last. Even with criminals whom he had brought to the law and by his testimony assisted in convicting, he was admired as a fair man. County Detective Jackson suffered one of the greatest sorrows of his life a few years ago in the death of his son, William, Jr. He had never fully recovered from the sorrow of this untimely death. Mr. Jackson was a past commander of Augustus C. Tyler post, No. 8, United Spanish War Veterans, and held membership in Natchaug lodge, No. 22, Knights of Pythias; Willimantic lodge, No. 1311, B. P. O. E., and the Willimantic Rotary club.

While county detective in New London county he was a member of the Norwich Rotary club for several years. His contributions to the city through his untiring work for civic welfare and for the elimination of crime and law violations is one that is immeasureable. Actively interested in politics, he continually worked for the best interests of the city. A result of his activities was the installation of the local white way, now considered one of the most attractive aspects of the city. As chairman of the police committee he worked for many noteworthy improvements in that department and his aim was to make of it one of the most efficient departments in the state. He was ever ready to use his influence for friend or enemy in doing good and his friends were numbered in the hundreds. Since the death of State's Attorney Searles he had continued in office as county investigator under State's Atty. Howard C. Bradford, who regarded him as one of the most valuable men in the county police work. When notified of Mr. Jackson's death tonight, State's Attorney Bradford and Mayor Charles A. Gates alike stated that Windham county has lost one of its most valuable citizens.

Tribute by Mayor Gates

A statement on the death of County Detective William E. Jackson issued tonight by Mayor Charles A. Gates, says: "The death of William E. Jackson casts a shroud of deep sorrow over this community, the county of Windham, the entire state of Connecticut.

"His loss is an irreconcilable one except in the knowledge that here was a man of true conscience and high moral who was fair and ethical in all his dealings.

"Fearless and energetic he was at once, during his years of police work the unrelenting prosecutor of the law violator and the kind consuler of the needy and troubled.

"The state loses, through the tragedy of his death, a staunch citizen and loyal republican. The county of Windham suffers the passing of the most efficient investigator in its history. To the city of Willimantic comes the irreparable loss of a city father ever solicitous for its welfare and growth and one credited with numerable accomplishments of outstanding note.

"The many civic improvements which are the result of his enterprise will stand ever as monuments of credit to Bill Jackson, alderman of the first ward. County Detective Jackson was feared by the criminal and loved by the law-abiding, but by virtue of his courage and fair play he was respected by all.

"Our heartfelt sympathy is extended his family in this hour of grief. He died untimely, the victim of an assassin's bullet, but in memory he will live on forever."

POLICE SEARCHING FOR ALLEGED WIFE SLAYER

BOSTON, Jan. 29—(AP)—A trail leading from this city to northern Vermont was being followed by police tonight in their search for Christopher Cullen, wanted for the murder of his wife, whose body with several bullet wounds in the head, was found in Hingham Saturday.

The theory that Cullen had fled to Vermont or Canada, was strengthened today when the police found his automobile in a garage near the North station. In the machine was a .22 calibre repeating rifle, and cartridges. Mrs. Cullen was shot to death with bullets of the same calibre.

In the automobile was also found an empty hand bag and a torn envelope of a Lowell co-operative bank. An investigation revealed that Mrs. Cullen had withdrawn $1,000 from the bank before her marriage less than a week before her death. She was also known to have withdrawn $300 from another bank, the police reported. Cullen's fur coat was also found in the machine, which was checked at the garage last Friday.

ELDER NORTHCOTT DENIES KNOWLEDGE OF MURDERS

RIVERSIDE, Calif., Jan. 29—(AP)—For the first time in his trial for the murder of three boys, Gordon Stewart Northcott, acting as his own attorney, today presented testimony in refutation of the prosecution's charges.

The 62-year old father of the young defendant, Cyrus Northcott, who has been in custody for some time as a material witness, under the questioning of his son, said he had never seen anything at the Northcotts' Wineville chicken ranch that indicated "there ever had been a crime committed."

Sanford Clark, 15-year old nephew and principal accuser of Gordon Stewart, as a state's witness had described the killing of the youths. It was his story of the ranch horrors that brought about the arrest and indictment of his uncle.

GUATEMALAN REBEL LEADER SANTOS SHOT AND KILLED

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

GENEVA, Jan. 29—(AP)—The opium evil was made the occasion today for another plea by China for the right to police its own territory, irrespective of the nationality of offenders. Siam seized the occasion to voice sympathy with chain's efforts to achieve real sovereignty and to endorse particularly China's desire for abolition of the system of extra-territoriality.

TARIFF HEARING READY FOR COTTON SCHEDULE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29—(AP)—In one of the shortest sessions since it began its tariff revision hearings, the house ways and means committee today completed work on sections of the law relating to fruit juices, bitters and agriculture and cleared the way for consideration tomorrow of the cotton schedule.

A total of 36 witnesses, chiefly from New England and southern textile centers, will appear on this section, the ninth of the fifteen that make up the present tariff law. Three days hvae been set aside for its consideration.

Although a majority of the witnesses are listed to discuss cotton manufactured products, several are expected to appear on raw cotton, with indications pointing to requests for duties. Except for a short period, between the writing of the present law in 1922 and the emergency tariff act of 1921 when long staple cotton was given a tariff of seven cents a pound, raw cotton olng has been a free duty article.

Before taking the testimony of a score of farm tariff witnesses who could not be heard in the time originally alloted to that schedule, the committee today listened to five witnesses on the fruit juice-bitters schedule two of th witnesses got into an argument over the duty on bitters, while a third sought a duty of 70 cents a gallon on concentrated orange, grapefruit, lemon and lime juices.

Maine and New York sardine interests clashed on the canned sardine tariff of 30 per cent ad valorem.

Maine manufacturers complained of injurious Norwegian competition and asked a raise in duty to 50 per cent, New York importers of French and Portugese sardines opposed an increase, contending the domestic product did not compete with the latter and only slightly with the Norwegian.

MOTHER-IN-LAW OF TWO PEERS SENTENCED TO HARD LABOR

LONDON, Jan. 29—(AP)—Mrs. Katemerrick, mother-in-law of two peers, and owner of night clubs, was convicted of bribery and conspiracy today.

She was sentenced to 15 months of hard labor on charges of bribing George Goddard, former police sergeant, and on a conspiracy charge linking her with Goddard and Luigi Achille Ribuffi, a restaurant manager, in the illegal sale of liquor.

Goddard, formerly supervising police sergeant of London's night club area, was convicted at the same time of accepting bribes and was sentenced to 18 months' imprisonment at hard labor. Ribuffi received a 15 months' sentence.

The week's hearing of the case aroused wide public interest because of the prominence of those involved, the sensational character of the charges, and emotional scenes created by the tearful protests of Mrs. Merrick.

Mrs. Merrick, a small, slight woman, recently finished a second prison term for the illegal sale of liquor. She gained much note through the marriage of two daughters to scions of the British nobility.

The testimony revealed that Goddard had a great deal of money which he said he had won on betting but the prosecution argued that the money was revenue for official favors.

Justice Sir Horace Avery, sentencing the three, lashed Goddard particularly, he said:

"You have wrecked what might have been an honorable career in the police for the sake of filthy lucre."

MRS. RUTH LEAVES HER $50,000 ESTATE TO HER WARD, DOROTHY

NEW YORK, Jan. 29—(AP)—The $50,000 estate of Mrs. Helen M. Ruth, wife of Babe Ruth, goes to her "beloved charge and ward, Dorothy Helen Ruth, at one time known as Marie Warrington." Babe Ruth, Mrs. Ruth's mother, her four brothers and three sisters are given $5 each under the terms of Mrs. Ruth's will filed here today for probate.

Mrs. Ruth, who was burned to death at Watertown, Mass., January 11, executed the will in New York, July 11, 1927. Personal property was valued at $32,000.

When James J. Conlin, attorney, who filed the will and is named as sole executor, was questioned as to relationship of the child legatee to Mrs. Ruth and her husband, he said he was "not prepared to make a statement at this time." He indicated that he might have something to say on the subject tomorrow.

GOLD FROM BRITAIN ON LINER AQUITANIA

NEW YORK, Jan. 29—(AP)—The first gold to be shipped to America from England since last November arrived on the Aquitania today and totaled $7,500,000. In addition $5,500,000 was taken in London by New York bankers, to be shipped on the Majestic, sailing tomorrow.

This brings the volume of the present movement to $13,000,000 last fall about $50,000,000 was received from England, and about $58,000,000 has been received in recent months from Canada, but these totals have been offset by ear markings of gold by the federal reserve bank for the account of Bank of France.

The takings of gold in London today included $3,000,000 consigned to Brown Brothers & Co., and $2,500,000 for Dillon Read & Co., of the gold arriving on the Aquitania $5,000,000 was for the American Exchange Irving Trust Company and $2,500,000 for Speyer & Co.

S. D. Redmond, Negro Attorney, Disbarred

Was One of the Chief Figures in Recent Federal Patronage Trials at Jackson, Miss.

JACKSON, Miss., Jan. 29—(AP)—S. D. Redmond, Negro attorney of Jackson and chairman of the republican state executive committee, was disbarred, and R. Redmond, his son, was suspended by a decree handed down by Chancellor V. J. Stricker in Hinds county chancery court today.

Redmond was one of the chief figures in the recent federal patronage trials here.

Information and specifications against the son were withdrawn by the committee of the bar, with the right to re-file them later "if deemed proper."

The bar committee recommended this action in the case of the younger Negro after he announced he had passed the bar examination in Illinois and intends to go to Chicago to practice.

Six specifications were charged against the elder Redmond, charging false testimony in federal court, violation of the federal patronage act and others.

S. D. Redmond announced he will appeal to the supreme court and was granted this right by Chancellor Stricker upon posting of a $500 bonds.

The younger Redmond was charged with assessing excessive fees in will probation cases after the court had set a lower figure.

HERBERT HOOVER SWAPPED STORIES WITH AL. E. SMITH

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 29—(AP)—Wearing his celebrated brown derby of campaign days, Alfred E. Smith called on Herbert Hoover today at No. 8 Belle Isle; swapped stories with him about some of the amusing incidents of their spectacular struggle for the presidency and wished him luck in the white house.

The president-elect and his democratic opponent were together for twenty five minutes and friends who were present said there was nothing of constraint in the meeting; that both were in happy mood and laughed at the recital of the difficulties that came each by reason of the odd presents admirers forced upon their campaign trains.

Mr. Hoover received the "happy warrior" in the sun room of the James C. Penney home which has been fitted out as his office.

"How do you do, Mr. president?" was the salutation of the former governor as the president elect met him at the door.

"How do you do, governor?", Mr. Hoover replied as they shook hands. "It has been a long time since we saw each other."

Mr. Smith presented his friends, John J. Raskob, chairman of the democratic national committee, and William F. Kenney, of New York, and the president-elect introduced his secretary, Lawrence Richey.

The five then found comfortable chairs and cigars were lifted as the conversation began.

ACQUITTED OF CHARGES OF LARCENY AND BURGLARY

MINEOLA, N. Y., Jan. 29—(AP)—Eddie Kane was acquitted by a Nassau county jury today of charges of grand larceny and burglary growing out of the robbery of the Jesse Livermore home two years ago and was immediately arrested on a warrant charging participation in a Connecticut shooting.

Kane was tried as an accomplice of "Boston Billy" Monaghan, who was sentenced to 50 years in prison and who attempted to escape from his guards at Albany today, while being returned to Clinton prison, at Dannemora, after being brought here to testify at Kane's trial.

Although brought here in the hope that he might identify Kane as one of his two companions in the Livermore robbery, "Boston Billy" denied Kane had accompanied him to the Livermore home and answered negatively all questions designed to associate Kane with the crime.

The warrant on which Kane was arrested today was issued in Fairfield County, Conn., charging him with aiding and abetting an assault with intent to murder. The charge concerned the shooting of Patrolman Joseph McCormick in Greenwich, Conn., last May. The policeman has been crippled since the shooting.

CONTRADICTORY TESTIMONY BY PROHIBITION ADMINISTRATOR

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 29—(AP)—John F. Eckhart, acting assistant prohibition administrator for the Ohio-Indiana district today contradicted from the stand the testimony he gave yesterday in the conspiracy trial of Bert B. Buckley, Ohio state treasurer, in which he had quoted Buckley as saying Governor Myers Y. Cooper and Senator Simeon D. Fess had objected to a raid on the Jackson brewery at Cincinnati.

Eckhart is the government's main witness against Buckley, who was indicted with John L. Schrimper, Cincinnati attorney, and Joseph Sperber, brew master at the Jackson brewery on charges of conspiracy to arrange with Eckhart for advance information of raids on the Jackson plant. Schrimper and Sperber pleaded guilty to the charge.

Confronted with a memorandum to which he had referred in testimony that Buckley told him the governor and senator had interested themselves in the raid, Eckhart said he "inferred" that Buckley meant Cooper and Fess when he said "higher-ups" had protested against the raid.

TWO ASPIRANTS TO NEW AIR ENDURANCE RECORDS

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Jan. 29—(AP)—Granted propitious weather a man and a woman will take the air from this field in separate planes at dawn tomorrow in efforts to set new endurance records.

Martin Jensen, second place winner in the Dole race to Hawaii, will go up in a cabin monoplane to shuttle between Washington and Boston in an attempt to beat the non-refueling solo endurance record of 35 hours and 25 minutes established by the late Royal V. Thomas.

Elinor Smith, former holder of the woman's solo endurance record, will attempt to regain it in an open cockpit biplane by beating the present record of 12 hours and 11 minutes established by Miss Bobbie Trout of California.

Bills Introduced In General Assembly

One Calls for Construction of State Hospital For Insane in Fairfield County.

STATE CAPITOL, Hartford, Jan. 29—(AP)—While the Connecticut Federation of Labor, was preparing a bill of its own to clear up in the workmen's compensation act, the ambiguity regarding time of reporting disability through accident—which has caused much trouble and concern—the State Manufacturers' association, through Representative Johnson, of Manchester, introduced one in the general assembly today.

The section of the act affected by Mr. Johnson's bill is that technically known as the "hernia section" and covers compensation for the type of injury which the medical term describes.

Under the bill, the workman must prove that he has suffered such injury and must report it within one week following it.

Shortly after the amendment, enacted last session, which partly revised and codified the act, difficulty arose over the word "immediately". In a Hartford case, the majority of the supreme court justices ruled that it meant "at once, instantaneously" while the minority opined that the broader significance of "within a reasonable time after" was to be noted. The section had been passed upon by the committee from the Federation of Labor, the Manufacturers' association and the Connecticut chamber of commerce in what was described as one of the few times the state had witnessed the amicable gathering of "capital" and "labor" for the settlement of disputes on a wholesale scale.

It was announced today that Thursday morning, Senator Lavery, of Bridgeport, would introduce a measure which, according to indications, would be in conflict with that offered by Mr. Johnson. Senator Lavery's action would, of course, be at the request of the federation of labor.

Mrs. Russ, of Shelton, brought to the house a bill providing that Gov. Trumbull appoint before April 1, seven trustees for the Fairfield state hospital and for the construction of a state hospital for the insane in Fairfield county, for which $1,750,000 would be appropriated.

REP. TILSON SIDETRACKED DEBATE ON THE "DRY" FUND

Republican Leader Moved Adjournment After Representative Garner of Texas Had Suggested Discussion of the Proposed $24,000,000 Increase in Prohibition Funds, Which the Senate Had Tacked on a Deficiency Bill—Tilson Was Supported Largely by Republicans, With Democrats Voting in the Negative—The Action Has Created a Perplexing Parliamentary Situation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29—(AP)— For the second time in two years the house today cut short a session to solve a problem of parliamentary procedure, the trouble developing this time over how to consider the prohibition and tax refund items in the deficiency appropriation bill.

The day had been set aside to take up the $24,000,000 increase for prohibition enforcement and the $75,000,000 item for tax refunds and a full membership was on hand to participate in their consideration. After an hour of wrangling, adjournment was taken to enable the rules committee to decide upon the procedure to be followed.

The committee will meet tomorrow to consider the perplexing parliamentary situation.

A year ago, the house got into a somewhat similar situation during consideration of the McNary-Haugen farm bill. It was not until the next day that the question was straightened out.

Today the trouble developed almost at the outset. Representative Wood, of Indiana, who by virtue of seniority on the appropriations committee in charge of the deficiency measure, called the bill up and asked that it be sent to conference with the senate.

If this motion had been adopted the house, for the time being at least would have been prevented from voting on the $24,000,000 increase in prohibition funds which was tacked on the measure by the senate with the provision that its expenditure should be directed by the president. Shortly after Wood's motion had been offered, Representative Garner, of Texas, who with a number of other democrats favors app roval of the prohibition item, countered with a suggestion to debate the proposal.

After further discussion, Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, the republican leader, moved adjournment and this carried by a vote of 195 to 88. The Tilson proposal was supported largely by republicans with democrats voting in the negative.

The voting had been preceded by several heated exchanges with the democrats pressing for a record vote on the direct questions of prohibition and tax refunds. They argued that a vote later on final approval of the bill, after revisions by a conference committee, would not be an expression of the views of the house on those specific proposals.

The verbal strife began with Garner pressing Wood for a promise that if the house consented to have the bill go to conference with the senate, the Indianan would bring these two proposals back to the house for a vote before finally disposing of them.

Wood said that he understood that under no circumstances would the senate recede from its position on the matter and that this would force the conferees to come back to the house for a vote.

Garner, however, pressed for a specific promise that, even if the senate should recede, the questions would be submitted for a vote in the house, but Wood and Representative Cramton, of Michigan, another member of the appropriations committee, argued that this would tie the hands of the house conference committee.

CAPT. FRIED ORDERED TO MAKE "INLAND VOYAGE"

NEW YORK, Jan. 29—(AP)—In response to a popular demand that could not be denied, the United States shipping board today ordered Captain George Fried, hero of the Antinoe and Florida rescues, to relinquish command of his ship temporarily and prepare to make a tour of several of the country's larger cities.

When the rescue liner America leaves for Europe tomorrow night it will be under command of Harry Manning, Fried's 32-year-old chief officer who was in command of the life boat that saved the Florida's crew.

Manning will be the youngest man ever to command a ship of the America's tonnage, but this will not be his first experience as captain of an ocean liner. Despite his youth he has held master's papers for several years and when Capt. Fried was transferred to the America from the President Roosevelt, which rescued the crew of the Antinoe three years ago, Manning was temporarily placed in command.

The announcement of Capt. Fried's "inland voyage" was made at a luncheon given by Charles V. Bob at which the rescuers from the America were the guests of honor. After Capt. Fried and Manning had told of the rescue, George S. Mabee, assistant general manager of the United States lines, made the announcement.

FINAL VOTE NEXT WEEK ON CRUISER BILL ASSURED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29—(AP)—A final vote next week on the year old cruiser construction bill, was assured today, when the senate ended an agreement to limit debate on the measure beginning Monday.

Passage of the bill which would authorize 15 cruisers and an airplane carrier, is declared by both sides to be certain. The controversy had narrowed down tonight to the difference between President Coolidge and congress over elimination of a clause specifying that the ships be laid down before 1931.

Unwilling to concede defeat in his drive for elimination of this provision, the president is watching the senate proceedings closely. It was made known today that he is prepared to submit a recommendation for funds to enable immediate work on some of the ships if he is granted his request that the chief executive be charged with carrying out the program.

The government, blaming only the officers, sent a squadron of airplanes over the city to drop proclamations promising that only the leaders would be punished if the soldiers surrendered before serious fighting occurred.

Primo De Rivera, in announcing to the assembly that the government had the situation in hand this afternoon, declared that "what took place was only the mad affray of a single regiment, which the government will suppress shortly without neglecting to take precautionary measures to avoid possible repetitions."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helps Her So Much

Pittsburgh, Pa.—"I was just completely run-down. I had tired, heavy, sluggish feelings and I could not eat. I was losing in weight. I read so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what a good medicine it is, that I started taking it. I have taken eight bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and about the same in tablet form. This is one medicine a woman should have in the house all the time. I am improving every day and I sure am able to eat. I am willing to answer any letters asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Ella Richards, 21 Chautauqua St., N. S. Pittsburgh, Pa.

Millions of Families Depend on Dr. Caldwell's Prescription

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their system. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients.

The prescription for constipation, that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies.

W. B. Caldwell M.D. AT AGE 83

It is particularly pleasing to know that the most of it is bought by mothers for themselves and the children though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for elderly people. All drug stores have the generous bottles. A trial is sure to convince any household of the merits of this famous prescription.

DANIELSON

TO USE MILL PLANT FOR STORAGE PURPOSES

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 29—Treasurer William H. Brown of Powdrell and Alexander indicated, while here from Boston this afternoon, some of the uses planned by the concern for the newly acquired plant of the Connecticut Mills company, purchased the past week end. Mr. Brown said that the additional mill has been purchased largely to provide more commodious quarters for Powdrell and Alexander's curtain manufacturing department, now operating in the Main street plant of the company and at present cramped for space. The Connecticut Mills company plant also will be used for the storage of finished products and for waste materials. Such requirements of his concern as Treasurer Brown pointed and as herein enumerated will require three floors of the mill at the northerly end of the borough.

Equipping the plant for the manufacture of curtains will involve the installation of considerable machinery, much of which will come from the Main street plant. Mr. Brown said that the newly purchased mill likely will not be made ready for operation until early summer. A considerable time must necessarily elapse before it can be made ready to engage in manufacturing operations. This also was the case when this concern took over the mills of the Attawaugan company, something over two years ago.

The north-bound morning boat train, officially known as train 704, is doing better as to getting into Danielson close to schedule time in the morning. Relative to this train and the service it renders, E. R. Dodge, assistant general baggage, mail and express agent, has written Attorney Harry Back, as a member of the grievance committee of the chamber of commerce as follows:

"Your letter of January 14th addressed to our freight traffic manager regarding delays of our train 704, from New London, has been referred to this office.

This train, of course, is scheduled as a freight train and, therefore, subject to more or less delay. It is realized, however, that on account of United States mails and express freight being handled on this train an on-time performance is desirable.

Recently, it came to our attention that there was some delay in handling mail at Danielson due to the fact that the switching of cars was attended to before mail was unloaded at the station. This feature has been corrected and other steps have been taken which we trust will result in a more satisfactory performance."

OBITUARY.

Mrs. H. D. Ellsworth.

A death recently at Hartford was that of Helen Day Ellsworth. Mrs. Ellsworth has many acquaintances and friends in Danielson. She was the daughter of the late Hon. Frank Day of Brooklyn, her father the owner of a large farm on the Quinebaug river at the Ox Bow. There she was brought up and educated in the schools of Brooklyn, later attending Killingly high school in Danielson. She was an associate socially in Danielson, of the people who are now from 50 to 65 years old. She was a niece of Miss Annie Day, who passed away in Danielson within a year, and by whose will various charitable bequests were made, among them a gift to the Westcott and Wilcox Old People's home and St. Alban's Episcopal church. The following letter was written to a Hartford paper in regard to Mrs. Ellsworth:

"Recently there passed from this life into the life eternal the soul of Helen Day Ellsworth. No mortal character could have been more unselfish than her's. Her tender care of her children and delight in their work and play; her pleasure in homely duties; her sunny disposition; her sweet smile; her appreciation of small kindnesses and her willing and cheerful acceptance or all her sorrows and trials, even to the end, will be remembered always and treasured by everyone with whom she came in contact."

Chief John McFarland is at present engaged in trying to establish the identity of the person, probably a boy—possibly boys—who worked on the combination of a post-office box Sunday until it was opened, from the lobby of the office, and its contents extracted. The box was that of a business concern transacting a large volume of business, and it so happened that the letters taken out contained some money orders. Whoever got the letters took them over near the railroad station, opened them and, finding no money threw them and their contents, including the money orders, to the winds. With the exception of one money order for a very small amount all were recovered, being picked up by mail messengers and others and returned.

The result of this episode will be that there will be no more loitering by children allowed in the lobby of the postoffice during Sundays. The Danielson postoffice is equipped with combination lock boxes, dials being turned, much as on a safe, to open them. The assumption is that the children tampered with the particular box referred to until they managed to get it open, somehow, though the task is not an easy one unless the combination is known. As a matter of fact loitering about the lobby unnecessarily at the postoffice hereafter on Sunday will be frowned upon by the borough police and those who indulge in asked to show good reason for remaining about the place, while the remainder of the office is closed.

Romping around her customary haunts here a little more than a dozen years ago, an active and attractive child, Miss Helen Gilligan is enjoying a meteoric rise in the musical comedy world and is now the star of the Greenwich Village Follies company that is playing Hartford this week. Miss Gilligan is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Gilligan of Stafford Springs, formerly of Danielson.

After completing her high school course Miss Gilligan studied at St. Joseph's school in Hartford and at the Alverne Institute of Fine Arts in New York, where she specialized in the study of musical comedy, dancing and fencing. She was naturally endowed with a splendid voice. While yet quite young she was urged to take up theatrical work having shown marked ability in her parts in many school plays. Miss Gilligan's first professional performance was with the Princess Flavia company, after an audition before J. J. Shubert, who liked her voice and personality. When Evelyn Herbert left the company a few months later Miss Gilligan was made the prima donna of Rain or Shine, as the ingenue in Katja and with the Russell Mack players.

A threat of litigation arose over Miss Gilligan's services when she left Rain or Shine to be starred with the Greenwich Village Follies. It is a rather interesting angle of her career that Miss Gilligan never has appeared professionally, in this, her home state, until this week. Numbers of her classmates during her school days in Danielson have followed her career with interest.

Ray W. Pellett, Howard Wood and Harriet Wood are members of the executive committee of Killingly grange for 1929.

These are the final days of this winter for fishing through the ice, the season closing Thursday night. With the weather what it is, the matter proved of little interest this particular day.

PUTNAM

WORKED SWINDLE GAME ON BRADLEY BEEF CO.

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 29—Retail grocers and foodstuffs provisioners in this section are warned to be on the lookout for a well dressed butter salesman who on Monday morning swindled the Bradley Beef company of this city out of a 68 pound tub of butter, when he appeared at the beef house and purchased the butter on the credit account of Albert A. Daniels, a Putnam grocer of 363 School street.

About 9:30 or 10 o'clock, Monday morning a well dressed and neatly appearing middle aged man, attired in a powder blue top coat and wearing a gray soft hat, entered the beer house on Front street, and informed the clerk he was a representative of the Daniels grocery store. He ordered a 68 pound tub of butter and asked that it be charged to the account of Mr. Daniels. Since the wholesalers rate Mr. Daniels high on their credit list, there were no questions asked and the product was at once furnished the consignee.

The suspicions of Geo. Bradley, proprietor of the beef house, were aroused because of the strange actions of the gentleman, who claimed to represent the grocery firm. Mr. Bradley in a telephone communication was advised by Mr. Daniels that he had authorized no one to purchase any goods in his behalf and that he knew nothing of the man, who had departed with the butter.

State Policeman Donald E. Geddes of Danielson barracks was called upon to investigate the situation. It was learned that the butter tub has two markings, one, the usual and well known Bradley stamp, which is a circle bearing within the ring the figure 45 and the other a packers number stamped in red figures, B-83061. The sales clerk also informed Officer Geddes, that the man's hair was quite gray.

The state police officials today asked the assistance of the Bulletin in warning merchants to be on the lookout for a man answering this description. The police are of the opinion that he will attempt to resell the butter to grocers in this vicinity. The wholesale value of the stolen butter is $34.

In the event such a character should approach any of the retail houses in the city, and attempt to dispose of the goods, or if he has already carried out his supposedly intended plans, the merchant is requested to inform the state officers at Danielson barracks of the transaction at once. Officer Geddes said today that any merchant who so informs the state police of any such transaction will be absolved from any implication.

William E. Moss has been re-elected to head the Masonic club, for another term, according to an announcement made by the Masonic order this morning. At the annual election of officers held at the Masonic club rooms Friday evening, other officers were elected as follows: Vice president, Leonard H. Mellor; secretary, Thomas Bell; treasurer, Lucius P. Merriam. Committee appointments for the forthcoming Masonic year were not made at this meeting. A supper was served the club members by the grill committee, following the election of officers and the close of the business meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Converse whose home burned to the ground late yesterday afternoon in the Sawyer district, were taken by neighbors to the farm house of Armand Logee, nearby, as was their son Henry Converse, a Putnam mail carried. All were confined to their homes by pneumonia.

FUNERAL

Alver A. Parsons

Funeral services for Alver A. Parsons, who died Sunday at the Day Kimball hospital were held this afternoon at the Masonic temple on Grove street. Burial was in the Grove street cemetery.

The weekly Elks-Masonic tournament was held last evening at the Masonic club rooms on South Main street, resulting in another victory for the Elks. The final score was 7 to 4. The Elks suffered their first loss last week, but had sweet revenge Monday night when they started on another rampage for a win.

The hook and ladder company of the central fire station was kept on the jump this morning when two chimney fires within sixteen minutes of each other broke out in tenement dwellings. The first four stroke alarm was sounded in at 11:04 a. m., this morning for a chimney fire at 29 Middle street, at a house owned by the Putnam Land and Mills company. No damage resulted.

The firemen had scarcely time enough to reload chemical tanks on the apparatus when a second alarm of the same nature came in. This time the fire was in the north end of the city in a house owned by Victor Peloquin at 55 Battey street. This blaze was also confined to the chimney and was extinguished without loss.

MONTHLY MEETING OF CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 29—The January meeting of the Putnam chamber of commerce was held at the Putnam Inn last evening with a large attendance. The meeting was presided over by President Walter N. King and regular routine business was carried out.

Following the business meeting, a conference of the directors of the organization was held, at which it was expected, a report would be received from the committee on new industries, regarding recent progress. Due to the absence of the chairman of the committee, no report was given. Plans for the forthcoming banquet to be given by the chamber of commerce in honor of the Putnam high school, eastern Connecticut football champions, were announced as being complete. The banquet will be held at the Putnam Inn on next Tuesday evening, Feb. 5.

Funeral services were held this afternoon at the home of Chester M. Elliott on Eden street for Mrs. Sarah Joslin who died there Saturday. Services were conducted by Rev. James F. English, pastor of the Second Congregational church of this city.

Mrs. Joslin was married and lived the greater part of her life in Webster, Mass., where her husband the late Hamilton F. Joslin kept the Joslin house, one of the last of the old taverns in this section. She was the mother of four children, all of whom she outlived, but is survived by two grandchildren, Frede Joslin of Malden, Mass., and Harold Elliott of this city. Mrs. Joslin was the oldest member of the Webster Congregational church, where she had attended service for many years previous to her coming to Putnam to live. Burial was in the Mt. Zion cemetery in Webster.

Several football followers of this city were in Webster Monday evening, where they attended a banquet of the Webster council of Knights of Columbus, at which Coach Cleo O'Donnell, head coach of athletics at Holy Cross college, was the principal speaker. Other guests at the gathering were the members of the Bartlett high school football eleven of 1928. In his address of the evening Mr. O'Donnell stressed clean sportsmanship and fair play. His talk was brief and was highly received by the large attendance.

The members of the Putnam Grange 97, held a Penny Social at their monthly meeting in Odd Fellows hall Monday night. A large attendance was present, resulting in scores of bright new "coppers" finding their way into the fraternal treasury, because of the numerous mis-steps on the part of those present, who did the wrong thing at the wrong time. The programme for the evening besides the "Lincoln" entertainment was also carried out with the serving of refreshments, followed by dancing.

POLICE LOOKING FOR MISSING AUBURN BOY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 29—Putnam police have asked the assistance of the Bulletin, in a state wide search for Charles Allen, Jr., 11 year old son of Capt. of Police and Mrs. Charles Allen of Auburn, Mass., who has been missing from his home since Friday afternoon. The youth is described as being about four feet five inches in height, of light complexion, with auburn hair. When last seen, the boy was wearing a head dress similar to the style of an aviator's helmet. The local police department has kept a sharp lookout for the boy. Officer John Murray of the New Haven railroad police, said late today that a check-up of all in and outgoing passenger and freight trains is being made, since it is possible young Allen may have taken his trip overland. Any one who has seen the boy is urged to communicate with Capt. Jarvis of the Putnam police at once.

City snow removal, which has consumed a substantial portion of the city budget appropriations in past years, has given the common council little to worry about, so far this season.

The "bridge widows" met last evening at the home of Mrs. Irving H. Miron on Florence street, where their weekly bridge contests were held. Mrs. J. Dyer Potter won first honors, while Mrs. Leonard H. Mellor took the consolation prize. Mrs. Miron served refreshments. Next week's meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Leonard Mellor on Grove street.

Below zero weather existed here this morning for the first time in two weeks. At six o'clock Tuesday morning the mercury was twelve below. It was stated today that ice on the ponds has attained a thickness of 12 to 15 inches.

Miss Edith Goyette, secretary and stenographer at the Miron law offices, has resumed her duties following her recovery from an attack of influenza.

THE BUDGET BUREAU.

In his review of the accomplishments of the budget system before the meeting of the business organization of the government Director Lord laid stress upon the demands which had been made by the president for economy and was able to show by figures what excellent compliance there had been. That was the cooperation which was sought and the results show that it was wholeheartedly given.

In various ways great savings had been made and large reductions were made in expenditures. There will be those who will put forth the claim that this was all done following the war. No one is going to dispute that. War expenditures were not expected to go on indefinitely and yet without a firm hand in directing the business of the government there could easily have been a continuance of extravagance and waste. All the reductions and economies were not accomplished without criticism. There were those who wanted big congressional expenditures to continue, those who were objecting to the reduction of the national debt under the belief that it should be passed along indefinitely to future generations and calling for appropriations even though the projects could wait without any harm being done.

The budget system not only took care of after the war conditions in a highly commendable manner but those who have been working under it have been inspired by the leadership and recognized that they were engaged in a real constructive service.

There is a warning put forth by Director Lord, however, when he points to the record of smallest expenditure and biggest surplus in 1927 as something not likely to be repeated. Expenditures are increasing. We have reached a point where some of the needed but delayed things are going to be taken up. We are growing as a nation and our various activities are expanding. That means more money but there is need of the watchful eye of the budget bureau in whatever direction the tendency is.

Just at the present time the concern of the bureau is to see that there is no deficit at the end of the fiscal year, the eighth year of the system. If the efforts of the bureau and those cooperating with it can determine the matter it is safe to say there will be none. The business organization which has established such a fine record for its first eight years is getting no more credit than it deserves.

COASTING ACCIDENTS.

From time to time justification is found for the action in closing streets to coasting or motor vehicle traffic in order to give protection to the lives of those who indulge in sliding down hill.

Where no action is taken there are too many instances which display the need of it. It has to be realized that we are living in 1929 and highways are used today by a different type of vehicle than 20 years ago. Not only that but they are driven with greater speed and make little noise, and the number is constantly increasing. Even the number of machines that are in use during the winter grows from year to year.

There isn't anything much more wholesome and satisfying than sliding down hill for young people. If it can be done where there is no chance of encountering autos or collision with vehicles using intersecting streets it deserves to be encouraged. If this is impossible it must be realized that restrictions on such coasting are far preferable to taking chances and encouraging fatalities or broken bones.

It is unfortunate that in too many instances little or nothing is done toward insisting upon safety until some child has been badly injured or killed. The experiences of coasters in other places should be sufficient warning of what is liable to happen anywhere. Instead of waiting to lock the barn door after the horse is stolen it is a good policy to insist upon security before anything happens. Waiting for all the deplorable features of a bad accident to awaken action is not the right attitude. No one likes to curb the pleasure of children but neither does one like to encourage such results through chance taking.

OUT IN OKLAHOMA.

Tomorrow Oklahoma has scheduled the impeachment trial of Governor Johnson. This will be a hearing that will interest that commonwealth while it is certain that more than passing attention will be directed to the progress made from other parts of the country.

It is realized of course that this is not a new experience for Oklahoma. Governor Johnson is following Governor Walton. One experience doesn't appear to have been enough. It was to be thought that even though Oklahoma takes its politics rather spectacularly it would have been on its guard against putting into office as the head of the state government a man who would so quickly lose the confidence of his constituents. It is not solely one charge that is made against the governor. There are several of them and it remains to be seen whether the state senate will uphold the opinion of the house.

Whatever the outcome may be it seems that Governor Johnson has succeeded in arousing the animosities of a sufficient number to put himself in an unenviable position. Some stories are to the effect that there are influences behind the throne which fail to indicate the strength of mind or the real ability which is needed in the governor's chair. It is to be expected that he will be judged by the evidence that is presented against him rather than gossip and hearsay, and of course he is entitled to a full and free hearing.

But while there can be no disposition to condone the conditions which have prevailed in the governor's office, if the reports are correct, it will be interesting to note how much responsibility the people of that state will shoulder for placing such a man in that important office. With one impeachment following so closely after another it would appear that such proceedings which reflect no credit upon a state might be prevented through the insistence of the voters that men of the right calibre and only such, are placed in nomination for such an office.

A WASHINGTON BOULEVARD.

In 1932 this country will be concerned with the observance of Washington's bicentennial. The approach of that anniversary should result in a programme of real merit, but one bit of preparation which is bound to attract attention is the plan for the construction of a memorial highway between the city of Washington and Mount Vernon.

This boulevard which is expected to be 100 feet wide, and along which the suggestion has been made that the 13 original states plant trees representative of those states, have been authorized by congress and an appropriation of $4,500,000 has been approved. That progress is being made is revealed by the meeting last week of the bicentennial commission, of which the president is chairman, which decided upon the route. By vote of the commission the highway will follow the river considered to be the more attractive route but also the one that will require $700,000 less for construction purposes. Thus the decision will leave a much greater sum for beautification purposes along the roadside.

If this proves to be the greatest highway in the country it will be no more than it should be, and it is certainly fitting that it should be constructed and opened for use in connection with the celebration. From all over the country will come those to participate in and enjoy the celebration, and there will be a demand to visit Mount Vernon by way of the special memorial highway. Not only was early action sought in building the road but the commission gives assurance that it will be completed in plenty of time for the big event, since surveys have been completed and work upon it is to be started right away.

When we stop to realize that such a boulevard has been agitated for a period of 43 years there is further confirmation of the claim that large bodies move slowly. Probably there was never a time when such construction would get a more sympathetic ear than in these days of good roads and motor vehicle traffic. Still it is well for the boulevard is needed both for its memorial feature and for the facilities to be provided between the national capital and Mt. Vernon.

HITCH HIKERS.

This is the season for freak legislation to make its appearance along with that which is meritorious. There will be many bills which will be heard from no more after they have been presented. Others may be of a character that will make an appeal and be adopted after certain modifications.

From New Hampshire comes the interesting information that a bill has been introduced in the legislature which would require, if enacted, all hitch hikers to register and pay a fee of $3.20 to the secretary of state and $2.30 to the motor vehicle commissioner, with the additional requirement that each one must have two headlights and one taillight at night. Further than that they must have a metal sign indicating their destination and must carry a gallon can of gasoline. This is apparently for the purpose of giving assistance to any motorist who may be found with an empty tank. Fines of $13 or seven weeks' work on the road will be imposed for violations.

New Hampshire isn't the only state which has been bothered by hitch hikers. We do not know where it got its model for the bill introduced, or how much trouble is ahead for the hitch hikers, but there is a growing sentiment in all states against those who by appeals or thumb jerking are constantly soliciting rides. No doubt that state will have much fun over the proposed bill but those walking the highway should have lights at night for their own protection while prohibition of appeals for auto rides has become law in some states.

There has never been any good reason why those traveling the highways should expect to get their transportation free from motor vehicle drivers, while the practice of yielding to all appeals for rides has had such disastrous results upon many that it is being pretty generally abandoned.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

It's a well stuck stamp which knows that it will carry through to its destination.

Chicago may be dumbfounded at the number of criminals it is finding but it is simply confirming outside opinion.

The man on the corner says: Some people will not be happy until they have got a report from the ground hog.

If a device were to be adopted which would prevent a person getting hurt when struck by an auto, some drivers would abandon all caution.

MOTHER'S WASTED MOMENTS

Jerry Laughton came home at 5 o'clock one warm May afternoon with a heartening bit of information for his wife.

"You won't have to kook anything tonight, Lucille," he greeted her as he breezed into the nursery where she sat sewing. "Isn't it a lucky thing for you on a hot day like this? Just think, nothing to do for the rest of the day! Wilma and Joe have invited us over there for supper. Is there any hot water? I want to shave and take a bath."

With Lucille's assurance that there was hot water and plenty of it, Jerry disappeared toward the upper regions to be followed, in the course of a few minutes, by the sound of splashing waters interspersed with snatches of song as the man of the family cheerfully proceeded with his preparations for the supper party.

"Nothing to do for the rest of the day!" Lucille sighed and turned her attention toward the children. There were three of them, all of preschool age and they had been having a perfectly glorious time out of doors all day.

Mud pies and chocolate lollipops had made it a difficult proposition to discover three little white children behind their Topsy makeups. But Lucille lined them all up before her and began her task with a will.

Such a battle as then ensued! Such howlings and protests as she invaded the sacred places of their ears and ran the comb through tangled locks! Such a wriggling of fingers as she trimmed their nails; and such calmness and peace as she finally set the last shiny, pink-and-white child on a chair with instructions not to move if he valued his life.

Lucille sighted and shook her head as she glanced up at the clock. Two whole hours had passed—one hundred and twenty whole minutes. One should accomplish a great deal in seventy-two hundred seconds! But there had been ironing to do—a dress for each of the little girls and a blouse for Jimmy — and there had been a hole to darn in each little sock, besides other odd jobs.

And now as she sank exhausted on the nearest chair, she could see about her many evidences of her recent struggle. Water stood in puddles on the floor, solid clothing, ironing board, mending basket were strewn about the room—and here own reflection in the kitchen mirror showed her that her preparations for the party were not yet half done.

For what she saw there was not at all flattering—a flushed, shiny face; hair straight and disordered, a frown on her forehead and a tired look in her eyes. Five o'clock! Only thirty minutes in which to clean up after the skirmish and transform herself into a being of beauty, serenity and delight.

Laboriously she got up from her chair, but her exhausted mind and muscles refused to function and she sank back again. Five minutes! She'd rest just five minutes.

At that moment she heard a light, springy step on the stairway and a merry whistle. The next moment Jerry was standing in the doorway all bathed and shaved. His hair was neatly parted and he presented a refreshing appearance in his soft white shirt, multihued tie and newly tailored suit. He stopped abruptly at the doorway in surprise and consternation as he viewed his untidy wife.

"Why, honey," he rebuked her gently, "you don't mean to say you aren't ready yet! What on earth have you been doing all this time?"—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29—Perhaps the most beautiful home site in Washington is the top of Kalorama (beautiful view) hill, overlooking the home of President-elect Hoover, just below on S street, and that of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, a door or two down the street.

It's an historic spot in Washington, that hill top, and in 1905 was purchased by the German government as a location for a new embassy. So that hill top is German soil, to all intents and purposes. It was so during the world war, and thereby hangs a tale.

No move toward construction of the embassy had been made by 1914. The hill top area, much of it vacant and running wild with weeds, but including an old brick house on the site of the original Kalorama mansion, needed little attention.

A Sharp Eye.

By arrangement with municipal authorities Roundsman Jerry Sullivan of the city police force, who hoofed that particular beat, was asked to keep an eye on the property. He did so. In fact, he kept so wary an eye on it that undreamed of affluence came to him thereby. He was one of those to whom the ill wind of war blew good.

For when the United States entered the war two things happened. All German diplomatic interests and property in the United States were turned over to the Swiss minister for safekeeping. Also Washington filled up with various and assorted war activites and personnel that choked street car traffic and put private motor car garage space at a premium.

By agreement with the Swiss diplomats Jerry had moved into the Kalorama hill top house, belonging to Germany, in order to keep an eye on it nights as well as days. Then that sagacious eye fell on the vacant land about. What a chance to provide garages for surrounding residents!

So, $500 A Month.

The Swiss minister was quite agreeable. Up went some 50 or more sheetiron shacks that cost Jerry probably less than $100 each, yet produced a monthly rental of $10 each. And that was a very reasonable rental at the time. Jerry was no hog. He presently retired from the beat hoofing job to enjoy well earned and well paid leisure.

Jerry is dead now, but those tin garages stayed on despite efforts to apply local building regulations against them. Was this not foreign sill, against which now laws of the sort run? It was. The rents continued to roll in for Jerry and his heirs.

And only now have those tin shacks come down at request of the German embassy.

YOUR HEALTH

MANY MISTAKEN IDEAS ABOUT OVERWEIGHT

By Thelma Tubbs, Dietitian, Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, Boston

The absence of curves in the modern silhouette of fashion has led to a general craze of dieting for overweight. The advantages and dangers of being overweight have been talked about so commonly that there has been a deluge of fads and fancies for dieting. In any gathering of people, especially women, sooner or later the conversation turns to diets. The success of various treatments is loudly proclaimed, some giving loyal support to a "pineapple and lamp chop diet," and others vigorously supporting "starvation."

The use of pills for reduction of weight is probably one of the most dangerous quacks procedures that must be downed during this period of zeal on the part of the American people to acquire slender figures. Bath salts for the same purpose are fakes, pure and simple. Encouragement to dieting most certainly should be given people who are really obese, since obesity is definitely a health problem many times linked with disease. The majority of people who develon diabetes in middle age are overweight.

There are many mistaken ideas about being overweight, but many reliable tables showing average weight for people of a give.. sex, age and height have been worked out. It is pretty generally conceded that a person is not really obese unless he is ten per cent over the amount indicated on one of these tables. Furthermore, it is safer, up to the age of thirty, for him to be a few pounds above this average weight than to be underweight. During middle and old age, however, it is undoubtedly better to be nearly at or perhaps a few pounds under this indicated weight.

Granted, therefore, the problem of being truly obese, what is the best thing to do? First, by all means consult a physician, and under his guidance start a sensible diet for reduction of weight. egulating the diet to lose weight does not necessarily mean a starvation period but it does mean that the diet should be composed of foods that will not only reduce the total body weight but will also sustain the health and vigor of the body at the same time. A well-balanced day's menu of three meals can be planned consisting of vegetables, fruits, lean meats and a a limited amount of potato, bread, butter and milk, allowing enough food each day so that the daily work can be carried ont without effort. Some foods such as heavy desserts, rich candies, cream, butter and oil tend to aid strorage of body fat, so these should be either eliminated or at least regulated as to amount, according to the directions of the physician in charge.

The diet should be given as strict attention in the case of obesity as medication in the treatment of disease. Impatience of results on the part of the person dieting is a common characteristic. The desire to lose quickly and without a great deal of trouble seems to be uppermost in his mind. An average loss o ftwo pounds a week is a very safe and satisfactory amount. The first few weeks are difficult and take an unlimited amount of will-power, when results begin to show and the diet is thoroughly understood, eating becomes a secondary thing and the mind turns to the enjoyment of other phases of life.

Stories That Recall Others

Smelt It.

A grade teacher was questioning the members of her class and among others she asked a young lad how iron was first discovered.

The boy answered: "I read somewhere that they smelt it."

Just Her Luck.

Some time ago a business woman bought a number of chances on an automobile and on the night it was to be awarded went to bed in the firm belief that she was to be the winner. Shortly after midnight the phone rang, and she jumped up to answer it preparing her "speech of acceptance" as she ran.

In answer to her "hello," the voice said that her niece had twin daughters at the hospital.

"Just my luck," she said, "If it were raining soup, I'd be out with a sieve."

dress of the Bedouins. She shoe bazaar has boots of goatskin dyed red ann, yellow with heels of camelhide. Wooden sandals are inlaid with mother of pearl for wealthy women customers. Curiously enough, the famed Damascus blades are found in the Greek bazaar. They are a rarity now and it is fitting that they should be found in a bazaar devoted to antiquities. However, the Damascene is a wily merchant and gullible tourists sometimes purchase 'antiques' imported from Germany and 'oriental art' from Birmingham.

"The Old Clothes Bazaar is also known as the Louse Market and this appellation reveals its consequent neglect by tourists. It is always a center of activity for the people of Damascus and Arab and Jew haggle over the comparative worth of hand-me-down burnouses and kaffiyehs and occidental business suits.

"Hours of bargaining precede the purchases of the Damascenes. The owner of a bazaar squats on the floor with the prospective customer seated crosslegged opposite him. They smoke the narghile, the long Turkish pipe, and eat sweetmeats and drink tiny cups of black coffee. Current politics and the latest local scandal may comprise the first hour's conversation. Innuendoes on the part of each lead up to the haggling which attends the actual purchase. When a customer signifies assent he shakes his head from side to side. If he does not agree on the price he says 'no,' by putting his head backward and clicking his tongue like a castanet.

"The venders of food and drink are not limited to one bazaar. They stroll through the streets crying their wares. One may buy Turkish Delight, a famous sweetmeat, lemonade, raisin water, pistachio nuts, pomegranates and liocrice water. The venders cry to heaven that Allah will bless their customers. A sweetmeat vender declares that his wares will make young women beautiful. A drink-seller avows that his lemonade will cheer a downcast heart. Other claims equally extravagant are assigned their wares by the itinerant merchants. Most frequently is heard the cry, 'Ya rezzak!' which is translated, 'Oh, God, send to me a customer.'

"A commercial center of Damascus is the Derb-el-Mustakim, the Street Called Straight, made famous by Saul of Tarsus. Here in former days walked emirs of Araby, khans from Bokhara and Tunisian beys. Along its sides are Arabian cafes of which the city possesses the most numerous and largest in the East. The Damascene 'man in the street' may be found puffing his narghile and sipping coffee or cinnamon in the cafe. He will sit cross-legged on a bench playing backgammon or listening for hours to a professional story teller.

"Despite modern improvements and transportation methods, Damascus is still an intrinsically oriental city."

Folk Songs Revived in Germany

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

FREIBURG, Black Forest, Germany.—(AP)—The German folk song has found an ardent champion in an organization of youths known as "wandervoegel"—birds of passage.

Go anywhere to one of the popular outing spots of Germany, such as the Black Forest, the Bavarian Alps, the Harz mountains, or the Thuringian woods, and everywhere you will hear the folk song, the folk melody, coming from the throats of boys and girls in their teens.

The "Wandervoegel" are hiking clubs of young people. A picturesque lot they usually are, as they wend their way among grassy paths and sunny highways. Almost without exception they walk bare headed and wear sandals.

The young lads usually wear knee breeches of leather or coarse velvet and light blue coats of homespun. The lasses wear plain cotton print, touched up here and there, Italian fashion, by a bright scarf or a fresh flower plucked on the way.

At least four or five in a group of 20 to 25 carry musical instruments, especially lutes, guitars and violins. They sing in an exuberance of joy at the beauties that nature has so plentifully provided in Germany.

From time to time they pause for a rest. Then, out of their little knapsacks they take their modest lunch of black bread and sausage. Plain water usually supplies their nectar.

Presently someone strums the lute. Others fall in with their instruments. Soon the meadow or forest reverberates with song.

Often, too, a more serious note is struck. The meaning of life is searchingly discussed. The duty of youth to the new Germany is debated. Religion is critically analyzed. Questions of international relationship are raised. Alcohol and its effects are considered.

As evening comes on, the "Wandervoegel" repair to one of the "Jugendherbergen"—lodgings for the youth—which cities nd states are placing at the disposal of the young people in increasing numbers. Often the lodgings for the boys consists merely of heaps of clean straw, while for t' e girls primitive bedsteads are available.

But what matters it? The young folk are having the time of their lives, and what they lack in comfort is made up by the hardening the body receives. Lodging in these "Jugendherbergen" usually costs only about 5 cents a night. In some cities castles abandoned by the nobility during the revolution have been converted to accommodate the "Wandervoegel." That adds a touch of the romantic which is much appreciated by the youths.

One of the most valuable aspects of the "Wandervoegel" movement is the self-imposed self-discipline to which the members must subject themselves. This new-found liberty compensates the rising generation for many privations to which it must accustom itself in a country emerging from virtual collapse.

A. L. Leeds, formerly president of the Manhattan Shirt company, has been elected chairman of the board. Jules C. Leeds, vice-president, succeeds him as president.

How The World Is Governed

China Called a Republic, But It Is Not.

By BATES RANEY.
(Associated Press Feature Editor.)

President Ciang Kai-shek, by virtue of his military support and dictatorial authority, is one of the few heads of modern states who has more actual power than President-elect Hoover will assume in March.

The new Chinese government, which seems likely to become permanent after a decade of civil war, resembles the executive structure of soviet Russia. The congress of the national party in theory is the supreme authority but it is not a representative body and therefore China is not a republic, although it is called one.

The accepted definition of republic is "a state in which the sovereign power resides in the whole body of the people, and is exercised by representatives elected by them." Some of the ancient states, particularly the Greek city states, are often referred to as republics to this day, although they were, in fact, aristocracies.

The United States is a republic because every citizen has a voice or vote in the government. China is not a republic because only members of the nationalist party have anything to say about the government. No opposition is recognized. Moreover, the actual governmental authority rests in the hands of a small group of men. China is really governed by an oligarchy which has been recognized by the United States.

This oligarchy, which is composed of 46 members, is called the central executive committee and is responsible to the congress of the people's party.

The congress cannot meet however, until it is called by the central executive committee, much like an American governor calling his legislature to assemble. When congress is not in session, the central executive committee is the supreme authority.

Dependent upon the central executive committee are two other governmental bodies, the political council and the state council. The president of the state council is Chiang Kai-shek, under his jurisdiction either as council members or cabinet members are virtually all the great generals or statesmen of China capable of causing trouble to the new government if they were on the "outside."

The political council is what its name implies. This body, in close conjunction with governmental affairs, furthers the interest of the national party by propaganda and political maneuvers.

The state council is like a huge cabinet. Dependent upon it, however, are five divisional councils called yuans.

One is the executive council, or cabinet proper, comprising ministries for foreign affairs, finance, war, state, interior, industry, mining, commerce agriculture labor, health, education, railways and communications.

The second divisional council of yuan is that of justice. It is in fact a supreme court. The third is a legislative body of from 49 to 99 members with parliamentary initiative. The fourth is a civil service commission. The fifth keeps a check on the other councils through powers of audit and impeachment. The membership of all the committees, councils are closely interlocked.

Each of the five yuans is administered by its own president.

STATE'S WATER SUIT IS A COMPLICATED CASE

Just what the powers of the secretary of may may be in authorizing or prohibiting diversion of navigable waters has grown in the last few days to be a question far more intricate and difficult in detail to answer than was first supposed when Connecticut took the steps against Massachusetts last year in an effort to prevent Boston from diverting water from the Ware and Swift rivers for domestic metropolitan supply. Deputy Atty.-Gen. Ernest L. Averill, who with Benedict M. Holden of Hartford, is fighting the case for Connecticut, has returned from a few days' visit in Washington where informal conferences with the war department officials revealed that the secretary of war may have to call upon the attorney-general of the United States to secure some ruling as to procedure in this complicated matter. The attorney-general may leave the matter to the supreme court, which already has before it one case between Connecticut and Massachusetts, relative to the taking of the Ware river.

A Clear Complexion

Ruddy cheeks—sparkling eyes—most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—now and then to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.

COMMANDER McNUTT OF AMERICAN LEGION TO SPEAK HERE ON SUNDAY

Norwich will be honored next Sunday afternoon by a visit from National Commander Paul V. McNutt of the American Legion, who will be the principal speaker at an open meeting of the Fourth and Fifth districts of the American Legion at the Town hall. Norwich is signally honored, as Commander McNutt is in great demand throughout the country and seldom pays visits to cities as small as Norwich.

Delegations from practically all the American Legion posts in the eastern part of the state will be present. The public is invited to attend the open meeting as the commander's address will be of interest to not only Legionnaires but to the public in general.

The success of National Commander McNutt, exemplifies the success that may come to an average American in this land of opportunity. His success came early in life, which is always interesting. It came not through the whirl of the wheel of fortune, but rather as the reward for running a steady, consistent race. Day by day, week by week, year by year, he has been utilizing the tools available. He has been quietly dealing with the task at hand. In solving the problems as they present themselves he has accumulated a background of experience that bids to carry him to even higher honors.

The factors that have largely shaped the destiny of National Commander McNutt are those which many enjoy but not all utilize. Those that know him intimately, see in him the product of good home training, wise counsel of parents, devotion of a loyal wife, and the love for his daughter, Louise, seven years old. These, plus untiring individual effort, have enabled him to go far upon the path to success. The things closest to his heart are his home, his country, the American Legion and Indiana university, all of which he has served with distinction.

Paul V. McNutt was born in Franklin, Indiana, a quiet little Hoosier town, built around a court house that stood in the middle of the public square. He came of the third generation of pioneer stock, who in covered wagons, had pushed through Kentucky, constantly seeking in the west new horizons and new fields to conquer. Very early in life, Judge John C. McNutt, of Martinsville, father of Paul, began to teach his son lessons in leadership and organization. His mother was a confidant who not only urged him to further attainments but comforted him in childish defeat. All this time he was gaining the finishing touches in American democracy that comes only to those who rub elbows with boys and girls of our public schools.

But leadership did not come to him without exacting compensation. He burned the midnight oil in untiring efforts to excel. He was one of three students of Indiana university that have made an "A" plus in trigonometry. He holds among his honors the most coveted of academic distinctions, the key of Phi Beta Kappa, and membership in the Order of Coif, both internationally recognized honorary scholastic fraternities. He achieved an A.B. from Indiana university in 1913 with honors that included editorship of the Indiana Daily Student and presidency of the Indiana Union. He covered three world series baseball games for a leading press association in a taste of newspaper work. He turned to law and obtained an LL.B. degree from Harvard in 1916.

National Commander McNutt does not evade issues. Believing in the principle of preparedness, he has practiced it and eloquently preached it. He could have been found as a student in uniform on the campus at 6:30 a. m., learning "squads east and west" under Prof. K. P. Williams his first military instructor. When war was declared, his mind was already made up as to the right of the cause for which America fought. He drew straws with other professors in the law school to see in what order they would be released to enlist. He enrolled in the second officers' training camp at Fort Benjamin Harrison early in 1917.

PAUL V. McNUTT

He was commissioned a captain of field artillery and promoted two successive grades to lieutenant-colonel. He now holds a commission in the organized reserves as colonel and commands the 326th Field Artillery.

The work of National Commander McNutt in the Legion is consistent with his other lines of endeavor. Although dean of the Law school, he accepted the office of commander of the Burton Woolery post, No. 18, of the Legion, at Bloomington. The post had less than 80 paid up members. When he completed his year of leadership, the post had more than 400 members. The post now owns a fine home and has held its place as one of the strongest posts in Indiana. While department commander of Indiana, he traveled more than 40,000 miles chiefly at his own expense, carrying the Legion message wherever veterans were found.

This work carried him not only to the more populous centers, but at times after a long trying journey he would address meetings attended by only a dozen earnest Legion workers who were intent upon building up a weak post. He continued to serve in a splendid manner while national executive committeeman for Indiana. He saw his department constantly forging ahead to wider fields of civic service and increased membership.

He conducted a tour of Legionnaires and auxiliary members through the important countries of Europe prior to the Paris, France, national convention of the Legion in 1927. Following the convention he was a member of the distinguished group of soldiers and statesmen who visited the leading capitals of the continent as members of the Commanders' tour, the official Legion peace and good will party. In the year that followed the Paris convention, his acquaintance increased nationally and he was in demand throughout the country as a speaker.

SMALL LOAN COMPANIES ARE NECESSARY EVIL

"We have been forced to arrive at the conclusion that small loan companies are a necessary evil. They are limited to loans of $300 and they are regulated by the state," says State Banking Commissioner Lester E. Shippee in commenting on the growth of the small loan companies. Each small loan company is licensed by the state banking commissioners.

The number of such institutions in the state has greatly increased in the past year. Interest of three and a half per cent per month is charged by these companies. Recognizing that such a rate appears exorbitant Mr. Shippee says that nevertheless that rate is the smallest that could attract private capital. Mr. Shippee expressed the opinion that the companies fill a definite need and stated that Connecticut is only one of some 23 states that have adopted a uniform small loan act legalizing such companies. The Connecticut statute was enacted in 1919. The fact that such companies cannot take bankable collateral, and the amount of work they must do to collect principal and interest on their loans, were emphasized by Mr. Shippee. "The companies haven't made too much money, and that's the whole thing," the bank commissioner concluded.

CURRENT EVENTS SPEAKER DISCUSSES PRESIDENT'S TALK

Another splendid talk on current events, lasting well over an hour, was given by Mrs. Atwell of New York Tuesday evening at the Wauregan hotel before the Woman's city club with a large number in attendance. Mrs. Atwell commenced her talk with reference to the vital points in the addresses of President Coolidge and General Lord before the budget commission the other night.

The speaker then gave an outline of the important matters that are to come up before the congress, speaking at length on the different subjects, such as the tariff, farm relief, cruiser and prohibition questions. In comparing the cruiser strength of the United States and England Mrs. Atwell said "Why not a pooling of the naval strength of the two nations. What are we (the United States) going to do with these cruisers; to protect and keep peace on the seas"

With mention of our promise to loan money to Greece and the bill before the senate for an appropriation of $12,000,000 for Greece and the prohibition question Mrs. Atwell delved into affairs across the ocean. She touched upon the situation of the peasants in Russia, the general election in England, in June, and discussed the building of the tunnel under the English channel to connect England with France, bringing the countries in that part of the world in closer touch with England.

She concluded her talk with reference to the ratification of the Kellogg peace pact and mention of the world court and league of nations. Mrs. Atwell was warmly applauded for her excellent talk.

PLAINFIELD PROS ENCOUNTER STIFF OPPOSITION IN CANADIANS TONIGHT

Les Canadians of Toronto, basketball champions of Canada, are expected to battle the Plainfield Pros on even terms tonight at the Community House floor in one of the fastest attractions of the season. Les Canadians have established a record on their tour of New England that rates them as one of the best teams in the country, defeating such teams as Stamford, Gloucester, Pittsfield, Rutland, Utica, Burlington, Elmira, Watertown, Scranton and Plymouth. Les Canadians excel in professional rules and play in games where such rules govern the game.

The lineup, Hartman, Conroy, Morenz, Smith and Moorin, round out a team of well known basketball stars. Les Canadians feature Morenz, who is a brother of Howie Morenz, famous hockey player, in the center position.

Manager Salisbury of the Pros cancelled the scheduled game with the Meriden Endees to book this attraction. Salisbury intends to shift his lineup to try and get his team into the winning column once more. From all appearances the starting lineup will be Pop Williams, center, Tisdale, forward, Kasper, forward, Bernot, guard and Dissinger guard. It is expected with such changes Bernot should work to advantage with his long shots. Tisdale will be relieved of his guarding worries thereby giving Plainfield a necessary scoring punch that has been lacking of late.

Dave Harvey, formerly of New York and now of Hartford, will officiate at the game. Harvey comes to Plainfield highly recommended having over 15 years experience as player and official and should give a good account of himself.

In the preliminary the Plainfield Buddies, who have been undefeated in 15 starts on their home floor, will clash with the Yergans, colored five of New London, one of the fastest and best preliminary attractions in Connecticut. Dancing will follow the game.

NURMI TO COMPETE WITH BIG HANDICAP RUNNERS

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—(AP)—For the first time since he reached these shores the great Paavo Nurmi will have to hurry a bit if he wants to finish in front in his next running appearance. A score of lesser runners with the advantage of handicaps up to 170 yards will be pitted against him in the St. Joseph's Catholic club games at the 113th regiment armory, Newark, Thursday night.

This two-mile event with the flying Finn against the field will be his first handicap race of the current invasion. In his two previous starts he outclassed the opposition to win a 300-yard jaunt here by half a lap and the two-mile at Boston Saturday by three-quarters of a lap.

Even with the long lead his opponents will have and with the necessity of threading his way through a straggling field, Nurmi will be an overwhelming favorite to win. Not even Irving Totten, former Union college star, and Louis Gregory, of the St. Joseph's club, who stand out as his principal opponents, expected to do more than press Paavo to a record pace although they will be out to beat him if they can. It was done several times in handicap races in 1925.

So many have sought the chance to match strides with the peerless Finn that the entry list reached a total of 53, making it necessary to split the field and run two separate events. The pick of the bunch will be sent against Nurmi with most of them pretty well grouped around the 170-yard mark.

There is still likelihood that Paavo will have to beat the fast time of 9.12 made in Boston Saturday if not to approach his remarkable world record of 8.58:15 made here on St. Valentine's day four years ago.

In the same meet but in another event will be one American runner who might be able, if given the help of a handicap, to force the new stopwatch Paavo carried to register close to that remarkable time. The youth is Leo Lermond, who will start at scratch in a one-mile event with such opponents as Joe Hickey of New ork university, Ed Deady, Newark, A. C.; and Clarence Jensen, National Interscholastic mile champion at Newark prep.

Other events including what is advertised as a grudge race featuring Phil Edwards, N. Y. U., Negro ace, and Jimmy Kennedy, Georgetown freshman, who beat the Canadian Olympic star in his first start of the season a few nights ago.

TRAINING CAMPS READY FOR STRIBLING AND SHARKEY

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 29—(AP)—With the arrival here today of Jack Sharkey's trainer, Tony Polozzolo, announcement was made by Jack Dempsey that W. L. "Young" Stribling and his party will arrive tomorrow to prepare for his fight with the Boston Sailor February 27. Sharkey and his party will arrive in Miami Beach Friday night, Dempsey announced.

"Pa" Stribling gave Dempsey his information on the arrival here of the Georgia youngster. The latter, the elder Stribling said, has acceded to Dempsey's repeated requests that he refrain from firing until after the fight. Young Stribling with his wife and children, pa and ma, and his younger brother, will arrive by train tomorrow.

Stribling will be the guest of honor at a dinner given by Dempsey tomorrow night at "Social Headquarters" of the Madison Square Garden corporation, and will appear at the Miami Beach Kennel club later.

Polozzolo today selected the Kennel club arena as the site for Sharkey's training. This leaves a casino around the corner from the Kennel for Stribling's workouts.

Inclement weather was responsible for another postponement of Dempsey's plans to work out today, but he is hoping to get into the training business tomorrow.

O'KELLY READY FOR HIS BOUT WITH MALONEY

BOSTON, Jan. 29 — (AP) — Con O'Kelly, the Irish heavyweight, arrived here today to finish training for his ten round bout with Jimmy Maloney, of Boston, in the Boston Garden, on Friday night. Maloney has been training at his Wamesit camp for the pase ten days.

Both men, according to boxing promoter Eddie Mack, has consented to face K. O. Christner and the victor will probably be given a bout with the Akron heavyweight sensation. Christner, Mack said, he has already accepted his terms to fight here and awaited only a definite date and opponent.

The supporting card arranged for the O'Kelly-Maloney feature called for a ten-round semi-final battle between Arthur Flynn, of Lawrence and Vincent Forglone, of Philadelphia. Mack also matched Big Boy Rawson, of Boston, against Tiger Tom Dixon, of Dover, N. H., and Owen Flynn, of Boston, against Eddie Callahan, of Arlington, for his six rounders.

J. R. PRICE, SECRETARY OF RED SOX COMMITS SUICIDE

BOSTON, Jan. 29—(AP)—James R. Price, 60, secretary of the Boston Red Sox, committed suicide on a runway at Fenway park, here today by slashing his throat with a razor. Harry Mason, travelling secretary of the club, found him with the razor lying beside him. He was taken to the city hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

Medical Examiner Timothy Leary found a letter in the pocket of Price's coat addressed to his wife and explaining the reasons for his act. The secretary was believed to have been despondent over ill health for some time. Only ten minutes before he killed himself, he complained to office associates that his heart bothered him. Medical Examiner Leary did not reveal the contents of the note to Mrs. Price.

Price was sporting editor of the old New York Press for many years and was a close friend of Ban Johnson, former president of the American league. He was in charge of the distribution of the American league world's series tickets to club owners.

He became secretary of the Red Sox in 1924, when he resigned the presidency of the Newark club of the International league. He was taken seriously ill three years ago, but was believed to have made a complete recovery. He was a charter member of the Baseball Writers' association of America.

BELLEAIR, Fla., Jan. 29—(AP)—Continuing the brilliant golf that accounted for medalist honors in the annual January woman's tournament Fritzie Stifel of Wheeling, W. Va., today advanced to the second round by defeating Mrs. H. Dunkak of Mount Vernon, N. Y., 6 up and 4 to play. Two other members of the Stifel family, Mrs. E. W. H., 4 and 2, while Pat won on the twentieth hole from Mrs. Florence Leuder of New York city.

Two upsets marked the first round matches, Mrs. M. G. Field of Buffalo, N. Y., defeated Miss Eleanor Labonte of Boston 2 and 1, and Miss K. Grand of New York city, accomplished the unexpected in defeating Mrs. Myra D. Paterson, 3 and 2.

Miss Stifel will meet Miss Grand in tomorrow's matches.

SENATORS BREAK LOSING STREAK AND BEAT TORONTO

OTTAWA, Jan. 29—(AP)—The Ottawa Senators broke the long string of defeats and ties that has marked their National Hockey league season, by taking a hectic overtime struggle from Toronto tonight by a 4 to 2 score.

Late in the third period the Senators had a 2 to 0 lead only to have the Leafs put on a brilliant rally in the last five minutes to tie the count. Ottawa scored twice in the overtime session while three Toronto players were in the penalty box. Frank Finnigan took the life out of the Leaf defense when he broke the deadlock on a pass from Alex Smith, and Len Grosvenor followed with another score in short order.

The game produced 27 penalties, including five to Frank Clancy, while Lorne Chabot broke the perfect record for the league's goal tenders, going to the cooler in the second period for driving the puck in the direction of Referee Billy Bell.

WILL MAKE LARGE CASH OFFER TO DEMPSEY

NEW YORK, Jan. 29—(AP)—Acting as spokesman for a syndicate of wealthy men whom he promised to list for publication within ten days, Edwin Cole, financial advisor to William H. Bartlett, of Atlantic City, announced today he would make Jack Dempsey "a large cash offer" for a comeback fight this summer.

Cole said the syndicate would take over the erection of the Metropolitan Coliseum, a venture originally planned by Humbert J. Fugazy, boxing promoter, at a cost of "$7,000,000 to $10,000,000." Fugazy will act as promoter and general manager, he said.

The syndicate hopes to stage a fight between Dempsey and either Paulino Uzcudun or George Godfrey in a ball park here, Cole said. He returned today from a trip to Miami Beach, Fla., where he said Dempsey was interested in his proposition but was not open to any offer until after the Sharkey-Stribling match Feb. 27.

TAYLOR OUTPOINTS SHAW IN TEN-ROUND BOUT

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 29—(AP)—Bud Taylor, Terre Haute, Ind., formerly recognized in most states as the world's bantamweight champion, made his debut here tonight as a challenger for the featherweight title by outpointing Billy Shaw, Detroit, in ten rounds. Each weighed 126 1-2 pounds.

It was Taylor's first fight in more than six months and he used it as a warm-up in preparation for a ten-round scheduled bout with Al Singer, of New York, at Madison Square Garden, Feb. 8.

Shaw was counted out in the second round but claimed a foul. The referee contended it was not a foul and a physician was called. When the doctor announced there was doubt as to whether the blow was low, Shaw was given a brief rest and the bout resumed.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29—(AP)—By unanimous vote of the players and members of the National Billiard association tournament committee, Albert Cutler was named today to referee all games in the world's championship 18.2 Balkline tournament which starts Monday night at the Level club.

Gosling's total of 73 gave him the medal by four strokes. H. C. Fownes, second, of Pittsburgh, son of W. C. Fownes, Jr., former president of the United States Golf association, was second with 42-35 and J. H. Beavis of England, third, with 41-37, 78. Nicol Thompson, Jr., son of the well known Canadian professional, was fourth with 42-37, 79.

PUTNAM HIGH LOSES TO LEAGUE LEADING CHAPMAN TECH QUINTET

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 29—Putnam high school went down to defeat here tonight at the hands of the fast quintet of Chapman Tech in one of the fastest games staged in this city this season. At the final whistle the Chapman league leaders had polled 24 points to the Noyesmen's 19.

Constant passwork on the part of the New Londoners was the feature of the game. Their five-man defense completely baffled the Putnam five. Leo, Putnam's outstanding hoop tosser failed to produce the skill and floor work expected of him. Capt. Walter Cody and Bill Shaun were unable to keep free of the Chapman tenacles, failing to accomplish any of the court work which brought them honor in previous league encounters.

Chihowski of the home towners displayed excellent court work in keeping the ball above the heads of the visitors. Quinn, who proved to be the fastest player on the local aggregation was high scorer, finishing the evening with a total of eight points to his credit.

In the opening half the Putnam boys stiffened by the long cold ride were unable to match strides with their league leading opponents, they scoring but nice points to Tech's 18.

A change of court positions proved to lighten the tossing task for the Putnam group of hoopsters and slowly they showed signs of closing the wide gap in the score. Leo, Putnam flashy tosser, was successful in ringing a few baskets, as was Walt Cody, the Putnam pilot, yet the team was unable to overcome the substantial lead attained by the Tech court men in the early stages of the game. The final score stood at 24 to 19 in favor of the Whalers.

By winning their engagement with Putnam High school tonight, Chapman Tech maintained their berth at the head of the Eastern Connecticut-Western Rhode Island interscholastic basketball league, while the Noyesmen continue to rest in second place. Score:

Announcement has been made that the directors of the Eastern Connecticut Bond and Mortgage corporation have declared a quarterly dividend at the rate of 7 per cent per annum on the preferred stock of the corporation to stockholders of record as of Jan. 31st. Dividend checks will be mailed to respective stockholders.

Announcing

Substantial Reductions

in the prices of the

DODGE BROTHERS SENIOR

WHEN THE NEW Dodge Brothers Six was announced, at the beginning of the new year, at prices so low as to overshadow any previous Dodge Brothers accomplishment, its universal public acceptance marked a new peak of popularity even for Dodge Brothers cars

Public recognition was quickly translated into an unprecedented sales volume with an attendant increase in manufacturing efficiency and economy which now favorably affects its companion car—the Dodge Brothers Senior—and permits substantial reductions in the prices of all Dodge Brothers Senior models.

The new lower prices at which the Dodge Brothers Senior henceforth will be sold are directly traceable to the established Chrysler policy of giving the public immediate benefit of every economy due to more efficient manufacturing methods, lower overhead costs and savings effected by the great unified purchasing power of Chrysler Motors.

Not only are these savings now passed on to the public in the form of much lower prices of all Dodge Brothers Senior models, but the cars themselves have been made still better.

Examine the Dodge Brothers Senior in your most critical mood. Scrutinize each small detail. Be most exacting in your inspection. For once you have subjected the Chrysler-built Dodge Brothers Senior to your most diligent and careful inspection you are certain to realize that never before has a car so large, so handsome and so fine been available at so low a price.

NEW LOWER PRICES: NOW $1495 to $1595, F. O. B. DETROIT

WESTERLY

TOWN COUNCIL TO PARE BUDGET TOTAL OF $522,000

A lengthy session, it is expected, will be held this (Wednesday) evening by Westerly town council, which will meet to swing the axe upon the preliminary budget amounts submitted by the various departments of the town government, which totalled $522,000. The 1928 appropriations amounted to $456,860, but this year there is an additional amount of $60,000 required for old town hall notes which did not have to be met last year. It is expected that representatives of the various departments will be present to insist upon a minimum reduction in their estimates for 1929 appropriations. The council fathers will endeavor to have a balanced budget ready for the taxpayers to vote upon at the annual Westerly financial town meeting, Feb. 5th.

CLARK ST. RESIDENTS WANT HIGHWAY REPAIRED

At the weekly meeting of the Westerly highway commission Monday evening a petition was presented by a number of the property owners of Clark street requesting that some action be taken to repair that highway. Several property owners who attended the meeting personally described the conditions which exist there and asked for relief. The members of the commission expressed themselves as fully aware of conditions and suggested that the petition be changed and introduced in proper form, asking that Clark street be accepted by the town. Another petition is to be circulated for signers and will be presented to the highway commissioners at an early date.

A petition was presented to the highway committee of the town council by Peter Clark back in 1898 and other petitions were presented in 1904 and 1906. Out of the four petitions it was explained that two of them were in proper form, asking that Clark street be accepted duly.

Verney took his text from the first epistle to the Corinthians 12:27, "Now ye are the body of Christ, and members in particular." Besides bringing out the well-known thought that even the humblest Christian has some small talent which will be honored of God when used for His glory, Mr. Verney laid stress on the need of fellowship between all parts of the church. Mr. Verney pointed out that "City mission" and "Foreign-language centers" were good, but would never take the place of Christian friendship offered to the newcomers by the rank and file of the churches.

A GERMAN SAYS STONES BREATHE, LIVE AND DIE

LEIPZIG (AP) — Announcement that all elemental forms of life, of which stones are to be considered a striking example, soon may be created in laboratories was made by Prof. Fritz Rinne, mineralogist of the Leipzig university at a meeting of the Saxonian Academy of Sciences.

Professor Rinne contended that for most phenomena observed in living substances analogies are to be found in the inorganic world, though not as readily discernible, either with the eye of the microscope.

By means of X-rays it has become possible to reveal these mysteries.

The scientist described how various crystals absorbed and expelled steam or oxygen. He pointed out how seemingly indestructible granite also pays its tribute to time, when, after a certain period, it begins to show signs of old age, its crystals becoming dull and indistinct, until finally the stone dissolves into sand—in other words, "dies."

What the self-made man needs is a wife who is capable of polishing the rough edges.

KEEP YOUR STOMACH YOUNG AND SWEET

Every bite of food you eat MUST be digested, and the waste matter eliminated. That's sure. If your stomach is sluggish and old, from the excessive acids which keep eating away the gastric juices, you must dissolve them, or you never will be free from indigestion, sour risings, bloating and drowsiness after you eat.

Get a package of Pape's Diapepsin from your nearest drug store and chew one of the tablets after meals. Instantly the distress is relieved it dissolves the acids, sweetens the stomach and you will have an appetite again like you had when a child.

All drug stores have Pape's Diapepsin. More than 5 million packages are used a year.

STOCK MARKET WAS UNSETTLED WITH TENDENCY TOWARD LOWER LEVELS

NEW YORK, Jan. 29—(AP)—The stock market churned about confusedly today, with the general tendency toward lower levels, although a handful of utilities and industrials were bid up from 5 to more than 14 points.

A rise in the call loan rate to 7 per cent. after holding at 6 for nearly two weeks, was an unsettling factor, although $7,500,000 in gold arrived from England late in the day, and London advices indicated that $5,000,000 would be shipped tomorrow.

Another cause of uneasiness was the meeting of the U. S. Steel directors after the close. Some fears were expressed that if the much rumored extra or stock dividends should fail to materialize, the market would sell off sharply tomorrow. This view was not generally accepted, however, as most traders of late had expected nothing more than a favorable earnings report at this time.

The steel corporation's report, showing $11.61 per common share for 1928, in contrast to only $8.81 per share in 1927, was generally regarded as satisfactory, although it fell somewhat short of more optimistic estimates.

The market opened rather quieter than of late, but with prices pointed upward. Heavy selling came into the market before noon, however, carrying a wide assortment of important issues off 2 to 6 points. As money went no higher than 7 per cent. and further gold shipments were announced, short covering became heavy and most losses were reduced. Total sales, 4,291,700 shares, were the smallest for a full session since Jan. 17.

The day's news included the arrival of Montagu Norman, governor of the bank of England, supposedly to confer with federal reserve officials. Action to stem the flow of gold to New York, is regarded as imminent and may take the form of a higher rediscount rate at London, which would probably lead to similar action at New York. General Motors reported an increase in dealer sales of 13 per cent. in 1928. Inland Steel raised its dividend rate to $3.50 from $2.50.

The heavy buying of utilities was regarded as discounting future merger and expansion developments. The Associated Press indice for 20 of this group rose more than 4 points to a new high record. Philadelphia company nearly equalled its previous high in a gain of 14 1-2 points, while American Power & Light, and American Water Works jumped more than 7 points to new tops.

Burroughs Adding Machine, Delaware and Hudson and Allis Chalmers mounted 9 to 10 points, while International Nickel and Westinghouse Electric gained about 4 points.

U. S. Steel fluctuated between 183 and 187, closed at 184 3-8, off nearly a point. Oils and Motors were generally heavy. Allied Chemical, Commercial Investment Trust, Green Cananea, Indian Refining, General Motors (old), and Motor Products lost 3 to 6 points.

The commodity markets generally felt selling pressure. Cotton closed 30 to 70 cents a bale lower and grain sold off slightly.

Foreign exchanges were generally steady, sterling showing notable lack of response to the flow of gold this way, although cables were quoted slightly lower at $4.84 15-16.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29—(AP)—Steel ingot production is reported at about 85 per cent. of capacity compared with 83.5 per cent. last week and 82.5 per cent. two weeks ago. United States Steel corporation ingot output is placed at nearly 87 per cent. against 85 per cent. a year ago and independents' production at from 73 to 74 per cent. against 80 per cent. in 1928.

The Zenith Radio corporation plans to start soon construction of a new plant at Chicago and will increase its production capacity threefold.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

CHICAGO, Jan. 29—(AP)—Ridicule of talk that winter wheat has suffered any severe damage did a good deal to bring about a lively tumble in wheat values today. Notice was taken that wheat primary receipts were larger, especially at winter wheat centers, and speculative selling of future deliveries here broadened out, with prices dropping to 6 1-2c below figures obtainable last week.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, 1 1-4c to 1 1-2c under yesterday's finish, corn 5-8c to 1 1-8c off, oats 5-8c to 1 1-8c down, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 20c.

In connection with disbelief expressed in various quarters today that domestic winter wheat had suffered any unusual amount of crop damage, one trade leader here said that 1913-14 had produced the largest United States wheat crop on record up to that time, although the winter was very cold. He also asserted that the winter of 1918-19 was the coldest in 50 years, but the wheat out-turn at the ensuing harvest was also of record-breaking volume. Free selling on the part of houses with eastern connections accompanied these assertions, and numerous standing orders to let go of future delivery holdings at certain fixed limits, and thus put a stop to losses, were forced into execution as the market plunged rapidly downgrade.

For at least the time being, it was in vain that leading experts pointed out that wheat crop conditions so far this season are radically different, that wheat had a late start, and there have been six zero periods experienced in January without snow protection and with alternations of rain and thaw that have resulted in widespread ice covering.

On the other hand, reports of increased offerings of Argentine wheat to Europe, together with lower quotations at Liverpool, were an evident factor in bringing about downturns in Chicago prices. Predictions, too, were current that wheat clearances from North America are to diminish and Argentine clearances enlarge. Meanwhile, primary domestic arrivals of wheat today totaled 1,048,000 bushels, compared with 942,000 bushels a week ago and 841,000 bushels the corresponding day last year. Today's wheat receipts at Kansas City, St. Louis, and Omaha were 358 cars, against 131 cars a year ago.

Notwithstanding advices that cold weather had occasioned much greater farm use of corn, the market today both of corn and oats duplicated the action of wheat, but with better commission buying on the fall. Purchases of more corn to come here from Kansas City were reported. Some corn export business was noted at the eastern seaboard, but steamship space at the Gulf of Mexico was being cancelled, even at distress rates.

Provisions ran into free selling orders, and averaged lower despite steadiness of hog values.

BOND MARKET.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29—(AP)—Prices were firmer in today's dull session of the bond market. High grade rails advanced on investment buying, while the secondary rails declined under profit taking. More than $50,000,000 in new bond financing, including $32,000,000 for Railway Express Agency, Inc., successor to American Railway Express, was absorbed in the investment market. Sales totaled $10,311,000.

Fonda, Johnstown & Gloversville 4 1-2s climbed to a new high at 50, but broke nearly 4 points on profit-taking. Declines also were recorded in Rock Island 4 1-2s A, Des Moines & Fort Dodge and Minneapolis & St. Louis issues, the latter's refunding 4s closing 2 3-4 net lower at 29 1-4 after selling up to 34 1-4. Seaboard Air Line convertible 6s, Baltimore & Ohio first general 4s and Pennsylvania gold 4 3-4 showed improvement.

Public Service of New Jersey 4 1-2s resumed the leadership of the utilities with a jump of 5 1-4 points. Northern Ohio Traction & Light 6s ran up nearly 2 points to a new high at 103 1-4. North American Edison 5 1-2s closed fractionally lower after touching a new peak. International Telephone convertible 4 1-2s were fractionally higher.

International Cement 5s ran up 3 1-2 points to a new high at 116, in expectation of record business this year for the industry, but declined near the close. Anaconda Copper 6s advanced fractionally, while the 7s declined 3 points on light trading. Sugars were soft, with Camaguay declining 2 points.

Italian industrials featured the mixed trading in the foreign list, Montecatini 7s with warrants climbing 1 1-2 points and Fiat 7s with warrants 2 1-4.

U. S. government obligations were soft.

Burgess Bedtime Story

Spooky Tries to Bluff.

When you are corned, try a bluff;
Sometimes you'll find it is enough.
—Spooky the Screech Owl.

Spooky the Screech Owl is a little fellow. He is smaller, much smaller, than he loks to be. You see, his feathers are very fulffy and he keeps them fluffed out. If you could see him without any feathers at all, you would be surprised to see how little he is.

Spooky is not a coward. He may be afraid, very much afraid, but if he is, he doesn't show it. Instead, he tries to make you afraid. He bluffs. Yes, sir, that is just what he does. He pretends to be very fierce and savage. He glares as only an owl can glare. He snaps his bill and sometimes hisses, and he strikes with his big, sharp claws.

Spooky was a prisoner in Farmer Brown's grain bin in the barn. He was a badly frightened prisoner. He had flown down in there to catch a young rat and the lid had fallen. For a while he forgot the young rat. But presently when nothing happened, Spooky remembered the young rat. "I may as well have a good meal anyway," thought he, and proceeded to eat the young rat. He had swallowed all but the tail. The tail was hanging from one corner of his mouth, when he heard a sound outside the grain bin. Spooky's heart gave a bound. He knew that sound. Footsteps were approaching.

Now, Spooky had planned that the instant that lid should be lifted, he would fly out. But it is one thing to plan and another thing to do what you have planned. The lid of that grain bin was thrown open suddenly and it let light in with a rush. It was all so unexpected that all Spooky could do was to blink. You see, he couldn't adjust his eyes to the light so quickly. So, of course, he didn't fly out. Farmer Brown's Boy saw Spooky at once. Such a funny look as there was on the face of Farmer Brown's Boy.

"Well, well, well!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's Boy. "Just see who's here! What are you doing in the grain bin, and how under the sun did you get caught?"

Just then Farmer Brown's Boy saw the tail of a rat hanging from Spooky's mouth. He chuckled when he saw this. "So that's it!" said he. "You saw that young rat in here and you couldn't resist the temptation. It must be that I left the lid open. I wonder who closed it. Well, seeing you're here, I think I'll take you out."

Farmer Brown's boy reached in for Spooky. Spooky started to fly, but couldn't get past the arm of Farmer Brown's Boy. He dropped back. Then he tried to bluff. He fluffed out all his feathers just as Black Pussy raises the hair on her tail when she is frightened or angry. He put his head down and half raised his wings. He glared with those yellow eyes of his, as only an Owl can glare. He looked surprisingly fierce for one so small. He snapped his bill warningly. He hissed. Altogether, he made a very fierce appearance.

Farmer Brown's Boy just laughed. "Stop your bluffing, Spooky," said he. "You know very well you can't scare an old friend like me. I'm just going to take you right out of here."

Farmer Brown's Boy moved his hand quickly. Spooky struck at it, but he didn't touch it. And then Farmer Brown's Boy had him, pinning his wings to his sides and holding him so that he could not use those big, sharp claws. Spooky was helpless. He was very, very angry. But after Farmer Brown's Boy stroked him a bit, he felt better. Of course, he wondered what Farmer Brown's Boy was going to do with him. I suspect you are wondering too. Well, for a few minutes, Farmer Brown's Boy wondered himself.

STILL FIGHTING FOR STAY OF EXECUTION OF MRS. LEBOUEF

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 29—(AP)—After complete failure of efforts at Washington today to obtain from supreme court justices a stay of execution Friday of Dr. Thomas E. Dreher, and Mrs. Ada Bonner Lebouef, attorneys tonight planned tomorrow to seek a writ of habeas corpus in federal court here.

Five justices were asked by Walter B. Hamlin, attorney for the pair condemned for the murder 18 months ago of the woman's husband, for a stay to permit him to file a petition for a review by the supreme court of the action of the Louisiana courts in denying a lunacy commission to determine whether the woman and the physician are sane. All refused.

Defense attorneys tomorrow plan to seek a writ from Judge Wayne G. Borah of the United States district court on the allegation that two of the jurors admitted they had been intimated and that the condemned pair had not received a fair trial.

If Judge Borah declines to act the attorneys are expected to carry the fight for a new trial to the United States circuit court of appeals and if necessary, again to the United States supreme court.

This move is expected to be the last hope.

Miss Anna Nicholas

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 29—(AP)—Miss Anna Nicholas, literary editor of the Indianapolis Star, died here this afternoon, after a recent operation. She was 79 years old.

For more than half a century Miss Nicholas was a prominent figure in literary and newspaper circles of Indiana. She was credited with being the guiding genius to many Hoosier authors and writers who achieved nation-wide fame. It was Miss Nicholas who gave the late James Whitcomb Riley the inspiration he needed when, as a timid youth from Greenfield, he came to her desk with his earliest poems.

"She was the most steadfast friend Indiana literary aspirants ever had," said Meredith Nicholson, Hoosier author.

Today's worry is often the result of yesterday's blunder.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE OF FISHERMAN AND GUIDE

PETOSKEY, Mich., Jan. 29—(AP)—Crawling and climbing over miles of jagged ice as best his frozen feet and hands would permit, Lewis Sweet, fisherman and guide, given up for lost after he was carried out into Lake Michigan on an ice floe a week ago, came ashore at Cross Village, north of here today.

He had been carried on the floe about 25 miles, he estimated, before a change in the wind sent the huge ice cake back and piled it up on Skilagalee island, some 8 or 10 miles from here. On the island Sweet found shelter and food in a lighthouse, and remained there until early today when he began his perilous journey to shore.

Sweet was crawling up the icy bluff at the edge of Cross Village, when found by Henry Sullivan and taken to the latter's home. With the village snow bound except for dog team communication, preparations were made to take him on a sled to Levering 30 miles north of here, and thence by motor to this city for hospital treatment.

Sweet was fishing with two other men last Tuesday when a blizzard struck the lake. His companions reached shore safely but before Sweet could get to the edge of the ice floe, some 200 feet of open water separated him from shore. The wind carried the ice field, said to have been about 10 miles square, out into Lake Michigan. Sweet's small shack was crushed by the storm and he was left without shelter. Once, he said, he had run to avoid being crushed by a 40 foot cake of ice the gale hurled into the air and crashed down onto his floe. It was during Tuesday night, he said, that his hands and feet were frozen.

If a man is satisfied with one meal a day he can afford to write poetry.

2-YEAR-OLD BOY FELL DOWN HOT AIR PIPE

HULL, Mass., Jan. 29—(AP)—A two-year-old boy, Owen Murphy, fell down a hot air pipe leading to the furnace in his home today and hung suspended two feet from the burning coals until firemen extricated him. Tonight he was reported to be recovering rapidly from burns.

Owen, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice T. Murphy of this town, lifted a grating and fell into the pipe while playing on the floor. He held on to a curve in the pipe just before reaching the furnace until his cries brought his mother, who struck a broom handle within his reach. Firemen were called and tore the piping apart to reach the child.

FIRST TRIAL OF ANTI-TOXIN PROVED SUCCESSFUL

CHICAGO, Jan. 29—(AP)—City health department physicians reported today that for the first time since its discovery several years ago an anti-toxin, for botulism, a type of food poisoning, proved successful in treatment of Mario Setanni, who became ill last Thursday, after eating imported prepared onions.

They expressed belief that tardiness of injection has been responsible for failure of the serum heretofore.

Pete Setani, Mario's brother, died of the poisoning Friday night. He was stricken several hours before Mario.

Guarding Against the FLU

Any cold can mean the flu; the surest way to avoid flu is to avoid colds.

To avoid coming down with a cold make prompt use of Bayer Aspirin.

Don't wait to see if that first sneeze or cough is going to be a cold. Take Bayer Aspirin at the first sign of any cold, and be safe.

And whatever you do, don't neglect a sore throat these days; gargle with Bayer Aspirin and remove the infection.

Guard against the flu by guarding against the colds that make you susceptible to the flu germs that lurk in crowded and poorly ventilated places.

POETRY

Miss Nancy's Gown

In days when George the Third was King
And ruled the whole Dominion,
And Law and Fashion owned the sway
Of Parliament's opinion,
A good ship brought across the sea,—
A treasure fair and fine,—
Miss Nancy's gown from London Town,
The latest Court design!

The pleated waist from neck to heel
Scarce measured half a span;
The sleeves, balloonlike, at the top
Could hold her feather fan;
The narrow skirt with bias gore,
Revealed an ankle neat,
Whene'er she put her dainty foot
From carriage step to street!

By skilful hands this wonderful gown
Of costliest stuff was made.
Cocoons of France on Antwerp looms
Wrought to embossed brocade.
Where roses red and violets
In blooming beauty grew,
As if young May were there alway,
And June and April, too!

And from this bower of delight
Miss Nancy reigned a Queen,
Nor one disloyal heart rebelled
In all her wide demesne.
The noble House of Burgesses
Forgot its fierce debate
O'er rights of Crown, when Nancy's gown
Appeared in Halls of State!

Through pound reel, or measured tread
Of stately minuet,
Like fairy vision shown the bloom
Of rose and violet.
As, hand in hand with Washington,
The hero of the day,
The smiling face and nymphlike grace
Of Nancy led the way!

A century, since that gay time
The merry dance was trod,
Has passed, and Nancy long has slept
Beneath the churchyard sod!
Yet on the brocade velvet gown
The rose and violet
Are blooming bright as on the night
She danced the minuet!

—Estella Cooke.

January Thaw

The trees are poised on tiptoe lest they wake
The tender roots asleep beneath the snow,
As silent January spins her sheet
Of spotless linen over everything.
She throws her mantle over all the hills,
Weaves laces in the hair of forest trees,
Crochets a fairy fringe along the streams
And quilts the roof of house, and barn and shed;
Beribbons wires that stretch from pole to pole,
And makes a tapestry of every bush.
Her work she studs with gems of living fire.
Then, over all, festoons a saffron sky,
The sparkling sheet of January snow
Makes earth alike to Paradise on high,
And one warm sun can vanish it away.
Such purity—so frail—I wonder why?

—Roger L. Waring, in the Columbus Dispatch.

Little Billie Bilgewater was attending his first grand opera. The dramatic soprano and the motions of the orchestra conductor held the attention of the audience. "Papa, what's that man shaking his stick at her for?" Billie asked.

"Sh-h! He's not shaking his stick at her."

"Then," said Billie, still unconvinced, "what's she hollerin' for?"—The Pathfinder.

Twelve-year-old Edward Walsh of Brooklyn stumbled and fell through the glass cover of an airshaft and dropped five stories to the cellar without injury. His playmates rushed to the top of the airshaft and a council of war was held. They raided all the neighborhood yards for clothesline, tied the pieces together, lowered it and hauled Walsh up three stories to a projection, where he made a safe landing. Then a doctor who examined him found only a tiny laceration over his right eye and a slight cut on his right shoulder.

A taxi driver tells of waiting half an hour in Pittsburgh for a woman customer to come back and pay the $3.65 she owed him. The next day he happened to see her standing on the sidewalk and he demanded his money or he would have her arrested. She turned pale, stripped a ring from her finger and told him to hold it until she could bring him the money. Congratulating himself upon collecting a bad debt, he took the ring. Later he thought he would have it appraised and asked a jeweler if that thing was worth $3.65. "It might be," said the expert, "if you had a bushel just like it."

Cascara is Your Doctor's Choice

When physicians pronounce cascara the PERFECT laxative — why experiment with things that lash the system into action? Cascara, you know, is the bark of a tree. A natural and normal stimulus to the bowels.

The Indians, who used to chew this bark, had no word in their language that meant "constipation"!

Perfect regularity is possible today, and to all of us. We have cascara in ideal form; the very delightful-tasting candy Cascaret gives us pure cascara. It has helped at least a million people to habitual regularity. Millions of others, unfortunately, have stuck to stronger things and acquired only the laxative habit.

CASCARETS

Your first Cascaret will demonstrate how THOROUGH this gentle laxative is, after all. Your next surprise will be the length of time before you need another. Eventually, you'll see that cascarizing tends to make the bowels move thereafter of their own accord!

A modern drugstore must stock many laxatives, but for your own good the druggist would rather have you ask for the inexpensive little box of Cascarets than anything else.

IN MEMORIAM

In Loving Remembrance Of
WILLIAM C. HUGHES
Late of Hampton, Who Passed Away
Jan. 30, 1928

Gone but Not Forgotten:
A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled.
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.

In loving remembrance, from HIS WIFE and SEVEN SONS and DAUGHTERS.

January 30, 1929
IN MEMORIAM

Just one year ago today
Our loved one passed away.
She leaves a vacant chair and empty place.
Since we last looked on her dear
face.
Many a heartache and silent tear
We've shed, through the long and lonely year.
May we place our faith in God on high.
And pray there, He'll guide us bye and bye.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

The first half program of the Palace the first half program of the Palace theatre's Joy week and that title is very well used. It has been a complete joy to every one who has been fortunate to see the show which opened on Monday.

The 30 local girls who made their first stage appearance in the "Norwich Follies" have now reached the point of perfection in their performance that means a corking show for the rest of their stay at the Palace. The "Follies" is crammed full of solid entertainment for every moment of the 45 minutes it is on the stage and due to the great number of specialties the management has been compelled to eliminate all encores.

Raymond and Gibbs in a comedy hokum act make a perfect start to the comedy and song part of the show. Macon and Company started the vaudeville off with a bang.

The feature picture is Virginia Valli and Ian Keith in "The Street of Illusion," a corking fine photodrama which holds you in suspense from start to finish.

Tonight, in addition to the big vaudeville and picture show the usual China Nite takes place. None of the ladies will want to miss adding to their dinner set of this fine china.

Starting tomorrow for three days the second half of the Joy Week show will make its initial bow. The Norwich Follies will continue with a complete change of numbers, costumes and scenery and as great as they were the first half, they actually outdo themselves in this second edition of the Follies.

The other acts of vaudeville will be Margie and Chick, a boy and girl who know how to hand out comedy with real laughs and plenty of fun. Stuebberfield and Co. offer a new and genuine novel aerial act of the kind rarely seen on the vaudeville stages of today. The stage part of the program will run close to 70 minutes and every one of these minutes holds good entertainment.

The feature picture for the last half is "Restless Youth," a new and daring photoplay with Marceline Day and Ralph Forbes.

A theme paramount in the world today—of vital interest to every man, woman and child—the eternal struggle between the younger and older generations is to be presented at the Palace theatre on Thursday, Friday and Saturday when Restless Youth, a Columbia production is shown.

Breed Theatre

Heading the double bill at the Breed theatre today and Thursday Stocks and Blonds.

There is plenty of gay movement on a flashy background, some delightful comedy, and a boy and girl love story that grips. Unlike many pictures, the title means something. The story deals with the gold-digging tactics of the entertainers at the night club. Butter and egg men, out-of-town buyers, suit and cloakers, brokers—they are all the same to the girls. They have systems suitable to each. In the case of the brokers they listen for tips and do their stock trading through the boy sweet heart of one of the girls. It is novel and exciting. Scenes shift rapidly from the night club to the brokers' office, to the homes of the participants, and to the stock exchange.

The second feature Heart Trouble in which Harry Langdon has a strong supporting cast in his new First National comedy. Doris Dawson is his leading woman, Lionel Belmore, Mark Hamilton, Nelson McDowell, Madge Hunt, Joseph Gerrard and Jack Pratt have important roles.

SOCIAL ENGINEERING COMING PROFESSION

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP)—The beginnings of a new profession which he calls "social engineering" are foreseen by Dr. George A. Lundberg of the department of sociology of the University of Pittsburgh.

"They will be," he says, "persons of special training who will do for the community in increasing numbers social work comparable to that now performed by the public health officer, city architect and city engineer. The tendency is illustrated in the city manager form of government.

"The social engineers will be appointed instead of elected, and may in time occupy practically the whole field of public service. There is a wide field for experts in legislation, and in nearly all the new elective offices in county and city administration. Few of these officials at present are selected on account of their training and qualifications for the duties of their respective offices."

Has 7,000 Bookplates.

PARIS OWNER, LAND POOR, OWES NEW LONDON $15,000 BACK TAXES

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 29—The city is confronted with a problem in the collecting of the tax assessment against property on Ocean avenue, owned by Thorton Woodbury, of Paris. There is due the city from back taxes and interest $15,000, which Woodbury claims he is unable to pay because the income derived from the property is not sufficient to permit him to make payment. Mr. Woodbury, under the will of Helen Bragaw Smith has a life use of the property. Upon the death of Mr. Woodbury, the property is bequeathed to the city for park purposes, the park to be known as "Helen" park. However, it is not known whether the city desires to increase its parks and for that matter no steps have been taken to decide whether the city desires to assume ownership of the property in the meantime. Tax Collector Hibbard K. Alexander has ordered the property sold March 1. Between now and the time of the date of the sale, it is presumed, City Manager Holt will have ascertained an expression through vote of the council whether the city shall acquire the property as provided for by the Smith will.

Coal dealers have been kept busy the past two days, for since freezing weather set in Saturday there has been a constant demand for fresh supplies of coal by office buildings, hotels, mills and public buildings, to say nothing of the urgent request of small consumers for a replenishing of bins. So great has the demand for fuel been that the orders could not be filled the same day that they were received.

A slight improvement was noted today in the condition of Robert C. Burchard, Montville mill owner, who was injured in an automobile accident a week ago when the machine in which he was riding collided with a motionless car. He has been a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital since the accident.

CASH AND CIGARETTES TAKEN FROM LAZEROW'S

The grocery store of Jacob Lazerow, 67 Blackhall street, was entered by thieves last night, evidently by the juvenile type of crooks. Clues have been obtained by the police and one or more arrests will probably be made during the next two or three days. Entrance to the store was gained by the smashing of a plate glass window of that part of the store which is used for storage purposes. The breaking of the glass enabled the crooks to enter and to walk to the main store where they stole $30 in specie and a quantity of cigarettes. The break was discovered this morning when Lazerow opened the store for business. Then he reported his loss at police headquarters.

LENA SPINNATO DIES FOLLOWING CELLULOID BLAZE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 29—Another death followed today the fire at the home of Mrs. Rosie Spinnato, 131 Jefferson avenue, which occurred last night. This makes a total of three deaths resulting from the blaze, which is now believed to have been started by a son of Mrs. Spinnato dropping a match in a quantity of celluloid, from the intense heat igniting the inflammable material, which was given last night as the cause of the blaze. The death today was that of Lena Spinnato, from third degree burns, at 11:35 o'clock, at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, while Mrs. Spinnato's three sons, Victor, Orazio and John, are in a serious condition, but hope for their recovery is held out by the physicians. Mrs. Joseph Baudi, 47, of 123 Jefferson avenue, is a patient at the Lena hospital, for she was among the workers in the Spinnato kitchen when the fire broke out. She suffered serious burns and her recovery is considered a matter of doubt. The funeral of Mrs. Lena DiMarco, mother of Mrs. Spinnato, and the latter's son, Joseph, 5, together with that of Lena, 15, is to take place at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, when a triple service for the unfortunate woman and children will be held. Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman has concluded his investigation as to the cause of the three deaths and has rendered a finding of accidental death in each instance.

DOCTORS PLAN TO STUDY AIR PRESSURE EFFECTS

BOSTON (AP)—A huge steel pressure tank is being installed at the Harvard Medical school in which will be studied the effects of high and low pressures upon persons suffering from pneumonia and heart disease.

The tank, 35 feet long and eight feet in diameter, was constructed especially for the medical school. Pressures can be varied from 60 pounds to the square inch down to a minimum as low as that encountered by an aviator at a height of five miles. Adjustments will enable the scientists to regulate humidity and temperature and to introduce gases mixed in any desired degree.

Besides studies designed to reveal the curative effects of varying pressures, experiments will be made on the effects of pressures on men such as caisson workers. It is hoped that the study will reveal whether tunnel workers and others laboring under peculiar pressure conditions undergo severe physical punishment.

Clarence Badger and Clara Bow,
Paramount director and star, say
"Smooth skin is a girl's greatest charm"

CLARA BOW, Paramount's popular star, in the bathroom which is one of the most luxurious built in Hollywood.

"A beautifully smooth skin means even more to a star than to other women. Keeping one's skin flawless for the all-seeing eye of the camera means constant care. Lux Toilet Soap is a great help in keeping the skin in perfect condition."
Clara Bow

New incandescent "sun-spot" lights—film even more highly sensitized than before! That is why the beloved screen stars must now keep their skin lovelier and smoother than ever for the all-revealing close-up.

THELMA TODD, First National star, says: "A star's skin must be what we call 'studio skin,' to be lovely in the close-up. It requires constant protection, especially in hard water. Lux Toilet Soap's gentle lather is lovely for my skin."

The next time you see MERNA KENNEDY, sparkling little star with Universal, notice how delightfully smooth Lux Toilet Soap keeps her skin. "A star must guard with so much care the perfection of her skin! Lux Toilet Soap keeps my skin so smooth," she says.

9 out of 10 Screen Stars guard their skin this way

NO MATTER where you see it—on the street, at dinner, on the screen—your heart beats a little faster in response to a faultlessly lovely skin.

"The most important thing in making a girl lovely is an exquisite smooth skin," says Clarence Badger, Paramount—and sums up the opinion of 39 leading directors in Hollywood.

"Because beautiful skin charms people so, it is a first essential for screen stardom," he continues. "Velvety skin is the treasured possession of every screen star."

As Clara Bow says, "A beautifully smooth skin means even more to a screen star than to other women."

Of the 451 important actresses in Hollywood, including all stars, 442 (98%) keep their skin smooth and lovely with Lux Toilet Soap. Little wonder, then, that all the great film studios have made this white fragrant soap the official soap in their dressing rooms.

When you see your favorite star in the close-up, remember that nine out of ten screen stars use Lux Toilet Soap for smooth skin.

NEW LONDON PASTOR ADRESSES MEMBERS OF ARCANUM CLUB

"The First Individual in History—"Akhnaton," was the subject of a highly interesting talk given Tuesday evening by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, D. D., pastor of the Second Congregational church of New London, at the club night supper of the Arcanum club. Nearly 100 members of the club listened attentively while Dr. Lee told of his visit to the Valley of the Tombs in Egypt and the impressions he gained on his trip through the and of the world's earliest civilization.

In opening his talk Dr. Lee said that the world was slow to recognize its great men and it was generations later that the worth of the men was really appreciated. He spoke of Arnold, of Rugby, who really revolutionized education in England by saying that a man should first be a Christian, second a gentleman and third a scholar. Previous to this time the English had been educating their young men in the reverse order. Dr. Lee also called attention to Italy's first schoolmaster, who was the first to inaugurate athletics with scholarship, this being five centuries ago.

In my opinion, said Dr. Lee, the first individual in history who did not receive suitable recognition was Akhnaton, the father-in-law of Tutenkhamen, King Tut. Akhnaton, who was Amenophis Fourth, until he changed his name, was perhaps the most remarkable of the long line of Pharaohs. He was the son of Queen Tiy or Taia, a daughter of a Mesopotamia king. He was sickly and died at the age of about 28 after a remarkable life. His thrusting aside of all the deities of Egypt and mythology of Heliopolis to devote himself to the cult of the visible sun-rays marked him as a religious fanatic.

He abandoned Thebes, the magnificent city of Ammon, to build a new capital at El Amarna in the plain of Hermopolis at the edge of the desert, where he devoted his life to peace and domestic life. He died about 1350 B. C. and Tutenkhamen changed to the old regime. In fact, so great was the hatred against Akhnaton that his tomb and body were defiled and another put in its place. It was only in 1906 that Theodore Davis during excavations found the body of Akhnaton in the tomb of Queen Tiy, his mother, his mother's body having been removed to another tomb.

In summing up the character of Akhnaton, Dr. Lee said:

"Akhnaton evolved a menothualic religion second only to Christianity in purity of lore. He was the first human being to understand rightly the meaning of divinity. When the world reverberated with the noise of war, he preached the first known doctrine of peace; when the glory of martial pomp swelled the hearts of his subjects he turned his back upon heroics. He was the first man to preach simplicity, honesty, frankness and sincerity; and he preached it from a throne.

"He was the first Pharaoh to be a humanitarian; the first man in whose heart was no trace of barbarism. He has given us an example, 3,000 years ago, which might be followed at the present day; an example of what a husband and a father should be, of what an honest man should do, of what a preacher should teach, of what an artist should strive for, of what a philosopher should think. Like other great teachers he sacrificed all to his principles. There can be no question that his ideals will hold good 'til the swan turns black, and the crow turns white, till the hills rise up to travel, and the oceans rush into the rivers'."

Dr. Lee was given a hearty vote of appreciation, at the conclusion of his talk.

Tyler D. Guy, president of the club, introduced Dr. Lee in a very able talk. James L. Case was song leader during the delicious oyster chowder supper. The supper was prepared by John Wolfe and served by the supper committee, Wilbur S. Williams, John W. Durnam and Julian L. Williams. Cyril Fitch officiated at the piano for the singing.

After the supper the firemen of the central station were invited to partake of the chowder which was heartily relished. President Guy also sent a quantity of the chowder to the night staff of The Bulletin.

Michelin Tire Co. vs. Sam's Filling Station, foreclosure of defense; Mitchell Wing Co. vs. Robert J. Simpson, disclosure of defense or judgment; Outlook Co. vs. Rinaldo Cecarelli, judgment by default; Star Garage against Edward Griswold, disclosure of defense or judgment.

L. H. Martin Speaks at Preston City

Notwithstanding icy roads and much sickness, quite an audience gathered last Sunday in the Preston City Baptist church and heard Delwyn H. Martin deliver a very helpful sermon on World Betterment. He also sang a solo which was enjoyed by all. Mr. Martin is a licensed preacher, 22 years old, and has chosen the ministry for his life work.

BACKUS HOSPITAL AUXILIARY GAINS 33 MEMBERS IN JAN.

During the past month the Woman's Auxiliary of the W. W. Backus hospitalpital, although not quite as festive in its work, as it was during the Christmas season, has nevertheless, been quietly and steadily "carrying on" in all its various departments.

The membership committee, Mrs. Aurin E. Payson, chairman, report a gain of 33 members during the month of January, bringing the total membership to 1227. In all, $1,310.25 has been received.

The tedium of convalescence among the patients is much lessened by the perusal of the new worth-while magazines, brought to the wards regularly, every Friday, through the agency of the faithful literary committee of which Mrs. John Rogers is chairman.

From Mrs. Charles A. Saxton comes the ever recurring appeal for old linen and cotton. Unless there is a constant effort to replenish the shelves, a shortage is likely to follow, which need not occur if we make—right now—the opportunity to hunt up some of this old linen instead of waiting until house-cleaning time.

The production committee, Miss Mary H. Paddock, chairman and Miss Margaret Sayles, sub-chairman, are making regularly the dressings and bandages, gauze pads and surgical handkerchiefs, which after sterilization are constantly in use in hospital work.

The work of this committee is a great asset to the nurses, who thereby have more time for other tasks.

On New Year's day, the holiday committee, Mrs. Roy D. Judd, chairman, adorned each tray with a New Year's card, candy, and a favor of some kind.

The children's trays bore a snapper cap, a card and a gift. These were purchasable through the generosity of the Hebrew Ladies' Auxiliary to the hospital, who sent $10 for that purpose, which donation was much appreciated. Among the gifts directly from the Woman's auxiliary were books for the nurses' library, magazines, New Year favors, a check for $30 for the Christmas turkeys, and last, but by no means least, a Quartz light. This is a valuable addition to the hospital equipment to be used on cases benefited by sunshine. It is especially effective in cases of rickets and malnutrition in children, and for rheumatism and skin lesions in adults. Many patients have been benefited in the month in which it has been in use.

The Girls' Friendly society of Grace Episcopal church of Yantic have sent 12 night gowns for infants, and a scrapbook and the "Home Service" of Park Congregational church has done sewing.

The trays for Christmas each were given a spray of holly.

Magazines, old linen and cream jars also have been contributed.

The outstanding activity of the School of Nursing during January was the capping party given by the preliminary class. Having completed their preparatory course these students were admitted into the school on Jan. 11 as regular students. This class gave as their entertainment a pageant entitled The Progress of Nursing. The pictured theme showed the development of nursing from the first century through the twentieth. The entire class took part in the pageant at the close of which each student of the class of 1929 received her cap. Following the ceremony dancing was enjoyed by all. The students receiving caps were Evelyn Eastland, Alice Abrahamson, Marjorie Winsor, Lillian Wallace, Florence Pearl, Helen Green, Julia Green, Mona Holland and Ruth Ryan.

Among the donors for the past month were Mrs. Otto F. Ernst, Mrs. E. R. Bass, Mrs. Clinton Lane, Mrs. D. N. Gordon, Mrs. E. D. Fuller, Mrs. Sands W. Troup of Lebanon; Mrs. E. J. Graham, Mrs. Skinner, Dr. W. T. Browne, and Mrs. Jerry Lamphere of Horton's Cove.

The Woman's auxiliary is indeed doing a splendid work for the hospital, not only by helping to supply some of its needs, but also by acquainting Norwich women with its workings.

It is proving to be a beneficient agency for opportunity to "lend a hand" in brightening the days for the invalid inmates of the hospital, as well as for those ministering to them.

PLACED FLAGS OF NATIONS ON C. E. BIRTHDAY LOAF

The Junior Intermediate C. E. society of the First Congregational church held an interesting meeting in the chapel Sunday afternoon, in observance of the birthday of Christian Endeavor, which falls on Feb. 2. The senior leader, Miss Jessie E. Daniel Poling, president of the International society, and Miss Mary McClure, a C. E. missionary in China. In an artificial birthday loaf, members of the society placed the flags of 23 nations, each repeating a few lines about the country which the flag represented. In all, over 80 countries have Christian Endeavor societies. The Christian flag was the last one placed, when the society pledged allegiance to cover the remaining countries not mentioned, by saluting the flag. Beatrice Riccetti was leader of the meeting. Miss Eleanor Smith accompanied at the piano for the singing, which included Father Endeavor Clark's favorite hymn, "This is My Father's World." Clippings were read about different countries. At the meeting of the Junior Intermediate society next Sunday, Feb. 3, Miss Bessie Grant is to have charge.

BINGHAM SEES POLITICAL TRICKERY IN BIG DRY FUND

Senator Bingham is Outspoken in Opposition to the Proposed Appropriation of $24,000,000 For Prohibition Enforcement—Believes the Proposal is a Move on the Part of Southern Democrats to Win Back to Their Fold Such States as Deserted That Party in the Recent Presidential Election—In the House Floor Leader Tilson and all the Connecticut Delegations Are Against the Measure.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30—(AP)—Senator Bingham, in answer to questions, today talked forcefully against the proposed appropriation of $24,000,000 for prohibition enforcement. He discussed it from a point of view that has not been in the foreground thus far. After asserting he was convinced there was little or no sincerity in its standing in congress, Mr. Bingham went on to say, that while he believed it a political challenge to the republican party, with the hope and expectation of democrats to put the party into a hole, as opposing the enforcement of the constitution, he would go a step farther. He stated his conviction that it is a move on the part of southern democrats to win back to their fold such states as deserted that party when the wet and dry issue, and Gov. Smith's stand for the former, drove many southern democrats into republican ranks.

"To my mind," said Senator Bingham, "it is a drive to bring the south together again by putting up a dry southern candidate for the presidency in 1932, with Georgia playing the leading role. It was Senator Harris of Georgia who introduced the amendment; and it is Senator George of Georgia who is ambitious to be the democratic candidate for the presidency in 1932. It is a southern repudiation of the Smith candidacy, far more than an attempt to enforce the dry law.

Senator Bingham pointed out that the democrats have just tried a wet northern candidate and failed utterly, besides losing a grip on southern states; now they want to try a dry southern candidate and see if they can get the deserters back into the fold.

Mr. Bingham called attention to the fact that when the Harris amendment came to a vote in the senate only three those were men who went down to democrats voted against it, and two of defeat in November. Wet democrats supported it because they claimed it had no force; dry democrats said it would perfect enforcement, so they would vote for it. But they hung together whatever reasons they gave, and so the vote was crystalized even though the sentiments were far apart.

Mr. Bingham feels the democrats are merely waiting for a chance to accuse republicans of bad faith if they defeat it of extravagance and failure to reduce the burdens of taxation if they pass it and if the president vetoes it they will pile blame on the administration for failure of the enforcement act to enforce.

Senator Bingham said "we have never failed to provide sufficient funds for enforcement and we never shall fail to do so." But he is strongly opposed to making the constitution or the enforcement act a political football to be kicked alike by wet and dry democrats in order to bring cheer and comfort to the now disrupted, but former "solid south."

The house fight against the amendment is led by Flor Leader John Q. Tilson and all the Connecticut delegation are against the measure.

HOUSE TO DEBATE PROPOSED $24,000,000 DRY FUND TODAY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30—(AP)—While the $24,000,000 prohibition proposal has drawn a new frown from Secretary Mellon, the house prepared today to consider the question tomorrow.

A parliamentary tangle that developed yesterday during initial discussion of the subject was smoothed out by the the house rules committee which decided to submit a resolution to send the deficiency bill to conference with the senate for agreement over differences. The proposed appropriation is embodied in this bill and the resolution to send the measure to conference is subject to a vote by the house.

Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the majority leader, said today that when the resolution was called up tomorrow he would be willing for the house to debate the question more fully than is customary. Supporters of the $24,000,000 expenditure have been insisting on a direct vote on the proposal and house leaders believe the vote on the resolution will satisfy this demand.

While the rules committee was working on the problem, a letter from Secretary Mellon to Chairman Anthony of the house appropriations committee was made public reiterated the treasury head proposal in this communication that he regards, putting $24,000,000 in the hands of the president for prohibition enforcement as one which would not accomplish the purpose desired.

The secretary said that under the terms of the senate amendment, the fund would not be available for any purpose except that of increasing the personnel of the bureau of prohibition and the department of justice, and added that the money could not be used for an educational campaign or for other incidental expenses.

Some of the members confidently predicted adoption of the rules committee resolution to send the measure to conference. Republicans generally, wet and dry alike, were supporting the move, while the democrats, bolstered by a few scattering republicans, were aligning themselves in opposition.

Doubt was expressed by some of the democrats, however, that they would be able to command a sufficient number of votes to beat the resolution. If they should defeat, the deficiency bill automatically would be sent back to the appropriations committee which would later bring it to the floor for debate.

This, the democrats say, would give full and free discussion of the measure on the floor with a separate vote on each of the amendments. This is what they have been contending for.

TO STOP ALLEGED LEAK OF MEXICAN IMMIGRANTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 0—(AP)—The house immigration committee began a study today of ways by which it might stop the alleged leak of Mexican immigrants into the United States through holes in the border regulations.

With the Box bill to apply the quota restrictions to immigration from western hemisphere nations on its schedule for discussion, the committee, meeting behind closed doors, diverged into a general study of regulations applied to the Mexican border.

After the session it was indicated that the Box measure might be sidetracked permanently and an effort made to tighten up immigration from Mexico by application of educational and physical tests.

Provision exists in the present law for the application of such tests, but it was explained that the committee might work toward some additional tightening of the barrier or might approve a measure to supply more money for the enforcement of the existing regulations.

MAIL PLANE ABANDONED IN BLINDING SNOW STORM

MOLINE, Ills., Jan. 30—(AP)—J. B. Story, National Air Transport mail pilot, abandoned his airplane when his motor developed trouble during a blinding snow storm tonight and with a bag of mail, dropped with his parachute to a safe landing near Davenport, Iowa.

After Story had taken the bag of mail to Davenport where he turned it over to post office authorities, he returned to the farm and recovered his parachute. Search was instituted for the wreckage of the plane but several hours later no trace of it had been found. Farmers in the vicinity said they had heard no crash.

Story by reason of his jump and safe landing by parachute becomes a member of the Caterpillar club, composed of pilots who have saved their lives by parachute drops from disabled planes.

The pilot has been engaged in commercial aviation for more than four years.

BODY OF SLAIN MAN THAT OF BOSTON PUGILIST

REVERE, Mass., Jan. 30—(AP)—The body of a man found slain with three bullet wounds in his head, in a barn here, was identified today as that of Anthony Chiampana, 19, pugilist, of the North End district, of Boston. Identification was made by Boston police.

Chiampana's body was found this morning by farm employes of William A. Muller, owner of the barn. Indications were that the man had been slain elsewhere.

BUDAPEST, Jan. 30—(AP)—Hungary is covered with from six to nine feet of snow and traffic was entirely suspended on most railroads. Both the Riviera-Budapest express and the Budapest-Trieste express are stalled. Wolves were crossing the frozen Drava river from Jugoslavia.

WARSAW, Jan. 30—(AP)—The entire railway system of Poland has been seriously disorganized by continual heavy snowfalls. In some places trains have been held up for three days and on many lines traffic was at a standstill. An army of 40,000 men was employed in clearing the drifts from the rails.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE, England, Jan. 30—(AP)—The Prince of Wales yesterday in his personal investigations of the want in the mining regions of the north of England, was one of the most cheerless days he has ever devoted to his country's affairs not even excepting his service at the front in the great war.

1928-1929 AMERICAN WINTER UNUSUALLY VARIABLE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30—(AP)—The American winter for 1928-1929, the weather bureau finds, has been like the African leopard—very spotty—with the last week showing the extremes with temperatures in Montana of 38 below zero, and in Georgia 75 degrees warmer.

The bureau said today that a check of records showed that the early part of the winter generally was mild east of the Rocky Mountains with the temperature for December from the interior valleys northward averaging from three to ten degrees above normal. At the same time it was unusually cold in Rocky Mountain sections.

Soon after the beginning of the new year, however, the bureau said, there was a reaction to severe winter conditions between the Rockies and the Appalachian Mountains with much cold and stormy weather and this condition continued more or less until the end of the month, culminating during the last week in very severe weather from the western Lake regions and upper Mississippi valley westward to the Rocky Mountains. The average temperature for the week in North Dakota and Montana was between 14 and 19 degrees below zero with extremes from 26 to 38 below.

On the other hand, the bureau said, January has been unusually mild in the Middle Atlantic states and Southwestern states where the warmth caused some apprehension that there would be premature swelling of fruit buds. Some early varieties had begun to bloom along the east Gulf coast.

Snowfall in December generally was less than normal over the central and eastern portions of the country. In January, however, snowfall was heavy in many places with all previous records broken in general northern states.

SOLO ENDURANCE FLIGHT ENDS IN FORCED LANDING

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., Jan. 30—(AP)—A forced landing that nearly brought him down in the gale-swept waters of Long Island sound, today halted an effort by Martin Jensen, trans-Pacific pilot, to establish a new solo endurance flight record.

After a thrilling take-off in which he missed by inches telephone wires at Curtiss field, Jensen had cruised for two hours over Long Island and the sound when smoke began to stream from his motor as his cabin monoplane was about a half mile from land. Dumping his gasoline, the flyer headed toward shore and touched his wheels on a narrow strip of beach near Northport, while his tail-skid stirred up a wake in the water. Jensen was not hurt and the plane was undamaged in the landing.

The three-ton plane traveled the full length of the Roosevelt field trans-Atlantic runway before it took the air and disappeared over the sound, and although Jensen had seemed to gain altitude, he was but 300 feet high when his motor went bad. Pending a detailed examination of the motor, Jensen said he believed a sticking valve had put out of commission a group of three of his nine cylinders.

MRS. ESTHER E. WILSON TO UNDERGO SANITY TEST

NEW YORK, Jan. 30—(AP)—Mrs. Esther Evans Wilson, jungle huntress and Washington society matron, was taken from prison to Bellevue hospital today to determine if she was mentally unbalanced when she shot her husband in his Fifth avenue law office last spring. Mrs. Wilson was convicted of second degree assault last week and was to have been sentenced this week by General Sessions Judge Knott but he became ill and sentence had to be postponed.

As he is to be in bed for at least two weeks Judge Knott decided today to commit Mrs. Wilson to the psychopathic ward at Bellevue to find out if she is mentally affected, as she was said to be in many letters received by the judge from persons acquainted with her since the conviction.

Mrs. Wilson shot her husband during an argument over money matters. He testified he believed the shooting accidental and she said she could not remember it at all. Wilson was in a hospital for two months.

LEADER OF SPANISH REVOLT PLACED UNDER ARREST

HENDAYE, Jan. 30—(AP)—The arrest of the Spanish Tory leader, Sanchez Guerra, today in Valencia appeared to mark a final phase of the "surprise revolt" which has gripped Spain for forty-eight hours.

The opinion seems fairly general that this was the most serious threat of disturbance in Spain since the advent of General Prima de Rivera to power. It resulted chiefly from action taken against the artillerymen in the Academy of Artillery at Segovia.

Some of these students had been expelled and others submitted to disciplinary measures. This caused widespread discontent among the artillerymen.

Events moved swiftly from early dawn when an official communique was issued until the arrest of Sanchez Guerra later in the day.

KELLOGG PACT RATIFIED BY RUMANIAN DEPUTIES

BUCHAREST, Jan. 30—(AP)—The Rumanian chamber of deputies today ratified the Kellogg pact for the renunciation of war by a unanimous vote.

AVIATRIX STRIVING FOR ENDURANCE RECORD

MITCHEL FIELD, N. Y., Jan. 30—(AP)—A seventeen-year-old aviatrix was circling the Long Island flying field tonight in an attempt to establish a new solo endurance flying record for women.

The girl, Elinor Smith, took off at 2.17 p. m., today with the hope of remaining in the air 14 hours and thereby beat the women's record held by Bobby Trout, who recently flew 12 hours and 11 minutes in California.

Miss Smith tonight was flying at a height of about 1,200 feet and keeping her well lighted plane within two miles of Mitchel field.

No messages had been dropped by the girl flyer. Her parents and a brother, who were present at the field, expressed confidence that Miss Smith would establish a new record.

POSSES SEARCHING FOR 10-YEAR-OLD NEWS GIRL

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Jan. 30—(AP)—Posses from two counties, augmented by half a hundred volunteers, today combed the sparsely settled community around Paxton, Indiana, in search of Edith May Dierdorf, 10-year-old West Terre Haute news girl who disappeared Sunday morning.

Yesterday the girl's newspaper bag, clotted with blood and hair was found on the Dixie Bee highway near he . It is the only tangible clew the authorities have in their theory that the child was lured into an automobile and later slain.

Clarence Brothers, a merchant, today identified a picture of Edith as that of a girl who came into his grocery Sunday noon, bought a package of chewing gum and then rode away with a man in an automobile.

HAUL MADE BY SAFE BLOWERS IN BERLIN

BERLIN, Jan. 30—(AP)—Several hundred thousand dollars worth of banknotes, securities and other valuables were obtained today by a gang of safe blowers who tunneled their way into the deposit vault of the west end branch of the Disconto Gesellschaft.

This institution is one of the five largest banks in Germany. The robbery showed the results of many weeks of painstaking labor. Investigation disclosed that the gang had entered the vault by squirming singly through a tunnel connecting with an airshaft.

U. S. STEAMER ALASKAN AGROUND ON CORAL REEFS

KEY WEST, Fla., Jan. 30—(AP)—The commandant of the Seventh Naval district here received a wireless early tonight from the American steamer Alaskan aground on coral reefs at Castle Island, Bahamas, that the freighter was in no immediate danger.

Cotton And Textile Industries Need Aid

Representatives Petition For Protection in New Tariff Bill to Be Presented in Congress.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30—(AP)—Cotton growers and manufacturers and textile workers joined hands today in petitioning the house ways and means committee for relief in the new tariff bill it will present to the special session of congress.

Representatives of the manufacturers and workers described unfavorable conditions in the New England textile industry as acute and asked higher duties on fine yarns and cloths. Representative Whittington, democrat, Mississippi, on behalf of growers, sought a duty range of from 7 to 24 cents a pound, according to length, on long staple cotton, now on the free list.

Robert Armory, Boston, representing the National Council of American Cotton Manufacturers, declared the situation was "particularly acute in the New England states where unemployment conditions are very serious," and that the higher duties requested would enable the manufacturers to compete in the fine goods markets.

He said imports of the finer yarns and cloths represented one-fourth of the domestic production and not only seriously affected domestic prices, but kept profits to little or nothing and tended to force down wages.

Appearing for the United Textile Workers of America, Thomas F. McMahon, of New York, pictured conditions among textile workers as deplorable, and asked higher duties on fine cloths as a means of getting relief through their pay envelopes.

He said the average wage of the workers was $16 a week as compared with $22 for all American wage earners and added if additional tariff protection were afforded the manufacturers they would have no excuse when the workers approached them for high wages.

Elimination of what he described as "cut throat competition" among the manufacturers, and abolition of night work for women and of child labor in the south, were other methods of relief suggested by McMahon, but members of the committee suggested this form of relief could not be provided in tariff legislation.

Urging relief through the tariff, but suggesting no duties, Mayor Landers of Lawrence, Massachusetts, said 4,500 persons were out of work in the cities of Lawrence, New Bedford, Lowell and Fall River; that others were working only from two to four days a week, and 2,300 houses and 400 stores were vacant due to an exodus of populations.

Higher tariffs on specially printed fabrics were requested by Albert R. White, North Dighton, Massachusetts, on behalf of the National Association of Finishers of Cotton. He said the increased rates would permit the steady employment of 30,000 hands in 51 plants. Last year's employment averaged only 65 per cent, he added.

HOOVER STARTS SECOND FISHING EXPEDITION

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 30—(AP)—President-elect Hoover set forth from Belle Isle late today on the second fishing expedition of his Florida vacation period, on which he hopes to realize a long-cherished ambition—to land a sail fish.

Traveling on a special train composed of his private car and a single Pullman coach, Mr. Hoover went to Long Key, 90 miles south, to spend the night on the yacht Amitie. His plan is to return here late Saturday night after spending three days on the fishing grounds on the edge of the Gulf stream and around the Florida keys. The storm which caused him to delay his departure for one day had subsided and the prospects were that he would have excellent weather while he is on the fishing grounds. There he will have as his pilot, Capt. James Thompson, one of the most noted fishermen in this section.

Besides Mrs. Hoover, the next president was accompanied south by two men who frequently have been his companions on fishing trips in Florida waters—Associate Justice Harlan F. Stone, of the U. S. supreme court, and Mark Sullivan, of New York.

BILLS IN LEGISLATURE MORE THAN LAST SESSION

HARTFORD, Jan. 30—(AP)—With the number of bills introduced in the senate so far, this session, exactly the same as the total on the corresponding date of the 1927 session of the legislature, the continuing rush of business in the house still kept the total amount of legislation introduced this session ahead of the mark for the corresponding date of two years ago. The house now has 440 bills before it, compared with 394 two years ago, and has 103 joint resolutions as against 75 two years ago. The senate has 256 bills, the same number as two years ago, and 28 joint resolutions, seven less than the number on the corresponding day in 1927.

$3,000 For Arrest Of Slayer Of Jackson

Reward Has Been Offered by the State of Connecticut—Autopsy Was Performed Last Night.

(By a Staff Correspondent)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 30—A reward of $3,000 was offered today by the state of Connecticut for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the murderer of County Detective William E. Jackson, who was found dead from an assassin's bullet at his home, 37 Quarry street, at 6:20 o'clock Tuesday evening. A petition for the filing of the reward was drawn up this afternoon by State's Atty. Howard C. Bradford, of Putnam, who was in conference with investigating officials at the office of Prosecuting Atty. Harry S. Gaucher here today. The notice of the reward, which is offered in recognition of Detective Jacksons' long and valuable services to the state as an officer of the law, will be issued by Lieut.-Gov. Ernest E. Rogers acting in the absence of Gov. John H. Trumbull.

As a result of an autopsy performed this evening by Dr. Harry N. Costello, medical examiner of Hartford, a finding of homicide from a bullet fired from a gun in the hands of an unknown assailant. The bullet, thought to be a .38-calibre, was found lodged in the brain. It had entered the head on the right side of the face and striking the jaw bone had coursed its way upward. It was found to be a soft-nosed bullet which had mushroomed after hitting the jaw bone. The fact that it had mushroomed made it uncertain as to the exact calibre. Medical Examiner Louis I. Dublin returned from New York shortly after the autopsy had been performed.

J. Henry Fitzgerald, of Hartford, firearms expert of the Colt Firearms Co., has been called into the case to study the bullet and determine the calibre and the type of gun from which it was fired. Mr. Fitzgerald, who is also a police inspector, has had 38 years' experience and has testified in 145 major cases, including the "Ice-Box Bandit case," and has been consulted in 1,500 others.

Every energy of the investigators was bent today in securing definite clues that might lead to the identity of the assailant. A rapid check-up is being made of persons or automobiles seen in the vicinity of the Jackson home within the past three or four days and a study made of the few obtainable written or verbal threats, of which many had been received from alleged criminals during the years Mr. Jackson was engaged in police work.

That the person responsible for the killing may have spent a few days in familiarizing himself with the routine of the Jackson family to determine what was the best time to strike the fatal blow is given some credit in statements by Mrs. Jackson and her daughter, Miss Juanita Jackson, that one of their watch dogs, "Major," had barked with unusual frequency during the past few evenings. This action on the part of the dog, which is generally kept tied to a dog house in the Jackson home, had aroused spoken comment on the part of family members. At the time of the shooting another dog had been tied in the kitchen but there was nothing to show that the animal had struggled for freedom. Another possibility is that the murderer may have left the vicinity of the kitchen by going through the dining and living rooms and out of the front door, this being based also on statements of Mrs. Jackson and her daughter. Mrs. Jackson is positive that she locked the front door, as was her habit, before leaving the house to drive downtown for her daughter, with whom she returned home from the latter's place of business. Miss Jackson asserted that after the discovery of the body and the summoning of Dr. F. M. Smith by telephone she noticed that the front door was unlocked upon the arrival of the physician. The more generally accepted belief, however, is that the assassin stood either just outside of or just within the kitchen door and for some reason took the precaution to close this door as he fled.

Playing a picturesque part in Detective Jackson's colorful career are several years in which he won a wide reputation as a boxer. He appeared frequently in amateur shows at the old armory on Center street and in several out-of-town arenas, always pleasing the fans with a good account of himself whether in defeat or victory. As a mere youth he went alone to New York city and found his way into boxing circles there, appearing in several fights. In the course of his travels he met Jack London, famous author, with whom he formed a lifelong friendship. It was probably his admiration of this author that led to a keen interest in literature. He was an ardent reader and a lover of poetry the latter a quality that not many of his acquaintances knew him to possess.

Jackson was one of the few Connec-

BILL IN SENATE WOULD CREATE STATE AUTO LIABILITY INSURANCE DEPT.

STATE CAPITOL, Hartford, Jan. 30—(AP)—Through Senator Frank S. Bergin, New Haven minority leader in the upper house, the socialist party of Connecticut obtained introduction in the general assembly today of two bills based on socialist tenets—one of which would add to the other operations of the state the business of issuing automobile liability insurance.

The bill would give the state the monopoly on this type of business, but would base the first year's operations on the methods, rates, and other policies of existing companies. The bill would go into effect January 1, 1930.

The other socialist bill prohibited publication of names of widows and children receiving state aid.

The insurance bill creates a board of five trustees, appointed by the governor with the approval of both senate and house, each trustee to receive an annual salary of $5,000 and would have alternating terms of two, four, six, eight and ten years. A chairman would head the board, which would also have a treasurer.

The state automobile liability insurance department, created under the bill, would base its first year rates on those of existing companies. After the first year, the rates would be founded on data obtained by the state insurance commissioner. Auto liists would be obtained through the motor vehicle commissioner. Ten per cent of the income would be used to build up the fund, which would have an initial appropriation of $150,000. Martin Plunkett, Wallingford, state secretary-treasurer; Morris Rice, New Haven leader, and Warren Davis, Hamden, an auditor of New Haven county, and member of the state central committee, all of the socialist party, were the authors of the bill.

Representative Diana, of New Haven, brought in a bill imposing a fine, through the form of personal tax assessment, of $20 upon any citizen eligible to vote, who fails to do so, except veterans of all wars. Mr. Diana said he hoped the bill would

STRIDENT CALL FOR STRONG NAVY BY SENATOR REED, MO.

The Senator Warned Against the "Dreams of Enthusiasts, the Propaganda of Pacifists and the Treason of Internationalists"—Declared It the First Duty of the Senate to Protect America and to Make Certain That We Are Well Equipped For Armed Conflict.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30—(AP)—A call for a strong navy was thundered to the senate today by Senator Reed, of Missouri, who on the eve of his departure from public life, spoke to a crowded chamber about the "Dreams of Enthusiasts, the propaganda of pacifists and the treason of internationalists."

He concluded with the declaration that in what he regarded as an armed world the first duty of the senate was "to protect America, to make certain that we are safe and to close our ears to the whimperings and whinings of that class of people who have too often led us into mistakes and blunders."

The Missourian speaking on the bill to construct 15 cruisers and one aircraft carrier, directed particular attention to the opposition of Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, to the measure, referring to him as the "Iowa admiral." The Iowan arose after Reed had finished, to hand the address as "one of the greatest of the old order of things." Recalling his military service in the Spanish-American and World wars, he shouted: "I am not ashamed to admit that I am a pacifist."

Peace treaties will not arrest bullets, Reed warned, adding: "Wars of today are no longer wars of valor but of machines; valor half armed cannot resist valor full armed; the opinion of the world is determined by the policies of other nations, and all are armed."

"In England that opinion is manifest by a standing army of 403,915 men and in a navy of 700 great fighting ships; in fortresses that lie in the shores of the world and dot the seas; in guns that command every avenue of progress.

"Would you hear the voice of the world, oh you dreamers of dreams? List! Your ears will be greeted by the roar of furnaces which are forging the plates of ships of war. Listen and you can hear the chorus of mighty hammers shaping the keels of great battleships. There will come to you the hum of countless lathes shaping rifles and machine guns. You can hear the whirr of the wings of innumerable airplanes.

"Look and you can behold the skilled engineers of every nation as they plan and direct the construction of armaments. They are calculating distances of every sort and elevating guns. Look again—millions of men are marching and counter-marching in command of skilled officers and back of these armies are people who believe in these policies and who support them uncomplainingly with taxes."

Against the expert opinion of military and naval experts of all the maritime nations and that cruisers were vital to a fleet, Reed remarked, seven senators had set up contrary opinions, "namely: Rear Admiral Brookhart, Major General Brookhart, Chief of Staff Brookhart, Chief of the Air Service Brookhart, General Opinion of Mankind Brookhart, General Voice of the World Brookhart, and Custodian of the Universe Brookhart."

The Iowan, who spent yesterday assailing the cruiser bill, smilingly arose mid laughter to declare that the senator did not say "anything of Mussolini Brookhart."

"No," replied Reed, "I love the senator and I am dealing with him just as gently as possible."

Brookhart's voice was lifted almost to a shout when he took the floor after Reed had concluded. He recited his own grievances with the army and said he had been "blacklisted" by a patriotic society. He belittled the army schools and their methods of training before the war. He argued that men who spent 20 years preparing for wars by fighting imaginary battles were unfit to exercise common sense when wars did come and told the senate that if war were declared tomorrow he would resign and enlist.

"But I believe that we can get away from this period of revenge and punishment," he continued. "I believe there is something greater than organized murder. There is more imagination in this thing called preparation for war than in all the pacifism in the world."

As he finished he professed the "love of a son for a father" for Senator Reed. The Missourian added a word that he believed "the senator has demonstrated the necessity for preparedness."

FACTIONS OF SALVATION ARMY STILL DEADLOCKED

LONDON, Jan. 30—(AP)—Factions in the Salvation Army, as a result of a chancery court injunction decision today, were tonight back in the positions that they held Jan. 14 before the high council adjudged Bramwell Booth unfit to continue in his office of general.

The high council has been called to reconvene tomorrow morning at the international headquarters of the army in London. The councillors must start the adjudication proceedings all over again as their previous action was nullified by the court because General Booth's legal representatives were not allowed to plead his cause before the council voted against him.

Bramwell Booth is again head of the Salvation Army but his nomination for a successor, contained in a sealed envelope, is invalid so long as the council is in existence. It was learned that reports that this envelope had been destroyed were incorrect.

DEATH AT PALM BEACH OF .... COUNTESS OF LAUDERDALE

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 30—(AP)—Death today reached into the titled ranks of Palm Beach's foreign colony and claimed the Countess of Lauderdale, artist and social leader.

The countess, who for several years had divided most of her time between this colony and her summer home at Thirlestane castle, Berwickshire, Scotland, died at Villa Azura, her residence here, at 6:30 o'clock this morning. Death came unexpectedly. She had suffered a breakdown while abroad last summer.

With her at the end were the Earl of Lauderdale and Capt. Arthur Vaughan Williams, her brother. The body was prepared for sending to Scotland where burial will take place.

The earl and countess arrived here last Dec. 1, for the social season in which the countess was the leader of the foreign colony. She had not appeared at many social functions but it was understood that her recovery was only a matter of time.

LAST EFFORT TO SAVE LIFE OF MRS. LEBOUEF

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 30—(AP)—The lives of Mrs. Ada Bonner Lebouef and Dr. Thomas E. Dreher tonight were in the hands of Wayne G. Borah, judge of the federal district court, and youthful nephew of United States Senator William E. Borah.

He is expected to make known his decision tomorrow whether he will halt the executions of the man and woman sentenced to be hanged Friday for the murder in July, 1927, of the woman's husband, or whether he will reject their pleas and send the defense counsel to the federal circuit court of appeals.

Defense counsel, headed by B. J. Daly, urged the court to grant a writ of habeas corpus to postpone the executions until arguments could be produced on whether the prisoners were allowed their constitutional rights for an impartial trial. Daly claimed the jury was intimidated by the court room crowd and that two jurors had made affidavits to this effect. The lawyer further argued that his clients were at present insane and should not be hanged as the Louisiana law prohibits the hanging of insane.

NORTHCOTT ATTEMPTS TO CONFUSE HIS ACCUSERS

RIVERSIDE, Cal., Jan. 30—(AP)—Gordon Stewart Northcott, on trial for the slaying of three boys—Lewis and Nelson Winslow and an unidentified Mexican youth—today attempted to confuse his accusers by showing "undue influence" and "intimidation" at the hands of the prosecution.

Acting as his own attorney, the young defendant recalled his father, Cyrus Northcott, to the stand and drew from the witness that, in previous declarations he had made which conflicted with his testimony yesterday, he had been "mentally intimidated" by officers who questioned him regarding the alleged murders on his son's chicken ranch.

The accused slayer also called as a witness his chief prosecutor, Chief Deputy District Attorney Earl C. Redwine, from whom he unsuccessfully attempted to adduce testimony that he (Northcott) had been unduly influenced when he had made previous confessions to the murder charges he is now fighting.

Recent letters from Mrs. Wain in Portugal tell something of the climate there. She says "We are having beautiful sunshine every day now, but the mornings and evenings are cold. It really is much cooler inside than out a great deal of the time. The thick stone walls don't let the heat through, so as soon as the sun is not shining in the window the room begins to feel chilly. I suppose we will appreciate the thick walls more in the hot weather. I never saw such a difference in the temperature in the sun and in the shade. It is too hot in the sun and if you step into the shade, too cold. They continually warn us not to go out without something—hat or umbrella—to protect our heads. You talk about snow and ice, and outside of our windows violets and roses are growing. However, we notice the cold more than one would think because of the unheated house. We use an oil stove in our room, but our classroom and the dining room are unheated. We put on our winter coats when we go to meals. The Portuguese women wear heavy coats about all day. I don't know why they don't have some kind of heat. But the cold season is short."

Peter Bass, of Linwood avenue, has been awarded compensation amounting to $177.72 as a compromise settlement in his claim against D. Arrigoni, road contractor, of Middletown. Mr. Bass was injured last August when he received a fractured rib while at work on the new state road between Hamburg and North Plains.

A number of the townspeople are placing crumbs and suet in their door yards as food for the birds, handicapped by the snow-covered ground.

Many Colchester residents learned with deep regret of the death, Tuesday, of County Detective William E. Jackson, of Willimantic. During the time from 1917 to 1923 that he was detective of New London county in the course of his duties he was a frequent visitor to Colchester. The news of his sudden death was the cause of much discussion by local people Wednesday as they recalled having come in contact with Mr. Jackson, who tempered all business dealings with a spirit of fair-play.

JEWETT CITY

ALARM HEARD IN OCCUM, BUT SLEEPERS DOZED ON

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, Jan. 30—All hats today are off to the home town fire alarm whistle! Tuesday, at the stroke of midnight, its sonorous tones sounded the alarm for a fire at the J. C. hotel barn. Many residents of the borough slept on and heard it not, although the great whistle was sounded twice, when the operator at the central telephone exchange, in answer to an urgent request, threw in the gears for the second alarm. Call number two was hardly done when The Bulletin correspondent in Jewett City received a call from The Bulletin editorial rooms in Norwich, to ask "What about the fire up there?" Some one in Occum, six miles away heard the big siren, read the station number correctly, called The Bulletin, notified a friend on duty there in the editorial rooms, resulting in a call to Jewett City. Talk about Rip Van Winkle, he had nothing on the critics who can hit the whistle with a stone, yet didn't turn a hair!

Tickets exchanged. Jodoin's market, for Mon. night, K of C. minstrels —adv.

Representative L. E. Boucher and Chief of Police Henry Veglard, as well as others in Jewett City were acquainted with County Detective W. E Jackson of Willimantic and were sorry to read in Wednesday's Bulletin of the tragic death of a true friend and a conscientious, unflinching representative of the law.

It was rumored Wednesday that the Silvertone male quartet, recently of Thatcher, Primrose and West, has been engaged for the coming Swanee revue, Manager O'Brien, who has promoted theatre engagements for years in New York, Norwich and other cities said today that success was guaranteed with the talent he has been offered to choose from.

FUNERAL.

Mrs. Althea Comager.

The funeral of Mrs. Althea Comager was held at the Methodist church on Wednesday afternoon, Rev. J. W. Carter, pastor of the church officiating. Irving Thornton sang Lead, Kindly Light and Abide With Me, accompanied by Everett Thornton, who also played the organ prelude and postlude for the service. There were exceptionally beautiful flowers. Burial was in Jewett City cemetery, the bearers being four sons, William Oliver, Simon Fred and Robert Scott and Pleasant Ford. Relatives and friends from out of town were from New York, New London, Providence, Stafford Springs, Central Village, Norwich and Moosup. Undertaker Earle E. Gilbert was in charge of the arrangements.

Physicians Feel the Strain.

Dr. G. H. Jennings has been confined to his bed for two days ill with influenza, and utterly worn out with the terrific strain of the last few weeks. He has hardly taken time to eat or sleep for weeks, and that he has been able to stand the strain so long has been a marvel. He was much better Wednesday afternoon, Dr. J. H. McLaughlin, who has been ill is now able to ride out, Dr F. E. Rainville has been the dependence of the sick the last two days. People are not so dangerously ill, but for a few days need a doctor's care, and there are few homes that have not from one to three ill in the family.

Ruthie Rebekah lodge installs its officers Friday evening, following a supper at half past six.

Mrs. Philip Kittredge and son of Milford, N. H., are visiting at R. W. Dearnley's.

Mrs. Emma Medick has been confined to her bed ill with influenza.

BARNES MANSION SUBJECT OF SKETCH BY MRS. PRIOR

The Barnes mansion is located on a sightly hill in Preston, not far over the Griswold line. This great house overlooks wide acres and far expenses of country. The property, which was occupied by the Barnes family well over a half century, is now owned by W. M McNicol, by whom it has been improved and beautified.

Mrs. Alice Phillips Prior of Jewett City, former international president of The King's Daughters, in entertaining style has written for the current number of The Silver Cross, the King's Daughter's publication, the following reminiscent sketch of "The Mansion House," introductory to "The Outward Look" which is of interest to any reader.

"On the crest of an abrupt New England hill there stood "The Mansion House", the most portentious colonial home in all that region. Tales of its former glory are still fascinating to youthful minds.

But what stirred the childhood imagination of the writer was the statement that on a pleasant day, the ocean, which was several miles distant, was visible from the attic windows. Two things combined to give that unusual outlook—the elevation of the land, and the ample proportions of the building with its generous supply of windows.

The owner had future generations in mind when he erected the house. The selection of the site was governed by the location of a corresponding range of hills, dotted by the homes of many old friends and neighbors. While he trained the youth of his household, he could look across the valley and see that the homes of his friends had suffered no violence, and that apparently all was well with them. The children as they grew caught the neighboring vision and on occasions were shown the glistening waters which beckoned from afar. The vantage ground thus obtained was not gained without much climbing, but the vista which in those days seemed like "the uttermost parts of the earth," was worth all the toil."

Miss Bessie McCluggage has been ill for three weeks, being confined to the bed for ten days with influenza, and is not able to sit up all day at present Miss McCluggage is one of the operators at the telephone exchange.

Miss Elizabeth McLaughlin, a student at Laurelton Hall, Milford, is at home for a week.

Mrs. Abraham Zegeer and children, Olga, Corinne and Abraham and Miss Marianna Kummer left for Portland, Me., Wednesday to attend the funeral of Mrs G. B. Couri who died Wednesday from pneumonia. Mrs. Couri was a sister of Mrs. Zegeer and Miss Kummer, and has visited here frequently.

The town health officer's report reads: There is an increased alertness in parents to detect and report sickness in the family. The value of the early use of anti-toxins as a preventive and cure is quite common knowledge. Antitoxin for diphtheria, tetanus, typhoid vaccine, vaccine to prevent smallpox and solution of silver nitrate are kept on ice by the health officer for use by physicians. The lack of a school nurse is partly met by the promptness of the teachers in reporting any case of suspected sickness in the school rooms. The pupils are sent to a physician or to their homes immediately. Three corporations have a trained nurse in their employ. One nurse visits the sick of all the families in the employ of the company. The town committee has employed the same district nurse that served last year. Her work has been most satisfactory and greatly appreciated by the public. About 5000 visits were made by these two nurses. Through the kindness of Mr. Barnett, manager of Finn's Opera House, for two months, health films were shown weekly; these films were loaned by the state department of health. The United States department of health acting with the state department of health had two lectures on health as a part of the Chautauqua program this summer, one by Miss Dohm, a dietician, "Why Die So Young," and one by Dr. David D. Vaughan, "The Right to Life." A large audience was present at both the Opera House and Chautauqua tent.

Vaccination—There has been an increase of pre-school children both vaccinated and receiving diphtheria toxin-anti-toxin treatment. The percentage of school children protected by vaccination and diphtheria toxin-antoxin is slightly greativ than last year. Nothing less than 100 per cent, all the children, protected against these two dangerous and often fatal diseases should satisfy us.

Garbage and dumps—Collection of garbage more frequently is very desirable. The universal use of garbage containers, placed where they could be quickly handled, would enable this to be done at a slight increase of the present cost. The present dumps can be used for about another year; then some change will be necessary. Erecting an incinerator would be a great help in disposing of much refuse.

$200,000 DAMAGE BY FIRE IN CENTER OF WESTPORT

WESTPORT, Conn., Jan. 30—(AP)—Fire early tonight swept the three story Hartman block on the Boston Post road, in the town center, causing damage estimated at $200,000 by Fire Chief Francis P. Dunnigan.

Firemen from Norwalk and Southport who responded to emergency calls, and members of the local department, were still battling the flames early tonight, when the fire appeared to be under control.

Post road traffic was tied up for two hours at the east end of the State street bridge and the entire personnel of the Westport barracks of the state police was called out to aid local and special police in handling the traffic jam.

Members of the Women's auxiliary of August Matthias post, American Legion, served hot coffee to the firemen who fought the fire in the severe cold under the direction of Chief Dunnigan, Fire Chief George W. Bogardus, of Norwalk and Deputy Chief William J. Powell, of Norwalk.

"Sweetest Baby in Connecticut"

For over fifty years, mothers, like this well-known Connecticut woman, have been telling each other about California Fig Syrup, and leading physicians have been endorsing it. Nothing else acts so gently and harmlessly to propel the souring waste from the delicate system of babies and children, which, when allowed to remain, keeps them cross, feverish, bilious, headachy, weak, with coated tongue, bad breath, broken-out skin, no appetite or energy. Its rich, fruity goodness helps to give tone and strength to their little stomach and bowels so they continue to act normally, of their own accord. It helps to build up and strengthen them— makes them active and happy.

"I have used California Fig Syrup with my little daughter since early babyhood," says Mrs. M. V. Robinson, 87 Franklin Ave., Hartford. "Whenever she has a cold, is the least bit constipated or doesn't seem just right, I always give her a little, and it fixes her up quick. She's the picture of health, now, and friends say she's the sweetest baby in Connecticut. She has never had a serious illness, and I give California Fig Syrup full credit for it."

Protect your child from imitations of California Fig Syrup. See that the carton bears the world "California."

Among the Gilmans' guests were Mr. and Mrs. William McKenna, of Boston.

DANIELSON

PRES. WILBUR HOST TO HIS COMMITTEE HEADS

(Special to To Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Jan. 30— President E. B. Wilbur of the chamber of commerce had as luncheon guests at the Attawaugan hotel this noon members of the executive committee and heads of other committees of the organization to talk over various matters having to do with plans and purposes for the next few months, all in the general interest of the community.

President Wilbur outlined to the group sitting about the table with him some of the things he would like to see done by the chamber of commerce and told of things he has been doing recently toward that end. Among other things, he mentioned that he had been at Hartford within a few days, visiting at the headquarters of the state chamber of commerce, and also at the offices of the Hartford chamber of commerce. An outcome of his visit is the obtaining of an agreement with Secretary Clark Belden of the state chamber of commerce to come here during the spring and address a meeting of the local chamber. There is the likelihood that Mr. Belden will be invited to come here in April, and that the meeting will be an open one.

Mr. Wilbur also told his associates of another interview he had with a man who has done a great deal to revitalize the industrial activities of Rockville, and it is possible he also will be invited to come here and speak.

An outcome of this noon's gathering likely will be the publication of a pamphlet containing much statistical and other worthwhile information relative to this town and to Brooklyn. This pamphlet is intended for circulation in quarters where it is likely to do the most good—to tourists, to persons likely to be interested in this center as a place where a business might be located, and to those who constantly send inquiries asking about this part of eastern Connecticut and what facilities and advantages it offers to concerns that might locate their manufacturing or production interests here.

These were the high lights of the matters talked over during the lunch hour, though various other subjects were touched upon. Several of these matters will be taken up in more detail at the monthly meeting of the chamber on Tuesday evening of this week.

Detective Jackson Had Many Friends Here

In common with all of eastern Connecticut, this town was shocked this morning over the unfortunate end of County Investigator W. E. Jackson of Willimantic. Mr. Jackson was no stranger in Danielson. He was known by hundreds here, and scores of them had been his friends for upwards of a score of years. He first became a familiar figure hereabouts when he was a member of the early group of state police officers, the men that formed the nucleus of the present state police department. Those of this town who knew him the longest and the most intimately seemed strangely unanimous today in giving voice to the thought that whoever is responsible for ending his life would have had no easy time had Mr. Jackson been given even half a chance to defend himself. He was a man of superb courage even in the most dangerous of situations, and it is regarded as a pity here that he was killed, as the indications point to the circumstances under which he lost his life, without the opportunity to battle as he would have battled, whatever the end. A delegation of his personal friends in this town, members of professions and citizens out of various walks of life, will go to Willimantic to attend his funeral services.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill this morning expressed his personal belief that Mr. Jackson's life was forfeited as a matter of revenge. The coroner was in Willimantic this afternoon for the autopsy and to investigate any developments that may give a clue to the murderer's identity.

To date the following players have been signed up for the four teams in the local Inter-Church league: Dayville Pioneers, Harold Nicholson, Walter Weeks, Thomas Thornley, Jaci Lodge, Harold Alvord, George Wakefield, Jack Franklin, Raoul Gatry, Ben. Franklin; Westfield Whirlwinds, Bartram Hammond, Francis Ingraham, Leta Keach, Shirley Greene, Philip Whitman, George Ingalls, James Ingalls, Francis Hammett; Methodist Episcopal, Harold Bowen, Edward Long, Burton Hollowell, Charles Savarice, Robert Gay, Herbert Card. The member list of the Baptist-St. Alban's team was not available this afternoon.

Talking back and forth today about what would be nice among improvements in Danielson, the talk being by members of the chamber of commerce, those who participated in the discussion were agreed that an additional and brand new hotel would be a great thing for this community. This talked of hotel may or may not be a prospect of the immediate future. But there is this to be said about the matter, and it represents a more or less composite view of people who would like to see Danielson stepping along to new heights. There is no town in eastern Connecticut better located strategically to get hotel business than Danielson. It so happens that it is not the largest town in the county, and it also so happens that it is so situated, as regards trunk line highways, as to be sitting pretty if it would do something about the hotel business—the new hotel business.

No passenger trains run over the branch of the New Haven road through Danielson today. Yet more travelers ride through here than ever saw the town back in the days when the railroad line through Danielson was doing a first class passenger business. The answer is that there is business in the motor traffic for Danielson if Danielson wants it.

Conservaties here hold that a new hotel, with modern appointments, but not too flashy, would make money. The problem is to develop such a hotel without getting too much money tied in, without heavy rake-offs for promoters and with the ownership and control of it held locally. It appears to be a problem that Danielson and its people must solve for themselves. That such a hotel as is herein talked about will be a reality some day, few doubt. The question appears to be how long before the community gets it.

Trunk line highways between Worcester and Norwich cross here, as does the line between Providence and Hartford. They are important lines. Danielson senses that fact, but up to now nothing has been done about it. Maybe 1929 will bring some action, maybe not. Nobody knows up to this date in January.

Treasurer Sidney W. Bard of the Brooklyn Savings bank was in Hartford today attending a state meeting of members of the Order of the Eastern Star.

Painting of the word "Danielson" in letters 25 feet in length and with a 4-foot stroke on the roof of the Main street plant of Powdrell and Alexander will be undertaken as soon as the weather is favorable, as a guide to aviators. The roof also will be adorned with a gigantic arrow and the letter N, the arrow pointing to indicate true north.

Various members of the Southern New England Telephone company's local organization were in Putnam this evening to attend, at Odd Fellows' hall, a function at which W. T. Jones was presented with a 20-year service button.

The newly installed officers of Killingly grange will be in charge of the grange meeting next Monday evening. A good program is being worked out by the lecturer, Mrs. Charles A. Downs. In connection with Killingly grange it is being mentioned that it lost in the death of Charles D. James one of its oldest members, he having become a member on Dec. 14, 1891. Only one other member outranks him in point of years in the organization—Mrs. Almira Thompson, who joined Dec. 14, 1891.

The prospect this afternoon was that harvesting of ice at Quinebaug lake would be started Thursday morning. It was expected that the ice would be between 8 and 9 inches in thickness by that time. Last night the surface of the cutting fields were flooded, to hurry the thickening process. Last winter no ice was obtained at this lake, which is fed exclusively by springs, though for close to half a century much of the ice used in Danielson each year has come from that beautiful body of water.

Today a steel receptacle for mail and parcel post packages was placed on the sidewalk in front of the post-office. It is intended largely for use in making mailings during hours when the office is closed, especially during the night season, but may be used at any time. It will be unlocked and opened when mail is being despatched, in order that there may be no delays in forwarding.

Additional looms for installation by Powdrell and Alexander have been ordered for spring delivery.

Complaints began to come in today relative to uncleaned and slippery sidewalks, which are common enough about the borough. Chief John McFarland checked up on some of the complaints, which were made to members of the borough government.

A delegation from the Windham County Y. M. C. A. will be in Hartford, Feb. 26, to attend a meeting at which Dr. David Yui, a Harvard graduate, and national secretary in China for the Y. M. C. A., will be the principal speaker. Dr. Yui was a delegate to the Washington disarmament conference and he twice has been offered a post in the Chinese cabinet as well as the ambassadorship to Great Britain.

PUTNAM

DETECTIVE JACKSON WELL KNOWN IN PUTNAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Jan. 30—County Detective William E. Jackson who was found dead in his home in Willimantic last night, a victim of a gunman's bullet, was well known and highly respected by hundreds of people in this city, where he has frequently made criminal investigations for the past 25 years.

In his capacity as county detective, Mr. Jackson has been attached to the office of State's Attorney Howard C. Bradford, of this city. At the January session of Windham county superior court criminal court, nearly every case on the trial list with the exception of two, were cases which had been woven together by the murdered Willimantic detective.

A shroud of deep sorrow was cast over the numerous friends and acquaintances of William E. Jackson in this city today, when they learned of his death.

Mr. Jackson was a frequent visitor in Putnam, coming here three and four times a week, while gathering evidence for the state to use in the prosecution of criminals. Mr. Jackson's last trip to Putnam was on Monday afternoon, when business brought him here for a conference at the state's attorney's office.

The police of this city continued their search for the mysterious "butter and egg" man who on Monday morning entered the Bradley Beef house, posing as a representative of a local grocery establishment purchased a 68 pound tub of butter, charging it to the credit of the grocery store. A description of the man was furnished State Trooper Donald E. Geddes of Danielson state police barracks, who is now leading an investigation into the affair.

In Wednesday's Bulletin, a complete story of the transaction was printed, in behalf of the merchants of Putnam and Windham county at large, warning them to be on the sharp lookout for the gentleman, who it is thought will perhaps attempt to resell his ill-gotten product. Until late today no trace of the swindler had been obtained by the police.

Walter A. Wheaton Jr. and Frank Donovan were in New London Tuesday evening where they witnessed the Chapman Tech-Putnam high school basketball game.

Mills in the surrounding textile villages of this city, where hundreds of Putnam textile operators are being employed, are now experiencing one of the worst business slumps in history. Since the close of the war, woolen and worsted plants in Windham county have established reputations in the woolen manufacturing world for surviving slackened conditions, going through the dull seasons unaffected.

About two weeks ago the first indications of bad business conditions developed in this section when in textile plants employees, one by one, were temporarily dismissed in the various departments of the plants. All were promised that they would be restored to their positions as soon as the slack season had passed and further orders for production had arrived. The layoff of help continued to increase daily, until now many of the well known plants are nearly at a standstill.

No definite date is given by any of the mills as to when full time working schedules will be restored, but all held hopes that not more than a fortnight would elapse, before the sample products would return with production orders sufficiently great enough to necessitate an immediate resumption of manufacturing.

Charles Allen, Jr., missing Auburn, Mass., boy who left his home last Friday is still unaccounted for, despite the searches for him being conducted by police authorities in two states.

There developed today a new angle in the case, when one of Allen's playmates told the police of Auburn he had seen Charles on the day he first disappeared, to have had a pair of skates in his hand. Police of that town today, influenced by the story of the boy's associate have started to drag ponds for the recovery of the youth's body, now believed to have been a victim of thin ice.

Big Bill Shann, Nelson King, Clayton Hurlburt and Strapping Walt Cody are to represent Putnam in the New London indoor track meet to be held Saturday. The Putnam aggregation will enter in various classes. Shann in past years has carried off broad and high jumping honors, while King has excelled on the short dash events. Cody and Hurlburt are new comers to the track and one is not informed as to what is expected of them. Both were on the high school football eleven last fall, and aided in bringing the championship honors of eastern Connecticut to Putnam.

The Y. M. C. A. motion picture service, which was inaugurated in January, brought the silver screen into the following schools and factories in this community last week: Dean pin factory, Putnam; Americal Woolen company, Aldrich brothers and Cranska companies at Moosup, South Woodstock, East Woodstock, Elmville, South Pomfret and Sawyer district schools in Putnam were the film places of the "Y" movies. The Windham county "Y" association also staged a friendly Indian pow-wow at the Second Congregational church on last Friday evening. Boys from Eastford, Putnam, Danielson, Thompson, and Woodstock attended. During the conference the "Y" film service was screened, with an additional showing of motion pictures furnished through the courtesy of the Southern New England Telephone company.

FUNERAL

Henry Babbitt

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at the home in Thompson for Henry Babbitt, who died Sunday. The service was conducted by the Rev. Henry Lyons, pastor of the Thompson Congregational church, of which Mr. Babbitt was a member. Burial was in the West Thompson cemetery.

Dr. Edward F. Perry, who has suffered a recent illness, has announced that he has retired from active practice of his profession for the present, due to impaired health. Dr. Perry's physicians hold encouragement that he will be able to resume his practice of medicine and surgery in the early spring. Dr. Perry has closed his office in the Strombeli block. Dr. Perry has been a practicing physician in this city for the past 23 years, his record being interrupted by America's entry into the World war, when he left Putnam to enter the service of his country, serving a year in France as an officer in the medical corps. Dr. Perry was recently appointed to command the newly organized medical detachment at Danielson with the rank of captain.

With the close of the first month of the year at hand, the number of fire alarms answered by the Putnam fire department to date, has reached ten, three of which were box alarms, and one being an out of town call. The city fire loss for 1929 is now nearing the $1,000 mark by reason of three of the major fire alarm calls. Fire Chief Ralph E. Thurston stated today that property owners in the city have been exceedingly fortunate that the firemen have been able to extinguish chimney fires in dwelling houses before they developed into larger fires.

Superintendent of Schools Leon M. Farrin was the guest and speaker at the meeting and luncheon of the Putnam Rotary club held today at Putnam Inn. Supt. Farrin's address was one stressing the need of abolishing obsolete methods of school supervision and supplanting them with modern educational tactics, such as are slowly being introduced into the schools of the city, now under his supervision.

Mr. Farrin said many are satisfied with conditions of education as they were when they attended school years ago. While they continue to look forward to better methods of transportation, styles of wearing apparel and other luxuries, they continue to ignore the development of educational methods that are constantly being brought about. "Now life and the demands of life upon the individual are complicated in the extreme. Untrained intelligence is no longer sufficient. The trained man or woman is at a premium; ignorance and success can no longer go hand in hand," said Mr. Farrin, in outlining the conditions existing towards the proper training of children in these modern times. He advocated the adoption of intelligence tests and other standard improvements now being provided for the teaching of children.

"Twentieth century methods, as now are provided for schools have one major feature," said Mr. Farrin, "and that is they tend to take the drudgery out of schooling for children, making them enjoy their hours spent in learning, where in past years, it was constantly hated and detested by children."

Mr. Farrin's talk was one of enlightenment and was deeply absorbed by those present. Following the talk by the head of the city educational department the Rotarians went into business routine, under the direction of President James F. English. The name of Secretary E. L. Beebe was placed on the club sick list. Mr. Beebe is confined to his home on Whittemore street suffering from an attack of influenza. His condition is not regarded as serious however.

Fire Chief Ralph E. Thurston has advocated the plan of the members of the local fire companies combining with an aim of starting a fund for the purchase of an additional piece of fire apparatus, which is greatly needed by the city. The firemen, annually promote social functions, which are largely patronized by the community. Proceeds of these affairs could be devoted to such a fund, and when a substantial portion of the amount necessary for the purchase of the apparatus is acquired, the city could be called upon to furnish the balance. The plan is now being considered by the members of the department, but no agreement has as yet been reached.

Dr. Margaurite J. Bullard, has entered a New York hospital, where she has been operated upon for gland trouble. Her condition was reported today as being improved.

HANOVER

The McMurray house at Fullertown has been closed for the season, Mr. and Miss McMurray and Miss Dorothy McMurray having left for an automobile trip to Florida.

Miss Eunice Lebourveau, after taking her mid-year examinations at Boston university, has been spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Lebourveau. She brought with her as her guest Miss Doris Atkinson, of Needham, Mass. one of her university friends.

Mr. and Mrs. William Campbell were recently called to Framingham, Mass. on account of the death of Robert Horne, a brother-in-law of Mrs. Campbell.

While Norwich Free Academy students are not oblized to leave home so early mornings this week as the examinations do not bexin until 9 o'clock in the morning, it looks as though they would be quite ready to appreciate the long week end holiday at the close which will continue until Tuesday morning next.

Though wind and wear are slowly eating away the ice from the state road, there are many places still which necessitate the exercise of great care upon the part of auto drivers, in order to avoid skidding.

Hanover church was well represented at the Union service at the United church Norwich, Sunday evening. Next Sunday evening the local Y. P. S. C. E. will omit its own meetings and join with the Union which is to meet with the Greeneville Congregational church. Mrs. Robert Chandler, a returned missionary from China will address the meeting.

With the partial recovery of some of the children to the extent to which they are again permitted to resume their school duties, others are taken down, which leaves the average attendance about the same this week. The sharp, biting weather of the past few days may continue long enough to check the progress of the coughs and grip, so prevalent of late.

Deacon William Storrs Lee, who has been housed for the past week, has so far recovered his strength as to be able to sit up for a part of each day. His friends are hoping to see him about again soon.

Mr. and Mrs. William G. Park drove to Hartford Sunday afternoon, to listen to a musical program of unusual interest.

WILLIAM HAASE, 81, DIES A WEEK AFTER BIRTHDAY

Three times since October 15 death has visited the little village of Hanks Hill. Following the death of Mrs. Henry Hanks and that of Ozro Hanks came that of William Haase, Monday morning. Mr. Haase had celebrated his eighty-first birthday just a week before. Apparently in usual health he went about his customary duties Monday morning. His wife, failing to hear him, called a neighbor who found him unconscious in the shed where he had been splitting kindlings. Death apparently had been instant from a shock. Born in Germany, Mr. Haase had lived here thirty-eight years, most of that time in Gurleyville. The body was taken to the home of his granddaughter, Mrs. Gust Clausen where the funeral will be held.

Madge Bellamy explains the growing popularity of Old Golds in Hollywood

"The 'hero' in a movie may easily become the 'villain' if he coughs at the wrong time. A cough isn't nice at any time, but when it interrupts the taking of a movie scene, it's a calamity! Re-takes are costly!

"The high tension of movie work makes smoking a vital relaxation. But we relax with OLD GOLDS. They're so smooth, as smooth as the polished manner of Adolphe Menjou, who himself is an OLD GOLD fan.

"While they're the most enjoyable of cigarettes, OLD GOLDS mean absolute 'fade-out' for throat-scratch and smoker's cough."

NEW YORK'S BUDGET.

Just at the present time the people in New York, and particularly those in the legislature, are displaying much interest in the budget which has been submitted by the new governor.

It comes at a time when we have just heard what the president and the director of the budget at Washington have had to say about the budget system and the practice of economy in the national government, and it will be remembered that attention has been frequently called to the fact that while the federal government was cutting expenditures insisting upon economy, reducing taxes and lowering the indebtedness many of the states and city governments were moving in just the opposite direction.

Governor Roosevelt of New York has presented a budget that calls for approximately $256,500,000. Governor Smith had been criticized because he was a big spender, but Governor Roosevelt is immediately recommending the spending of nearly $23,000,000 more than his predecessor.

It is pointed out that this additional money is for such good causes as roads, parks, institutions, bridges and schools. But while such might be regarded as needed and desirable there doesn't appear to be any effort made to check expenditures in other directions. In other words there is no effort being put forth in behalf of economy.

In New York the state debt has been going up. At the same time figures show that the revenue has been jumping forward even to the extent of producing a surplus in spite of the large expenditures, but the practice in New York state has not been, as it has in Washington, to apply such surplus to the reduction of the indebtedness. New York spends all it gets and then asks for more. It rolls up bond issues and still ignores the desirability of standing and appealing for the practice of economy.

Under the circumstances it is to be expected that the legislature will give careful scrutiny to the budget that has been presented, and, especially since the effort has been put forth to have it considered only in the committee of the whole rather than in the finance committee where it can be fully and carefully studied.

PROGRESS ON CRUISERS.

Regardless of the delays which have been aided by those who are opposing the idea of making any additions to the navy the prospects for a vote upon the cruiser bill within a few days have improved. Although it is indicated that there are enough votes to pass the measure, those opposing from a pacifist standpoint and those who believe that there ought to be no fixed time in which the vessels must be constructed have prolonged the debate and brought about the taking of sides until there promises to be action without much greater delay.

That the president is still opposed to the provision that will require the construction of 15 cruisers and one airplane carrier within three years was made clear by the announcement which showed that he was ready to start work on cruisers as soon as possible and would ask for appropriations to such an end. This made it clear that his objection to the time clause was not for the purpose of delaying all construction, until some distant time in the future. That is not his purpose. He recognizes the need of getting the new cruisers started because they are needed to replace those which are soon due to be retired, but he doesn't think it is necessary or wise to undertake the building of the whole 15 at once.

This clearly places the president where there can be no doubt as to his attitude. He is not simply working for a paper navy, but one that is required for our adequate defense. The work on it should be started at once and continued but in a manner that will not embarrass the treasury. He doesn't believe that any such strain is called for at this time.

Furthermore he cannot see where the completion of this plan would embarrass any efforts that may be made in behalf of limitation of armaments. That is a subject in which his interest has not abated although no new move is underway at the present time. Nevertheless the new cruisers would probably provide no more strength than this country would be entitled to under any agreement that might be made in regard to limitations. Thus gradually are some of the objections that have been raised to the cruiser being disposed off.

THE DOORN PARTY.

If there had been no great World war, or if the outcome had been different, it can be imagined that there would have been an observance of the 70th birthday anniversary of William Hohenzollern quite in contrast to that which recently took place.

It would have been at Berlin instead of at Doorn and there would have been the pomp and glamour with international felicitations characteristic of just such affairs which involve sovereigns. Nevertheless the former kaiser could not permit the day to pass without gathering about him those who are still in sympathy with his cause, and so far as it was possible the gathering was one of the most pretentious in recent years.

It was a gathering where references were made to the glorious past of Germany and hopes expressed for the future. There had previously been expressions to the effect that the former kaiser hoped to live to see the day when the Germans would be freed of the burden of false accusation about unleashing the greatest of all wars, and in addition with the changing in world opinion Germany would be relieved of the reparations payments.

But it didn't manifest itself throughout Germany, if there was sympathy with the thought of a return to power of the Hohenzollerns. Attention was paid to it but there was no indication that Germany was giving its endorsement to anything that was being done or said at Doorn. There was nothing to indicate that any real significance was to be attached to it, nor any real help to be derived from the pleas which one of his statements appeared to make in behalf of Germany. Perhaps it was felt that such sentiments would be bound to get much more attention if advanced by someone else.

Whatever the result William Hohenzollern passed the three score and ten mark like an undiscouraged and hopeful leader. It was an occasion that sufficed to make a test of sentiment in his behalf but aside from those in his immediate circle there appeared little to become enthusiastic about. It is over and will be forgotten.

THE POPULAR AUTO.

The saturation point in automobile construction has been and will continue to be a much discussed question. Those who have contended that it has been reached have witnessed the continuance of production and by the report of the census bureau there were 23,262,183 automobiles in this country last January. That means that there was a car for every five persons and there has been nothing since that time to indicate that there was any let up in either manufacture of cars or the purchase of automobiles.

But when we stop to compare the number of machines in this country with those in the world we become impressed with the manner in which Americans have adopted this method of transportation. Automobiles are not as numerous in other countries for while there is one for every five persons in the United States there is but one for every 49 persons in the world. Traffic problems are not the same in other countries.

Thus it becomes apparent that the saturation point discussion can well be confined to this country alone. But the saturation point of automobile production is by no means the only thing that gives cause for worry in connection with the automobile. With the increase in the number of motor vehicles there must come the roads and the regulations to take care of them and insure safety. More machines call for more accommodations, wider roads, more permanent pavements.

The automobiles have grown rapidly in number and the end is by no means reached. Perhaps it will not be until there are as many motor vehicles in the country as there are men, women and children. Nothing seems likely to stop it now unless it is the flying machine.

TEMPERAMENTALLY UNFIT.

Whatever may have been the practice in the past, the present police commissioner of New York doesn't expect that his automobile must get any different treatment than anyone else. He is insistent that his chauffeur must not undertake to obtain special privileges or to refuse to obey orders the same as any one else.

It all happened over the stopping of the commissioner's car before a New York store for Mrs. Whalen to shop. When the traffic officer ordered the chauffeur who had been working for the commissioner 12 years to go elsewhere, the driver refused, claiming that he could park there. The result was that there was a wordy altercation resulting in a visit to the police station and an investigation by the commissioner.

The result is that the chauffeur and the traffic cop were both right and both wrong. The result is that the driver has been fired and the cop has been shifted to sidewalk work out on the outskirts. This action followed chiefly because of the trouble that was caused, it being maintained that both should have been less hotheaded and less boastful of their rights and authority. They were unreasonable, made spectacles of themselves and caused publicity that could not fail to be embarrassing to the commissioner.

It can be imagined that such a situation would not have occurred a few months ago over the police commissioner's car. But it doesn't appear that the new commissioner seeks special privileges for his machine. Had that been his attitude he would not have fired his chauffeur. The traffic cop proved that he was not a person of the right temperament to handle situations of that kind regardless of the owner of the car and he was put to work at something else. New York isn't the only city which has such traffic cops.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

These are days which call for sand, sand and more sand.

It is only fair that a week should be dropped in now and then which is favorable to the iceman.

The man on the corner says: January goes today and there's been no real occasion for saying, "Whoa, January!"

Whether they are or not, nothing would be more logical than for many of the heads of bureaus to be retained in the new administration.

Perhaps Commander Byrd has dedicated those 14 peaks he has discovered in the far south to the memorable 14 points of a few years ago.

CHEG RITA

"This is my kid sister Rita," introduced Miss Remwood, "She's opening a tearoom."

"Ah," said Mr. Queerie, in the tone of one remembering the mortality figures for good resolutions, day old chicks and tearooms. "If she runs it as well," he added, seeing a gleam of hope, "as her sister runs this office, it will be a success."

"Thanks for them kind words," said the kid sister.

"Rita dropped in," explained Miss Remwood, "to see if I could suggest a catchy name for the t-aroom."

"Something," amplified Rita, "that'll smack 'em in the eye."

"Speaking as a business man," said Mr. Queerie, "I should advise against a name that—er—smacks 'em in the eye. Look at Henry Ford. He might have called his first model the Acrobatic Antelope or the Bounding Bullfrog, but he didn't. He might have adopted a nom de skid like Winthrop Montmorency and plastered that on his car. A plain name has an honest smack. Use your own."

"Remwood's more of a wet smack," said Rita.

"The 'Remwood' would be an excellent name," insisted Mr. Queerie. "Show you're not ashamed of the—er—buns, or whatever you sell in tearooms. And have it plainly decorated. Put the color in the salads, not on the walls."

"But what about atmosphere?"

"Open windows, of course," fatuously replied Mr. Queerie. "And trim waitresses in plain black. And a bill of fare in English. Forget the a la stuff. At the 'Remwood,' " said Mr. Queerie, warming up to his best coterie club style, "let a beef stew cease to blush at being a beef stew."

"It isn't shame," interpolated the junior Miss Remwood, "that suffuses a beef stew with blushes; it's a can of tomato soup."

"All this," continued Mr. Queerie, "puts across the idea of honest value. Logical, isn't it?"

"I'll tell the cooking class!" exclaimed Miss Remwood's kid sister; "logical as an adding machine."

"Let's drop into the 'Remwood' for a sandwich," suggested Mr. Queerie. "It's a little tearoom at No. 41144."

"Here's the number," said Mr. Bobbie, "but the sign calls it the Dippy Zebra. And migolly!" he ejaculated on stepping inside, "dizzy is right! Striped walls, striped tablecloths, striped linoleum, striped paper napkins, even the light bulbs striped! And migolly!—lady convicts to wait on us."

Mr. Queerie squinted as his eye caught a striped bill of fare. He began to read.

" 'Sandwiches,' " he read; " 'a la golf club.' What's that made of?"

"Ham," answered the lady convict.

" 'A la boulevard.' What's that?"

"Ham."

He squinted some more.

" 'A la Monte Carlo'?"

"Then what's the idea," he demanded, "of giving them different names?"

"The dill pickle," explained the lady convict, "is cut a different shape."

"Rita," said Miss Remwood, "Mr. Queerie was in the Dizzy Zebra, and he said you'd done exactly the opposite of everything he suggested."

"Of course," said Rita, "that's why I sold out for a fancy price the day I opened."

"But you admitted his suggestions were logical."

"Yes, Denseness!" replied the kid sister, "but the people who go to tearooms ain't."—Chicago News.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30—An impression that President-elect Hoover would keep his own counsel on his cabinet slate until the very eve of his inauguration grew out of his sojourn in Washington during January.

And, incidentally, that was about the only aspect of the cabinet matter on which gossip appeared agreed, outside of the certainty that "Andy" Mellon could put in another treasury hitch if he so desired, and that he did so desire.

Assuming appointment of the Pittsburgh financier for a third term, he will have quite a feather in his cap for a newcomer to politics as he was when he came to Washington eight years ago in Harding's "best minds" official family.

No other treasury head ever served under three successive presidents. One predecessor, Albert Gallatin, of Pennsylvania, served under both Jefferson and Madison and continuously from 1801 to 1814. If Mr. Mellon is to break all records, he will have to put in about five years more.

Variety for Some

Many of the treasury secretaries survived one change in administration. By the same token, however, some of the presidents enjoyed a great multiplicity of chief financial advisers. Jackson led with five. Madison, Tyler, Grant and Arthur each had four. Buchanan, Lincoln, Roosevelt and Wilson three each.

The Hoover cabinet smeditation seemed in January to be for the most part locked up tightly in Mr. Hoover's own head. Senate and house callers who had names to present appeared to deduce Hoover's reactions to their nominations from wholly incidental remarks.

Fletcher's Chances Good

Nevertheless, the chances of Ambassador Henry Fletcher for the state portfolio seemed to have ripened perceptibly. The cordiality with which Fletcher was received by important men in the southern republics during the Latin-American trip impressed Mr. Hoover. That, coupled with Fletcher's long an dvaried experience as a career diplomat, underlay the growing belief that he would get the job.

And one other thing: Mr. Hoover was credited with a determination to be his own secretary of state in fact. What more logical than selection of the experienced Fletcher to attend to details? Certainly men like Charles Evans Hughes or Ambassador Morrow would not fit in such a picture.

THE MATCHMAKER RULES IN SERBIA

BELGRADE, (AP)—It is not given to the average Serbian to select his life partner. A custom requires that the "matchmaker" shall find the bride for an eligible young man.

Down country, it is the custom for boys and girls to marry very young. In Nish and the neighboring district, if a lad reaches the age of 18 and is still unmarried, he is considered too old to make a good match.

The "matchmaker" usually is an old woman and is known as a "Provodadja." He, or she, is usually a friend of the family.

Of course, the "Provodajla" is familiar in all points concerning the character, capacity, talents, and especially the state of exchequer of the one whose cause is to be pleaded.

A meeting is arranged in order to let the young people see each other and the betrothal soon follows.

The "Provodajla" in return for her pains, receives a handwoven shirt and a pair of knitted stockings, and a money gift which varies according to the social position of the bridegroom's family. She has also the satisfaction of ranking among the few "intimates" of the family.

In the rural districts, when a lad sets out to pledge himself to his girl, he takes all kinds of presents with him, which may be anything from an umbrella to a cake of soap. When the prospective bridegroom is wealthy, he travels in oxcarts, laden with presents in Biblical fashion, to the home of his sweetheart. He is accompanied by all his friends and relations.

The party is heralded by a band of gypsy fiddlers and brought up in the rear by a roast lamb or pig, carried on the spit, in addition to flagons of wine and brandy.

A priest officiates at the betrothal, the rite being called "Ispit," (examination), when the wedding rings are exchanged. The future bride wears the fiance's ring, and vice versa, until the day of the marriage service, when the priest then places the rings on the fingers of the rightful owners.

The engagement is as binding as the actual wedding. Breaches of promise of marriage are unknown in Jugoslavia. Woe to the bridegrooms who would dare to break an engagement. The menfolk of the bride in that case would exact blood feed.

When a girl comes into the world, her mother works on her trousseau, for the lingerie of a Serbian bride is handmade, and every garment is stitched with the hand; so that the trousseau takes sometimes as much as ten years to complete.

YOUR HEALTH

HEALTHY FOLKS INVITING DOCTORS' ATTENTION PRACTICAL HEAUTH PLAN DEVISED

By Franklin H. Martin, M. D., Chicago.

Since the beginning of medicine, practitioners, patients and prospective patients have asked the uestion: "Why not keep people well instead of waiting until they become ill before extending medical care to them?"

At the present time many organizations are attempting to solve this problem by urging each and every individual to have a periodic overhauling.

As a result, undoubtedly in a few years a majority of our people will seek an annual health examination.

The layman encounters difficulty when he attempts this, however. Having come to the conclusion that it is wise that he shall seek a periodic health adult, suppose he presents himself, as he has been advised, to his family physician after having procured a comprehensive blank from the American Medical association, the state, county or some other authoritative medical society, or the Gorgas Memorial institute.

The physician receives the applicant and discovers that the prospective patient is not a patient at all, but apparently a normal person, carrying an elaborate record form gainst which he expects the physician to check his bodily condition, and record negative or positive findings.

The physician is well equipped as a physician, as he was graduated from a class "A" medical school; he has kept abreast of the times bu attendance at medical society meetings, and the perusal of the best medical literature. He may have taken precautions through extra study at a university clinic or a hospital in the intricacies of conducting a complete and thorough physical examination.

All of this makes him recognize the fact that he has not the equipment that will make it posible for him, on his own, to examine a patient adequately and give honest answers to the questions contained in the comprehensive blank provided.

The obvious difficulties have thus far been insurmountable in the eyes of the authorities in organized medicine who have advocated the advantage of the health examination; and unless the simple method that I am now presenting proves as effective as I believe it will, the problem is still unsolved.

Briefly, there are more than 2,700 hospitals in the United States and Canada that are under the survey of the American College of Surgeons. Of course, 1,919, are known as "standardized" institutions and others are rapidly qualifying.

A careful yearly survey of hospitals is conducted by the American College of Surgeons, which has furnished the minimum standard. The estimate of those qualified is determined by this survey, the results of which form the basis of the annual report on hospitals published by the college.

Each of these standardized hospitals has the facilities, and can furnish the practitioner with the necessary equipment and aids to insure the comprehensive examination of a patient. Such facilities are already furnished by many hospitals, especially community hospitals, to the licensed practitioners within their districts, and by many of the larger hospitals to specialists and other practitioners.

Burgess Bedtime Story

What Farmer Brown's Boy Did With Spooky.

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Worry is a foolish thing:
It doth but added trouble bring.
—Spooky the Screech Owl.

Spooky the Screech Owl had been found in the grain bin of the barn by Farmer Brown's Boy and now he was a prisoner in the arms of Farmer Brown's Boy. He was frightened. He wasn't as badly frightened as he would have been had it been some one else for, like I all the other little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows, he knew that Farmer Brown's Boy was a friend.

"I wonder what he'll do with me now?" thought Spooky. "I wonder if he'll keep me a prisoner? Hello, is he going to take me outdoors and let me go?"

Farmer Brown's Boy had opened the barndoor and stepped out, still holding Spooky. But he didn't let Spooky go. No, sir, he didn't let Spooky go. He went straight over to the house and into it. "See what I found in the grain bin, Mother," said he.

Mother Brown turned to look. "For goodness sake;" she exclaimed. "What was he doing in the grain bin?"

Farmer Brown's Boy pointed to the tail of a young rat, which still hung from a corner of Spooky's mouth. "He was playing mousetrap," said he. "I left the grain bin open and Spooky must have seen the young rat in there. The lid must have fallen and made him a prisoner. Anyway, here he is."

"I hope you are going to take him out and let him go," said Mother Brown.

Farmer Brown's Boy's eyes twinkled. "I am going to let him go, all right," he said, "but I am not going to take him out to let him go. You see, we need him.

"What for?" asked Mother Brown, looking puzzled.

"For a mousetrap in the barn," replied Farmer Brown's Boy. "He is worth a dozen cats. He had been living in the barn for some little time—ever since the big storm. So that is where am going to set him free.

Farmer Brown's Boy took Spooky back to the barn. Spooky wondered and wondered what it was all about. "I hope," thought Spooky, "he isn't going to put me back in that grain bin. I don't want to be a prisoner, but I suppose I'll have to be."

He had hardly thought this when the most amazing thing happened. Farmer Brown's Boy tossed him right straight up in the air. It was so unexpected that for a second or two Spooky found it difficult to use his wings. He flapped frantically. Then he got his balance and realized that he really was free. Up he went to his favorite rafter in the roof of the barn. There he alighted and then leaned over and looked down. Farmer Brown's Boy was looking up at him and smiling.

Spooky sat there and blinked and blinked. He was trying to understand all that had happened and why. What did Farmer Brown's Boy mean by turning him free that way? It was too much for Spooky. "I give up," said he to himself. "I certainly do give it up. I'm not going to worry about it. Here I am free, so why worry! The only question now is, Shall I continue to stay in here, or shall I go back to my home in the Old Orchard!"

Spooky sat and pondered and pondered on this for so long that in the middle of his pondering he went to sleep. He didn't awaken until evening. Just as his eyes flew open, he heard a faint squeak. It was the squeak of a mouse. After that, Spooky did no more pondering. That squeak settled the question for him. As long as he could wake up and hear a mouse squeak, he would stay right there. So it was that Spooky continued to live in Farmer Brown's barn, and Farmer Brown's Boy continued to look up every time he entered the barn and chuckle as he saw little brown bunch of feathers high up on one of the rafters.

"If every one knew the value of Owls, there would be no more shooting of them," thought Farmer Brown's Boy, and wished, with all his might, that every one had his knowledge.

CHILD TRAINING

WHEN INDECISION IS CRUELTY

May Whitcomb

"May I go to the canyon with you?" Nine-year-old Alice broached the question as soon as the hard, all-day trip came up for discussion in the party with which she and her mother were spending the summer. "Oh, I don't know—we'll see," said her mother gaily, interested in the plans, and without giving the question any real consideration.

A decisive refusal at this point would probably have settled the matter without any great disappointment for Alice, but she speedily construed the evasive answer to mean that probably she could go, and made her plans accordingly, teasing for definite permission whenever the opportunity presented itself.

"When we go to the canyon I'm going to wear my high boots." "Shall I need my camera when we go to the canyon?" "Do you think I can ride Tex on the trail?" For a week it went on. The half-hearted "Mother is afraid it is too long a trip for a little girl" or "Mother doesn't think you had better plan on going," if heard, made no impression.

And when, on the evening before the expedition, Mrs Morrison finally gave her decision and said that Alice could not go, what might have been expected happened. Alice begged and teased and cried broken-hearted over the disappointment. Then her mother, torn between the desire to give in and let her go, and the fear of the dangers of the trip, added fuel to the fire by showing, only too plainly, that she was wavering. Eventually, Alice cried herself to sleep, and her mother went to bed with a raging headache.

Next morning the battle recommenced, Alice alternately teasing and crying, her mother commanding obedience and threatening to stay at home herself. Between the two, the pleasure of the start in the freshness of the early morning was spoiled for the entire party. The last glimpse from the bend of the trail showed Alice, full length on the grass, still sobbing in her anger and disappointment.

According to her grandmother, when the matter was irrevocably settled by the disappearance of the party, Alice gradually recovered her spirits and played quietly with the other children. In the evening she greeted the returning party with eager inquiries and an account of how she had spent the day. And so everything was forgotten and no harm done—(?)

This was probably the worst demonstration during the summer, but minor ones were of frequent occurrence. Sometimes Alice won out, and sometimes her mother carried off the palm, but her mother was perfectly sincere in saying that she could not understand why Alice should be so nervous and sensitive, nor why she teased and whined and never minded until she was forced to do so.

Altogether it somehow put one in mind of the story of the small boy who wanted to have his terrier's tail "bobbed." "But won't it hurt the dog to have his tail cut off?" someone inquired. "Oh, no, not much," he answered. "The man said he would do it a little bit at a time"!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Old Time Topics.

Mr. Editor: Through the columns of your valuable paper, people have enjoyed the privilege of "airing" their grievances and expressing their opinions (wise or otherwise) on various matters of local interest. Prohibition, taxation, zoning, kilowatt complications and re-valuation have ben ably discussed at various times, also matters of less importance, consequently the general reading public has received much information therefrom.

Undoubtedly, a large proportion of Bulletin readers, especially the older inhabitants, are interested in the more important events and happenings pertaining to their native city in days gone by. Such are graphically described by The Bulletin's "In Norwich 50 Years Ago". An interesting feature and one peculiar to some Norwich streets was the charcoal vendors from the wilds of Voluntown.

Attracting customers by their resonant and long drawn out cries of "chok coal" which would resound from one street to another and in some instances were quite musical, this industry flourished for a while but finally lapsed, due in some measure to scarcity of wood and more common use of hard and soft coal. At the New London county agricultural fair quite a number of charcoal dealers with their "steeds," would congregate just below the main gates and hold long discussions relating to the fine points of their horses and "swop" the animals whenever any advantage could be seen.

Among the stellar attractions at the fair was the large and handsome bouquet of roses, deeply embedded in a huge cake of artificial ice manufactured in the brick building at foot of Market street. This artificial ice withstood the sun's hot rays, a long period of time.

The "boochee chooches" dancers were located in a tent along the narrow mid-way. Big diamond back rattlesnakes from Glastonbury were on exhibition in a glass case, the veteran peanut vendor John Exley navigating the grounds and always doing a successful business. A high diver on his lofty perch, before making his plunge to a tank of water, would shout, "It's a shame to take the money". The man with the bicycle that "looped the loop" in a large steel cage was a thriller. Fast horse racing and other first class attractions were too numerous to mention here. Last, but not least, were the bookmakers, located just over the fence at the south end of the grounds. They were watchful and wary but nevertheless were well patronized as crisp bank bills in their possession bore evidence.

How many remember the Pine Tree dance hall with the spring floor at East Great Plain? Here the affable and suave gentleman, Wheeler Avery, officiated as prompter. He was of pleasing personality and well versed in prompting the old time quadrilles, lancers and contra dances such as "Money Musk," "Virginia Reel" "Opera Reel," etc. The music was first class, H. White 1st violin; Harry Hayes 2nd violin and Ford Summers, cello.

Each a master of his instrument. No "jazzing" or discordant notes in their music. While all were merry-making inside the cold wind would moan through the branches of the lone pine outside.

Regarding the Breed hall building, a number of first class entertainments were staged there, notably the Arlington Minstrels from the south land, a fine troupe of colored performers, beautiful singers and oh, boy, such buck, wing and double clog dancing.

Whiston, the humorist and the Faker of Ava were good entertainers. The Tom Thumb and Minnie Warren Co., were par excellence. Uncle Tom's Cabin and Eva, Topsy and Marks the lawyer made every one "sit up and take notice".

The costumes worn at the masquerade ball given by the Norwich Turn Verein society could not possibly be excelled at this present day. A renowned violinist with prodigious technique once held forth in Breed Hall. His playing in the 7th and 8th positions was wonderful, the lightning-like strokes of the bow (heel to tip), in rendering arpeggioes, double and trebl stopping were marvelous which was appreciated about as much as Chugumskis rendition of Wenia Jacobski's Concerto-Sonata Nocturne in G flat. From all appearances the majority of the audience had rather heard played in 1st position, the notes of "Old Zip Coon", known at the present time as "Turkey in the Straw," which is one and the same, except in name.

On the upper floor of a building on Central wharf, the craze of velocipede riding held sway, a long time. These machines were a crude, ungainly and hard-riding "contraption" compared with bicycles of more recent date. Nevertheless, the floor bore mute evidence of hard usage received from the riders.

Headaches and nervousness and other troubles far remote from the eyes are oft-times the direct result of an eye strain, which if corrected with the proper glass, would give immediate relief. It is not necessary for the eyes to be sore to indicate their need of glasses. In many cases the eye may be perfectly healthy but glasses may be needed for the reasons which are only apparent to the physician or skilled oculist.

ONE MAN KILLED, TWO HURT WHEN TRUCK UPSET ON LEBANON HIGHWAY

One man was killed, another was seriously injured and a third was slightly hurt about 3:15 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, when the 3-4 ton delivery truck they were riding in overturned near Lisdale hill on the Lebanon-North Franklin road, in the town of Lebanon. The dead man is John Istenes, 67, of Lebanon, who sustained a broken neck and a fracture of the skull. He died on the way to St. Joseph's hospital, Willimantic. Maurice Burgess, 36, Lebanon, seriously hurt, is suffering from a bad injury of the hip, possible internal injuries and lacerations about the head. He is a patient at St. Joseph's hospital. John Ryan, 28, North Franklin, driver of the truck, escaped with a bad shaking up and scratches. He was taken to the hospital, but was later discharged.

The three men were on their way from Lebanon village to the Franklin railroad station, of the Central Vermont railroad, it is understood, to secure a load of grain for Rexford L. Cummings, rural mail carrier, of Lebanon and owner of the truck. At a curve in the road near the Foster place, about a half mile from Tisdale hill, the machine is said to have skidded on the icy pavement. According to the marks on the highway the machine skidded for a distance of 200 feet, climbed a small bank on the left hand side of the road, rode this for 25 feet and then struck a rock, and overturned.

The three men were found lying in the highway beside the wrecked machine by Abe Silverstein, of Williams crossing, Franklin, who rushed the injured to the hospital in his truck. It is understood that a man driving a team appeared on the scene of the accident just prior to the arrival of Mr. Silverstein. It is said he drove off in the direction of Lebanon after a glance at the injured men. Mr. Silverstein said that Istenes was still alive when the race against death to the hospital was started but upon arrival at the hospital it was found that the man had died. The fact that the truck was not equipped with chains may have been the cause of the accident.

State Police Officers Griffin and Daley of the Stafford Springs barracks and Peter Busch of the Groton barracks, Deputy Sheriff Fred Hoxie, of Lebanon, and Coroner Edward G. McKay, of Norwich, were notified of the accident and are conducting an investigation. At 6 o'clock Coroner McKay ordered the machine removed from the scene of the accident. The state police officers went to St. Joseph's hospital and secured a statement from Ryan, driver of the truck, who was later presented before Justice Fred Burgess, in Lebanon, uncle of the critically wounded man. Ryan was placed under bonds of $2,000 on a technical charge of manslaughter.

A further probe is to be conducted by Coroner McKay, Coroner Arthur G. Bill, of Danielson, and Medical Examiner Louis I. Mason, of Willimantic. An investigation Wednesday afternoon by Coroner Bill showed that Istenes died from a broken neck and a fracture of the skull. An X-ray will be taken today (Thursday) at the hospital to determine the extent of Mr. Burgess' injuries.

This mansion, now the residence of Mrs. Gardiner Greene (Louisa Reynolds) is the only one of the 35 original houses of the town of Norwich still occupied by a member of the family in direct descent.

The frontispiece of the new book is a silhouette of Abigail Reynolds, who became the wife of Giles L'Hommedieu and was author of the famous diary.

The volume is in condensed form, containing a valuable amount of data on the Reynolds family and allied branches.

It is understood that the coupe suddenly turned out in front of the bus, which struck it in the rear, forcing it up against a tree off the the road. There were nine passengers in the bus and was being operated by D. R. Connors of Willimantic from Norwich to New London. No damage was sustained by the bus and no one was injured.

The Groton state police barracks was notified and Officer Brown assigned to the mcase. After an investigation the officer placed Freedman under arrest, charged with driving a motor vehicle without a proper license. LOCAL Y STARTS QUEST OF STATE TITLE AT NEW LONDON TONIGHT

The local Y. M. C. A. basketball five takes the trail tonight at New London in quest of the Connecticut Y. M. C. A. basketball title when they meet the fast and rejuvenated New London quintet. In facing New London this evening the locals will go up a team that is composed of the cream of the New London city league. The Whalers are expected to put up plenty of opposition but for this the local team is prepared and are much better off than the New London club in that the locals have been playing together all season as a unit. The Whalers being recruited from various teams have not played together as a team for such a time and their play is likely to be somewhat ragged.

Coach Demarest received somewhat of a setback when Pingree was lost to the team through an injury that will keep him out of tonight's encounter. Pingree works to perfection with Brown, making a fast traveling and accurate shooting forward combination. Lambert will take Pingree's position tonight. Harris will be the choice for the center berth while Eccleston, Grebe and Kelley will see action at the guard positions. For the past few weeks the Y squad has been put through its paces until on the eve of the game things look rosy for a Norwich victory.

Coach Dawson of the New London team has not decided upon his starting lineup but it can be certain that he will send in his strongest combination.

Norwich and New London will clash again next week and the winner of the tilts will play the winner of the Torrington-Middletown game. The winner of this will meet the winner of the lower bracket, which includes Norwalk, Westport, Greenwich and Stamford, for the state title.

This is the first time in many years that Norwich has competed in a state title event and from the previous record of the local team it is a safe prediction that the local boys will be in there strong.

STRIBLING CLAN NOW ENCAMPED AT MIAMI

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Jan. 30—(AP)—W. L. (Young) Stribling, bearing the hopes of the south in his campaign for the heavyweight title, arrived here today to pitch his training camp and prepare for his battle with Jack Sharkey of Boston at Miami Beach, February 27.

Stribling, apparently in the pink of condition, was accompanied by "Pa" Stribling, his manager, "Ma" Stribling, his wife and two children, and his brother, "Baby" Stribling, a lightweight.

The Georgia heavyweight, the center of an admiring throng wherever he went, was given an ovation by the crowd at Miami Beach Kennel club when he appeared there tonight with Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion, who is promoting the bout.

Dempsey tonight was host to a dinner party in honor of Stribling who is the first of the principals to arrive for the bout planned by the late Tex Rickard as an elimination fight in the tournament to choose a successor to Gene Tunney.

Stribling's arrival interrupted Dempsey in a busy day in which he opened the sales office for tickets for the fight. Sales, Jack said, already have approached $180,000 mark. Tickets for mail reservations were being mailed today from the office of the Madison Square Garden corporation, backers of the bout.

Reservations and cash sales of tickets have been made at the box office by members of the Miami, Miami Beach and Palm Beach society groups Dempsey, said today in announcing that among other notables, Governors Henry C. Caulfield of Missouri, Louis L. Emmerson, Illinois and Fred W. Green, Michigan, had bought tickets.

Dempsey refused to comment on a statement by Madison Square Garden officials in New York city that he would meet the winner of a series of elimination bouts for the heavyweight championship of the world in September.

PA LENGLEN UPSET OVER SUZANNE'S ANTICS

NICE, France, Jan. 30—(AP)—The return home of Suzanne Lenglen promises to be as exciting as was her departure from America.

Papa Lenglen, his neighbors say, is well nigh frantic over the publicity which his daughter received in local papers when the international tennis star rowed with New York newspaper photographers at the pier.

M. Lenglen, friends say, opposed the American trip in the first place, contending that Suzanne should not do anything that would bring her into the limelight. He feared that her impetuosity would create trouble in California or some other part of the United States.

The door of the Lenglen villa is now barred against reporters and to all telephone inquiries he says:

"I know nothing. Any talk about Suzanne's marriage to Baldwin M. Baldwin is rubbish!"

Friends say that he has not been the same since his daughter listened to the arguments of C. C. Pyle and turned professional. Although the money that resulted saved the Lenglen homestead, the father of the family has remained depressed. He daily crosses the road to the tennis club which he founded, chooses a seat in the sunshine and sits there for hours. He seldom, however, watches the play although he used to follow every stroke.

TOURTELLOTTE FAVORITE TO WIN OVER PUTNAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Jan. 30—Putnam's unimpressive showing against the fast Chapman Tech basketball team at New London Tuesday night gave Tourtellotte Memorial high school a 3 to 1 chance of defeating the Noyesmen at North Grosvenordale Friday evening. The Tourtellotte aggregation has whipped some of the highest rated teams on their schedule and is not planning on being stopped by the slow-moving Putnam five. The team spirit, so ably displayed in the early season by Walt Cody, pilot of the local quintet, Carman Lee, accurate shooting Putnam star, was missing in the New London encounter last evening. Shann, Sabin and Marion played a hard game but were easily discouraged when their defense was crushed in the early stages of the tussle by the excellent passing and sharpshooting Chapman Tech team. After several combinations failed to stave off the Chapman fleet-footers there seemed little interest left in the Putnam hoopsters as to whether they won or lost.

At the local gym Coach L. F. Noyes gathered his group of court men around him today and for a solid hour drilled the fundamentals of basketball into the five boys who received the setback at New London Tuesday evening. This afternoon information was to the effect that Coach Noyes will send a rejuvenated basketball team onto the floor at North Grosvenordale Friday night. In order to participate in the forthcoming tournament Putnam cannot sacrifice the Tourtellotte game. Coach Noyes devoted additional time to the offensive. He criticized the exceedingly slow manner in which his players got their offense underway and did not fail to attack the defense.

Despite the talk given the Putnam players by their esteemed coach the followers in this section placed little faith in the prediction that Putnam would be high scorer at North Grosvenordale Friday and tonight the little school situated in the hills of Thompson remained a favorite to win.

POUGHKEEPSIE REGATTA WILL BE HELD ON JUNE 24TH

NEW YORK, Jan. 30—(AP)—The intercollegiate rowing regatta on the Hudson at Poughkeepsie, will be held this year on June 24, it was announced today by Maxwell Stevenson, chairman of the board of stewards of the Intercollegiate Rowing association.

Selection of this date means that the Poughkeepsie regatta will follow rather than precede, as it did last year, the Harvard-Yale crew races at New London, which are scheduled for June 21.

Varsity, junior varsity and freshman crews will compete at Poughkeepsie and it is expected at this time, that the entrants will be California, Washington, Wisconsin, Columbia, Pennsylvania, Cornell, Navy and Syracuse. Wisconsin did not appear on the Hudson last year.

There will be no race of 150-pound crews, it was said, for the reason that tidal conditions on the river make impossible the holding of more than three events. It is expected that the freshman race will be at 4 p. m., the junior varsity at 5 and the varsity at 6 o'clock, but the times depend on water conditions.

SHARKEY LEAVES FOR SOUTHERN TRAINING CAMP

BOSTON, Jan. 30—(AP)—Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight, started his quest for the title vacated by Gene Tunney, when he boarded a train here tonight for Miami, Fla., to prepare for his bout with Young Stribling on Feb. 27.

Sharkey, who was accompanied by his wife, Johnny Buckley, his manager, and Mrs. Buckley, expects to arrive in Miami on Friday. He said he intended to rest several days before resuming his training.

The vanguard of the Sharkey camp, Al Lacey, trainer, and his assistant, Tony Palazola, arrived in Miami several days ago and have already selected the Boston heavyweight's training quarters.

JOHNNY TILLMAN IS TO MANAGE HARRISBURG

HARRISBURG, Pa., Jan. 30—(AP)—That rarest of baseball experiments—a pitching manager—is to receive its second real trial in the New York-Pennsylvania league now that the Harrisburg Senators have signed Johnny Tillman as pilot for the coming season.

In the six years of New York-Pennsylvania league history, only one club has seen fit to attempt the experiment. Pitchers have served as emergency managers for brief periods by several clubs but only the Senators have given a hurler a full year trial. They tried it first during the 1925 season with Hankin Johnson in the exacting dual role and finished sixth.

BRAVES TO PLAY 29 GAMES ON SPRING TRIP

BOSTON, Jan. 30—(AP)—The Boston Braves' spring training schedule, announced today, called for 29 games, including seven with the New York Yankees and as many with the Philadelphia Athletics.

Practice games also have been scheduled with the Boston Red Sox, Washington Senators, St. Louis Cardinals, Brooklyn, Reading and New Haven.

Training plans called for the arrival of the Braves at St. Petersburg, Fla., on February 17 and their departure north on March 27. On the return trip, stops have been scheduled for Columbia, S. C., Richmond and Norfolk, Va.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 30—(AP)—Otto Stein, Jr., of St. Louis, bowling the first ten games of a forty game match with Roy Nelson here today rolled 2,419 pins with a high game of 279 and a low game of 212. He had 78 strikes, 25 spares, five splits of which he picked two and not an error. Nelson rolled 2,114.

SUNDAY SPORTS ORDINANCE SIGNED BY BOSTON MAYOR

BOSTON, Jan. 30—(AP)—Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols, today signed the ordinance permitting professional Sunday sports in Boston. Under its provisions the Boston Braves would be required to pay $2,500 and the Red Sox, $1,000 for permits to play Sunday baseball. Difference in the seating capacity of the two baseball parks is the reason for the difference in the cost of the permits. The Braves field seats 40,000 and Fenway Park 25,000.

PLAINFIELD PROS WIN EASILY 54 TO 40 FROM CANADIAN CHAMPS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Jan. 30—Plainfield broke their loosing streak tonight by defeating the Les Canadians of Toronto by the score of 54 to 40. As the score indicates the game was a free-scoring affair with both clubs drawing applause from the crowd with spectacular shots from all angles.

Plainfield with its revamped line-up displayed a nice passing game that had the visiting club baffled. Plainfield showed its old time form again and from now on should strike its stride.

The game was much faster than the score indicates with both teams playing fast clean ball. Plainfield took the lead at the outset and from then to the final whistle never relinquished the lead although at several points the visitors came within a couple of points of tieing the score. The half ended with Plainfield leading 26 to 12.

In the second half the visitors began to hit their stride and began to iron them in from most any position, but Plainfield fighting hard not to be outdone, would retaliate with one just as good.

Dave Harper the new official handled the game in fine style which was one of the cleanest played on the home floor in some time.

Next week the Plainfield management will bring to Plainfield one of the stellar attractions to be seen on the home floor this year in the Hakoah team of the American Basketball league with Nat Holman and Dave Banks formerly of the N. Y. Celtics who have disbanded.

In the preliminary the Buddies handed the New London Yergans a terrific lacing, 33 to 10. The Buddies played a brilliant game from start to finish with Mercier and Eaton in the star roles. The summary:

POETRY

My Grandmother's Turkey-Tail Fan

It owed not a color that vanity done
Or slender wits choose for display;
Its beautiful tint was a delicate bronze,
A brown softly blended with gray,
From its waist to her chin, spreading out without break,
'Twas built on a generous plan;
The pride of the forest was slaughtered to make
My grandmother's turkey-tail fan.

On common occasions it never was meant;
A guest between two silken cloths
Was kept safely hidden with careful intent
In camphor to keep out the moths.
Then forth it fell far and wide through the whole country-side,
Where Keeranoba e'en unto Dan
And often at meeting with envy 'twas eyed,
My grandmother's turkey-tail fan.

Camp meetings, indeed, were its chiefest delight,
Like a crook unto sheep gone astray,
It beckoned backsliders to re-seek the right,
And exhorted the sinners to pray.
It always beat time when the choir went wrong,
In psalmody leading the van.
Old Hundred, I know, was its favorite song—
My grandmother's turkey-tail fan.

A fig for the fans that are made nowadays,
Suited only to frivolous mirth!
A different thing is the fan that I praise,
Yet it scorned not the good things of earth.
At bees and at quiltings 'twas aye to be seen,
The best of the gossip began
When in at the doorway had entered serene
My grandmother's turkey-tail fan.

Tradition relates of it wonderful tales.
Its handle of leather was buff.
Though shorn of its glory, e'en now it exhales
An odor of hymn-book and snuff.
Its primeval grace, if you like, you can trace;
'Twas limned for the future to scan,
Just under a smiling, gold-spectacled face,
My grandmother's turkey-tail fan.

—Samuel Minturn Peck.

Cherry-Ripe

There is a garden in her face
Where roses and white lilies blow;
A heavenly paradise is that place,
Wherein all pleasant fruits do flow;
There cherries grow which none may buy
Till "cherry-ripe" themselves do cry.

Those cherries fairly do inclose
Of orient pearl a double row,
Which when her lovely laughter shows,
They look like rosebuds filled with snow;
Yet them nor peer nor prince can buy
Till "cherry-ripe" themselves do cry.

Her eyes like angels watch them still,
Her brows like bended bows do stand,
Threatening with piercing frowns to kill
All that attempt with eye or hand
Those sacred cherries to come nigh
Till "cherry-ripe" themselves do cry.

—Thomas Campion.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Don't you agree with me that speed is the curse of America?"

"No, I can't say that I do. You see, I'm a bill collector."—Boston Transcript.

Foreman—What's the boss cussing about?

Head Clerk—Somebody tore down the "No Swearing" sign he nailed up this morning.—Detroit News.

Ethyl—What a lovely fur coat you have on! Your husband must have a better job.

Methyl—No, I have a better husband.—Pathfinder.

"How is Viola Vacuum getting along in the talking pictures?"

"Oh, all right, I guess. She has a double for four-syllable words."—Toledo Blade.

Granddaughter (resenting lecture)—I seem to have heard that the girls of your day "set their caps" at men.

Disapproving Grandmother—But not their knee caps.—Humorist.

"Professor, what chair do you occupy?"

"My chair is in a barbers' college."

"Heh?"

"I do not occupy it. I stand behind it."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Detective—We think we have found your mother-in-law who has been missing for six months.

Man—What did she say?

Detective—Nothing.

Man—Then it is not my mother-in-law.—Montreal Star.

This pre-Christmas incident is related:

"Now, children," said the school teacher, at the close of her lesson on 'Greed,' "I hope you will all take my words to heart. For instance, Christmas will soon be here. Now what must you remember to do when you ask Santa Claus for the presents you want?"

"Find out if daddy can afford them," one of the youngsters promptly answered.—Boston Transcript.

KALEIDOSCOPE

Bagdad is the chief stop for airplanes flying from Egypt to India.

There were more than 95,000 fatal accidents in the United States last year.

Fine oriental rugs have about 300 knots to the square inch, all tied by hand.

The Philippines have a summer capital, Baguio, which is 170 miles from Manila.

Poultry raisers have found that oil from shark livers can be fed to poultry instead of the more expensive cod liver oil.

Camels bred in North China are of the two-hump variety, which has a thicker crop of wool than the single-humped dromedary.

It is estimated that the glaciers of Mt. Ranier, in Washington state, grind away about 3,000 tons of the rocky mountain sides every day as they move slowly downward.

Among the structures damaged at Statia, Dutch West Indies, by the recent hurricane, was Old Fort Orange, where, tradition says, the first distinctive flag borne by an American vessel was saluted in November, 1776.

"Gold panning" with a sieve is claiming the attention of scores at Pottstown, Pa., as an old railroad station is being razed. Coins of all denominations, some of them more than a half-century old, are being sieved from the dust and earth under the platforms. The yield of one day was $39.

The life of a 14 months old boy who was attempting to crawl across the railroad tracks at Kansas City, Kas., was saved when an approaching train was stopped just as the front end of the engine extended over the boy. The baby, raising his head suddenly to see what all the commotion was about, bumped his head on the engine and started to cry, but his mother soon consoled him.

Do birds quit singing because their throats are dry? The possibility of something of the sort being the case is suggested by Dr. H. S. Reed of the citrus experiment station, Riverside, Cal, in a note to Science. He says that the California meadowlark sings occasionally in winter and that such outbursts of song almost always come in damp weather or after a rain. Mr. Reed also calls attention to an observation made by Dr. William E. Ritter of the University of California, who has heard meadowlarks singing all the winter through at La Jolla, where the sea air is always humid.

START SAVING NOW AT NORWICH SAVINGS SOCIETY

The trifty man or woman places money not needed for ordinary expanses in keeping with some reliable banking institution. The Norwich Savings Society for all eastern Connecticut people is just such an institution and for over a century it has stood for reliable service.

Many a small savings account has been established here and in the years following has been increased, both by additional deposits and by interest payments, until the account has come to represent a protection against adverses of later years.

When a man is young and enjoys good health his earning power is rated at the best. This, then, should be the time when he should save against the possibility of poor health in his older years, bringing of course an impairment of earning ability.

Money improperly spent can be man's worst enemy, but money properly saved is every man's best friend. The saving of one dollar or more a week, during the course of a score of years, amounts to several thousand dollars. This savings account then stands as a friend in need, which never fails when called on for protection of the family.

A modern and efficient bank prides itself on assisting its depositors to find the best means of saving. Your own financial problem of course must be worked out by yourself. A bank cannot force you to save if you desire to waste. One thing a bank can do, however, is to assist those of you who wish to save. A bank can suggest proper means of saving, arrange an easier way of keeping up with systematic savings.

This is the type of service the Norwich Savings Society seeks to give in Norwich. Why waste the earnings of your best years?—visit our bank and let us show you how to save and build up a protecting bank account.

PURCHASE YOUR BUILDING MATERIALS AT DAWLEY'S

When you are planning to build a new home, or any kind of structure which requires lumber or other types of building material, there is one question of supreme importance. How long will the materials stand up and how does price compare with quality, are two questions to be asked.

The H. F. & A. J. Dawley Lumber company of Norwich can answer these questions for you and also show you how to save many dollars. Fine, kiln-dried, well-seasoned lumber means a sound, substantial home or garage for you. This type of material will stand the test of time. When you build a home you want it to remain finished when done. This statement may sound peculiar but by it we mean that some kinds of lumber make the home look wonderful when first put in but after the test of time they shrink or warp and the home no longer has that finished appearance.

Lumber purchased of Dawley stands the test of time. It does not change after being put into your home and once the job is finished there is no second expense of making changes.

Why not visit the Dawley company at your earliest convenience and let us show you what we mean by good lumber? We can save you time and money if you are planning to build.

FRANKLIN OPTICIANS WILL CONDUCT A CONTEST OF ESSAYS

The Franklin Opticians of 56-58 Franklin street offer a fine microscope to the boy or girl not over 12 years of age who will write the best essay on the eye and the need of wearing glasses in this modern age. All contestants receiving honorable mention will receive a handsome gift useful to any student. To be eligible for the contest it is necessary to call at 58 Franklin street for a free book on the eye which contains many pointers and much information about the eye and glasses. The best essays will be published in this paper.

Eyesight examinations, health examinations and defective eyes should be examined at least once a year. Eyesight conservation and the importance of eye troubles is better understood than ever before. Eye glass lenses give greater clarity (Tillyer Lenses) and the old fashioned spectacle has been modernized by the introduction of attractive spectacle ware in white cold and shell in many attractive designs.

We invite everybody to inspect our modern store and actory where spectacle lenses are fashioned from rough pieces of glass into many intricate curved and highly polished lenses to correct any and all defects that human eye is heir to. Our examination room and dark room is ultra modern and all examinations are conducted by eye specialists and physicians of many years experience and we are glad to fill the prescriptions of other eye specialists at reasonable prices.

We hope this little contest will have far reaching effects and stimulate not only boys and girls but adults of a scientific turn of mind, to look into this important subject.

The state of Connecticut requires an eyesight examination before a license is issued to drive an automobile. Also mention may be made of the effect that eyesight has on the health. Many troubles far remote from the eye are often caused by eyestrain, which, if corrected with glasses, would cause the trouble to vanish. Persons interested further in this important subject are invited to call at Franklin, Inc., 56-58 Franklin street, Norwich, Conn., and receive a free book which will be helpful and interesting.

LOCAL MERCHANTS CAN PROVIDE FINE SERVICE

Whether it is in the automobile tire business, the hotel business, contracting, or in any other line of business, listed on this page is the firm or the business house which stands ready to give prompt and courteous service.

In rainy or pleasant weather, whether it is hot or cold hundreds of local business men await the calls of the patrons for service, that kind which they allege cannot be provided by the concern in cities miles away.

In particular this is true of the automobile accessory business. A tire or tube purchased from these dealers, if it gives trouble, can be serviced best by the concern from which the purchase was made. If it's radio trouble it's the local dealer who gets the call for assistance. If it's any type of quick service you need—it's the local dealer who supplies it.

BULLS CENTERED THIER ACTIVITIES IN UTILITIES SECTION OF MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 30—(AP)—The bull party concentrated its activities on the utility section of the stock market today, leaving most of the remainder of the field, with the exception of a few rails and specialties, to the bears. This division of activity produced the most irregular and confusing market of the new year.

Sharp difference of sentiment developed over the credit situation, with call money mounting to 8 per cent, as banks withdrew about $20,000,000 more in preparation for month-end settlements. Tomorrow is expected to see the peak of the month-end money pinch and is the day of the weekly meetings of the New York federal reserve bank and the bank of England.

It was said in circles close to the federal reserve that an increase in the bank of England's rediscount rate would eliminate the necessity of an increase here. This cast a new light on the situation, as an increase at London has been regarded as paving the way for an increase in New York. It appears that the reserve authorities feel that such action would attract gold abroad and tend to reduce speculative activity at New York.

Neither bank is anxious to raise its rate, fearing that business may suffer, but with London losing gold it is felt that the bank of England would be the logical bank to act. Color is lent to the theory by the fact that Montagu Norman, governor of the bank of England, conferred with officials of the New York federal reserve bank today.

There was little in the day's news save the weekly steel trade reviews, which were phrased in varying degrees of optimism. American Metal Market said "some aspects of the situation do not appear as favorable at this date as was to be expected from predictions made before the year opened, but that is a familiar appearance at the end of January." Iron Trade Review, on the other hand said "what is undoubtedly the best January in the history of the iron and steel industry from the standpoint of production * * * is closing."

About a dozen utilities were lifted to new highs, among them American and Foreign Power, Columbia Gas and North American wheat were bid up 6 to 9 points, and American Telephone, which was sent up 5 points to a new top at 222. With the industrials showing persistent heaviness, the bulls have definitely turned to the utilities, which were somewhat neglected during the bull markets of late last year.

Several of the rails responded to the excellent December earnings statements, C. & O. and Atchison mounting 3 and 3 points. Amusement shares were strong. Loew's touching a new top. Electrical equipment shares forged ahead, General Electric mounting about 12 points to 260 3-4, a new high. International Silver made an extreme gain of 13 points, and St. Joseph Lead rallied about 4 points on the New York Central's application to the interstate commerce commission for permission to build a 3 1-2 mile spur into the company's mines in upper New York state.

U. S. Steel encountered much disappointed selling over the failure to declare an extra dividend, despite its excellent earnings statement. It sold down more than 4 points and about 18 points under its recent high. Otis Elevator, National Bellas Hess, Radio, Childs, Chrysler and Midland Steel preferred lost about 4 to 10 points, while Goodyear, International Harvester, Coty, and American Smelting were among issues losing 2 to 3 points.

The new General Motors stock lost more than a point. The old stock was stricken from the list.

Commodity markets were irregular, cotton encountering further selling while grains improved, wheat helped by further reports of damage to the winter crop and corn by its strong technical position.

In the foreign exchanges, sterling was again easy, the cable rate dropping 1-16 of a cent to $4.84 27-32. Pesetas lost more than 1-2 of a cent as a result of the military uprising in Spain.

NEW YORK, Jan. 30—(AP)—A promising outlook for improvement in the oil industry this year was seen by Kenneth R. Kingsbury, president of the Standard Oil Company of California, on his return today from a business trip in Europe. Renewed oversubscription in some fields, he said, can be corrected within the industry.

The first 67 railroads to report December earnings had net operating income of $75,221,000 against $45,658,000 in December, 1927, an increase of 64.7 per cent. Forty November net was $92,059,000.

On basis of December railroad earnings reported, it is figured net operating income for all class one carriers last year should approximate $1,192,587,653 against $1,035,485,000 for 1927.

Chemical Industries corporation has purchased a 40 per cent interest in the Merlin Products corporation, Brooklyn, which is preparing a national sales campaign for a household cleaner.

Douglas Aircraft Co., Inc., San Diego, Calif., announces its new plant, to be completed next spring, will enable it to handle annual business in excess of $5,000,000. The company reported net profit for eleven months ended Nov. 30 totaling $415,829 against $356,026 for the corresponding 1927 period.

A ten-story whiskey warehouse, with a capacity of 2,250,000 imperial gallons, will be constructed at Walkerville, Ontario, by Hiram Walker-Gooderham & Worts, Ltd., Canadian distillers. The company recently completed a warehouse of 1,500,000 gallons capacity.

Charles K. Davis, formerly assistant general manager of Du Pont Viscoloid company, a subsidiary of E. I. DuPont de Nemours & Co., Wilmington, Del., has been elected president and general manager of the company. He succeeds F. B. Davis, Jr., who resigned to become president of the U. S. Rubber company. Viscoloid has plants at Arlington, N. J., and Leominster, Mass.

NORWICH TOWN

C. E. UNION EXECUTIVES MEET AT CONG. CHAPEL

About fifty members of the Norwich Christian Endeavor union executives enjoyed the banquet in the Norwich Town Congregational chapel, Wednesday evening at 6.30. The following menu was served by members of the Norwich Town Congregational C. E. society.

Fruit Cup
Cold Ham and Tongue Potato Salad
Rolls Pickles
Cake Coffee

The social committee of the entertaining society had charge of the banquet. This committee is: Chairman Reginald Avery, Rose Durr, Eleanor Moore, Ruth Hyde, Henry Counterman, Carl Oliver, Ernest Nylen and Lucier Whaley.

Pep songs were sung during the banquet hour. The announcements were made by the president, Howard Bushnell. He gave notice of the executive meeting to be held at Miss Hyde's, Feb. 11th. He also reminded all to attend the missionary meeting at Greenville Congregational church, Sunday evening at 7.30. The speaker will be Mrs. Robert Chandler, a returned missionary from China.

Middlefield Speaker.

The speaker of the evening was Rev. Charles Applegath of Middlefield, state superintendent of evangelism. His subject was "What We Owe to Our Society and church as Christian Endeavor officers and numbers." We owe our society promissory notes or promises made to the society. Our loyalty is to the unseen head of the society and the church to lift the gaze of others to look upon Jesus, who lived the highest life ever known. It is the business of C. E. societies to make young people fall in love with Jesus.

Our greatest rival is the cynical attitude of some toward life; we must have faith in our fellow man and in the future of our society. It is up to us to recognize the generations behind and ahead of us.

To be a good leader and to know our job is the first essential of an officer.

Prayer was offered by Rev. George H. Strouse of Bozrah. The meeting closed with singing Blest Be the Tie That Binds and with the Mizpah benediction.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

"Behind the German Lines" is everything that the title implies, with its showing of what took place in German cities and towns while the men of the nation were on various fronts carrying on the grim business of war. Never before has the American public had the opportunity to see actual pictures of German life when the impregnable English navy cut off the Fatherland from all sources of importation of foodstuffs and other life sustaining necessities.

Despite Germany's submarine policy during the war, the women suffered greatly at home from lack of food. Long bread lines, with half-starved people waiting long hours for their daily rations, are shown, likewise their grim determination to fight the battle at home is easily discerned from their faces.

"Behind the German Lines" is a compilation of official war pictures taken by the German government, from the first days of the war until the last. UFA, now the most prominent Continental film company, had over one hundred cameramen scattered over all fronts during the war and made a pictorial record of what took place. The company lost over one fourth of its camermen in action.

These pictures, showing every important battle fought by the Entente, and giving glimpses of all important figures during the war, will be shown for the first time in this city at the Broadway theatre. Paramount is responsible for the releasing of this remarking series of pictures in this country.

Palace Theatre

Starting today the Palace theatre presents the second half of their Joy Week show with the Norwich Follies giving an entirely new show. All new costumes, numbers and scenery will feature this change of program. The local girls have won the approval of Norwich theatre-goers by their fine exhibition during the first half of the show and the response was very evident by the large crowds which have been to the Palace since Monday matinee.

Other acts on the bill will be Mantle & Chick in a new comedy song and dance act direct from the big time vaudeville houses in New York. This is class with a bang and you will like it. Another act will be The Stubberfields and this is considered one of the finest of it's kind on the stage. The entire stage show runs a little over 70 minutes but it contains real entertainment every moment.

Friday night the Palace will conduct a "Form Contest" in which all the local girls appearing in the Follies will compete. Three cash prizes will be awarded to the three girls voted by the audience as the ones possessing the finest forms. Don't miss this extra attraction.

The feature picture for the last half bill will be Marceline Day and Ralph Forbes in "Restless Youth", a story of modern flappers and love of today.

"Restless Youth" is the title of a highly entertaining photoplay produced by Columbia Pictures and now being shown at the Palace theatre. It is one of those dramas that get under the skin and haunt the memory like some past experience.

The story is built around the breach in understanding between the younger and older generations. The one is staid, puritanical and settled. The other is carefree, daring, unconventional, freedom loving and often reckless. The picture relates the adventures of a college girl, who is expelled because of a mad prank and is forced to earn her own living. Wherever she goes the story and effects of the adventure follow her. They place her in the power of an unscrupulous employment agent break-up an affair of the heart, separate her from all she holds dear in life and finally bring her to trial for murder.

Into the life of the girl comes a young attorney, whose father was chairman of the board of governors at the time the girl was expelled from college. He is also prosecuting attorney. The scene where the son defends the girl against his father at the murder trial is one of the most intense to be shown upon the screen.

Marceline Day is the girl. Ralph Forbes, the son and Norman Trevor the father. Other members of the cast doing outstanding work are Robert Ellis, Mary Mayberry, Gordon Elliott and Coy Watson.

Tibbett's Concerts

Lawrence Tibbett, famous American baritone who will be heard at Slater Hall Friday, Feb. 15, creates enthusiasm in every audience to which he sings. His lovely voice, supreme trained, his powers of expressive interpretation, the clarity of his enunciation, and his gifts as singing actor all contribute to this result.

Those audiences of his become an absorbing study; at first silenced by surprise at the revelation his singing brings, ever-increasing enthusiasm follows, until at the close he is not allowed to leave after the printed program ends, but must add encore to encore.

A few from the many tributes given in his concert reviews will show how listeners receive Tibbett. For instance, at Spokane, the Chronicle review stated, "Possibly at no time has a concert artist been so enthusiastically received as was Tibbett, his listeners all but cheering his every number. The audience was reluctant to leave the theatre at the close of his much encored program."

In Detroit the News chronicles, "And then, when the printed program had been accomplished, the audience begged for more;" at Washington, D. C., the Times stated, "He captured his audience, having to give 6 encores. Tibbett in songs is an experience which should not be missed;" at Tulsa, the Tribune said, "His generous program was just about doubled, so insistent was the crowd to listen to his singing."

Breed Theatre

Depicting vividly and with a strong dramatic background the hazardous life of the pilots who fly their air mail planes by day and night across the continent, FBO is bringing to the Breed theatre tomorrow and Saturday, one of the most gripping productions of the screen, "The Air Legion," featuring Ben Lyon, Antonio Moreno and Martha Sleeper in the principal roles.

Around the venturesome calling of these intrepid airmen, many of whom are former army flyers who saw service in the World war, James Ashmore Creelman has written an absorbing story, the motivation of which is the restoration of the fires of courage to the spirit of a young pilot who "goes yellow" in the face of death while breasting storms above the earth.

Martha Sleeper, in the leading feminine role, is seen as the girl for whose love the youngster contends with a former army "ace" who cures his cowardice in memory of the lad's soldier father and the romantic element of "The Air Legion," in such capable hands as those of the three featured players, lends much strength to the photoplay. It was directed by Bert Glennon, former army flyer, and among the principals are included John Gough and Colin Chase.

Strand Theatre

"The Naked Truth" will be the photoplay shown on the screen of the Strand theatre for 4 days, commencing Wednesday. It is a picture constructed to convey a moral lesson, and deals with the lives of three boys, two of whom have been left in ignorance of the mysteries of life and the pitfalls in the way of youth, while the third has been given wise paternal advice before his contact with the world.

Special reels have been also prepared which are shown in conjunction with the feature film, of special interest to women, and for this reason only women will be admitted to the performances Wed., Thurs. and Fri. matinee and Wed. and Thurs. nights.

NEW LONDON, Jan. 30.—The triple funeral resulting from the disastrous fire Monday evening when the residence of Mrs. Rosie Spinnato, widow of Orazio Spinnato, 121 Jefferson avenue, was damaged by flames caused by a youthful member of the household carelessly dropping a lighted match into a container of celluloid beads used by the members of the family in making repairs to leather goods, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by throngs of mourners and sympathizing acquaintances of the family. A floor joist against a chimney in the Harbor school was so charred yesterday afternoon after the session of the school that the odor of burning wood attracted attention. He was a republican in politics and had served as city sheriff and ward worker and at the time of his death was employed by the city as truant officer.

Mr. Basely was one of the most widely known military men of the east for he had served with Uncle Sam the greater part of his life. He was hard as a rock in his youth and his career in life brought him into military life early in life. But in his teens he joined William Cody's forces, then known as "Buffalo Bill," as a pony express rider, facing the danger of attack by Indians. He fought in the Indian uprising under the immortal Custer and afterwards became scout in the Fifth cavalry under Major Royall. Mr Baselv served under the American flag 32 years and in 1907 was retired as a sergeant. Other engagements in which Mr. Basely saw service were the Philippine insurrection and the Spanish American war.

No word has come from the missing trawler, Seiner, sailing from the fish canning works at Groton, which left here more than ten days ago. A pilot out of Boston reported a craft off Nantucket Shoals that resembled the Seiner, but search for the craft since then has been without result. The Seiner is said to have been a craft hard to handle in a sea and for that reason her non-appearance leaves slight hope for her safety.

A Hudson coach was found last night on Atlantic street, where it had been parked many hours, and it was taken by the police to a garage and placed in storage. Alexander today issued a tax warrant against Jacob and Annie Silverstein, West Hartford, and has ordered the sale of a cottage owned by the Silversteins on Midway place, Ocean Beach, April 4 at 9 o'clock in the forenoon. It is claimed that the owners owe the city back taxes amounting to $364.18, this amount representing the assessment of the levies 1922 to 1927, inclusive.

A special town meeting of the voters of Groton, held last night in the Town hall, Poquonoc, was attended by only a small representation of citizens. The business to be transacted was such as attracted but little interest, inasmuch as the purport of the meeting, the authorization of the board of selectmen to borrow money, was mandatory and would be made. The meeting voted to authorize the selectmen to make temporary loans not to exceed $165,000, which amount was necessary if the proposed Robert E. Fitch High school was to be erected and furnished. The meeting also passed a vote authorizing and directing the selectmen to make application to the present session of the legislature for permission to issue bonds not to exceed $140,000, which amount represents the town's share of the expense of erecting and furnishing the proposed high school. Under the will of Mr Fitch it is possible to erect the school, but because the bequest providing for the building is insufficient to erect and equip the school the additional money is sought and needed. Clark B. Whaley was chairman of the meeting and Henry L. Bailey was clerk.

The Bulletin story today of the murder of William E. Jackson, county detective for Windham county and former New London county detective, which occurred at Willimantic last evening, was read with surprise and deepest regret by his wide circle of acquaintances in New London and by police and city officials. During that time Detective Jackson made an enviable record as a police officer.

How Best To Use Vicks VapoRub In Case Of Flu

Begin This Simple External Treatment at First Sign of Any Cough or Cold.

If possible, go home and go to bed. Take a laxative and a hot lemonade. Apply hot wet towels over throat and chest until the skin is thoroughly reddened. Then rub vigorously with Vicks. Spread on thickly and cover with warm flannel.

Leave the bed-covering loose, so that the vapors, released by the body-warmth, may be freely inhaled. At the same time, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice.

Repeat this treatment every four hours, eat lightly, and stay in bed until the cold is broken. Complete rest helps the body throw off the cold more quickly.

Mothers especially appreciate Vicks for the children. As it is applied externally, it can be used freely and often, without upsetting delicate digestions, as too much "dosing" is so apt to do.

As in 1918, in spite of tripled capacity, the Vicks laboratories are once more operating all night long. The public is demanding over 875,000 jars every 24 hours.

Capt. George Fried, heroic rescuer, says:
"Reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet."

"AN S.O.S. from the 'Florida'! We change our course. We on the 'America' strain to arrive in time to rescue the men on their sinking ship, 350 miles away. Through the icy, freezing storm and high seas we plunge on—all speed ahead! Then the night-time rescue, the search lights, the whirling waves, the manoeuvering to get near the 'Florida'. Finally, the 'Florida's' crew coming off one at a time, pulling themselves through the water on the line our men had thrown them.

"These 32 men, dazed, many half clothed, needed reviving after their long exposure. Hot coffee, food and Lucky Strikes—these gave new life to many of them and we on board the 'America', crew and passengers alike, found after the strain and struggle that there was nothing quite so comforting and relaxing as the inviting, toasted flavor of Lucky Strikes.

"Playing this game with 'Davy' is ever fascinating, ever thrilling. And we who follow the sea must be ever ready for adventure. Ours is an active life, demanding nerve control and physical fitness. In my health program I have found that Luckies are most important not only because they provide a respite for frazzled nerves and an exhausted body but because whenever I crave anything which is over-fattening, I say to myself, 'Reach for a Lucky instead of a sweet'. In the toasted flavor of Luckies, I get complete satisfaction. And I find that toasting, by removing the irritants, protects my throat."

Note: Authorities attribute the enormous increase in Cigarette smoking to the improvement in the process of Cigarette manufacture by the application of heat. It is true that during the year 1928, Lucky Strike Cigarettes showed a greater increase than all other Cigarettes combined. This surely confirms the public's confidence in the superiority of Lucky Strike.

POLICE TELEPHONE TYPEWRITER MAY BE INSTALLED IN NORWICH SOON

An appropriation to provide for the installation of the so-called police telephone typewriter circuit at police headquarters will probably be included in the estimates to be acted upon at the annual city meeting in June, it was learned Wednesday evening. The board of police commissioners, Alderman Richard P. Gregson, chairman, are enthusiastic over the system which would be of much value to the local police department in broadcasting and receiving police information.

With regard to the police telephone telegraph typewriter, Henry S. Lyon, manager of the local exchange of the Southern New England Telephone Co., said Wednesday evening:

With the addition of the city of Stamford early in February and the further addition of the city of Waterbury, on or about March 1, to the cities in the state being on the so-called police telephone typewriter circuit, the police departments of the state are going to be much better equipped to apprehend the criminal of the quick getaway type and it is, therefore, going to be increasingly difficult for the motor car thief and other breeds of the tricky underworld to operate in the land of steady habits and quick broadcast of police alarms. At Stamford the city officials have approved an appropriation for the installation of a telephone typewriter and it probably will be working during the forepart of February. The Waterbury city officials have done likewise but have deferred the installation till March 1. When these two police departments are cut in on the statewide circuit for broadcasting police alarms and general police information, the telephone typewriter circuit will embrace 15 strategic points.

However, from the standpoint of completing the police net through which the motor using criminal must find his way to escape, the service will be much improved when the cities of Norwich, New London, Bridgeport, Norwalk and Torrington are added to the list.

At the present time Hartford, New Britain, Bristol, Willimantic, Middletown, Meriden, Naugatuck, Seymour, Danbury, New Haven, Branford, Ansonia, Derby and Shelton, the three latter being served by one typewriter, are in the police alarm hookup. There is a telephone typewriter now in the office of the motor vehicle commissioner at Hartford, from where a reply can be flashed instantly and simultaneously to all the cities mentioned, to any question concerning the ownership of a motor car. This machine in the commissioner's office has more than once proved its worth as an aid in the detection of motor car thieves, and as a genuine safeguard against thieves and a help in the recovery of stolen property.

There also is a telephone typewriter in the police department at Springfield, Mass. This machine is on the Connecticut circuit now. Negotiations are pending with various Massachusetts cities for the installation of this equipment and when the Bay State is as well protected by the telephone typewriter as is Connecticut, Springfield will be the connecting point for a hook up between all stations in this state and those in Massachusetts.

With the exception of Willimantic there is no city with a telephone typewriter in what may be called the eastern part of the state. However, when New London and Norwich take this advanced step for the protection of property and come into the circuit with the other larger cities of the state, the motor bandit, or car thief, or other offender against the law will have a hard time getting out of Connecticut, once his description or the description of the car in which he is traveling is flashed over the telephone circuit.

This new aid to the police works about in this way, to assume a case. A crime is committed in New Haven and the criminals start away in an automobile, the markers on which have been noted and are known to the police. The New Haven police type a message, on what looks much like an ordinary typewriter, but is much more than that. This message, containing perhaps the number of the car being used by the criminals, its make and such other information as the New Haven police may have, is received instantaneously by every police department on the telephone typewriter circuit. Then it is but a moment before the patrolmen, through their signal boxes or other means, are told to be on the watch for the crooks.

Time and again during the past year or so, captures have been made by police through the now recognized efficiency of the telephone typewriter, which is maintained by the telephone company.

The police who use the circuit are enthusiastic in praise of it and this state is one of the first to have the system in use so broadly as it is.

SUGGESTS MOTOR HIGHWAYS THROUGHOUT CONNECTICUT

The state of Connecticut has spent a total of $100,000,000 on the state highways and two-thirds of the travel over them is, according to federal census, for recreational purposes. These highways, since they usually traverse densely populated sections, are not and never can be entirely suited to motor recreation. Therefore, the state should construct scenic motor parkways to relieve motor congestion and give the recreational motorist full opportunity to get the best use of his car on which he pays large sums in taxes. This is the broad conclusion of the state park and forest commission in its recently published report to the governor.

These scenic motor parkways would differ from state highways as at present constructed, perhaps most notably in that they would avoid cities and towns and run through forested and rural districts having scenic attractions. Their terminals would be in or near large cities.

They would also differ from ordinary highways in that they would run entirely through publicly owned land used for forestry, water supply or public parks, hence their scenery would always be protected. According to the idea presented in the report, these parkways should consist of two one-way roads not necessarily parallel, but following the same general route between important points and located so that somewhat different scenes and views would be observed by those traveling in opposite directions. There would be no crossings at grade. It is estimated that the cost per mile of such parkways would not exceed that of present trunk line highways, owing to less expensive land acquired and fewer construction difficulties.

The commission's report makes no suggestion for locations of such routes, nor does it ask for any appropriations for their construction, the legislative action calling for a general study only. The study has no connection with any proposed plans for construction of toll highways.

TO DISCUSS FARM RELIEF THIS EVENING

Three plans of farm relief will be discussed by Hon. L. J. Dickinson, congressman from Iowa, at the union agricultural banquet at Hartford this (Thursday) evening. Congressman Dickinson maintains that farm research for the utilization of farm products and waste presents one of the most hopeful phases of the farm problem. When the Dorner process was brought to this country, suggesting the use of cornstalks for the manufacture of paper, it apparently assured the future supply of paper for this country from this waste product.

Utilizing the waste cornstalks in the making of paper, insulating materials, wall board, corn sugar and the use of skim milk in making casein are but a few of the phases which will be touched on by Mr Dickinson when he discusses this subject of making the by-product or waste a valuable factor in the farm income.

The second plan of farm relief which he will discuss will be the further protection of the farm interests by giving them their fair share of protection. Congressman Dickinson says. "It is not my belief that the farm interests are going to be satisfied with writing their own tariff schedules. It is my judgment that a careful study will be made and that careful attention will be given to balancing the schedules so that no particular schedule will enjoy a protected advantage."

The third plan which he will discuss will be farm relief legislation which he maintains up to the present time has been only an experiment so far as the farm is concerned. However, in his address Thursday evening he will go into this matter in more or less detail. Other speakers at the banquet will include Earl Whitehorne, commercial editor of the "Electrical World," Lieutenant Governor Ernest E. Rogers and Mayor Walter E. Batterson of Hartford.

CASE AGAINST BUS DRIVER IS CONTINUED

The case of Charles Gaudette, of Springfield, driver of an interstate bus, was continued for two weeks in the city court Wednesday morning. The accused was arrested Jan. 23 by State Policeman George Webber of the Groton barracks on a complaint that he was transporting passengers in Connecticut without a jitney license and was charged with violation of the motor vehicle laws. Gaudette holds a license that allows him to operate a bus from New York state to Massachusetts, but it does not permit him to pick up passengers in this state and transport them to other parts of Connecticut. Gaudette is alleged to have taken on a passenger here for transportation to Stafford Springs the day before he was arrested.

"STORY OF DELAND" GIFT OF MRS. LOUIS H. WALDEN

"The Story of DeLand and Lake Helen, Florida," a book presented the Otis library, by Mrs. Louis H. Walden of Oneco street, Norwich, has considerable local interest, in the book Helen Parce DeLand of Fairport, New York, an aunt of Mrs. Walden, relates events in the pioneer days of DeLand and Lake Helen which city was founded and developed by her father, Henry A. DeLand. It also gives the early history of Stetson university, originally called DeLand university.

The introduction is written by Rev. Bishop Frederick DeLand Leete, a cousin of Miss DeLand, also an early settler. Rev. Menzo Leete, his father, was one of the first pastors of DeLand.

The end sheets of the book are a pictorial map of DeLand, featuring many humorous incidents of the early days. This map was arranged by Mrs. Louis H. Walden of Norwich and drawn by Elsie Church of Montville, a former Norwich Art school student.

The book was printed at the Academy Press under the special direction of Louis H. Walden, formerly instructor of printing, assisted by two Academy students.

LIFE SAVING MEDAL FOR MOOSUP MAN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

HARTFORD, Jan. 30—The forty-eighth meeting of the Connecticut Humane society was held at the headquarters building, Hartford, Wednesday afternoon. The most important matters to come before the meeting were the reports of the president, treasurer, general manager and heads of the various departments. A striking increase in the amount of work undertaken and accomplished by the society during the year is evident by the report of Charles A. Goodwin, president, which in part is as follows:

Our new general manager, Senator Wheeler, has been actively engaged in promoting the welfare of the society for more than half a year. He has taken up the work, he has familiarized himself with its details and has already made some departures which are going to be of great advantage.

During the past year the society has completed a new animal shelter at headquarters. There is a large detention room where a good number of animals can be cared for and two adjoining rooms which in the future we hope to use for hospital purposes.

Our general manager is working on bills which will be presented in the legislature. Among those of outstanding interest is one concerning the stunning of animals in slaughterhouses and another relating to humane trapping. He is also going into the matter of shipping young calves into the state in the same cars with new milch cows. A great many of these calves are trampled to death and after the matter has been gone into thoroughly some plan for the protection of the calves will be made.

The general manager represented this society at the National Humane convention at New Orleans and extended an invitation to the delegates to hold their convention next year in Hartford.

During the past year a new system of agents' reports has been put into effect that keeps headquarters advised as to every case handled. These reports are sent in each day by the different agents.

In the family department the following figures show the work of 1928: Number of complaints received 1593; children involved 5391; relief of adults 385; persons prosecuted for offenses committed against children 281; persons sentenced to prison, jail, state farm or reformatory 131; petitions for commitment of children to county and state institutions 517. Disposition of children referred to town authorities for care 346; undesirable returned to other states 120.

In the animal department the following figures are of interest: Total number of complaints received 4,250; total number of prosecutions 70; shelter provided for animals 407; homes found for animals 296; sick and injured animals humanely destroyed 15,686; number of agents employed 17; agents mileage for the year 188,503.

The income for the past year is as follows:

Dues and donations $19,130.50; state appropriation $4,000.00; care of animals $1,572.58; interest and dividends $50,660.71; miscellaneous $338.79.

During the year the society has received legacies including: Julia B. Henry, East Killingly, $416.00; Georgia Gatter, Waterford, $4,475.07.

Medals conferred include: William Brussiere, Moosup, gold, rescue of humane life.

Approximately 23,000 letters have been sent out during the year to membership and mailing list. The income from this mailing campaign has been $19,130.50, or an increase over 1927 of $1,928.05. The membership of the society has increased from 2,516 in 1927 to 2,897 in 1928—a gain of 381.

During the year the department of publicity has prepared various articles with and without illustrations for the newspapers of Hartford and other cities of the state. Several public addresses have been given and during the summer the director gave 17 radio talks in so many consecutive weeks from the WTIC broadcasting station.

The department has also had in charge all printing used by the society, an item this year of unusual importance. The preparation of the annual report was also a part of the work of this department. It has cooperated closely with the educational work, especially in the poster contest. Since the contest it has sent to schools, teachers and individuals a great deal of material of an educational nature.

One thousand educational calendars prepared by the society have been distributed to schools throughout the state and it had printed 8,000 copies of the humane course of study which were distributed to the schools of the state by the state board of education.

It should also be noted that the educational department had an exhibition at the Eastern Arts convention which was very creditable and merited many favorable comments.

It is with a new hopefulness that the society enters the year ahead. The organization under Mr. Wheeler's leadership is better fitted than ever to cope with the changing conditions presented by our rapidly growing state. Our department heads, our staff and our agents have worked untiringly to support the management and to retain and improve our position in the work. The details of their accomplishment you will head from their own lips.

Again we must offer our appreciation to our members for their moral and material support, and to the press of Connecticut, the reserval public officers, state and local, and the welfare agencies, public and private, for unfailing assistance and cooperation our thanks are due."

After the report by the president had been read other reports by the general manager and heads of departments enlarging upon the items which had been mentioned by the president were read.

The board of directors was re-elected for the ensuing year without change. It consists of Charles A. Goodwin, Dr. George C. F. Williams, Wilbur F. Gordy, Arthur L. Shipman, Francis R. Cooley, Irving H. Chase, Robbins B. Stoeckel, Burton Mansfield and Mrs. W. B. Williams.

The offices of the society were tastefully decorated with palms and cut flowers and at the close of the business session tea was served with Mrs. Charles A. Goodwin and Mrs. Wilbur F. Gordy pouring.

BLODGETT ADVISES CLOSE ANALYSIS OF TAX STRUCTURE

Before any new tax burden is imposed in Connecticut, there should be a painstaking analysis of the present tax structure to find which of the taxpaying groups is most able to pay additionally, Tax Commissioner William H. Blodgett advises, in his biennial report to Gov. John H. Trumbull, just made public.

Any new burden which might be created should be made to fall first, he says, on business activities not paying taxes to the state, and, second, if the receipts from such sources are found insufficient those already paying to the state may be called on to pay additionally.

"New sources of revenue are limited," he points out, "and cannot be depended on to furnish large amounts of money. The personal income tax, with such inquisitorial features as are necessary to accomplish its successful administration, is not likely to be resorted to in Connecticut until those now paying to the state in substantial numbers manifest an unwillingness to supply the requisite amount of money needful to meet the growing needs of the state. The task of imposing additional tax burdens on the groups which have been paying is one which should be approached with painstaking care. Citizens of each group now paying contend that they are bearing more than their proportionate share of the total tax burden.

To determine where the truth lies with respect to such contention by any group is by no means impossible, though the task is more or less difficult.

"Altogether too frequently the general assembly has enacted tax laws which have been hastily drawn and passed under the urge and necessity of meeting the immediate money requirements of the state. Laws so drawn and enacted are not likely to be sound in theory. The administrative features are frequently such as to involve the state in unnecessary friction, thus imposing on the state the necessity of compromising with taxpayers and resulting in unnecessary and fruitless litigation. The breaking down, in whole or in part, of tax laws of this kind results in loss of anticipated revenue by the state, and, worse than this, the state is made poorer in the respect of its citizens.

"The course taken by Connecticut in 1911, when a commission was appointed whose personnel was not selected from any taxpaying group may be followed with advantage. That commission made a report which became the basis, in the main, of the legislation of 1915. It is the most useful report on the subject of taxation which has been published at the expense of the state. The building of a tax structure for any state, in view of the complexities of modern business, should be entrusted to none except such as have had wide experience in the field of economics and taxation. It is my opinion that the general assembly of 1929 should not, in view of the present demands for state expenditures, lighten the tax burden on any group which is paying to the state. If before adjournment of the session there should be a consensus of opinion that new revenue legislation will be required in 1931 it should raise such a commission as is here suggested to investigate the tax structure of the state to determine which of the groups now paying should be required to pay additionally, and, generally, to pave the way for and recommend needful legislation for such purpose."

A table is shown here which presents the receipts of the state from taxation, exclusive of motor vehicle receipts, shows the tax sources, the rate of tax applicable to each source and the percentage which each item bears to the total receipts of the state during the year ended June 30, 1928. It shows that from the laws administered by the tax commissioner the state received the sum of $18,684,079.
